N.U. TO ABSORB ARMOUR TECH

DIG JEWISH ART OBJECTS OUT OF ARIZONA SANDS

May Be Relics of a Lost Nation.

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—After investigation by a number of scientists, first announcement was made here today of the excavation near Tucson of cast lead swords, crosses and other objects bearing Latin and Hebrew inscriptions, which, taken at their face value, are held to mean that Roman Jews crossed the Atlantic in the dark ages, penetrated to Arizona and founded a kingdom which lasted from about 760 A. D. to 900 A. D.

The cast symbols and the engravings on them include crosses, a crescent, a seven branched candlestick, and certain Masoniclike representations.

Opinions of scientists vary as to the authenticity of the objects. Neil Merton Judd, curator of American archaeology of the United States National museum, said he believed that no hoax or fraud was involved, but he thought the date later than that of the Spanish conquest of 1540 A. D.

Vouches for Discoverers.

Dr. Byron Cummings, professor of archaeology of the University of Arizona, vouched for the reliability of the discoverers of the objects which, he said, "show Jewish and Christian influence and bear dates of 760 to 900 A. D."

On the other hand, Dr. Bashford Dean, curator of arms and armor of the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York City, when consulted about the excavations, branded the objects as crude and childish forgeries.

The first object found was a large metal cross, which was discovered by Charles E. Manier of Tuscon, embedded in a limestone formation, five feet [illegible] inches below the surface.

Further digging by Mr. Manier and Thomas W. Bent uncovered the other objects.

Examined by Experts.

The objects and site have been examined by Prof. A. E. Douglass, noted astronomer and chronologist of the Lowell observatory; Prof. Frank H. Fowler of the College of Letters, Arts and Sciences of the University of Arizona; Dr. C. J. Saria, a geologist; Prof. Cummings; Neil H. Judd and others.

The combination of Christian cross, Moslem crescent, Hebraic seven-branched candlestick and Free Masonry emblems has imposed a heavy tax on the credulity of investigators, but their appearance of having been covered and embedded in stone by natural processes has puzzled skilled archaeologists. Some have arrived at the opinion that, whatever their origin, the objects lay in the earth for centuries.

Conflicts with Indians.

The inscriptions have been interpreted as describing the conflicts of the prehistoric Roman-Jewish kingdom in the southwest with the Toltec Indians, forerunners of the Aztecs.

From the inscriptions it has been deduced that the mysterious invaders called their land "Calalus." Using the finds as a basis for the work Laura [illegible] Ostrander, historian of Tucson, has sketched the history of rulers of Calalus.

Those scholars to whom the materials have been submitted have been slow to accept the finds as authentic because of the character of the objects and the frequency of archaeological frauds. The danger of indorsing another Cardiff giant or a monument of the "Bil Stumps His Mark" type has generally caused investigators to be cautious, but it is alleged that those who have examined the site have come to the conclusion that the things were not planted as a hoax, but have been there for a considerable period of time.

Found in 1924.

They were found in September, 1924, fifteen months ago—a longer period than any motion picture press agent, as a rule, would allow for the incubation of a publicity dodge.

A statement by the finder says:

"The chance discovery by Charles E. Manier and subsequent excavation by him and Thomas W. Bent near Tucson, Ariz., has brought to light many objects that indicate an expedition of considerable proportion of Roman Jews in America during the period from 775 A. D. to 900 A. D.

"The evidence unearthed appears to be the positive data for which scientists have been searching for many years. It is thought that these relics definitely establish the fact that European or other outside influence existed in America before the advent of Columbus and the Spanish conquerors. This influence was found in America among the Indians in their rites and ceremonials by the Spaniards, but until the present find no definite evidence has appeared to prove this theory."

STRONG SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING PROMISED CITY

Institute Founded in 1893 by Packer.

Northwestern university's engineering school is to absorb the Armour Institute of Technology—a combination which is expected to make Chicago one of the engineering centers of the United States—provided a tentative plan under consideration by the trustees of both institutions is adopted.

The negotiations have been held a secret, and those involved are unwilling to talk in detail about the merger, but it is known that the plan contemplates a gradual movement, over a five year period, of the physical and educational assets of the institute into the administrative control of Northwestern.

Keep Armour Name.

During the interim the Armour name will remain. At the end of the five years, however, there will be but the one school, with its main buildings on the Evanston campus and its night classes and laboratories on the new McKinlock campus.

President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern admitted negotiations are under way.

"Everybody on both sides is agreeable," he declared.

President Scott declined to be more specific concerning the plan, but discussed the wisdom of the merger freely.

"Pressure has been coming from members of the engineering profession in Chicago, who want a local school that will be nationally recognized," he said. "At present neither school is strong.

Strength in Union.

"A consolidation would give us an engineering institution comparable to our medical school. Chicago is the largest center of medical training in the United States."

President Scott said he did not wish to go further into the matter now nor to enter into a detailed statement, which might not be approved by representatives of the institute.

"We are now on a working basis," he asserted, "but everything beyond that is tentative. If the plan is consummated it will be a great forward step in the development of Chicago and of the university."

Dr. Howard Raymond, president of Armour institute, admitted that he had heard rumors of the consolidation.

Founded by P. D. Armour.

Armour Institute of Technology was founded by Philip D. Armour, who during his lifetime contributed an endowment of more than $2,650,000.

Since his death J. Ogden Armour contributed several millions more. He has been active as president of the board.

The elder Armour made the institution an expression of his gratitude for the success he attained as a business man.

The announced intention was to make it possible for deserving youth too poor to attend the existing schools an opportunity to obtain education in technical lines.

He and the Rev. F. W. Gunsaulus, who left his pulpit to assume the presidency of the institute, toured the east and visited all important colleges of engineering before the erection of the first buildings at 33d and Federal streets. In September, 1893, the first classes were opened.

Dr. Raymond has been president of the institute since the death of Dr. Gunsaulus.

SHOOTS LIGHTS OUT AT PARTY AND IS SLAIN

James Lente, 39 years old, 7731 Greenwood avenue, staged a wine party for six men in his home early this morning and it cost his life. While the festivities were at their height, Lente seized a revolver, according to the police, and began to shoot out the lights. One of his guests, fearing he would kill some of them, took the gun from him and shot him three times. He died within a few minutes.

The Grand Crossing police took all the men to the station for questioning in an effort to discover which one fired the fatal shots. Lente was married and the father of nine children. His wife and the children were asleep upstairs when he was killed.

Frank Along, 30 years old, 1422 Sedgwick street, said by the police to have been a bootlegger, was shot and probably fatally wounded this morning when he arose from his bed to answer the doorbell. As he opened the door three shots were fired into him. His wife, Mary, told the police he was unable to tell her, as he staggered back, how many men were in the attacking party or whether he knew his assailant.

HERMIT STARVES TO DEATH WITH FORTUNE AT SIDE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Guy de Maupassant's most weird tale does not exceed that of the life of a seventy year old hermit found dead today of malnutrition in his squalid lodgings in an ancient tenement of the old Latin quarter.

Edward Bellier forty years ago lost a fortune of 80,000 francs (then $16,000) left by his parents. He believed he had sent it to the laundry with a bundle of soiled linen and he could never trace the money. Shattered by the loss, Bellier became a recluse, announcing that he would never send anything to the laundry again. Soon his filthy garments caused him the loss of his job and eventually his underclothes and other garments dropped away into tattered rags and the children called him the "Shirtless One."

A neighbor gave Bellier a bowl of soup daily and also paid the rent.

Three days ago Bellier did not appear at his window for soup and the odor from his lodging caused the concierge to ask the police to break in the door. Bellier's naked body was found on the floor of his fireless room.

And the police, in ransacking the rubbish in his closets, found a packet of crumbing, moth eaten bank notes—the 80,000 francs which Bellier thought he had lost.

CO-ED SEIZES BANDIT'S GUN, BALKS HOLDUP

Miss Eleanore Vail, 19 year old sophomore at Northwestern university, wouldn't give up last night when a robber thrust a revolver into her face as she was nearing her home, 4242 North Hermitage avenue.

She seized the barrel and twisted it away from her. Then she scratched the bandit's face. Then she screamed. The man, unable to wrest the weapon from her and afraid to let go of it, dragged her toward an alley. Miss Vail continued to scream. As help arrived the robber gave a final jerk, got his revolver, and fled into the alley.

POLICE REPEAT STOCKYARD RUM RAIDS; SEIZE 66

Twelve detective bureau squads, commanded by Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker and Capt. John Stege, made a series of raids on soft drink establishments and poolrooms in the stockyards police district last night.

Before midnight sixty-six prisoners had been taken and a quantity of liquor seized. Those arrested were taken to the stockyards station. The same district was raided last Saturday night. In each instance the squads had obtained search warrants.

FLORIDA BOOM INVADES HOUSE

Congressional Record Blazons Its Glories.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[U. P.]—Florida has spread her allurements on the records of congress.

In one of the most dazzling flights of oratory heard in the house for some time, Representative Robert Alexis Green [Dem., Fla.], serving his first term, put them there. It was during a debate on the tax bill. The Floridan was opposing the inheritance tax. His remarks are quoted from the Congressional Record:

MR. GREEN OF FLORIDA: "Is it equitable and just that you should force this upon the people of Florida, a state which is large in proportion, having 58,000 square miles—as large as New York, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island together; a state which produces enough vegetables and enough eatable products to feed the city of New York?

Takes Fervid Flight.

"There where the watermelon and the strawberry transform the midnight dew into luscious red juice; there where the springs gush forth that transparent and God given fluid, sparkling with purity and virtue, the only proper drink for an American citizen, but if there be those of a grosser appetite who want to violate the constitution of America, there is Bimini, only an hour or two away.

"My fellow members, I know that of old, Cecilia and Seraphs were fascinated and men were enraptured; I know Timotheus, with magic strain, led rocks, trees and beasts to follow him; I know that the notes of Orpheus entranced them and enthralled the underworld and caused the gods to gaze thereon with envy, and I know that David drew from his harp a chord which swept the gloom from the brow of Saul and flooded Israel's palaces with music and laughter.

And They Call Time.

"But if all these were mingled in a single rhapsody too great for the hand of mortal man, it would not equal the majesty and the splendor of Old Suwanee river played on the ukulele and hummed by the bright-eyed Florida maidens underneath the sweet magnolia trees, with the soothing odor gushing forth in a blazing November moonlight and——"

THE CHAIRMAN—The time of the gentleman from Florida has expired.

MR. GARNER OF TEXAS—I yield to the gentleman two minutes.

But Mr. Green refused to continue his eulogy further, and devoted the extra two minutes to speaking on the taxes.

NEW $4,000,000 CHURCH PLANNED FOR CHICAGO

The building of another church temple for Chicago erected after the model of the $4,000,000 Broadway Temple of New York City is one of the plans under discussion by the Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Locust and North La Salle streets.

A preliminary meeting was held yesterday afternoon at which the officials representing Grace church met with Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the Chicago Temple; Raymond G. Kimbell, president of the Chicago Methodist Social union; F. J. Thielbar, architect, and the Rev. J. Hastie Odgers, superintendent of the Chicago Northern district of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The building of a temple to house not only the church but apartments also in the upper stories was urged in a letter by Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the Broadway Temple, New York, received by Dr. Copeland Smith, pastor of Grace church.

"Build a temple," Dr. Reisner's letter urged, "in such a way that in case the locality should no longer call for a regular church the property would be of value as a business proposition."

Bandits Too Soon; Money in Store 10 Minutes Later

Two sheikish bandits were just ten minutes early yesterday when they held up the soft drink parlor of Edward Lambert Sr., 171st street and the Dixie highway, Hazelcrest. Lambert returned a few minutes after they left with $1,000, which he had drawn from a Harvey bank to use in cashing checks. They got only $25.

Trio Found Murdered in Batavia Home

Henry W. Jeske, teller in the First National Bank of Batavia, Ill.; his wife, Eva, and their 6 year old son, Ralph, were shot and killed by an unidentified assailant last night at their farm home two miles northeast of Batavia.

Jeske's automobile, in which the three had just returned from a Christmas shopping expedition in Batavia, was taken by the killer. It bore the 1925 Illinois license number 393,095. While hastily gathered posses of farmers searched the nearby roads for traces of the slayer, authorities in Kane and adjoining counties were asked to search for the car.

Farm Hand Finds Bodies.

The bodies were discovered shortly before midnight by Harold Hall, a farm worker employed by Jeske. As Hall drove his car into the yard surrounding the neat bungalow in which the banker lived, his headlights disclosed the bodies of the man and the boy lying on the grass near the front porch.

Inside the house he found the body of Mrs. Jeske. Her clothing had been torn to shreds and there was evidence that she had put up a terrific struggle before a bullet through the brain ended her life. Jeske had also been shot through the head. The boy's throat had been pierced by a bullet and he had bled to death.

Telephone Wires Cut.

The front door of the house, which had been thoroughly ransacked, was open. A smashed window showed how the man, or men, had gained entrance while the family was away. The telephone wires had been cut and the looting of the place had apparently been systematically conducted.

Sheriff Herman Vierke at Geneva launched the first investigation. He was undetermined whether the killings were the work of a maniac or of a burglar surprised by his victims. The assumption is that when the family reached the farm yard, Mrs. Jeske went inside while the teller, with his son, drove to a garage in the rear to put up his car.

As the crime is reconstructed by the sheriff, Mrs. Jeske was seized as she went into the front hall. The assailant—possibly there was more than one—tore her clothing in the struggle to silence her cries and when unsuccessful, killed her.

Father and Boy Slain.

Jeske, hearing her and the crack of the weapon, rushed to her assistance, with the boy at his heels. Then the killer, crazed by fear, shot him and turned his weapon on the child. He dashed out and used the automobile to escape, according to this theory.

A checkup is being made to learn whether any inmates of the Elgin State hospital have escaped recently. The burglary theory, however, is favored. There have been a number of thefts recently in the vicinity and in each instance the burglar entered by smashing a window.

Jeske, according to the authorities, had an excellent reputation and had no known enemies. He had worked in the bank until 9 p. m. He joined Mrs. Jeske, who had been shopping with the boy, for the trip home. Jeske was 35 years old, his wife 34.

Find Fake Bank Examiner Guilty of Chenoa Robbery

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Harry Funk, charged with robbery of the Farmers' Bank of Chenoa on Jan. 13 of $184,000, was found guilty tonight by a jury. J. S. Kelley, president of the bank, and his stenographer both positively identified him as one of the two robbers who, representing themselves as bank examiners, spent much of an afternoon examining the books of the bank before they committed the robbery.

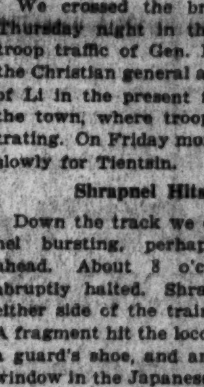
BLAKE TASTES OF CHINA'S WAR; SAYS IT'S REAL

Rescue Chicagoans from Battle Zone.

BY TIFFANY BLAKE.
[Chief Editorial Writer for The Tribune.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PEKING, Dec. 12.—Herewith is an account of our adventures on the international train on which we were proceeding from Peking to Tientsin when it was caught in the vortex of China's civil war.



TIFFANY BLAKE.

We left Peking on Thursday, at 8 a. m., and proceeded without event to Yangtsun, eighteen miles this side of Tientsin, where the railway bridge over the canal had been partly destroyed by the retreating troops of Li Chinglin, civil governor of Chihli province and a supporter of Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord. The bridge had been mended by the crew of the international train while on its way to Peking Wednesday.

We crossed the bridge and spent Thursday night in the hustle of the troop traffic of Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian general and the opponent of Li in the present fighting, east of the town, where troops were concentrating. On Friday morning we started slowly for Tientsin.

Shrapnel Hits Train.

Down the track we could see shrapnel bursting, perhaps three miles ahead. About 8 o'clock the train abruptly halted. Shrapnel struck on either side of the train, bracketing it. A fragment hit the locomotive, another a guard's shoe, and another pierced a window in the Japanese car.

The train consisted of British, French, Italian, Japanese, and American cars, each with a guard, and baggage, repair, and mail cars. Capt. Jesee Cope of the 15th Infantry, stationed in Tientsin, was in command. On the baggage car Col. Mason had rigged an ingenious aerial for communicating by wireless with Tientsin to report the attack.

In the meanwhile the train moved back to Yangtsun, but slowly, for behind us were two armored trains of Feng Yu-hsiang, which also had gone back to make room for us. The armored trains obviously were ready to follow us to Li Ching-lin's lines, and this had something to do with the attack on our train.

Fire on Flag of Truce.

Capt. Cope, a cool, level headed young officer, sent Lieut. Brant toward the front with representatives of each group of the nationals on the train to carry a flag of truce. He was ordered to try to get permission from Li Ching-lin's officers for the train to proceed to Tientsin.

At Li Ching-lin's wire entanglements Lieut. Mason, the flag bearer, was stopped by machine gun fire and compelled to take to cover. The party then soon returned to the train. A conference of the nationals' representatives was held, and Tientsin was asked by radio for instructions.

The Japanese captain at this conference was for bursting through regardless of consequences, but there were women and children on board, and the other commanders were opposed to such a course.

Food and Water Run Out.

By this time the food and water was gone and the steam in the train had died. Railroad ties were cut up to get up steam in the engine to heat the cars. Violent dust storms constantly swept the plains in which our train stood. Finally we had word that a relief train was coming from Tientsin and we were ordered to proceed as far as the broken bridge where our baggage was to be transferred.

Our engine went ahead alone as Li Ching-lin's intentions were not clear. Again the engine was fired upon and hit. Capt. Cope ran the engine back.

We learned that Tientsin was unable to get a relief train through Li-Ching-lin's lines and the legation at Peking sent on a relief truck with food under Secretary W. J. Peck and a handful of marines. They arrived at midnight on Friday and they were greeted enthusiastically by the hungry Americans.

On Saturday morning there was sharp artillery, machine gun and infantry fire four miles ahead toward Tientsin. If Li Ching-lin was advancing we were caught in the center of a sharp battle for Yangtsun. But the firing subsided. Feng's troops were moving forward and farther away from us and we were able to return to Peking through heavy troop train traffic.

Just as we crossed a bridge, high overhead there whirred an airplane. As it passed above us we were idling along. It dropped a bomb which fell into a canal 1,000 yards away. That hurried the movement of our train and we reached Peking at 6 p. m., where we were greeted by our anxious friends who were crowding the station.

Our experience leads to this conclusion:

The war is real in China; Feng Yu-hsiang's army is well disciplined, equipped and maneuvered. The Old China and the gunboat policy are things of the past. New relations must be established.

SUFFERED FROM COLD

BY WILLIAM PROHME.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PEKING, Dec. 12.—After hours of shunting about in the midst of a battle in the neighborhood of Yangtsun, eighteen miles from its destination, Tientsin, the international train carrying fifty foreigners, including several Chicagoans, and an international guard of seventy returned to Peking today. The train just missed being smashed by a bomb dropped from an airplane.

While in Yangtsun the passengers on the train were in the midst of an artillery duel between the forces of Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian general, and Li Ching-lin, the civil governor of Chihli province and a supporter of Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord. The passengers took refuge from shells and bullets under the train. None was hurst, but all suffered from the cold. There were no sleeping accommodations on the train. The women took turns napping in the compartments, while the men tried to sleep on the car floors.

Chicagoans on Board.

Among the Chicagoans on board are: Tiffany Blake, chief editorial writer of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; Mrs. Blake, Mrs. W. J. Calhoun, widow of the former American minister to China; Miss Anne Carrerre, and Mrs. M. C. Taylor.

Other Americans on the train were William S. Kalgan, Mrs. C. S. Ward, Mrs. E. W. Poor, Mrs. T. S. Miller, the Misses Noyes and Holt, Maj. Harper, his wife and four children, and Lieut. Burkhardt.

CINDER IN EYE GREAT ASSET TO XMAS MOOCHER

Wear Old Army Coat, Panhandler Advises.

BY SIDNEY SUTHERLAND.

A cinder which was jarred loose by a passing L train on Wabash and which nestled snugly under my right upper eyelid Wednesday night made my essay in daylight panhandling Thursday afternoon considerably easier and more profitable.

Two clerks in the Home Drug store on Congress gave me a long look before they invited me back of the prescription counter to hunt for the cinder, now the size of an adult pigeon. One of them kicked the door of the safe shut e'er he took up his bituminous pursuit.

When I started mooching Thursday noon at the corner of Randolph and Wells my right eye was swollen and red. Maybe it excited sympathy, for I picked up three nickels by the time I reached Jackson blvd.

Mooch Against Traffic.

Among the things I learned was to walk against foot traffic. Going east on the north side of Jackson, I kept near the buildings. This gives you a strategic confrontation with prospective donors.

Another thing I observed was the startling difference between La Salle street after sunset and during daylight.

I mean astonishing from the viewpoint of a beggar. There were fifty times more people abroad and fifty times less opportunity to make a touch. Business men and shoppers have an objective during the day and they are harder to detain with the mumbled appeal for a cup of Java. At night the tendency to loiter gives the bum a chance to get his stuff across.

Labor vs. Bumming.

With $1.65 I had collected Wednesday night in my pocket, I debated the idea of getting pinched. Now, that would have been simple. All I had to do was to stand within the traffic officer's visibility and annoy passersby.

But since the assignment was to discover if the rewards of mooching were greater than the emoluments of honest labor, nothing would be achieved by deliberately inviting a ride in the patrol wagon, since naturally your genuine panhandler would try to avoid that episode.

Two young chaps were walking slowly north in La Salle. I met them in front of the Illinois Merchants bank with the usual whine:

"Buddie, how's the chance for a cup of coffee?"

The taller one laughed as they stopped.

"Buy an Army Coat."

"Cripes, I just bummed a dime, myself!" he said. He studied me a moment and went on: "Better go round to the army store and buy a service overcoat. They're a buck or two secondhand; and they all fall for the old army coat."

I asked him if he had found a pay streak on any particular street. He quit laughing.

"Well, if I had I wouldn't tip you off, Jack. You just prowl around anywhere you want to, but believe me you'd better keep away from where cripples or blinds are parked."

I tried to find out if such preserves required a split with the patrolman on the beat, but the pair departed with only a contemptuous look for my ignorance. Indeed, I was unable to find out if beggars give any part of their loot to the gendarmerie, although the blasphemous outburst of which I was a target later on would indicate so.

Rotten Luck.

Two dimes and a nickel or so, and I turned west from Wabash on Washington. Poor luck. In front of the cigar store at the Washington street entrance of the Conway building a couple stood quarreling.

Like all married folk wrangling in public, they lowered their voices when people passed, raising them when alone. He was angrily bawling her out, and she was bitterly protesting. I touched him on the elbow and he turned with a furious stare.

"Brother, how's the chance for a bowl of soup?"

"The chance for a swift kick in the shins is a hell of a lot better," he snarled.

I withdrew my shins hurriedly.

Real Christmas Spirit.

The most generous display of the holiday spirit came near the west entrance of the city hall building. A tall, slender man in a light gray hat and overcoat and wearing thick lensed glasses, bent down as I accosted him with the regular appeal for the price of a cup of coffee.

He reached in his right overcoat pocket, drew out a nickel and a telephone slug. He replaced them, removed his right glove and dug into his trousers pocket.

"Here you are," he said in a kindly voice. "Get yourself a couple of cups."

In my palm lay a fifty-cent piece. I got this brief description of him by studying his retreating form.

For hours I proceeded, keeping an engagement with a photographer at Wabash and Washington and at Michigan at Washington, saving the camera man from the traffic officer at the latter corner by explaining it was a "stunt." He suggested we take a picture of a pinch at the nearest patrol box, but that wasn't a "natural" arrest, and the pose would be cheating.

As I decided to call it a day, having annexed $1.30 for a total of $2.95 for the Good Fellow fund, I turned north once more in Wabash. I had found that Wabash and La Salle and Clark are the best north and south streets at night, Wabash especially, although the rumble of the elevated often gives the isolated quarry a chance to duck before you've finished your touch. A subway ought to get the unanimous vote of the roving panhandle brigade.

Jackson and Washington were, for me, the best east and west thoroughfares.

Youth Most Responsive.

Everywhere, youth is more responsive than old age. The latter probably know how hard it was for them to get theirs and prefer to exercise their philanthropic inclinations through the organized charities. The plainer dressed citizen is more free handed than the obviously prosperous. And the sporting character is the loosest of all with his change.

On my way to The Tribune Tower I went through the tunnel at Randolph. A bald beggar with a twisted back (it may be a pillow stuffed under his coat) and left leg withdrawn from sight (it may be amputated) sat holding out his cap.

A nickel or two dropped into it. I took my station a few yards away and began to panhandle commuters. Suddenly the tunnel was deserted, but not at all silent. The cripple was voicing his sentiments:

"Say, you blankety-blank, et cetera ad infinitum, get the hell outta here. Wot you tryin' to do? You kin stall round outside. I gotta set here. Get outta here and stay out!"

Whether he would have run for a cop, I don't know.

I got.

Two More Winners Tomorrow

The Rules:

1. Until further notice, The Chicago Tribune will pay $1600.00 a week for the best original Moviegrams submitted by the public. $100.00 will be paid for each Moviegram accepted and published. Two will be selected every day and four every Sunday.
2. A Moviegram is a clever sentence of 10 words or less about any motion picture actor or actress, in which each word begins with the same letter as the first letter of the star's last name. For example, if a Moviegram is written about Gloria Swanson, each word must start with the letter "S."
3. This offer is open to everybody—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of The Tribune and their families. It does not matter where you live.
4. Entrants may submit as many Moviegrams as they wish. Originality will count. Neatness will count.
5. All entries should be addressed "Moviegrams," The Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois.
6. You need not purchase The Chicago Tribune to compete. Your Moviegram need not be submitted on the attached blank. You may write on a separate sheet of paper. These rules may be obtained free of charge at The Tribune Office and will be found in the copy of The Tribune on file at the Public Libraries.

PARIS DAZZLED BY FETE AS REDS TALK OF PAYING

Tchitcherin Seeks Deal on Czar's Bonds.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Dec. 12.—This was a red letter day for the Russian Red in Paris.

GEORGES TCHITCHERIN.
[Copyright: U. & U.]

Premier Aristide Briand was host to George Tchitcherin, the soviet foreign minister, and Christian Rakovsky, the Russian ambassador to France, at an elaborate luncheon in the gilded state dining hall in the Quai d'Orsay. The soviet ambassador gave a big reception at the Russian embassy in the exclusive Rue de Grenelle this evening with 600 of the elite as guests.

In the interim this afternoon the French premier conversed for two hours with M. Tchitcherin concerning Moscow's recognition of the czarist government's debts and the possibility of Russia joining the league of nations.

Urges Russia to Settle.

C. RAKOVSKY.

M. Briand used the necessity of France repaying her war debts to the United States as a leverage to urge M. Tchitcherin to make a serious offer to reimburse the Romanoff obligations to France, which aggregate 10,000,000,000 francs, according to the agreement reached with former Ambassador Krassin last summer.

M. Briand stressed the fact that France is obliged to dun her creditors to pay, as Ambassador Henri Berenger is about to recommence debt funding negotiations with the United States. He intimated that France will soon send bills to Italy, Poland, Jugo-Slavia, Roumania, and other debtors who thus far have made no efforts to fund their obligations to the Paris government.

THE TRIBUNE is informed that M. Tchitcherin evinced more sincerity toward the reaching of an accord on the debts than any Russian who has appeared here since the Red revolution, and Quai d'Orsay officials expressed the greatest optimism.

Soviets Hedge on League.

Regarding joining the league of nations, M. Tchitcherin insisted that Russia cannot abandon its claim to Bessarabia, now held by Roumania. The little entente and France hitherto have considered Bessarabia as a bar to Moscow joining the league, as it contains the potential germ for warfare if the Reds decide to sieze their former province.

It is understood that M. Briand will urge another Russo-Roumanian conference, aimed to settle the quarrel in the near future.

The Briand luncheon was a twelve course affair, beginning with imported caviar served with vodka, then cold sturgeon from the Volga, washed down with dry Rhein wine—"spirits of Locarno," as M. Briand wittily remarked. These preceded the usual menu, which was washed down with six different kinds of wine, ending with champagne and liqueurs.

Russians' Party Brilliant.

All elements of Paris' exclusive, fashionable, and cosmopolitan society except the Muscovite monarchists were represented at the imposing reception in the handsome embassy, a relic of the czarist régime.

Leading French scions of the old aristocracy and numerous English, Italian, and German titled persons, as well as several leading members of the American colony, were present.

Three orchestras, an American Negro jazz band, a South American tango outfit, and a Magyar stringed band, provided the music, with plenty of Russian singing to special instruments.

A most sumptuous buffet supper and the biggest variety of free wet goods were special features and attracted much attention.

Strive to Satisfy Thirsts.

Enormous platters of iced caviar—the big pale gray eggs of the freshest variety were ladled out and placed on huge pancakes in approved Russian style by the guests—and thirty-seven different varieties of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres were there for the hungry. Then, for those whose minds turned to the wet wares, there were the most powerful Muscovite liqueurs, including real kümmel and potato brandy, so hot that it blisters the throat, and fourteen different kinds of champagne.

The most elaborate costumes with the most extreme décolletés riveted eyes on the fair sex. One of the chief features of the winter styles was the revelation of feminine ears in nearly all the smart coiffures.

The men were respendent with decorations, sashes, ribbons and monocles.

M. Tchitcherin looked fatter and happier than when he was last seen. He said the excellent French cooking and wonderful French wines he had consumed during his cure along the Riviera had done him much good.

The comrades comprising the house staff as embassy servants were turned out in the most snappy uniforms ever seen in Paris.

Forced by Peasants.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 12.—During the last few days rumors regarding an approaching settlement by Russia with the western powers have been becoming more and more numerous. While it is hard to secure any definite facts, there is no doubt the British politicians are encouraged by the progress of the negotiations going on in Paris.

At last it seems that the Russian government has been forced to sense realities. THE TRIBUNE learns that Christian Rakovsky, the new Russian ambassador to France, has told the French statesmen that the government at Moscow is feeling increasingly the growing power of the peasants.

NEW YORK BANKERS DINE U. S. ENVOYS OF SOVIET TRADE BODIES

New York, Dec. 12.—(AP)—American bankers and Russian industrialists gathered at a dinner at the Bankers' club in New York Thursday and, in view of the commercial possibilities of Russia, the meeting took on unwonted significance.

The Associated Press instructed its Moscow bureau to send back to the United States the account of the dinner as made public in Russia.

"The most significant indication of the increasing importance of soviet-American trade," says the cabled account to the Associated Press, "was a banquet today (Thursday), at which Reeve Schley, vice president of the Chase National bank, entertained officials of the soviet trading organizations together with representatives of the most important American financial and industrial concerns.

"The banquet was the first outspoken recognition by American finance and industry of the importance of soviet trade and the stability of the soviet government.

"Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of directors of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, expressed satisfaction over the fact that Russia was again trading with America. Prizes were awarded to seven manufacturers whose automobiles, entered through the Amtorg Trading corporation, successfully participated in the road tests."

Mr. Schley said over the telephone from his country home tonight that there was no truth in the report that he made a speech expressing confidence in soviet institutions. The affair, he said, was a luncheon attended by himself, Mr. Schwab and several other American bankers and business men and representatives of the All-American Russian Textile Syndicate, Inc., and the Amtorg Trading corporation, with both of which Mr. Schley and others present had done business for more than three years.

The luncheon, he said, had no political significance whatever and nothing was said by any one that could be construed as an indorsement of the present government of Russia.

RUSSIA TO OFFER CZAR'S GEMS FOR SALE IN AMERICA

MOSCOW, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Representatives of the soviet government will soon visit the United States in connection with the sale of certain surplus articles from the old imperial collection of jewels. Appraisals just completed by foreign experts place the value of the entire collection of crown jewels at approximately $250,000,000.

These include the great imperial crown made in the time of Catherine II., weighing five pounds and containing 4,000 carats of the rarest diamonds, valued at $52,000,000, and the imperial gold scepter, containing the world famous Orloff diamond of 189 carats, valued at $30,000,000, which was laid as a gift by Count Orloff at the feet of Catherine II.

The collection of crowns, coronets, tiaras, diadems, aigrettes, necklaces, bracelets, corsage ornaments, epaulettes, earrings, pendants, and other costly emblems of royalty, which are at present housed in the soviet state treasury, were shown to the foreign correspondents today. The imperial gems were displayed on plain wooden stands in the workroom of the state treasury and their only guards were a few workmen in overalls.

Strewn about the floor were gold bars worth $2,000,000, awaiting coinage at the soviet mint. The newspaper men were allowed to handle the jewels freely, and no attempt was made to search them upon leaving the premises.

DEAF HEAR CLOCK TICK!

New Device Renews Hearing.

Are you deaf? Then now, thanks to science, you can hear a whisper—hear the ticking of a clock—hear the softest strains of your favorite song—hear every word of every conversation.

The amazing invention of a group of New York scientists now makes all of this possible. A tiny, miracle-working device which they call the Acousticon restores good hearing to even the poorest ears—thousands now testify that this is true. Results are immediate—no waiting—no danger—no discomfort. The inventors are so positive as to just what this device will do for you that they offer to send it postpaid for a ten-day Free Test. No strings to the offer—no deposit—no C. O. D.—no obligation.

Your name and address on a postcard and—Presto—you hear again—hear distinctly—clearly. Common sense must tell you that we couldn't send the Acousticon on a ten-day Free Test unless we had every confidence in its proven merit—its comfort. It is only because of its record of success among the thousands of men and women who have been restored to normal hearing that this surprising offer can be made.

It simply must have merit. It simply must do what we claim. The Free Test will prove it. You yourself make the test—you judge—you decide—and the only cost to you is a postcard. So send your name and address now to The Dictograph Products Corporation, 1230 Lytton Bldg., Chicago, Ill.—Adv.

WOMAN FRAMES DURKIN TIP TO HOLD HER SUITOR

Arrested After Confessing Ruse.

Olive Conway, 26 years old, comely, blue eyed, and blonde, confessed yesterday to Capt. Luke Garrick of the Town Hall station that love for Joseph O'Connor and an effort to win him back caused her to frame a Durkin tip that sent detective bureau squads, uniformed police, and government agents lurking for hours in the neighborhood of Racine and Wilson avenues early in the morning.

Olive told the captain that she and O'Connor had been living together at 3722 Rokeby street and that he had left her. She said she was sure she could induce him to come back if she could only see him, and she added that it was to accomplish the meeting she gave the government agents the false tip about the wily Martin Durkin.

Told Agents of Trip.

"I knew Joe parked his car at the corner of Racine and Wilson," she said. "I figured if the police got him I could get him to come back to me. So I told the government men that Joe had arranged for $1,000 to drive Durkin to Cleveland and that they would get in the car which was parked there."

Tips Off O'Connor.

While the police waited Olive, walking in the neighborhood, met O'Connor coming out of a house. She tipped him off that it might be dangerous to climb into his car, took him by the arm, and led him home to the flat on Rokeby street, leaving the detectives and federal men waiting.

Capt. Garrick when nobody came to claim the parked car went to the Rokeby street flat and made Olive confess, found O'Connor, and arrested them both on serious charges.

STEPMOTHERS GET BLAME FOR GIRL PROBLEM

Social Worker Also Hits Finishing Schools.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

When a poor girl gets into a scandal or is charged with a minor offense she is haled into the Morals court and driven about the streets in a patrol wagon. When a wealthy girl gets into the same difficulty, she is hustled off to a fashionable finishing school until the scandal blows over.

At least that is the way Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith of Texas yesterday silhouetted the two extremes when she spoke at the Congress hotel conference called by the Chicago League of Women Voters forum and the joint committee on the care and training of women offenders.

Schools Ask No Questions.

"I know at least six eastern finishing schools," Dr. Smith declared, "where no questions are asked regarding a girl's past. And I know of one very fashionable school to which a young girl was bundled off just a little while ago to prevent an ugly scandal breaking in her town. She had protection. She never got into the courts."

Then Dr. Smith went on to say:

"Statistics show that seven per cent of the modern college girls have their fling before they settle down and marry."

In view of these statistics, Dr. Smith characterizes as social hypocrisy the attitude of these same college women who, once they are married, hold their skirts aloof from the girls in the tenements who have had no wealth or influence to protect them.

Blame on Step-Mothers.

The two main factors, according to the social worker from Texas, which lead a girl into the police court are step-mothers and tenements.

"More than 33 per cent of the women offenders whose cases I have studied," she pointed out, "have had step-mothers.

"In fact, the problem is so serious that I have often thought it would be wise if there was a provision whereby the undertaker turned over to the social workers the name of every family where the mother had just died. Then a social worker could go to the father and impress upon him the care he must exercise if he should ever remarry."

Filth in Tenements.

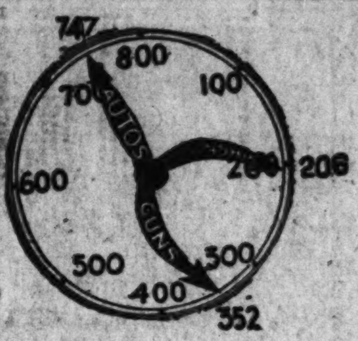
And the filthy conditions of the tenements in the congested parts of the big cities are responsible, too, Dr. Smith believes, for the modern girl's love for the dance hall, the skating rink, the automobile parked in the dark lane.

Miss Mary McDowell, commissioner of public welfare, and Miss Jessie Binford, chairman of the joint committee, presented the details of the fourfold plan for which the women yesterday launched a campaign. This plan includes a detention home for women; a woman's court, to be located in the women's detention home; a bureau of policewomen to handle all cases of women offenders; and a farm colony, or reformatory, to care for women from all parts of the state.

PLAYS WITH GUN; KILLS SISTER.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Margaret Grady, 13, daughter of John Grady of Minneapolis, was shot in the head and fatally wounded late today when a rifle, in the hands of her twin brother, Ernest, was accidentally discharged.

HANDS OF DEATH



The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by autos, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1. Yesterday was the three hundred and forty-sixth day of 1925.

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH; TOLL IS NOW 747

Two Others Injured in Accidents.

Mrs. Alma Link, 40 years old, 1415 Hudson avenue, an expectant mother, died last night at the Alexian Brothers hospital of a fractured skull received when the automobile in which she was riding collided with another driven by Alvin Singer, 18 years old, 5520 Kimbark avenue, at Southport avenue and Altgeld street.

MRS. ALMA LINK.
[Killed yesterday.]

SHIRLEY HUNTOON.
[Killed Friday.]

Mrs. Link's husband, Baldwin, and her daughter, Genevieve, 3 years old, were severely cut. Singer was held.

Toll Raised to 747.

The death raised the 1925 Cook county automobile toll to 747.

Patrick Glory, 40 years old, 2075 North Leavitt street, was taken to the county hospital suffering from severe injuries caused when the automobile he was driving was struck by a north bound Milwaukee avenue street car at Milwaukee avenue and Erie street.

Unidentified Man Hurt.

An unidentified man, whose name is supposed to be Olsen, was injured seriously last night when he was struck by a truck after the latter and an automobile had collided at Grand and Ogden avenues. James Galandi, 5242 Crystal street, driver of the truck, and Alexander Kolowitz, 2024 Potomac avenue, driver of the automobile, were arrested.

Shirley Huntoon, 6 years old, of Evanston died Friday after being struck by a taxicab in Evanston.

FIND MORE FREED OUTLAWS AS BAR WARS ON PAROLE

Perry Still Free, Though Two Others Are Taken.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Joseph Schrader, burglary, 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory, by Judge Marcus Kavanagh.

Public spirited lawyers were pooling their knowledge and their experience yesterday that Ira D. Perry, rich man's son, sentenced to life imprisonment for murder and then paroled in three years, might be returned to the penitentiary.

Meanwhile the police, angered by the extreme leniency shown Perry at a secret meeting of Gov. Small's parole board, were rounding up other paroled ex-convicts. Their alertness resulted in the arrest of two who added another complication to the parole records.

Perry, however, was and is still at liberty, despite his confession of the murder of William Schaller, a jeweler, during a robbery, his confession of 200 holdups, his confession of 100 auto thefts, despite the life imprisonment sentence imposed on him by Judge Michael L. McKinley on April 1, 1922, and despite five other indictments now pending against him.

Crowe Interested in Capture.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, whose plan is to retake Perry and try him on each of the five robbery indictments, which might result in five separate sentences of from ten years to life imprisonment, so arranged as to run consecutively, was concerned mostly with Perry's capture.

He has sent Lieut. Hugh McCarthy and Sergt. Patrick Loftus to Iowa to hunt for the 25 year old killer who was released on Oct. 31 and sent to Clinton Ia. to report to H. C. Oakes. Oakes was induced by Perry's parents to accept the technical guardianship.

Attorney Russell Whitman, president of the Bar association, Attorney Roger Sherman, former president, and Attorney John J. Healy, former state's attorney of Cook county, delegated as a committee to study the legal phases of Perry's parole, reported their conclusion that the parole was illegal.

Suggest Writ of Mandamus.

Their tentative recommendation is said to be that a writ of mandamus be asked from the Supreme court, ordering the parole canceled and Perry returned to his prison cell. Precedent, they said, seems to augur the success of such proceedings.

Another possible course would be the recommendation to Judge McKinley that he cite the parole board members for contempt, as Federal Judge Wilkerson did regarding the premature releases of Terry Druggan and Frank Lake.

Still another course that may be followed is a petition to Chief Justice Thomas J. Lynch of the Criminal court asking a writ of certiorari so that the parole might be scrutinized and reviewed in the court in which Perry was sentenced.

The newest report of irregularities concerning paroles came after Sergt. John Walsh and Policeman Robert Williams saw three suspicious characters in the vicinity of Forty-third street and Shields avenue yesterday morning.

Police Capture Two of Trio.

At the approach of the police the three separated and ran. Each of the policemen caught one of the fleeing men. They gave the names of Robert McMullen, 31, and John Grinsley, 30. McMullen had a revolver, and the policemen said Grinsley had the opportunity to throw his away while he ran.

The big surprise came when they were sent to the bureau of identification.

"These men are ex-convicts, twice paroled, and our records show they were sent back to prison Nov. 6," was the message sent by the bureau to police headquarters.

"That's not exactly correct," McMullen and Grinsley informed the policemen. "We were given a rehearing then and let go."

McMullen's Record.

McMullen's record was found to be as follows:

June 2, 1915—Sentenced to 90 days in the House of Correction for assault with a deadly weapon.

June 27, 1917—Sentenced to Pontiac for burglary.

Sept. 2, 1918—Paroled.

Feb. 28, 1919—Convicted of robbery with a gun before Judge Kersten. The Supreme court later reversed this verdict.

Feb. 15, 1923, indicted with Raymond Costello (who is now under sentence to be hanged) and Andrew Brick, for robbery with a gun.

April 26, 1923, convicted of robbery with a gun, but the sentence was later modified to one for grand larceny.

It was on this last conviction that McMullen admits he was twice paroled.

Grinsley's Parole History.

Grinsley's record was as follows:

Sentenced to Pontiac for burglary in 1915. Released and again sentenced in 1917. Sentenced again in 1919. Escaped Nov. 17, 1920. Recaptured a month later and paroled in July, 1924. Returned for violation of parole five months later, and after serving three months was again paroled, and on Nov. 6 was ordered returned to prison for violation of parole.

Gov. Small's parole board, of which Will Colvin is the head, refused to give any details yesterday concerning McMullen and Grinsley.

70 STUDENTS TO ROUT SATAN ON N. U.'S CAMPUS

Seventy men of Northwestern university have set themselves as a bulwark against slipping morale and morals on the campus, according to an editorial which appeared yesterday in the Daily Northwestern, student publication.

The exact status of university morals was not revealed, other than that they are in an "unhealthy condition."

The group of men met last Sunday in a religious meeting and decided to throw their influence against the alleged brazen tendencies of the students.

PAROLED CONVICTS ARRESTED

ROBERT McMULLEN.
McMullen, who was supposed to be in the penitentiary for violation of parole, was seized yesterday. He carried a gun.

JOHN GRINSLEY.
Convict who was seized yesterday with McMullen. Records show he, too, was returned to prison for parole violation.

4,000 ELKS JOIN DR. BUNDESEN IN PURE MILK FIGHT

Pass Resolution Demanding Tested Cattle.

Each of the 4,000 members of the Chicago Elks' lodge will individually enter the fight for pure milk today, if a plan adopted yesterday at a luncheon of the organization materializes.

Following a speech by Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen, a resolution was passed calling upon every Elk to demand of his dairyman that tested milk exclusively be delivered to Chicago homes.

"Call your dairyman on the telephone and asked him the pointed question: 'Does your milk come from tubercular free cows?'" urged Chairman Joseph L. Golding.

Hold Conference Tomorrow.

Meanwhile the executive committee of the Milk Producers' association is scheduled to discuss tomorrow a tentative plan to end the long fight between the city and the farmers by giving Chicago pure milk from tuberculin tested cows without undue financial loss to the farmers.

Attorney Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for the producers, issued the call for the conference but declined to discuss in advance the detail of the plan.

Yesterday's developments came upon the heels of a stormy session of the city council's committee on public health on Friday night when, amid jeers, shouts, and even threats from farmers, the passage of an ordinance which would bar impure milk from Chicago homes was recommended.

Will Reject Compromise.

Dr. Bundesen has stated emphatically that any attempt on the part of the producers to effect a compromise will be unceremoniously rejected by him. This statement was made by the city health commissioner after a lengthy conference with Attorney Kirkland on Friday night while the council's committee was in session.

"A compromise on the purity of Chicago's milk would mean a compromise on the health of Chicago's citizens," declared Dr. Bundesen in his talk at the Elks' club.

"We must have pure milk from healthy cows, and nothing will stop us."

Sufficient Supply Ready.

He said that even if the present producers refuse to comply with requirements of the proposed ordinance, which it is deemed certain the council will pass on Wednesday, farmers outside of the Chicago dairy district and state officials of Indiana have assured him sufficient milk can be brought in for the city's needs without an advance in price.

"Leading milk dealers of the city are with us to a man in this fight," he said. "They have assured me that there will be no shortage of milk."

Arguments will be presented in behalf of the city before Judge William J. Fulton of Geneva, Kane county, on next Friday in an endeavor to have dissolved the injunction restraining Dr. Bundesen from banning impure milk.

Dr. Bundesen freely admitted in his talk yesterday that elimination of all tubercular cows from the Chicago dairy district will work a heavy hardship upon many farmers.

"We are not insensible to that," he said. "We know particularly what it will mean to such of the producers as have borrowed money on such cattle, but it would be folly to endanger the lives of our children with bad milk.

"Farmers must be given a proper recompense for every cow it should be necessary to destroy. It seems most difficult to make the farmer realize that in the long run he is immensely benefited by eradicating diseased cattle. Tuberculous cows are poor milk producers and in addition they infect other farm stock."

SYRIAN REBELS KILL BIG FRENCH FORCE, REPORT

LEAGUE POWERS REJECT COOLIDGE DISARMING PLAN

France, Japan, Italy Balk at Separate Parleys.

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Dec. 12.—France, Japan, and Italy flatly reject President Coolidge's plan on naval disarmament. None of these three great powers is willing to separate it from military and air armaments and none will attend a conference called to discuss it separately.

The decision of these governments was made known today in the report of Dr. Benes of Czecho-Slovakia to the league council on the program drafted for the preparatory commission disarmament conference.

Reject Separate Parleys.

The document says in part:

"Recalling the resolution of the sixth assembly on the question of the reduction of naval armaments, the French, Japanese, and Italian representatives stated that they could not see their way clear to disassociate the various kinds of armaments, military, naval, and air, and to study them separately at separate conferences.

"It is remembered that the assembly adopted a resolution to the effect that 'the assembly opinion on the question of naval armament is that it should be discussed as part of the general question of disarmament, and dealt with by the international conference, as proposed in the resolution of Sept. 6 and adopted by the fifth assembly, and that it rests with the council to settle the program.'"

As the result of the resolution and declaration no distinction whatever is made between military and naval armaments in the program upon which the special commission will begin work at Geneva Feb. 15.

Invite U. S. to Meeting.

The decision of the council was the subject of a certain amount of speculation among the league officials tonight, as the same resolution contains a clause asking the president of the council to invite "the governments of Germany, United States and Russia to appoint representatives to a preparatory commission disarmament conference."

Disarmament, if not an American idea most certainly has received greater verbal assistance from the United States than from any other country, and any general plan of disarmament is doomed to failure if the United States does not coöperate, just as the Geneva protocol owed its death partly to the American attitude toward the league. A few greater powers—Great Britain and Japan particularly—would not consent to a reduction of armaments if the United States did not take up similar obligations.

Had the United States been in the league last September, it might have been able to convince the other nations of the world that it is right in separating military and naval disarmament. As it is, fifty-four nations have committed themselves to study both together. It is too late now for the United States to do anything except wreck the conference by refusing to participate.

The disarmament commission consists of representatives appointed by the governments of Bulgaria, Finland, Holland, Poland, Roumania, Jugo-Slavia, Germany, the United States, and Russia. The representatives of the last three states have exactly the same standing as the other members of the commission.

The body will study the following questions, in preparation for the disarmament conference:

1. What is understood by armaments?

2. Is it practicable to limit the ultimate war strength of a country, or must any measures of disarmament be confined to the peace strength?

3. By what standards is it possible to measure the armaments of one country against the armaments of another—the numbers and period of service, the equipment, expenditure, and the like?

4. Can there be said to be "defensive" and "offensive" armaments?

Consider Arms Ratios.

5. On what principle will it be possible to draw up a scale of armaments permissible to various countries, taking into account particularly the population, resources, geographic situation, length and nature of maritime communications, density and character of railways, vulnerability of frontiers, and the important vital centers near frontiers?

6. Is there any device by which civil and military aircraft can be distinguished for the purposes of disarmament?

7. Admitting that disarmament depends on security, to what extent is regional disarmament possible in return for regional security, or is any scheme of disarmament impossible unless general?

The council today instructed the secretary general to begin the work provided for in the assembly resolution concerning arbitration, security, and disarmament.

MRS. C. E. CRONE SUES HUSBAND AND PHYSICIAN

Charges Cruelty; Seeks $100,000 Damages.

Unusual charges were made by Mrs. Edna Shepherd Crone, 2916 Pine Grove avenue, daughter of William Shepherd, wealthy insurance man, in a suit for separate maintenance filed yesterday in the Circuit court against Charles E. Crone Jr., half-owner of the Wendt & Crone Ventilating company, 1131 North Wells street.

At the same time Mrs. Crone, through her attorney, Harold W. Jirka, filed a præcipe in a suit for $100,000 against her husband and Dr. Hugo Friedstein, physician with offices at 7 West Madison street. Dr. Friedstein lives at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Made Her Invalid Charge.

The damage suit, according to Attorney Jirka, is based on this charge related in the separate maintenance suit:

"Through the instrumentality of his [her husband's] agent, Dr. Hugo Friedstein, a certain operation was performed on your oratrix [Mrs. Crone] which caused her to become an invalid."

Dr. Friedstein, when informed of the suit, was amazed and indignant.

"Mr. and Mrs. Crone consulted me some time ago," he said. "They made a proposition to me—wanted me to perform a certain operation. I refused, but at their request referred them to another physician. I have not seen them since.

Doctor Denies Treating Her.

"I not only never performed any operation on Mrs. Crone but never treated her. I cannot understand the charges made."

Mrs. Crone was married last Sept. 12, according to her bill. Two months later, on Nov. 11, she was forced to leave her husband, she said, because of his cruelty.

She always endeavored to treat her husband as a loving wife, she declared, but he abused her until she left him to return to her parents.

BURGLARS RANSACK APARTMENT.

Burglars yesterday ransacked the apartment of Oliver S. Stanley, 520 Sheridan road, Evanston, and took $1,000 worth of silverware and jewelry. The apartment was wrecked in the search for valuables.

AMONG THE CYCLAMEN

Dolores La Rue was caught by the photographer while admiring the cyclamen on display at the flower show at the Washington park conservatory. The display is attracting large crowds daily.

GAS KILLS TWO; HUSBAND TRIED TO SAVE WIFE

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. "Pert" Flannery were found in their home at 1251 West Thirteenth street yesterday at noon by Maxwell street police, who had been called by a roomer, Joseph Jenkins, when he noticed a strong smell of gas. Both are thought to have been dead at least two days when found.

Flannery's body was lying in a small hallway leading to the kitchen from the bedroom, indicating he had risen when he smelt the gas, but had been unable to reach the kitchen. He was 60 years of age. The body of Mrs. Flannery, who was 55, was found in the bed.

An open gas jet was discovered in the kitchen. Mrs. Pauline Peterson, the landlady, said she had not seen the couple since Thursday.

An inquest will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at 1457 South Ashland avenue.

BUTCHER ROBBED OF $700.

Three armed men, one resembling Durkin, last night held up John Markus in his butcher shop at 3205 West 59th street and escaped with $700 and a $750 diamond ring belonging to Markus.

CASH SHORTAGE SLOWS UP CITY TO TOWN PACE

List Some Public Works That Face Tieup.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Chicago is fast reaching the limit of its ability to construct public improvements on a large scale. The brakes will be applied in 1926. The city will be slowed down to the pace of a 500,000 town.

The citizens, however, are petitioning for the privilege of spending their own money in improvements, which they will be unable to get.

"The people want to spend $15,000,000 or $20,000,000 a year on improvements," President John J. Sloan of the board of local improvements phrased it to the council finance committee yesterday. "Yet the city hasn't the cash with which to make the plans for the improvements and it lacks authority to obtain enough money to pay for them."

Enough Money for River Drive.

One of the few rays of sunshine diffused by Mr. Sloan is that money is available for completion of the new South Water street. He announced that Lake street bridge and the Wells street bridge will be opened by Jan. 1.

But on the other side of the picture is Western avenue, which the city started to widen to 100 feet several years ago. All money available for that purpose, except about $100,000, has been used in the two miles between Lawrence and Devon avenues and on the seven miles between 55th and 119th streets. There still remains the stretch between Lawrence avenue and Thirty-first street to be widened—and only $100,000 left with which to do it. Work will consequently be tied up on Western avenue next year.

The widening of Peterson avenue from 66 to 108 feet in the four and a half miles between Ridge avenue and the forest preserves will soon be confirmed by the court.

None for Peterson Avenue.

"The public benefit on that will perhaps be $80,000 and we haven't a nickel with which to pay," commented Mr. Sloan. That project will lie dormant unless cash can be found.

It is pointed out that the city could dig up $80,000 for this particular improvement, but there are a score of others which the board believes will be confirmed by the courts before next July. The estimated public benefits on these total more than $31,000,000.

Should Peterson avenue receive preferred consideration over the widening of 95th street for the three miles between State street and Western avenue? This thoroughfare is to be widened from 66 feet to 100 feet, and the case has been pending in court for three years. It is estimated that it would take $150,000 in public benefits. But it, too, probably will be hung on a peg.

Milwaukee Avenue in Same Fix.

A court decision ordering the broadening of Milwaukee avenue from 66 to 100 feet between Edmunds street and the city limits—a distance of two and a half miles—is expected in a few weeks. That will require another $150,000 in public benefits. The Illinois commerce commission has ordered the street car company to put tracks and service in this street as soon as it is paved. But there is no money to widen it, to say nothing of public benefits on paving.

The Ashland avenue improvement, which was started several years ago, will also be tied up to the docks in 1926. The board has about half enough money to complete the portion between Lake street and Irving Park boulevard, excluding the necessary bridge just north of Webster avenue.

Mr. Sloan said that perhaps $100,000 is needed for the outlet to northern Indiana, starting in Jackson park at Jeffery avenue and ending with 112th street.

Would Relieve Traffic Jams.

He referred to a subway under the Northwestern tracks in North Central avenue which has been unused for eight years because the street leading to it is impassable. By the improvement of North Central avenue for three and a half miles between Grand and Lawrence avenues, Mr. Sloan said that traffic congestion on Milwaukee avenue and the Northwest highway would be materially relieved. But that requires $100,000 in public benefits, and nothing will be done about it in 1926, although the court is expected to approve the improvement within two months.

The widening of Halsted street between Vincennes road and 123d street is now on trial. This is a distance of about three miles and the width is to be 100 feet. The public benefits will perhaps run up to $150,000. But there probably will be "nothing doing" on it next year.

Dozens of other improvements are in the same boat. A few have been picked out to illustrate the situation. One more will be added to interest another class of citizens. That is La Salle street. The public had voted a $2,000,000 bond issue for a new wide bridge, but there is not a dollar available to widen and improve the street at a cost estimated between $4,000,000 and $4,500,000.

Bonding Power Exhausted.

Nor is there available the estimated $250 public benefit on Avenue M between 110th and 111th streets.

The city has exhausted its bonding power in bonds issued and authorized. Are improvements for which bonds already have been voted to be sidetracked while new bonds are issued for some of these street improvements? If so, will a bond issue be denied for $1,600,000 with which to straighten the river?

If that project goes along, where are the millions coming from with which to build streets over the south side terminal tracks? If that is obtained by some method, how will the city finance a new harbor so that it may have fixed bridges? Then there are sundry aldermen clamoring for more street lights. And there are other pressing improvements.

No authorized statement is available from any city official indicating what the solution should be.

TURN ON FIRST OF NEW TRAFFIC SIGNAL LIGHTS

Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins and John T. Miller, commissioner of gas and electricity, turned on the stop and go auto traffic signal light installed by the city at Paulina and Madison streets yesterday.

The signal is the first of a batch of ninety lights that are to be installed in the loop and outlying busy street intersections.

Automatic traffic control lights are expected to be in operation in the loop by Jan. 1.

COAL, OR THE PERILS OF MONOPOLY.

This country is witnessing the breakdown of a monopoly. The monopoly was in coal, both anthracite and bituminous. The anthracite monopoly was easier to establish and easier to maintain because of the limited area in which hard coal is found and the relatively high cost of mining it. The hard coal mines in the United States many years ago became the property of a few companies which were able to control the market and fix prices nearly as they chose. The hard coal mines were unionized without much opposition because the owners saw in the union a means of stabilizing their industry. They considered that desirable, particularly as any increase in their pay rolls could be passed along without difficulty to the consuming public.

The hard coal monopoly was a tight one, and it looked like a lasting one, because everybody east of the Mississippi river and not a few to the west thought the only fuel for domestic purposes was hard coal. It looked as if New York and New England in particular were to pay tribute forever to the hard coal monopoly, because they used hard coal for power as well as for heating their homes and never allowed the thought that other kinds of fuel existed to enter their heads. They did not realize that hard coal is luxury coal.

It might have taken generations for householders, at least, to get over their notions regarding the inevitability of hard coal had there been no strikes to teach the consumers about substitutes. Now that lesson has been learned by thousands and is being learned by others every day that the present strike in Pennsylvania continues. Soft coal, coke, gas, and oil are all good substitutes for hard coal, it has been discovered. The monopoly is broken, not because the ownership of the natural resource has been broadened, but because the demand is no longer what it was.

The soft coal monopoly was of a different sort, and its collapse was brought about by a different process. The bituminous monopoly was not based on control of the natural resource because in the United States there is too much bituminous for a small group, however wealthy, to control. Monopoly conditions were achieved instead through the help of the miners' union. Whether as a result of a conspiracy between miners and operators, as has been repeatedly charged, or as the result of economic necessity or union ambition, the fact is that miners' strikes served to keep the price of coal up when it threatened to lag through overproduction. Everything might have gone along smoothly had there been fewer strikes. Industry has not found a substitute for soft coal, but the strikes have served to make nonunion mines in West Virginia, Alabama, and Kentucky profitable. Many consumers who used to buy Indiana, Illinois, or Ohio coal have discovered that the southern coal is better for their special purposes. The union miner in the central west established their wage scale in the great strike of 1922, but by the time the strike was over the monopoly which they had helped create was broken. The union won the strike by the strength of its organization and the terror at Herrin, but the victory was empty. Two years later the union leaders and the operators were glad enough to sign the Jacksonville agreement, in the hope of stabilizing the industry and winning back some of the lost markets. Their success has not been great. The soft coal monopoly is broken, and it will not be restored until the mines of the south have been unionized, if then.

The moral is, that in a country as large and as rich in natural and mechanical resources as ours, it is dangerous to do business on the theory that your customers will be yours forever. If a monopoly either of capital or of labor, or both combined, raises prices too high or cuts off the supply, new sources of supply or suitable substitutes will be developed, and the last state of the monopolists will be worse than the first.

A MODERN MACBETH.

Quite in keeping with the modern experiment of bringing Shakespeare up to date, there is a present day Macbeth—M. Georges Tchitcherin, foreign minister of the Russian soviet. A dispatch comes from Nice, where the bolshevik minister's search for health, it is reported, is being made a thing of horror through his constant fear of being assassinated by some of the former nobles of the old régime.

M. Tchitcherin is a hunted man. He looks like a ghost, says the dispatch. He hides and moves about secretly from place to place, afraid to appear in public, afraid to remain long in one spot for fear of being murdered.

For M. Tchitcherin, like Macbeth, has murdered sleep, and now can sleep no more.

He has not one Banquo's ghost to haunt him, one Duncan, one Lady Macduff and her son. Tchitcherin's ghosts are legion. The shades of the thousands who fell at the hands of the Reds return to exact revenge at the hands of the few who escaped from Russia to live, often in hardship and penury.

M. Tchitcherin's amens may well stick in his throat. And he may say to himself, with Macbeth:

But let the frame of things disjoint, both the worlds suffer,
Ere we will eat our meal in fear, and sleep
In the affliction of these terrible dreams
That shake us nightly: better be with the dead,
Whom we, to gain our peace, have sent to peace,
Than on the torture of the mind to lie
In restless ecstasy.

SIGNIFICANT EVENTS—1925 IN RETROSPECT.

A letter has come to The Tribune asking a question which captures our interest. It comes from a Philadelphia minister who is seeking the opinions of many other newspapers on the same subject. The question is, "What in your mind is the most significant event of 1925; first, in America; second, beyond?"

The interrogation urges one's mind into a swift review of the year that is now drawing to a close. What has been the most significant event in America? What has been the most significant event abroad?

The events, in swift procession, marshal themselves. As we evaluate them it becomes apparent that the task is not an easy one. We are tempted to say "the growing prosperity of the country," but that is not an event. Prohibition and its enforcement, the increasing crime rate, suggest themselves, but neither are these events. They are social developments, moving slowly without critical pauses or significant eruptions. Again, what is an event to one segment or stratum of the nation has no significance at all for the remainder.

The election of young Robert La Follette in Wisconsin and of young Jimmy Walker in New York contained political significance more than local. The inauguration of President Coolidge had a national meaning. The all but successful Hawaiian flight and the rescue of Commander Rodgers and his crew, the Shenandoah disaster, the loss of the S-51 aroused universal sympathy and are bound to exercise an influence on the future activities of certain government departments. So, too, the charges of Col. Mitchell and the resultant investigation and trial.

To some persons, we imagine, the Pirates' defeat of the Senators in the world's series, or the present very remunerative activities of "Red" Grange, may appear quite as significant in the national annual as other events of less sportive import.

But, weighing all these events and finding them wanting, we come at last to the conclusion that the trial of Scopes, the biology teacher, in Dayton, Tenn., was by far the most significant event of 1925.

Intrinsically unimportant—the trial of an inconspicuous teacher, his conviction and sentence to pay a small fine—it epitomized the workings of two of the world's greatest forces and their inevitable clash. In the trial appeared two human figures of more than ordinary proportions, William Jennings Bryan and Clarence Darrow, one the chosen leader of the millions who put their faith exclusively in the religion that has received the tag word of fundamentalism, the other the self-appointed prophet of science and demonstrable fact.

We select the evolution trial because it exemplified the degree to which organized moral and ethical opinion in America has interfered with the political and constitutional rights of those not organized. We look upon that movement as a dangerous one, and on the Dayton trial as a happy exposure of the extent to which it has undermined freedom of thought and action.

This intolerance and its injection into legislative affairs is, too, like prohibition and crime, a slow moving social phenomenon. But, unlike them, it developed a crisis during 1925. So to the first half of the Philadelphia minister's question we answer, the evolution trial at Dayton.

As to events abroad, the reply is easy—the Locarno treaties, their preparation and approval. Such events as the anti-foreign uprisings in China, the Druse revolt in Syria, the Mosul crisis, or the Greek-Bulgar flareup fade into the background before Locarno.

For six years it has been a question whether Europe would succeed in living down the Versailles treaty or would succumb to the dangers contained in that historically notorious document. Locarno answers that question, answers it in a manner happier than the most optimistic would have hoped for a year or two ago. On the surface, at least, it appears as though Europe had agreed to settle down to peace and an attempt at prosperity.

The Locarno treaties, we answer without hesitation.

In conclusion we make one reluctant comment. It is sad to reflect that of the two most significant events we have selected, America's should be one where hatred, bigotry, and intolerance appeared at white heat, while war ridden Europe's should be a message of peace. It is something to think about as the anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Peace (as Mr. Bryan termed him) brings the year 1925 to a close.

RED GRANGE, COMMODITY.

"We paid our money! We want Grange!"

We wonder how Red, once amateur, now professional, feels when he hears the cry of the pack, bent on getting one hundred cents' worth of action for the dollar they left at the gate.

It's not a football crowd any more, at least not one such as Red Grange knew down at the Memorial stadium at Champaign. It's a prize fight crowd, and "We want Grange!" is their slogan.

It's a prize fight crowd. "Sock him in th' nose. Hey, you oil cans in front, siddown!"

We don't blame Grange. Who would resist the temptation of a fortune of $500,000—that's what they say it will be—gathered in and salted away at an age when most young men are glad enough to have a $100 a month job? Grange is not the son of a millionaire, with a padded future assured, whether he makes good or not. And football is the one thing in which he excels, as another college undergraduate excels in mathematics or the higher reaches of philosophy.

Nor is being a professional football player a disgrace. It can be as clean as the amateur game, and now is. As it is played by such a team of postgraduates as Grange's own Chicago Bears it is football plus, a brand of the game superior to that seen on nineteen out of twenty college gridirons.

Yet there is a sense of disappointment or disillusion. Do we feel sorry for Grange? The adulation of one college, one body of alumni, is about all that one undergraduate hero can stand. The adulation of the public and the press of a whole section of the country is a headier draught than any young man should be called upon to toss off and still retain his sense of orientation. A few professional athletes have been able to keep on unspoiled—Christy Mathewson was one of them—but their numbers are small. And none of them has enjoyed the press agenting, the fetish worship, or the money of Grange.

What professional football will do to college football still remains to be seen. We are inclined to think it will bring sanity to graduates and undergraduates and turn college football back into the old channels of a normal sport. It has been expanded into a colossus far out of proportion to its real value to the men who play it or the colleges that foster it. It has been turned into an unhealthy mania. Professional football, if it grows, will bring about order. No college is going to educate and train a man for the sole purpose of having him drop out in the fall of his senior year to make a fortune playing professional football.

It is hard to account for the stigma of the professional. It is honorable for a man to work with his brains or his hands; more lately, he may even act upon the stage or do acrobatics for his livelihood and still retain honor. But he must not run or jump, or play baseball or football for money; for that is professionalism. It is a survival, probably, of ancient days when certain sports could be enjoyed only by the titled few. As they cherished their privilege and did not want tough competition, so does the amateur today cherish his.

And so we wonder how Red Grange feels about it. He is a commodity now, bought and paid for, and the crowd has its right to its money's worth. The stands, banked with swaying rows of fellow collegians and old grads, the cheer leaders, the flaunting colors of blue and gold, the band playing "Illinois," all these are gone. Red is no longer fighting for glory in the fairy story, but for gate receipts.

"We want Grange! We paid our dough! Siddown, you oil cans, siddown!"

THE TASK OF REVISING THE CRIMINAL CODE.

Charles R. Holden, president of the Chicago Crime commission, has named a committee of prominent citizens to review the criminal code of Illinois, to the end that constructive recommendations may be made to the legislature when it is called on to revise the state's archaic procedure.

If Mr. Holden's committee can bring about recodification of the criminal law it will have taken an enormous forward step toward the checking of the present reign of crime. Lawyers, judges, business men, officials, the men on the street, know that Illinois' laws are out of date. No one knows how rusty they are better than the criminal himself—and his lawyer. The failure of the laws to perform the functions for which they were created is responsible, more than any other one agency, for the prevalence of crime.

It has been known for years that the laws were inadequate and hopelessly behind the times, but such is the unwillingness of Americans to endanger the liberty of any citizen, even a felon, that they have remained unchanged. The time has come to make a change. The populace calls for drastic punishment, but these laws of Illinois cannot be drastic. To be drastic is to be immediate and there is no immediacy about continuances by the dozen and the score, and weeks spent in trying to get a jury.

It is not going to be an easy task to bring about a reformation. The basis of all American law lies in the federal and state constitutions. Right of trial by jury, to counsel, to bail, of habeas corpus, all are found in the constitutions of the United States or of Illinois. These are the guarantees of liberty under the republic. Reform of the laws cannot go beyond them, but we hope that a way may be found to eliminate their abuse.

Americans will not relinquish the right to trial by jury, but means must be discovered to obtain a far higher type of juror, to obtain him speedily, and to do away with the influencing and bribing of jurors. Nor will the right of a defendant to have counsel be denied, yet a way must be found to rid the bar and the courts of the unscrupulous lawyer criminal whose tactics are as illegal as those of the man he defends. It is not just that a man who may be innocent should be held without bail, yet the criminal who is guilty uses his freedom on bail for the purpose of further crime in order to obtain money for his defense.

These are but a few of the fundamental questions for which those who would seek to revise the criminal law must find answers. The additional problems which must be solved are legion. Mr. Holden's committee has an immense task ahead of it. We hope, with all our hope for the stamping out of crime, that the Holden committee's efforts will meet with success.

NAGGING THE FOREIGN LANGUAGE PRESS.

[The N. Y. World.]

At a meeting of the Allied Patriotic societies a bill was read which had been drafted for submission to congress. It would compel foreign language newspapers in the United States to print in each issue half a column of information about the constitution or history of the nation. Denial of mailing privilege would penalize refusal. The commissioner of education would be required to furnish the material.

Why the meeting did not simply table a proposal so silly and so mischievous we do not know. It was sent to a committee, to which body was added a delegate who had complained that the measure was "not strong enough." The commissioner of education is to be consulted about the scheme, and "such members [of congress] as show their interest."

The action proposed would be almost unspeakably rude, boorish, and indecent. Newspapers printed in English would certainly resent the passage of a law compelling them to print a daily half column supplied by a paternalistic government. The editors of the foreign language press are actuated by the same instincts of human nature.

For the most part, also, they are as patriotic, as keenly interested in the fortunes of the country with which they have cast their lot, as the English writing journalists. They fill most usefully a place in the education of recent immigrants which even the schools can fill only for the children. Those journals which can be described as bad influences are few and of small circulation and power. The most successful publications in the culture tongues of continental Europe are valuable agencies of public welfare. There is no sense in eternally nagging them.

THE JUDICIAL POISE.

[Enquirer and Evening News (Battle Creek, Mich.).]

Mr. Dooley's observation about the ease with which a man does his own job, and the difficulty which another man's job represents to him was illustrated in the statement that it was an easy thing for Father Kelly to preach a sermon, and for Dooley to mix a drink, whereas Dooley would find it almost impossible to preach a sermon, and Father Kelly could not be expected to mix a drink.

A similar illustration might be found in the case of the eminent generals who are conducting court in Washington, as contrasted to the method by which experienced judges conduct court.

That a general is in trouble on the judge's bench does not indicate that he is any less the soldier, or that a judge could be comfortable as a general.

Most men are not, naturally, judicially minded, and a good many men cannot become that way on demand. This fact stands out in any search for the impartial facts in which information must be separated from opinions.

A general is a forthright person, by professional training and necessity. The processes of his profession cut out fine technicalities and the delicate balancing of points to arrive at a conclusion. The celebrated naval dictum, "Damn the torpedoes, go ahead," is a pattern of successful military philosophy.

No wonder there is some difficulty in adjusting matters to the public expectation that everything shall be done as civil courts and judges do it.

A judge in general's uniform and a general on the bench both might require sympathy.

How to Keep Well.
By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

BILIOUSNESS.

You are bilious—what are you going to do about it? If you are very much out of date you will swallow about 10 grains of calomel and follow it with a saline purge. If you are a little less antiquated you will take a saline purge, omitting the preliminary calomel. If you are something of a faddist you will fast for a day, take an enema or two, indulge in a cold shower, and walk a mile or two in the open air. But there is something which comes before any of these. That is, to decide what the trouble is.

The bilious state is a grab bag. Like the grab bag called "dyspepsia"—and that called "catarrh"—the bilious grab bag is liable to hold any one of several disorders. When the average man says he is bilious he has been eating too much, exercising too little, and he is constipated. To cure himself he can fast, take a cold shower, and indulge in some out of door exercise. Taking some form of a purge helps to give relief.

To prevent this kind of biliousness the habits should be changed—the exercise and work habits, the eating habits, and the bowel habits. But a man may get the bilious habit. He may have a persisting biliousness just as a man may have a persisting dyspepsia. In that event he had better find out what's the matter with his liver.

At least, that's the way Dr. F. Smithies feels about the matter. He advocates three methods of testing the function of the liver. One is the dye test; the other, the barrier test, and the third, the nonsurgical biliary drainage test. None of these are simple enough to be carried out by the person himself. In fact, not many physicians are trained in using them.

The use of these tests shows that biliousness is oftentimes an effort on the part of the liver to tell a heedless man that something is wrong. If he finds something wrong with the liver, and that something not organic nor advanced, he institutes a line of treatment some part of which lies in the field of domestic medicine. The continuous application of heat by means of a hot pad or a hot water bottle over the liver will cause a large liver to decrease in size—unless the enlargement is due to cancer or cirrhosis, or something of that sort.

A bilious person will do well to go on a diet. The proper diet is one that is low in protein and in fats and greases. It is well to eat sparingly of butter, gravy, greasy soups, rich sauces, bacon, eggs, and lean meats. It seems best to eat five, or even six, times a day, but to eat very little at a time. It is advisable to drink water very freely.

Since gallstones only develop when the bile is acid he advocates the giving up of alkalis under certain circumstances. It is not good judgment to take alkali carelessly. There is a condition known as alkalosis, which is a match in harmfulness for acidosis. Some of these people do not do well when they eat milk. There is a reason for this, and it is now possible to say what the reason is. In fact, the barrier test is really a test of the system's reaction to milk.

BOWLEGGED BOY.

Mrs. C. R. writes:

1. Is it possible for bowlegs to be corrected in a boy 15?
2. If so, how?

REPLY.

1. Yes. At least in many cases it is possible.
2. Operation.

SEVERAL CAUSES POSSIBLE.

M. M. writes: A child of two years, weight 20 pounds, and unable to hold up its head, talk or walk, appears bright.

1. Could this condition result from having been given 250 units of antitoxin (diphtheria) when six months old?
2. If not, what might be the cause?
3. Is there hope of the child becoming normal?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Hydrocephalus is one possibility; another is congenital disease of the brain; rickets is a possibility.
3. Everything depends on the diagnosis. A physician should be able to make a diagnosis.

INSURANCE ASSIGNMENT.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a man's insurance is made out to his wife can it be taken from her for payment of debts?

2. For what kind of debts contracted by the husband can the wife be held liable?

3. Can a wife be made to pay the rent when the lease was signed by the husband only?

4. I heard of a case twenty years ago where creditors took nearly all of the insurance from the widow. Has this law been changed?
M. S.

1. No, it cannot.
2. In general only for family expenses.
3. Yes, since it is a family expense.
4. It seems probable that the insurance in question was payable to the deceased's estate.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought a suit from a loop store for thirty dollars and was fairly well satisfied. The tailor, upon altering it, made a terrible mess of the suit, so the store said they would fix me up with a new suit. They refused to return my money, although they advertise "guaranteed satisfaction." I had to take a higher priced garment to get my value and now I am not satisfied. Had they a right to refuse to return my money?
C. T. B.

On the original facts you were entitled to your money back, but after compromising by taking a new suit it is too late for you to take any action to recover your money.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

OBJECTS TO IMPROVEMENT.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A construction company paved an alley without the signatures of all the property owners. Can this company compel any property owner to pay who did not sign?
A. M.

You are not legally liable unless you expressly or impliedly undertook to pay. Your chances of convincing a court that you did not impliedly promise would be improved if you served written notice before the work was begun that you were unwilling to pay.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 13, 1865.

CHICAGO.—The board of supervisors of Cook county established the county hospital. Mr. and Mrs. B. Chase were elected warden and matron at a yearly salary of $500 each. One hundred patients can be cared for at the end of three years, it is estimated.

CHICAGO.—Mary Kohle, 54, was found dead in an empty lot, of exposure. Witnesses told Coroner Coleman that her landlord, in a tenement just beyond Jefferson street, had expelled her Thursday evening.

NEW YORK.—Steamers from Europe are not allowed to put in at Southampton because of a cholera epidemic there.

LONDON.—Twenty-four Irish Liberals in parliament have agreed to meet in Dublin, to form Irish parties and consider measures for the relief of Ireland. This conference has been arranged at the instance of Irish bishops, and will include O'Connor and other popular Irish leaders.

CHICAGO.—John C. Williams, pioneer resident of this city, died at the age of 57. At the time of his death he was associated with E. W. Blatchford in the Chicago Lead and Oil works.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 13, 1900.

BALTIMORE.—Surrounded by many of the same friends and standing at the same altar where her mother stood years ago for a similar ceremony, Miss Mary Grigsby McCormick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. McCormick of Chicago, was married to Herbert S. Stone, son of Melville E. Stone of Chicago, in Brown Memorial church. Miss Carrie McCormick sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Elinor McCormick, Miss Phoebe McCormick, Miss Elinor Johnson, Miss Elizabeth Stone, Miss Ellen Drexel Paul of Philadelphia, and Miss Madeline Noyes of Chicago.

CHICAGO.—At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hempstead Washburne, 154 Astor street, Miss Marie L. Clarke, Mrs. Washburne's sister, and Kinney Smith were married by the Rev. Father Fitzsimmons.

CHICAGO.—Fred L. Dindhammer of Northwestern academy broke all the western college records in a strength test taken at the Evanston Y. M. C. A. gymnasium under the supervision of Director Dass. Dindhammer scored 4,632 points. The best previous record in the west was that of Alfred W. Place of the University of Chicago, who last Feb. 16 scored 4,238 points.

PRICE, Utah.—Messages from the White Rock Indian agency say that the Ute Indians on the reservation are threatening the agent and all other whites there. Troop K of the 9th cavalry was rushed to the agency from Fort Duchesne in response to an appeal from Maj. Myton, the agent. The wires failed at 9 o'clock. At that time the Indians were reported gathering for an attack and a fight was expected before morning.

LOUISVILLE.—The American Federation of Labor rejected a resolution asking for a department of labor with a bona fide trades unionist in the President's cabinet.

DES MOINES, Ia.—Mrs. Jeanette Broadbent, a professional nurse, was shot in the head in her room in an apartment house and may die. In an incoherent statement she said a man opened her door, shot her, and ran away. The shooting attracted wide attention because Mrs. Broadbent was a witness in the sensational W. E. Richardson divorce case now on trial.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 13, 1915.

LONDON.—The allied troops retreating from Serbia to Saloniki are hard pressed and have taken new positions. Casualties aggregating 1,500 and the loss of eight field guns which they were unable to remove from emplacements are told of in an official report on the retreat of the British Tenth division from Lake Doiran, Serbia.

WASHINGTON.—The United States note on the attack on the Italian liner Ancona resulting in the loss of several American lives is a hard slap at Austria. The attack is called a barbarous, wanton slaughter of innocents. The note contains an intimation that if the Austro-Hungarian government does not yield to President Wilson's demand for disavowal and reparation at once a rupture of friendly relations and diplomatic intercourse will follow.

LONDON.—Dispatches from Petrograd indicate that the Germans are withdrawing their center to what is known as the Bug River line and are digging themselves in for the winter. Reports are that 100,000 men, women and children are engaged in digging trenches.

CHICAGO.—An announcement that came as a surprise to many north shore residents was that of the marriage of Miss Hazel I. Ritchie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Ritchie, 222 Maple avenue, Highland Park, and George P. Elbert. They were married on Nov. 9. Their friends had expected a late winter wedding.

CHICAGO.—Mark S. Watson, staff correspondent sent to Mexico City by The Tribune and the New York Sun, reports in a letter that the United States state department has clamped a censorship lid on Mexico news that extends even to private letters. He expects to be expelled from the country.

CHICAGO.—The Rev. J. S. Ainslie, for fifteen years pastor of the North Shore Congregational church, announced he will offer his resignation this week, but at the same time served notice on the congregation that it was the business of disgruntled members to quit rather than ask him to leave.

TOO MUCH POLITENESS

SITES FOR THE MEMORIAL FIRE HOUSE.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—The editorial protest of The Tribune this morning against the intrusion of any structures, monumental or utilitarian, upon the right of way of Wacker drive must meet with the hearty approval of all thinking citizens. As you point out, the roadway is scarcely adequate to the traffic that may be expected to use the thoroughfare, and any curtailment of the space by buildings or monuments would indeed be unfortunate.

A fire department house that would best serve the interests of the loop section should be located where the widest streets converge. Such a site is the triangular piece of land bounded by Franklin and Lake streets and Wacker drive, and between the Franklin and Lake street bridges. Market street runs south from its westernmost end, affording immediate access to the entire wholesale district, while Lake, Franklin, and former South Water streets make the rest of the loop district accessible. Likewise the location on the riverside insures close coördination with the fire tugs.

The site ought to lend itself ideally to a building for the fire department, at once artistic and utilitarian. If the cost of the site seems to be a barrier, it might be suggested that the city build on its unused site at the east end of the Madison street bridge.
George Urie Stevenson.

CREATING A MARKET FOR CORN.

Kankakee, Ill., Dec. 6.—I have been spending the last two months in Pontiac, county seat of Livingston county, one of the very best corn producing counties of Illinois. The farmers depend principally upon their corn crop to finance them. They are always dissatisfied with the price. This year at 60 cents per bushel they have a kick coming, as wheat is worth three times as much money on the market. There are probably ten million corn raisers in the United States who are interested in getting a good price for their product. If they would put up $5 each in an advertising fund that would amount to fifty million dollars. This amount invested at 5 per cent would give an annual income of two and one-half million dollars. This interest money spent in Europe and Asia in practical demonstrations as to the manifold use of corn products would undoubtedly create a market. One hundred thousand dollars spent in twenty-five foreign countries each year would create a demand heretofore unknown.

Corn has as much nutriment and can be used in as many ways as wheat. What would be more simple than to send to these foreign countries some of our splendid southern cooks who know how to make delicious cornbread, hot cakes, hominy grits?

The fruit growers of California spend millions of dollars in organization and advertising annually. Oranges are retailing at from 50 cents to $1 per dozen everywhere. There is more brawn and muscle in a bushel of corn than in ten thousand oranges. A judicious advertising campaign, both at home and abroad, would astonish this bunch of disgruntled corn raisers and put untold wealth in their pockets.
W. B. Merrick.

SCALPING.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—The newspapers announced that tickets for the Bear-Giant game would be on sale at Cub park Dec. 5 at 9 o'clock.

When I arrived at the park at 8:30 there were a few ahead of me. I was overwhelmed to hear that all box and choice grand stand seats were sold. Where did the tickets go and who got them? Surely another stunt like this will kill interest in the pro game.
O. G. Olson.

IMMIGRATION AND PROSPERITY.

Eau Claire, Wis., Dec. 2.—Permit me to congratulate you on your editorial in today's Tribune headed "Tinkering with the Immigration Law."

You are fundamentally sound on that point. Our immigration regulation is by no means a one man job. The wage of the future will not be governed by the law of supply and demand but rather based on the requirements of the worker to enable him to live and support a family in accordance with the American standard. We are making substantial progress toward that goal and therewith experiencing the greatest peace time prosperity in the history of the world. High wages and prosperity are synonymous.

During the year of 1925 our production and consumption have been practically on a balance, bearing evidence that when we transform the products of our natural resources into commodities in quantities exceeding the requirements of the consuming public or beyond their ability to buy, the result is panic and distress. Having struck the happy medium, may we hope it will be permanent?
J. F. Fisher.

DISCRIMINATING DOG CATCHERS.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—I am herewith airing a little just ire and resentment by citing an incident which occurred yesterday morning.

Our neighbors' pet dog, wearing his collar, name plate, and license, was standing peacefully in front of our house when suddenly the dog catchers' wagon drew up at the curb, lassoed the animal with a wire noose, strangled him to the point where his eyes nearly popped out of his head, and literally slung him into the wagon, cutting his neck and breaking a tooth in the bargain.

Two or three blocks down the street three homeless mongrels romped joyously. Happy dogs! They need fear no dog catchers, for they have neither master nor mistress to follow them to the dog pound and ransom them out.

Such is the discernment of dog catchers. Such is the law in Chicago!
H. R. U.

CONGRESSIONAL DISCOURTESY TO THE PRESIDENT.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Yesterday the President's message was read to congress, or at least to those who had the courtesy to remain for the reading.

I understand that the message is given to this august body of men only once a year. And yet the men who are elected by their constituents felt they had a right to leave the legislative hall during the delivery of the chief executive's message to them. Some, possibly due to having no place to go, stayed and read newspapers or slept through the reading by the clerk.

What do the nations of the world think of our legislators? What can our nation think of such men?

Regardless of my personal opinion of Charles Dawes' proposal to change some of the senate's customs, I'll back him to the limit to put a stop to such actions on the part of public men.
Sidney I. Weisman.

NATURALIZATION DIFFICULTIES.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—We foreigners are at the same point today where the colonists were in those days when they called the First Continental congress. We have to pay taxes just as any American citizen, but we are not represented. To be represented we must be citizens.

Last winter I went to a citizenship class at one of the night schools, where I passed my citizenship examinations before a federal examiner. I received a certificate which qualified me for citizenship as far as knowledge is concerned. A few weeks later I filed an application for my final papers. These were returned to me with the remark that my papers should not be accepted because my first paper was void. He stated that my paper was taken out within 30 days of an election. The naturalization offices of the Superior court are now closed during the election periods, but at that time everything was wide open and no clerk at the court told me that I did an unlawful act.

Another point that is worth mentioning is the question in this citizenship application which says: "Did you claim exemption?" At the time the United States entered the great war, congress passed a law which prohibited the enlisting or drafting of alien enemies. Many Germans and Austrians, believing themselves to be within the law, therefore claimed exemption. Very many of those fellows have to wait now on account of doing this, probably for years, before they can get their citizenship papers. What about those fellows now who came after the war, who were fighting against America? When their legal time expires they can become citizens; no 30 day law or an exemption from the army will stop them from being American citizens.

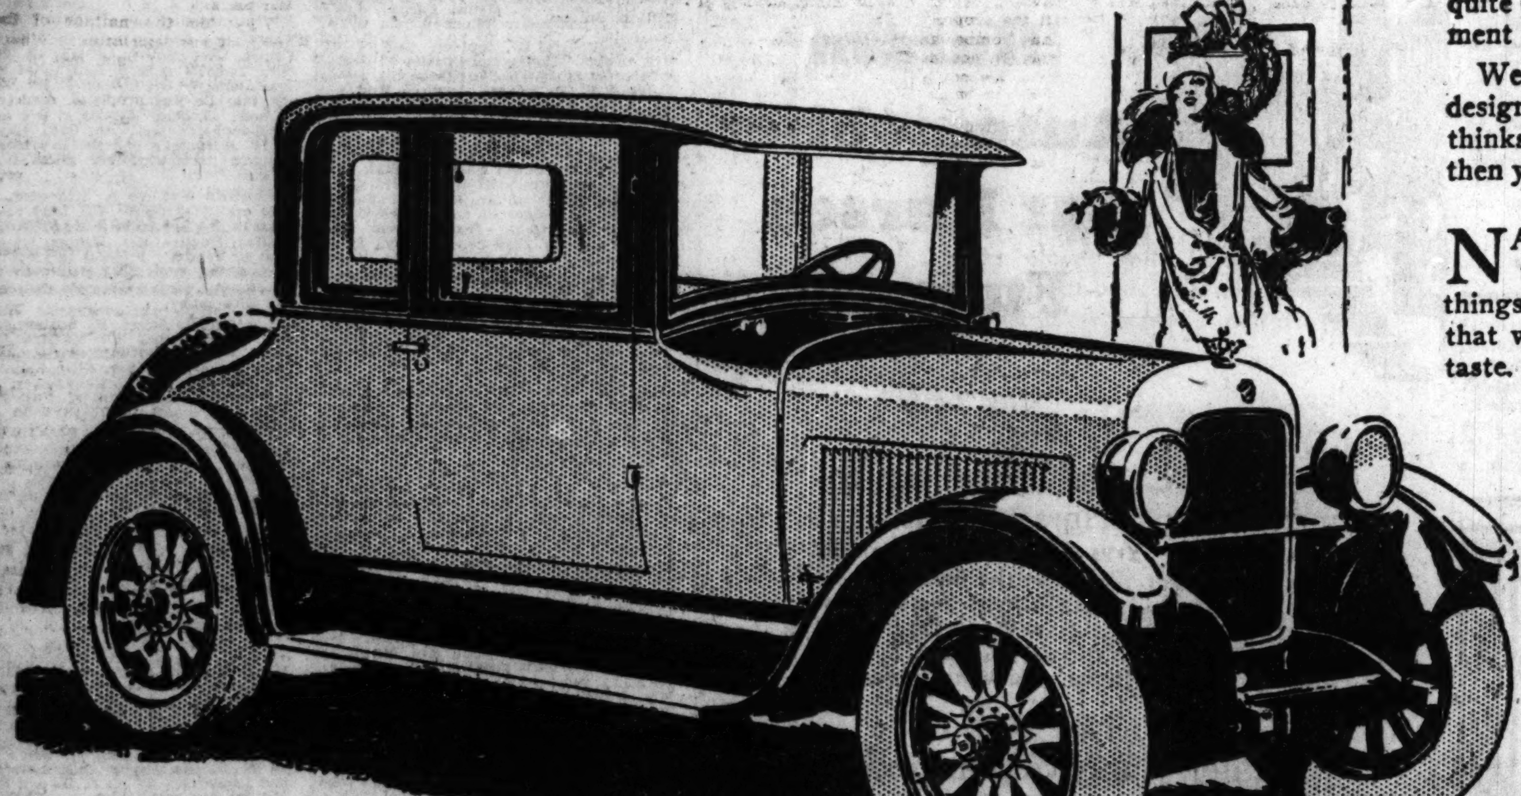
The Keys to Happiness

Unlock countless enchanted days for HER

Make this Country Club Coupe her very own

WE invite you to inspect this ideal car for women . . . the Christmas gift supreme for daughter, wife, mother or sweetheart.

We will make delivery Christmas morning, Christmas Eve, or when you wish. Under Studebaker's Budget Payment Plan you may pay for it out of income on terms to meet your individual requirements.



IN HER heart there is a supreme wish . . . mayhap an unspoken wish . . . with the most wonderful Christmas of her life, a car of her very own, as its center.

That is true of every girl . . . yet fathers often wonder what to give at Christmas.

Search the marts of the world . . . nothing will quite equal that wonderful car, to bring enchantment to youthful days.

We put the keys to it in a smart and simply designed, yet mysteriously enticing little box. She thinks it's a jewel box. The keys puzzle her . . . then you guide her to the window!

* * * *

NATURALLY, she has her own ideas about the kind of car she wants. There are certain things dear to her heart that it must have. Things that women love — comfort, refinements, good taste.

We believe the Studebaker Standard Six Country Club Coupe is the car she wants. Of all we sell, 80% are chosen by women.

It has the brilliant power and go that youth demands. Quick in traffic—thrilling to drive on the open road.

It is easy to steer, easy to park . . . wonderfully so. And that, you know, is important to women.

It is smart and luxurious . . . and that is vital. Lines are gracefully long and low; the body beautifully lacquered in Miami Gray with belt of Comanche Brown striped in Carmine.

And completely appointed as she would have her personal car. Improved one-piece windshield with automatic cleaner, sun visor and rear-view mirror. Lights are controlled by a safety switch on the steering wheel. In the center of the dash is a beautiful silver-faced dial with an 8-day clock and gasoline gauge in addition to the usual instruments.

Then it is socially distinguished . . . unmistakably a quality car; roomy enough for three with a spacious compartment for packages or golf sticks; deep seated, luxuriously cushioned; obviously a car of the highest order.

Of particular interest to fathers is the knowledge of inherent Studebaker economy. To know that she can drive this car when and where she will without thought of trouble or upkeep expense. Fathers the world over know the meaning of Studebaker economy.

The Studebaker Country Club Coupe has a surprisingly low first cost—$1295, plus freight and war tax. That's because Studebaker has complete facilities for the manufacture of quality cars on a One-Profit basis.

And you may buy any Studebaker in confidence that it will not be made artificially obsolete by the announcement of "new yearly models" at the January Automobile Shows.

POLICE SLAYING STILL UNSOLVED; INQUEST PAUSES

Jury of Leaders Baffled as Testimony Clashes.

"Who shot me? I'll tell you who did it—Martin Durkin."

Thus did the late Patrolman James Henry, if his dying statement to Sergt. Walter F. Healy be true, reveal what the coroner's jury of prominent business men is trying to find out, and that is:

Who killed Policemen James Carroll and James Henry and Marshall Custer, a taxicab driver, in McKeone's saloon, at 5253 South Halsted street, at 3 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 27?

The jury yesterday resumed the investigation, continued from two preceding Saturdays.

If Henry, crying for a doctor in the German Deaconess hospital a few minutes after the shooting, believing death was approaching and wishing to set avengers on his slayer's trail—if Henry, under these conditions, voiced the truth, then three more deaths can be accredited to the trigger finger of Durkin.

Witnesses Doubt Durkin Did It.

Nobody else, not even Sergt. Healy, believes it. Unanimously they acquaint the jurors, Roy Juul, George F. Nixon, Tomaz Deuther, C. E. Humiston, M. D., Gilbert Wilson, D. D., and Edward F. Gore, with their theory that the triple murder was the work of an ordinary stickup gang.

Yet, of the dozen witnesses, no two agree on essentials. E. L. Piggott, patrolman, says the dying Henry told him he and Carroll followed two men into the saloon, questioned them, and were shot down by three men who came in afterward. Henry told Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker, the chief has testified, that he and Carroll followed three men in; that Carroll went on into the bar; that he himself was lighting a cigar in the tobacconist's booth when the bartender admitted one man, who began to talk and then shot him.

Conflict of Testimony.

Henry told Healy, the sergeant says, that a sedan drove up, four men got out and began shooting, and that he recognized Durkin. Other witnesses say the two slain policemen were sitting at a table in the saloon for an hour before the shooting.

Barney Barrard and two other men with three girls were returning from a party and stopped at McKeone's. Barrard says two detectives across the street opened fire on them after McKeone hollered a command to stop. Thinking it was a holdup, they fled to the station.

It went into the records—since Durkin probably knows as much about it as the police department does—that Henry and Carroll, with other details picked because of their long acquaintance with Durkin, were watching No. 5248 South Halsted, across from McKeone's, because they expected the fugitive murderer to show up there.

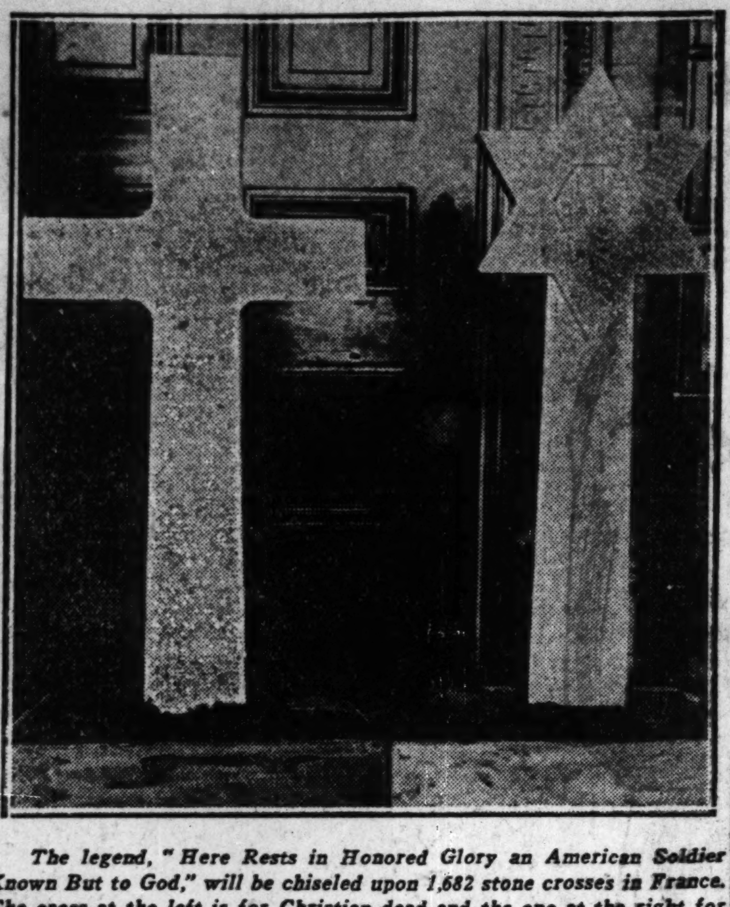
Jurors Eager for Truth.

The hunt for the truth in this baffling tragedy is an interesting proceeding as conducted by the jury of business men. There's Mr. Juul, low voiced and earnest. The principal inquisitor is Tomaz Deuther, shorter and chunky. He never lets a witness finish his answer before his nimble curiosity gives birth to a new question. The Rev. Gilbert Wilson employs a sepulchral tone that seems to scorn the lowest register and reach right down to the furnace in the basement. He's shrewd and knows what he wants to find out.

Then there are Nixon, faultlessly dressed and with a stubby blonde mustache; and Gore, waving an unlighted but well gnawed cigar, and Dr. Humiston, keenly interested in the medical testimony. But in spite of their efforts the real answer to the question—what was all the shooting about—seems as far away as ever.

Yesterday they adjourned the hearing, subject to the coroner's call, until after the holidays. Meanwhile, Assistant State's Attorney Joseph H. Nicolai, present at the quiz, says that every question is making the state's position that much harder, since it reveals to a future defense all the prosecution knows. And that is precious little.

"KNOWN BUT TO GOD"



The legend, "Here Rests in Honored Glory an American Soldier Known But to God," will be chiseled upon 1,682 stone crosses in France. The cross at the left is for Christian dead and the one at the right for Jewish dead.

U. S. MOVES FOR A PADLOCK ON FISH FANS' CLUB

Miss Mary D. Bailey, assistant district attorney in charge of prohibition injunction proceedings, yesterday announced that her department will proceed against the Fish Fans' club in Belmont harbor with a view to padlocking it for one year under the abatement of a nuisance clause of the Volstead law.

Miss Bailey said that hearing of the case will be before Federal Judge Adam C Cliffe on Feb. 2 and that much of the evidence used in the criminal prosecution of the three former principal employés of the club will be used in the civil procedure.

A jury in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court on Friday returned a verdict of guilty against Richard C. Mazer, Charles Eiseman, and Jacob Fabacher on six counts charging possession and sale of liquor on the club premises. The men were acquitted on the seventh count, charging them with maintaining a nuisance.

Seventeen permanent and eleven temporary injunctions were issued yesterday by Judge Cliffe against establishments charged with violating the prohibition law. All but four of the places are in Chicago.

Kills Self on Eve of 50th Wedding Anniversary

With his golden wedding anniversary only a few days away, James Stefl, 80 years old, 1358 South Komensky avenue, could no longer endure the pain of his crippled limbs, and so fired a bullet through his left temple yesterday. His wife, Anna, found him unconscious on a stairway leading into the attic of his home. He died a few hours later at St. Anthony's hospital

PRESIDENT REBUKES ARMY COURT WHICH SOFTENED OFFENSE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—In approving a sentence of dismissal from the army against Capt. Frank M. Nihoof, President Coolidge has taken sharp issue with the court which softened the charge of wrongfully converting the company fund to his own use by inserting the words, "unlawfully by borrowing." The court martial sat in Panama.

"I feel that the findings of the court martial involve unsound principles of law and constitute an attempt to make technical distinctions which have no foundation in law and no place in the administration of military justice," the army order, which the President signed, stated.

SAVE 22 LIVES AT LAKE GENEVA BY PATROL PLAN

The rescue of thirty-two persons from drowning at Lake Geneva last summer is attributed by lake shore residents to what is known as the Lake Geneva plan for water safety, originated by Joseph S. Law, assistant national director of life saving and first aid of the American Red Cross.

The plan includes the thorough patrolling of a body of water by life guards and boats, and the installation of precautionary devices tending to minimize the water hazard, including a shallow water line, marked by a rope with floats attached every ten feet, and the marking off of the actual swimming area by floats flying Red Cross flags.

Instruction in life saving also is given, and bulletin boards carrying warning signs, announcements, and life saving instructions are used as part of the plan.

2 ARMY FLIERS HURT IN CRASH.

Cambridge, O., Dec. 12.—Two army aviators from McCook field, Dayton, O., were perhaps fatally injured when their airplane crashed near here this afternoon. They were Lieut. Carter and Sergt. Ford. The plane was demolished.

MORE COMPANIES ACCUSED IN TAX IRREGULARITIES

Couzens Body Shows U.S. Lost Many Millions.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Alleged irregularities in tax adjustments of about a dozen additional corporations and individuals are set forth in another volume of secret testimony before the Couzens senatorial committee, filed with the senate and made public today.

The companies and individuals involved are the Pressed Steel Car company of Pittsburgh, the Anaconda Copper company, the Phelps-Dodge corporation, the American Blower company of Detroit, George A. Joslyn of Omaha, the General Carbonic company, the Roessler and Hasslacher Chemical corporation, the Slim Jim Oil and Gas company of Wichita, Kas.; the Little Estates corporation of New York City, E. R. Bradley of Lexington, Ky., and the George Brothers company of Pittsburgh.

$10,000,000 Figures in Claim.

In the case of the Pressed Steel Car company the question at issue was over a claim of $10,000,000 of invested capital for patents. The bureau originally disallowed the $10,000,000 on the ground that the patents had expired. The internal revenue bureau first assessed a tax of $121,418.82 and later, after the company had protested, the bureau ruled that there had been an over-assessment of $123,186.43.

In the Anaconda Copper company case, L. C. Manson, counsel for the Couzens committee, declared that there were three gross errors and that despite demand of auditors of the bureau that the case be reopened and errors corrected, Deputy Commissioner Bright ordered it to remain closed. The tax involved was $2,500,000.

Approximately $2,000,000 was involved in the Phelps-Dodge case, where the question at issue related to invested capital. The case was settled on the basis of $90,000,000 value.

The American Blower company was charged with fraud in making its tax return, but later the case was compromised by the internal revenue bureau. Counsel for the committee contended that the government got about $115,00 less than it had assessed.

Investigate Joslyn Case.

The case of George A. Joslyn was investigated with a view to showing that employes of the bureau get information and then prey upon taxpayers. Attorneys for the widow of Mr. Joslyn filed a claim which was denied, but the widow later received a refund after former bureau employés with a knowledge of the case obtained authority to handle the case for her.

The case of E. R. Bradley showed that Chicago revenue agents suggested that Bradley ran a gambling resort in Palm Beach, and that an examination there might disclose that an additional tax was due. Bureau officials in Washington called this to the attention of the Atlanta office, which instituted an immediate inquiry. Two auditors in the bureau in Washington ordered that no inquiry in Florida be made, but it so happened that the Atlanta investigation had been completed before this order went through, with the result that an additional tax of $215,00 was assessed.

Mrs. Sara Gould Fargo Funeral to Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Sara Gould Fargo, 821 Forest avenue, Evanston, who died Friday, will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. in the chapel at Graceland cemetery. Mrs. Fargo was the wife of Edward A. Fargo, a shoe manufacturer, and was 59 years old. She is survived by her husband, a daughter, and two sons.

U. C. PUBLICATION INTERPRETS MORAL IN STORY OF JONAH

Interpretation of the story of Jonah and the whale is undertaken in a recent publication issued by the American Institute of Sacred Literature at the University of Chicago.

According to Prof. J. M. P. Smith, the story loses its comedy under the scrutiny of scholarship, and takes the force of the first great missionary tract. The translation is the first of a series to be printed by the institute. All will deal with various Biblical controversies and be sent out in leaflet form.

"The author of the book of Jonah took well known names from the history of Israel and around them built a story which carried a powerful appeal in behalf of a great moral idea," Prof. Smith said.

"The nation of Jews had failed to undertake the task of bringing all mankind to a knowledge of the true God, and therefore had been sent into exile in a foreign land, just as Jonah, the disobedient prophet, had been swallowed by a great fish.

"Awakened by the bitter experiences of exile, the nation was later brought back home, just as Jonah was disgorged by the whale."

MANUFACTURERS PRESS PLAN FOR WORLD'S FAIR

Directors of the South Central association, an organization of manufacturers, yesterday petitioned Mayor Dever, Ald. Dorsey Crowe, and other members of the city planning committee to take immediate steps toward the appointment of a committee of fifty citizens, to launch plans for the Chicago Centennial exposition.

Resolutions were passed indorsing the proposal for an exposition. This undertaking, the petition reads, would provide an incomparable example of civic spirit to the growing generations, and would effect the solidarity of purpose of the millions that make Chicago.

Such an exhibition would definitely mark the progress of the world in arts, science, and industry since the time of the Columbian exposition in 1893, declared the directors. The statements were made in response to a public call by the mayor, asking that Chicago citizens give the matter serious consideration.

Yale at the Yuletide Sends Along the Singers

The Yale Glee and Banjo club, winner of last year's intercollegiate contest, is to be heard in Chicago Christmas night, in Orchestra hall. The coming of the Yale musicians is always an event of outstanding social interest; and each succeeding visit finds the attendance more and more a Yale gathering. The program is not yet available for print; but the promise is that none of the traditional songs of the New Haven university has been left out.

Hursen Automobiles at Hursen Funerals

You never see poor equipment among Hursen's funeral automobiles. You do not see the ordinary kind either. You see the finest passenger automobiles in America—the most beautiful things on wheels. As to the hearses, Hursen recently surprised Chicago by producing the new Hursen idea—the limousine-hearse.

Chicago has demanded a change from the old, over-adorned, gloomy-looking hearse. They have tired of sombre gaudiness. The Hursen limousine-hearses are built along the same beautiful lines as the Hursen passenger automobiles. This is but one more feature which has added to the fame of "Hursen" funerals.

It does not matter whether the funeral is a very modest one or a very pretentious one. The same elegance prevails. You see the same unusual and unexcelled passenger automobiles, the same unusual Hursen limousine-hearses.

Yet, it costs not a cent more for the use of Hursen vehicles than for the use of the usual poor equipment you see at many funerals. Then again, remember, that the charges for Hursen funerals are but a fraction of the charges made elsewhere. This is why "Hursen's" is today the largest undertaking establishment in America. Call Hursen, of course!

HIGH PAY BUT NO JOBS, SOFT COAL FIELD PROBLEM

Jacksonville Scale Has Brought Shutdown.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—The old labor problem of high wages but no work is involved in the controversy in this soft coal field, where the Pittsburgh Coal company is going forward with its project to reopen and operate its mines on a nonunion basis on the 1917 wage scale.

It is an effort by a producer in a high wage union field to keep its markets from being permanently annexed by low wage nonunion competitors in West Virginia and Kentucky, who have already managed to grab the cream of the business, as in Illinois and Indiana.

It is viewed with exceeding interest by organized labor, manufacturing industries, operators, and the general public alike.

See No U. S. Obligation.

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine workers, has asked President Coolidge for governmental intervention to make the operators live up to the Jacksonville agreement, which runs to March, 1927. The attitude of the administration appears to be that, although it was instrumental in getting miners and operators together at Jacksonville, that is as far as its present obligations travel.

Mr. Lewis charges moral turpitude on the part of operators who have cut loose from the Jacksonville scale and says it is an attack upon the principle of collective bargaining and an effort to destroy the union. He names as one of the chief violators, the Pittsburgh Coal company, in which Secretary Mellon has an interest.

Regardless of the ethics involved, here is what is happening:

The Pittsburgh district used to employ 45,000 to 50,000 miners. Today the union says about 24,000 are working under the Jacksonville agreement. The lowest nonunion fields to the south have been walking away with the Pittsburgh coal trade. Of the mines in the district 147 are closed down. Sixty are working under the Jacksonville agreement, while seven have cut loose and are operating under the 1917 scale.

Mine Pay Roll Dwindles.

Normally the coal mine pay roll in the Pittsburgh district ran $1,700,000 a week. In September it was less than $550,000 a week. There has been a drop of more than 60 per cent in production from the summer of 1923, and the district output is now only about one-third of what it used to be.

The direct loss due to the stagnation of mining, figuring merely on pay rolls and sale of supplies, is placed at $60,000,000 a year. Then there are indirect losses—the railroad pay roll loss due to conditions is estimated at $6,000,000 a year.

The Pittsburgh Coal company is the largest commercial bituminous company in the world. It has 73 mines in Pennsylvania and Ohio. Of its 54 mines in the Pittsburgh district, it abandoned 14. Nonunion fields cut in so strong that the company was undermined in its own market. A ton of soft coal could be bought in the Kentucky or West Virginia nonunion fields for $1.20 to $1.50 at the mines. The nonunion fields were able to sell coal at a figure which was not much, if at all, in excess of the pay roll cost alone in the Pittsburgh district and fifty cents to a dollar a ton below the actual cost of producing coal in this district.

Cheaper to Buy Than Dig.

The company closed its mines. To take care of its lake trade and operate its docks it found it an economy to contract for coal in southern West Virginia and sell it to its customers. Last year it bought 3,000,000 tons of coal from nonunion fields to take care of its lake trade. Last year it operated mines enough to turn out only 3,300,000 tons and on this it says it lost $1,000,000, so it closed down all its workings.

In August the company reopened a mine on the 1917 scale. The fifth mine was reopened Nov. 13.—Today 1,058 men are at work in the five. Company officials say the opening of the mines followed petitions from former employés, union men, who asked for work.

Unions Claim Lines Hold.

Union officials declare only five members have gone to work under the 1917 scale in the five mines. They speak of the use of mine guards and eviction of families from company houses. The company says it uses no mine guards, but relies on deputy sheriffs and the state police for protection.

The tension is tightening somewhat and occasionally there are small riotings. As to the talk of a bituminous strike to help the anthracite workers, it seems to have little real foundation. The two industries, hard coal and soft, are quite separate, and it would be hard to see where the union heads would make anything of a hit with the soft coal miners in Illinois and Indiana by calling them out when work has just started to pick up due to the anthracite situation.

As to the bituminous itself, the union just now is in parlous times. Nonunion production has grown to the point where a strike would do less damage than before. In 1919 the strike closed down 71 per cent of the bituminous production, but now the nonunion fields produce more than 70 per cent of the output.

VEHICLE LICENSES TO BE ISSUED BY CITY TOMORROW

Issuance of 1926 vehicle tax licenses will begin tomorrow, City Collector Thomas Keane announced yesterday.

To facilitate handling applications for some 350,000 licenses Mr. Keane has mailed notices together with a 1926 application blank to all holders of licenses in 1925, asking them to make their application by mail.

Blanks may be obtained in the collector's office on the first floor of the city hall, from motor clubs and many of the gasoline filling stations.

Wherever possible Mr. Kean asks that application together with a check or money order be mailed and addressed to Thomas P. Keane, city collector, city hall, and marked application for vehicle license.

POLAND BLAMES ITS TROUBLES TO LACK OF MONEY

Nation Struggling Under Vast Budget.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WARSAW, Dec. 12.—Poland, after six and a half years of national existence, faces political and economic chaos. The finances of the state are in worse condition than any one here cares to admit. Payments to officials have been delayed on several occasions because of lack of funds and there is a probability that the state soon may find itself without funds to meet its pay roll.

The limited industry of the country is stagnating, the exchange value of Polish currency has dropped about 50 per cent, Polish business honesty is questioned at home and abroad, and there is no confidence in Polish banks. Industrialists are paying as high as 5 per cent a month for funds to keep their plants operating. The industrial output is greatly decreased. The trade balance is against the nation. The cost of living is rising and the ferment is daily growing more serious.

No Faith in Finances.

I have asked fifty representative men of Warsaw the reason for the decline in the exchange. Their answers give as the fundamental cause the fact that there is no confidence among the people in the state's finances.

Sir William Good, unofficial adviser to the ministry of finance, lays the blame chiefly at the door of the original finance legislation, which created a temporarily stable currency that was far too limited in volume to meet the needs of Polish industry and commerce. There is not enough money to go round, and Poland, consequently, is suffering from deflation. Sir William believes, however, that the new government is on the right road and that with the assistance of a foreign loan it will be able to provide sufficient currency.

American Blames Inflation.

An American observer points out that there is as much inflation as deflation and that the Bank of Poland must keep the issue of notes within a certain limit prescribed by law and based on the amount of gold and foreign securities in the hands of the bank. To cover the needs of the state arising out of unpaid taxes, poor returns from the state monopolies, and the shortage of money, the government has issued unsecured paper in large sums.

Three months ago there were nearly 600,000,000 zlotys in Bank of Poland notes in circulation. [A zloty is now worth 11.50 cents.] As the foreign currency on hand diminished, the bank returned notes until today there are only 322,000,000 zlotys of this paper in circulation. Unsecured government paper has increased until today there are more than 200,000,000 zlotys without security in addition to more than 100,000,000 zlotys in silver and other base materials. Officially the Polish currency today is backed by 33 per cent gold. Actually, if one takes into consideration the government's unsecured issues, it is about 20 per cent.

Cannot Collect Taxes.

Struggling with insufficient currency and a budget of three times the total circulation, which retires 25 per cent of the already limited capital every month, the government is unable to collect outstanding taxes. There are no funds to meet the government's claims.

The taxes were estimated to bring in 330,000,000 zlotys of revenue. In the first nine months only 16 per cent of this sum was realized. The new finance minister, M. Zdiezchowsky, announced that on Dec. 1 there were arrears in direct taxation amounting to 484,000,000 zlotys. In other words, only 56.1 per cent of the taxes thus far has been paid.

According to the members of the new government, the unofficial adviser, and every financial expert with whom I have spoken, the only solution of the problem is a greatly reduced budget and properly supervised foreign loans to be used only for productive purposes. This loan primarily should be used to cover the reissue of Bank of Poland notes to an extent which would meet the needs of the country and of industry. Credit then could be granted under easier terms to industries and business firms which could give the proper security for it.

Loan Outlook Dark.

Prospects of a foreign loan are not good until Poland has regained confidence in the New York and London money markets, which were badly shaken by the happenings of last year and the foolish and unproductive employment of actual cash advanced through Dillon, Read & Co.

Examination of the budget for 1925 indicates that the Polish armed forces, including the frontier guards, which until April 1 were a part of the regular army and charged against the ministry of war, and the military police and trained troops absorbed more than 40 per cent of the estimated revenue.

The fear of Russia has caused Poland to maintain a large army to protect its border.

For 1926 the provisional budget allows 44.2 per cent for these departments.

As many statistics of Poland's armed force are available, all different, I will confine my figures to those given in the budget estimates of 1925-'26. For 1925 they are: Regular armed forces, officers, noncommissioned officers, 297,575; frontier guards, 18,538; military police, 39,564; total, 355,677.

For 1926 the estimate is: Regular armed forces, 293,219; frontier guards, 18,596; military police, 36,905; total, 348,720.

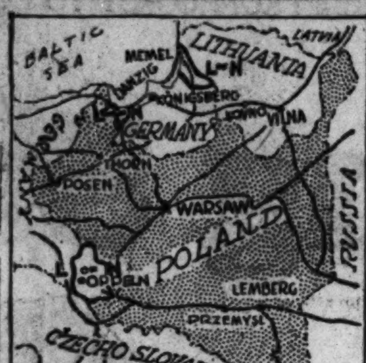
The 1925 Budget.

The total budget for 1925 is 2,020,064,689 zlotys. The ministry of war gets 710,100,000 zlotys, the frontier guards 55,600,000 zlotys, and the military police 104,000,000 zlotys.

For 1926 the total budget is 1,887,945,049 zlotys. The ministry of war is allotted 689,100,000 zlotys, the frontier guards 49,780,000 zlotys, and the military police 101,534,000 zlotys.

In addition there are charges of 80,000,000 zlotys for the permanent equipment of the police and 14,000,000 zlotys from the frontier guards in 1926. These two charges will bring the grand total to more than 49 per cent.

POLAND'S BURDEN



Fear of a Russian invasion has caused Poland to maintain large armed forces to protect its boundary. The cost of keeping this army is one of Poland's big financial problems now.

HERE IS FIRST GIRL GUN TOTER TO MISS TARGET

Abraham Hantover, 843 Windsor avenue, parked the Yellow cab he drives in front of his home last night while he ate. When he returned a well dressed young woman was sitting on the back seat.

"Drive to the Rienzi hotel at Diversey and Clark," she said snappily. Then she added: "Drive like hell!"

Hantover drove fast, but with an eye to speed laws and traffic regulations. At Broadway and Montrose there was a tieup. It didn't suit the passenger. She flashed a revolver and fired through the glass at the driver. He leaped out and into the arms of Policeman Alfred Piehl, who threw open the door and seized the girl before she could fire again.

At the Town Hall station she said her name was Ruth Keeney, 4631 North Racine avenue.

Million Dollar Mansion Razed to Extend Garden

New York, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—The mansion of the late Charles T. Yerkes, on the south corner of 68th street and 6th avenue, said to have cost $1,000,000, is to be torn down and sold to the junk man in order to permit the extension of Thomas Fortune Ryan's flower garden.

MAY USE WORLD COURT DEBATE TO SLAP AT DAWES

Plan Cloture Exhibition Under Present Rules.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—If a plan under consideration in conference rooms is carried out the principle of cloture as advocated by Vice President Dawes may be applied to limit debate on the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge proposal that the United States declare its adherence to the international court of justice.

Those who favor bringing discussion of the court protocol to an end when everybody in the senate has had an opportunity to present their views are not actuated by motives of friendliness to the Dawes reform.

Would Show Up Dawes.

Their purpose, first, is to assure a vote at the earliest practicable date on the world court issue in accordance with the wishes of the administration as outlined in President Coolidge's annual message to congress. Secondly, it is the belief of many senators, notably those up for reëlection in 1926, and who look with disfavor on the Dawes proposal, to give the country a striking example of what the senate can do in the way of curtailing debate when it is determined to vote on a given proposition of paramount importance.

It is their belief that no better vehicle than the world court question could be used as a medium of giving effect to their convictions that there is no pressing need for a change in the senate rules.

Polls of the senate clearly show that at least 75 members favor the court plan. With these votes for the proposal, it is argued, it will be useless for the minority to resist the settled purpose of the majority to bring the matter to a head.

Under an order of the senate, adopted a year ago, consideration of the world court protocol will be begun next Thursday. The debate is expected to go in desultory way in the few days intervening between Dec. 17 and adjournment for the holidays, but it will not be taken up in earnest until the senate reassembles in January.

Hand decorated Pier Cabinet in an assortment of crackle finishes $57.00

WHEN you begin to think about Christmas and the gifts you'd like to give, you think of your pocket book. Your generous impulses are apt to be far ahead of your resources. That's true of all of us. We'd like to do many things that we can't afford.

There are lots of beautiful things for the home, here in our store; things that will not only give pleasure to the one who receives the gift, but to every member of the family.

You can go as far as you like. You can pay anywhere from ten or fifteen dollars to several hundred dollars; just as you wish.

But there is one thing that is true of everything you'll find here, whether it's marked $15.00 or $150.00; it's "Scholle-quality"—the best we can buy. We not only guarantee the satisfaction of the purchaser; but if, for any reason, the recipient would like to change it for something else, we'll exchange it or refund the money.

Here in Chicago—

Every motorist is familiar with traffic congestion such as that illustrated on Michigan Boulevard at the bridge and found at many other points throughout the city. Just wait until you drive the New-Day Jewett through crowded streets like these—a new thrill is in store for you.

Arrived-
The New-Day Jewett

THE new-day car is here—and it's a Jewett! It is the answer of one of the automotive industry's oldest, strongest and most successful organisations to today's vital motoring needs and problems.

No surface comparison can adequately gauge this car's worth. Measure it instead against the situations and emergencies of driving.

Begin, if you like, with the severest test of all—take The New-Day Jewett into close-packed city traffic.

Dart in and out—shoot swiftly ahead of the jam—stop with soft smoothness—park in spaces you would have thought impossibly small!

Realization will come quickly—that here is a car, marvelously responsive to your touch, which takes instant advantage of every opening, gets you through streets that seem impenetrable, lets you come and go as you please where ordinarily you would never try to drive. A new-day car for new-day needs!

A New-Day Motor—Paige Designed

Then leave the crowded streets and seek unfrequented country roads, where The New-Day Jewett will reveal performance well comparable to that of preceding Jewetts, acknowledged masters of the open road.

From a modern, high-efficiency motor—a six—Paige engineers have developed pulling power, speed, lively acceleration and long term operating efficiency in a better balanced combination that has ever before, to the best of our knowledge, been achieved in an automobile motor.

And in retaining the full measure of flashing performance for which Jewett Sixes are world famous, this new-day engineering has brought about the astonishing gain of over 20% in gasoline economy! A new-day car for new-day needs!

New-Day Driving Ease

Only through the fullest possible development of ease of control, could The New-Day Jewett gain its freedom of movement in crowded traffic.

Details of seating position, leg room and the placing of controls are scientifically worked out. To minimize the effort of gear changing, the throw of the gear lever has been made extremely short and easy.

The saw-blade type steel clutch has the lightest action of any on which your foot has ever rested—and you can easily shift from high to second at 35 miles an hour.

Ball bearing steering spindles, in connection with a highly perfected mechanism of the worm and gear type, make this car, we believe, the easiest steering on the road today.

The New-Day Car

A modern, high-efficiency motor—6 cylinders—with a flashing "pick-up" that shoots you out of tangled traffic in the flick of an eye.

Paige hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, bringing you to cushioned rest almost instantaneously from any normal speed.

Fullest possible development in ease of control—response to wheel and throttle that makes this car seem to answer to your wish rather than your touch.

Amazing roominess—more than in many 120 inch wheelbase sedans—easy entrance and exit—luxurious comfort.

Clearest of clear vision that reveals the unwary pedestrian and makes it impossible for another car to approach unseen.

New accomplishments in economy—of first cost, operation and upkeep.

All this made possible by 17 years of Paige experience and with high quality certified by standards from which Paige has never deviated.

Paige-Hydraulic 4-Wheel Brakes

Nowhere in the world has a more reliable and efficient braking system been developed than the Paige hydraulic 4-wheel brakes with which The New-Day Jewett is regularly equipped.

More costly to manufacture than other types, hydraulic 4-wheel brakes as perfected by Paige are the ultimate in simplicity, in perfect equalization, in swift and positive action and in the security they lend to driving. No lubrication is necessary.

There is an elimination of frictional loss in applying foot pressure, also, which results in immeasurably easier brake action.

This is by hundreds of dollars the lowest priced car with hydraulic brakes as standard equipment.

New-Day Roominess In a Compact Car

The shapely, steel-built body of The New-Day Jewett Sedan will be a revelation in the effective utilization of interior space.

Actually more leg and seating room than in many 120-inch wheelbase sedans! More generous interior dimensions than any other closed car of corresponding overall size! Get in or out of the rear seat without disturbing those in front.

And this, remember, in a car so compactly designed that it will slip in and out of unbelievably small parking spaces like a bird in flight. A new-day car for new-day needs!

Seats are heavily upholstered and the entire interior finished in rich and durable brougham cloth—noted for good looks and wearing qualities.

The Deadly "Blind Spot" Eliminated

Characteristic of the almost numberless advances embodied in The New-Day Jewett is the pillar construction.

Here the use of steel furnishes greatest possible strength, yet gives a pillar so much narrower than the conventional type that the deadly "blind spot" may fairly be said to be completely eliminated. No closed car driver need be told the profound significance of this vital improvement!

And the sweep of clear glass back to the rear quarter is almost uninterrupted, giving both front and rear seat vision so far unequalled.

The same steel construction makes a body of tremendous sturdiness. Exterior finish is lasting and richly beautiful double tone lacquer.

And Jewett's Lowest Price

The final surprise in this car of surprises is its price!

Product of the fine Paige-Jewett craftsmanship that for 17 years has been "always making them finer," The New-Day Jewett is likewise the brilliant embodiment of the tremendous economies made possible by Paige and Jewett success.

So, with its innumerable new-day features and improvements—with its dashing performance, its mastery of traffic, its beauty, roominess, comfort, substantial quality—with all that you could or would expect in a true new-day automobile—this Jewett Sedan is still by a very wide margin the lowest priced Jewett closed car ever built!

A Real Thrill Awaits You

After years of preparation, The New-Day Jewett awaits your inspection and test.

Let nothing prevent your seeing The New-Day Jewett without delay! And do not stop with a casual survey, for the better you learn to know this car the more you will appreciate its unusualness—its right to be known as "The New-Day Car For New-Day Needs."

We will gladly afford you every opportunity for thorough examination and test of The New-Day Jewett. A real thrill awaits you!

'SMELL' WARRANT RAPPED ON NOSE BY U. S. OFFICIAL

Practice Condemned by Commissioner Glass.

Prohibition agents must prove their probosces technically accurate and specially sensitive to the odor of booze before they can obtain so-called "smell" warrants from United States Commissioner James R. Glass, the latter said yesterday.

Commissioner Glass in recent court cases frankly warned government representatives that he does not approve of any practice which calls for the breaking of one law to enforce another.

Zeal to make Chicago and surrounding territory bone dry at any cost, it is said, has led to an increased tendency to get the greatest results possible without too much thought about giving defendants trial by jury, protection from unreasonable search and seizure, and other prerogatives which statesmen used to refer to as constitutional rights.

Cite Contempt Feature.

The contempt of court feature of the injunction clauses of the Volstead act, where the right of trial by jury is absolutely denied, often has been cited as one of the most objectionable legal developments of the Volstead act.

The "smell warrant" technique fits in admirably with some of the possibilities of the injunction clause. It reduces the necessity of a dry agent's investigating.

If commissioners yielded to the scheme, prohibition agents would merely have to make an affidavit that they had "smelled whisky while passing along Main street." Each building on Main street could be placed under suspicion, legal critics say, and each place could be raided.

Of course, they point out, some of the places would have some booze, which would be a glorious victory for somebody's sense of smell.

"The Volstead act is very clear in most of its aspects," Commissioner Glass said. "But many persons charged with its enforcement insist upon violating federal and state laws to gain their ends.

"For example, there is nothing in the Volstead act which permits a prohibition agent to buy and drink liquor. They might be halted from preparing cases if this phase were dealt with too rigidly, but when a prohibition official admits, as happened in a current case, that he bought booze evidence in one place and drank it at a party in another place, one is given an opportunity to see the 'above the law' attitude taken."

Nose Doesn't Always Know.

Commissioner Glass said he would continue to grant search warrants when reasonable grounds for suspicion are shown, but that in the future the sense of smell alone will not afford sufficient grounds for the obtaining of warrants to search and seize.

Representatives of the district attorney's office, in discussing smell warrants, said they practiced reasonable search and seizure and scrutinized each case to determine what was reasonable and what was not.

Dedicate New Oak Park Presbyterian Church Today

Prof. James D. Rankin, D. D., of the Pittsburgh Theological seminary, will make the dedicatory address at the services this morning at the new First United Presbyterian church of Oak Park, Jackson boulevard and Oak Park avenue, erected at a cost of $185,000. Special services will be held throughout the day. Willis McFeely, president of the village, will preside at a fraternal service this afternoon.

TRAIN KILLS LABORER.

Struck yesterday morning at East Thirty-fifth street by an Illinois Central passenger train, Joseph Nealon, 30, 8207 Woodlawn avenue, a laborer, was fatally injured. He died a few hours later at the Mercy hospital.

LIQUID HOLIDAY CHEER LANDED AT 2 POINTS, REPORT

Rum Cargoes Quickly Sold, Papers Say.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Liquor from the Atlantic rum fleet, reported to be shifting its position from the New Jersey coast to a point 12 miles off Ocean City, Md., was believed by newspaper investigators to have been landed at two points along Maryland's ocean and bay coast line last night and early today.

The Baltimore Evening News quoted what is considered reliable information to the effect that a cargo of holiday liquor had been landed during the night on Miller island, 10 miles from the city limits of Baltimore, from a speed boat which slipped around Cape Charles and up the more than 200 mile stretch of Chesapeake bay.

Cargo Quickly Sold.

At Miller island, the Evening News related, representatives of fourteen bootleggers welcomed the rum craft and purchased its cargo in less than an hour, the boat being under way on the return trip to the fleet before dawn.

At a point near Ocean City, the Salisbury, Md., Evening Times said, its investigators had determined that six truckloads of liquor had been landed, apparently destined for Philadelphia.

Truck Fleet Escapes.

A messenger had been sent posthaste after the truck fleet, the Evening Times said, to divert its return route when it was discovered that a prohibition enforcement patrol had been organized along the Maryland coast.

Prohibition agents of the Baltimore unit denied that a successful landing had been made near this city.

GOV. RITCHIE TO BE JACKSON DAY DINNER GUEST

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, militant Democrat mentioned as a possibility for the presidential nomination in 1928, will be the guest of honor and the principal speaker at the Jackson day banquet of the Iroquis club on Jan. 8.

Col. A. A. Sprague, president of the club, will preside and the governor will be introduced by Mayor Dever. The committee on arrangements includes Ross C. Hall, Martin J. O'Brien, Harold F. McCormick, Country Treasurer P. J. Carr, and Edward L. Gorey.

Gov. Ritchie attracted national attention when, at a conference of governors called by the late President Harding, he referred to the methods used in enforcing prohibition as a joke.

WOMAN MEMBER JOINS IN HOUSE FIGHT ON DRY ACT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary T. Norton [Dem., N. J.], one of the three women in congress, will succeed her predecessor in the house as a member of the unofficial congressional committee on modification of the Volstead act, it was announced today by Representative Hill [Rep., Md.], its organizer.

MRS. MARY T. NORTON. [H. & E. Photo.]

The committee will announce its program of legislation as soon as the organization has been perfected, according to Mr. Hill.

Incentive to Honesty.

"I hope," wrote Mrs. Norton in applying for membership, "by adding my name to your list that it will be an incentive to others to act honestly, even though it may not be considered good politics."

"Mrs. Norton places good government above the ordinary considerations of politics," said Mr. Hill, "and her statement is a fearless, honest blow at the evils of the Volstead act, which every one realizes, but so many have not the courage to admit.

"The recent report of the Federal Council of Churches shows that under the Volstead act drinking among young people has increased, respect for law has decreased, and that even in Kansas an alcoholic death rate has developed which did not exist under state prohibition.

Introduced 57 Bills.

"The committee, which existed in the last congress, is rapidly being reorganized and the acceptance of membership in it by Mrs. Norton will help enormously in bringing into this movement many representatives who feel as she does."

During the last congress, the committee mustered sixty members, and as part of its campaign to secure modification, if not repeal, of the Volstead act, 57 identical bills, proposing the legalizing of 2.75 per cent beer as well as the manufacture and sale of light wines, were introduced.

ROY HAYNES DROPPED FROM CONGRESSIONAL DIRECTORY; EX-AID IN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Roy A. Haynes, who still holds the title of prohibition commissioner, although most of his previous duties are now taken care of by his former assistant, James E. Jones, does not appear in the new congressional directory.

ROY A. HAYNES. [P. & A. Photo.]

Hitherto the name of Mr. Haynes has appeared in two places, but in this issue only the name of Mr. Jones as director of prohibition appears. This discovery has caused widespread comment as to whether the administration had deliberately eliminated the commissioner from the directory as a further evidence of his demotion.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews, prohibition czar, has repeatedly stated that Mr. Haynes still holds a responsible position in the enforcing of the dry law, although many of his duties have been delegated to other officials.

Efforts to learn why his name was omitted and to discover who was responsible were fruitless.

Give him the very buckle he, himself, would choose

Into this handsome piece of jewelry we've built the grip that cannot slip · · the famous Giant Grip

HIS taste is your taste when it comes to mere beauty in a buckle. But his taste is every man's taste when it comes to sheer usefulness in that buckle.

Choose for him a buckle with all the beauty you, yourself, prefer. But make sure that underneath that beauty is the grip that men prefer—the famous Giant Grip—the one grip in all buckledom that is built to hold tight at any desired point . . . on any belt . . . always.

And remember, too. Embodied in every buckle that bears this name "Giant Grip" is all the skilled craftsmanship and production-integrity of a firm that has specialized in the manufacture of fine jewelry since 1888.

Unlike ordinary buckles, the back of each Giant Grip is as smooth-surfaced as its front. It has no false edges to indicate weight that isn't there. The weight it looks is the weight it weighs on any jeweler's scales.

Take, for example, the silver front Giant Grip. File into it with an ordinary nail file. Note its clear white metal through and through. Then take any other make of silver front buckle selling for twice the price. File IT!

Every Giant Grip Buckle—silver front, bronze, sterling silver or solid gold—is exactly as represented. And each is sold with a written guarantee of lasting satisfaction.

Giant Grip Buckles are sold everywhere in all the late, smart, popular designs. See them today.

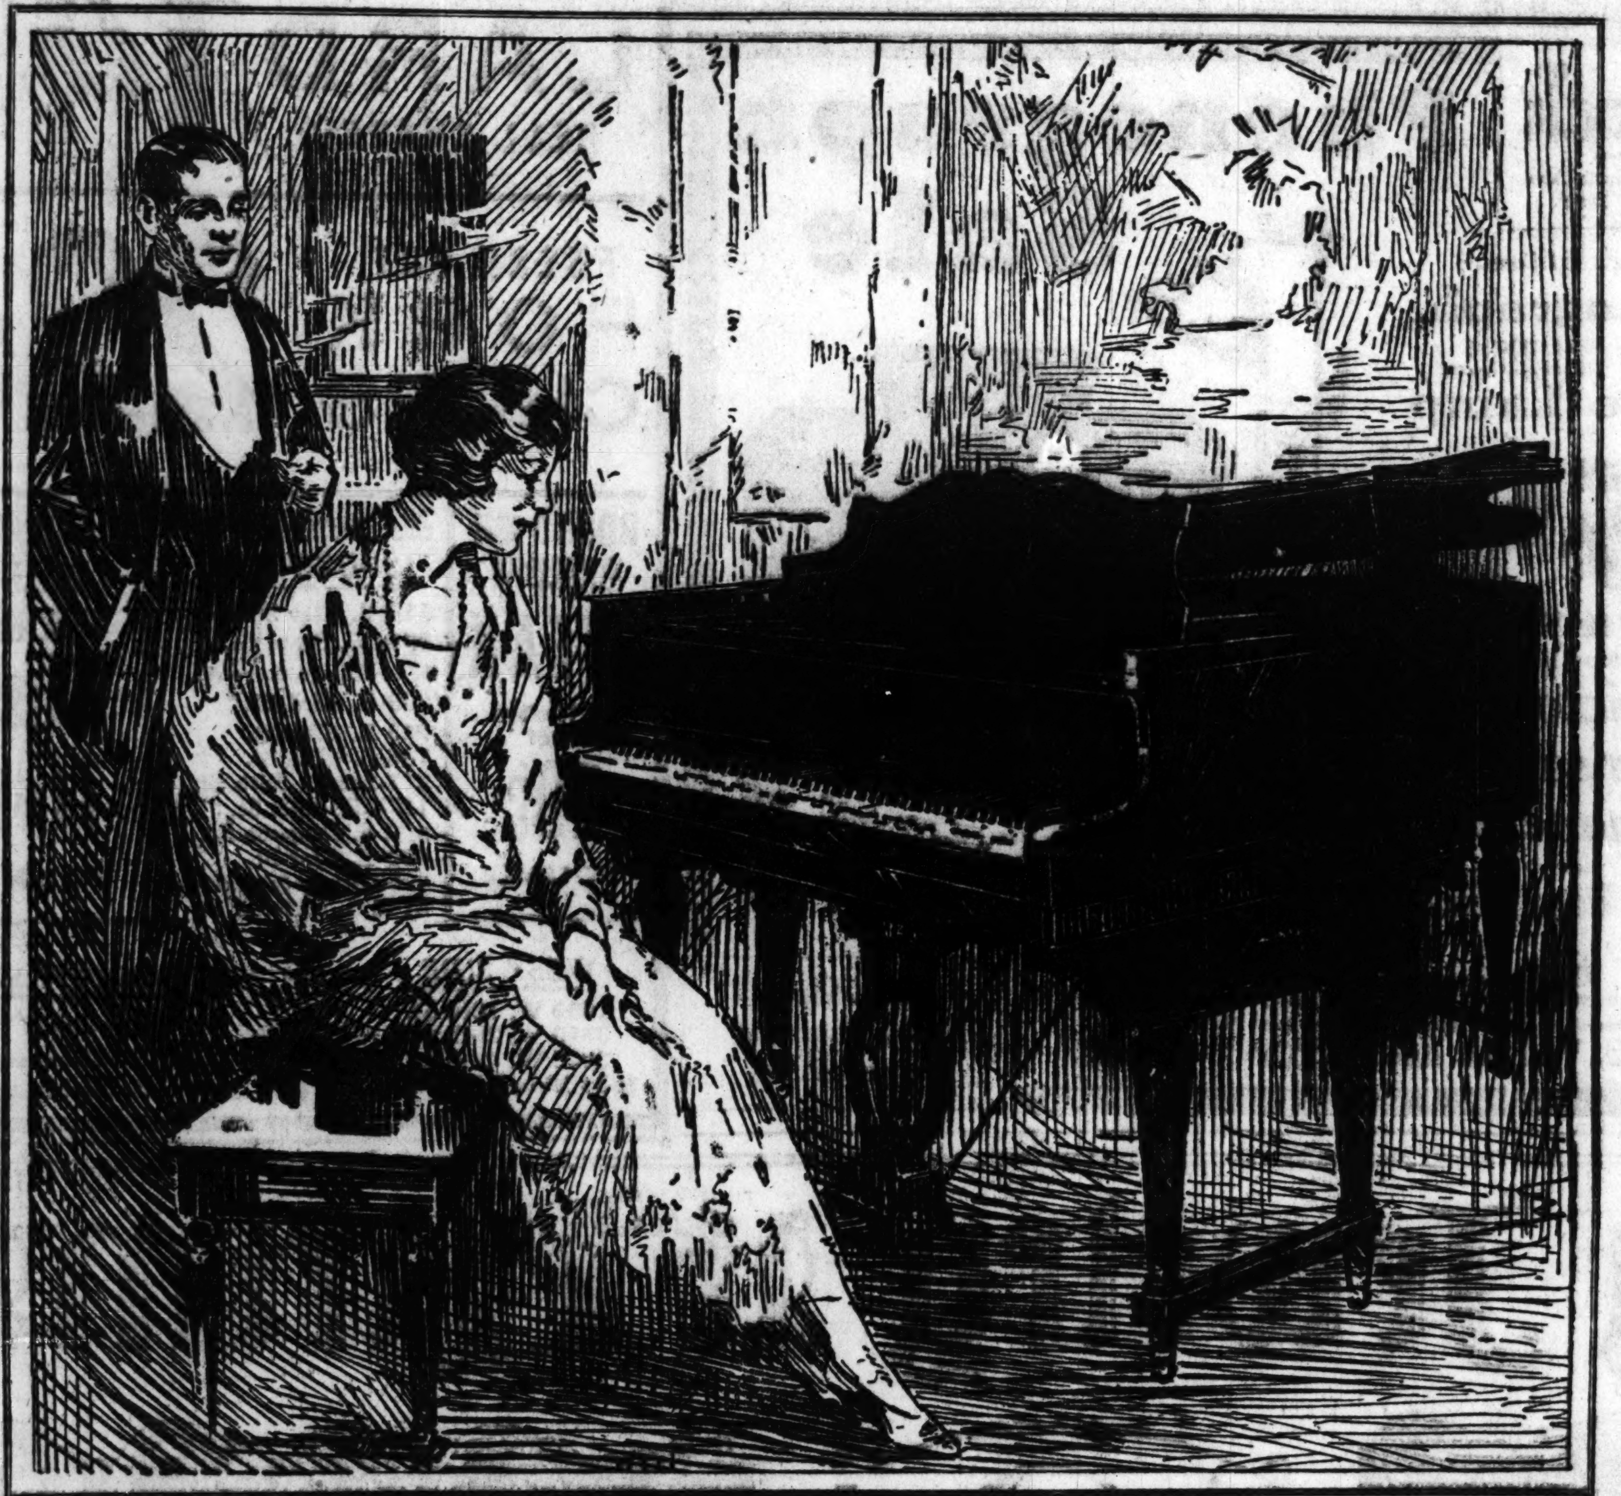
THE GIFT FOR HER



"To have such music as the Duo-Art provides!—the masterpieces of all time actually played by Paderewski, Hoffmann, and scores of the very greatest—nothing to equal the Duo-Art has ever been conceived!"

Nothing else will make her so happy!

A Musical Christmas is A Merry Christmas

MUSIC is always associated with merriment, with happiness, with almost every form of enjoyment or entertainment. From earliest days this has been so. In medieval times the harpist was the central figure of Christmas festivity. Yesterday, the pianist gave his skill to help make Christmas merry. Today the piano itself—the wonderful Duo-Art and its music rolls—furnishes a measure of musical enjoyment beyond the dreams of other times. Happy the homes this Christmas in which this great dispenser of music's choicest treasures is to be found!

DUO-ART Reproducing Piano

LET your Gift this year bring into your home, Music, nature's greatest gift to man. Music, such as this wonderful piano—the Duo-Art—provides, will bring real happiness and lasting benefit to every member of your household.

It will assure a happy and a merry Christmas. It will assure a happier year and happier years to come.

The music that the Duo-Art provides is real music—fine music. It is the music of the best pianists reproduced on and by the piano itself, in the very tones of their original performances. Everything that music is and does comes with the Duo-Art. The classic masterpieces played by world-famous interpreters; the latest dance favorites played by the pianists from leading dance orchestras; the dear familiar old ballads and the popular songs played by those who specialize in music of this type, all come with the Duo-Art.

And, if there are little ones in your home, mother or music-teacher can help to train their appreciation of and love for good music with educational music-rolls which are used and endorsed by the greatest music educators of the world.

It is a wonderful gift—the Duo-Art Piano. And some one of its many models will meet just your requirements.

A Steinway or a Weber Grand in a magnificent Period case, for example. Money cannot purchase a richer or a finer gift. Or a modest-priced Upright Duo-Art, which you can have delivered for a very moderate down payment, and pay the balance in monthly instalments you will hardly feel. These are the two extremes. Between them are many models which give you a very wide choice. But whichever model of the Duo-Art you buy you may know this—the music which they all provide will give your family a lasting happiness beyond any other thing that you could get for them.

LA FOLLETTE MAY FIND DOOR OPEN TO G. O. P. FOLD

Won't Be Held Accountable for Sins of Father.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—After holding a number of conferences to canvass the sentiment of the senate, the Republican committee on committees arranged today to meet on Monday to reach a final decision on the question of recognition of Senator La Follette [Rep. Wis.].

While there still is a sharp controversy over the question, the impression prevailed today that the commission would vote to recognize Senator La Follette as a Republican in the matter of committee assignments. Such a policy would appear to be at variance with that of Republican leaders in the house where the Wisconsin Republicans have been removed from major committees and with the action of Republican senators in reading out of the party four Progressive senators, including the father of the present Senator La Follette, last March.

Will Be Put on Probation.

In reconciling a policy of conciliation with respect to the younger La Follette, it is explained that he is in a different situation than the other Progressives in either the senate or house. This difference lies in the fact that he has been elected as a Republican since the last presidential campaign, and that since his election as a Republican he has taken no steps which clearly place himself outside the party. In case he bolts the party in the future, as did the Progressives in both the senate and house in the 1924 election, senators advocating his present recognition as a Republican say that it would then be appropriate to treat him in much the same manner as the others.

It is expected that all nine members of the Republican committee on committees will be on hand when the committee meets on Monday. At the last meeting of committee eight members were present and a tie vote, four to four, resulted. One or two members have since shown signs of shifting in favor of La Follette's recognition.

Minor Committees Only.

Even if Senator La Follette is recognized as a Republican it is assumed he will not be given any very important committee assignments. The fact that he is considered as a Republican, however, will enable him to get in line for gradual promotion to a place where his seniority will entitle him to recognition. If he is classed as a minority party representative La Follette will simply be given three or four minor committee assignments and will have no precedence over Republicans named on such committees in the future.

While the trend is toward leniency in the case of Senator La Follette, the disposition seems to be the other way with respect to Gerald Nye, La Follette Progressive, who was appointed by Gov. Sorlie of North Dakota to fill the Ladd vacancy in the senate. The senate committee on privileges and elections is quite likely on Monday to report adversely to Mr. Nye, on the ground that the laws of North Dakota did not authorize the governor to make the appointment.

House Assignments Tomorrow.

A subcommittee of the Republican committee on committees of the house held under consideration today the question of committee assignment for the La Follette Republicans of the house. It was made known the assignments would be announced on Monday following another meeting of the committee.

While the Wisconsin Republicans have been removed from the major committee on which they have held places in the past, the purpose is to give every member of the those some sort of a committee assignment. In the past each of ten Wisconsin Republicans has had a place on one of the dozen committees which are considered of major importance. Hereafter their names will appear on such committees as coinage, weights and measures, census, civil service, or even on that well known but entirely unimportant committee designated as the committee on the disposition of useless executive papers.

HARRY A. NEWBY NEW MASTER IN CHANCERY TO JUDGE STEFFEN

HARRY A. NEWBY.

Harry A. Newby, Chicago lawyer, and former assistant attorney general of Illinois, from 1916 to 1920, has been appointed as master in chancery to Judge Walter Steffen of the Superior court.

Mr. Newby, a classmate of Judge Steffen, at the University of Chicago, is the senior member of the law firm of Newby & Murphy, in the Continental and Commercial bank building. For three years Mr. Newby was judge advocate of the American Legion in Illinois.

Bandits Bind Wilson Ave. Jeweler; Take $600 Gems

Entering a jewelry store at 1209 Wilson avenue yesterday morning two Negro bandits held up George J. Stevens, part owner, bound him and escaped with jewelry valued at $600 and $60 in cash. Crowds of passersby saw the bandits leave the store, but the robbery was not discovered until several minutes after they had escaped in a waiting auto. Town hall police took up the search.

CAMPBELL URGES STRICT TEST FOR G. O. P.'S REBELS

Get Formal Stand of the Insurgents, He Says.

W. J. Campbell, chairman of the Republican executive committee of Wisconsin, has a simple solution for the settlement of the Republican row in Washington over the committee assignments and the discipline for Senator Robert M. La Follette and the Progressives of Wisconsin.

He would ask them formally by letter, he said yesterday, whether they now indorse the major policies of the Republican party. If they do, they should be classed as Republicans. If not, he would follow the example of Speaker Longworth and keep them strictly outside the party fold.

"One course in the house and another in the senate spells nothing but future political disaster," he said.

Represents G. O. P.

He has just returned from Washington, where he represented the sentiments of his organization in the conferences. The stamp put in Washington upon Senator La Follette and his colleagues will have a decided reaction in the Wisconsin primary fight next spring. Mr. Campbell said:

"The Republican party has the same right of self-preservation as any other institution. This right is inherent. The test of republicanism is general adherence to the major policies and principles of the party as enunciated in its existing platform.

"Neither does this mean adherence to every dot and dash in that platform, but certainly if the Republican party is to live it must insist that those who repudiate its principles almost in the entirety must be subjected to some test.

"It matters not whether those political principles are sound or unsound; it has the same right of self-determination as to its membership that any other institution has.

Insurgents Bolted.

"Senator La Follette Jr. and the Wisconsin insurgents repudiated the Republican platform of 1924, left the party, and endeavored to encompass its defeat. In the recent special senatorial campaign La Follette Jr. reiterated his opposition to all of the major policies advocated in the existing platform.

"He also stated that, if elected, he should use every endeavor to defeat those policies. The Wisconsin primary election law permits Socialists and Democrats to vote in Republican primaries for nominees.

"Robert M. La Follette Jr. having definitely announced in the fall of 1924 that he had left the Republican party, he should now, if he is to be listed as a Republican, announce that he indorses at least the major policies of the Republican party as enunciated in its existing platform, which was overwhelmingly ratified in the election of 1924. No other test is fair.

"After the overwhelming indorsement given to that platform in the fall of 1924 to now list him as a Republican—without even his request—is to admit that the political principles for which he stands are right and those of the Republican platform wrong. Two bodies cannot occupy the same place at the same time."

ALCOHOL POISON KILLS MAN.

William Matzig, 52, found unconscious in a basement at 328 West North avenue early yesterday, died of alcoholism shortly after being taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital.

N. U. Instructor Arraigned on Charge of Misconduct

Wallace W. Perkins, an instructor in Romance languages at Northwestern university, was arraigned before Police Magistrate Charles G. Franklin of Evanston yesterday on a charge of misconduct.

The case was continued until Dec. 14. Associates of Mr. Perkins said he was on the verge of a nervous breakdown and that he had left for the east.

Sues McClintock Estate on Auto Injury Charge

Administrators of the estate of William Nelson McClintock, the youth for whose death his guardian, William D. Shepherd, was tried and acquitted on a murder charge, were made defendants yesterday in a suit for $15,000 damages. L. W. Foster of Wilmette, a piano salesman, charged he was knocked down on Nov. 4, 1924, by a car driven by young McClintock.

LUNDIN DENIES TRYING TO RULE LINCOLN PARK

He Also Disclaims Asking Any Favors of Small.

Fred Lundin, the silent boss of politics, has expressed himself on Lincoln park affairs in a letter to THE TRIBUNE in which he complains of a story printed Dec. 10, in which it was stated that his plan to take control of the north side board away from the Thompson group had been a failure at the initial meeting of the new appointees controlled by Lundin.

That he has no intention of interfering in Lincoln park affairs and never has asked Gov. Small to make any appointments that would benefit him personally or politically, is the news contained in the letter. President Eugene R. Piks and his group may now breathe more easily.

Text of Lundin Letter.

Mr. Lundin's letter, written from Sunset Farm, Lake Villa, follows:

"The article published in your issue of Thursday, Dec. 10, as per attached copy, in so far as the use of my name or reference to me is concerned, is an absolute misstatement, having no foundation whatsoever in truth or fact.

"It seems to me very unfair for a newspaper to attempt to deceive its readers, especially upon matters with which the taxpaying public is concerned.

"If you are advised of the truth you know that I have never interfered either directly or indirectly in the management of the Lincoln park system, nor have I any intention of doing so.

"You mention David H. Jackson as my personal attorney, when no one knows better than THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE whose personal attorney David H. Jackson is.

"THE TRIBUNE attorney, Weymouth Kirkland, who has THE TRIBUNE editor, Col. Robert R. McCormick, for his law partner, knows for whom David H. Jackson appeared in Judge Wilson's court in a certain libel suit in which THE TRIBUNE was the defendant, and from information as to existing court records I find the same suit still pending, with David H. Jackson still the attorney of record for the complainant in the proceeding.

Denies Asking Small Favors.

"I have never yet asked Gov. Small or any park commissioner or any other public official to perform any act of favoritism to me or to award any contracts or make appointments to any office that would benefit me personally, politically or otherwise, and I never shall.

"I contend that all public offices should be administered intelligently and honestly under the law and I have never stood in any other position. I believe that any persons who are active in politics who do not place the public welfare far above any other interest are detriments to the public weal.

"Your newspaper has used my name so freely in writing of the Lincoln park system that I don't feel that I am asking too much in requesting that this statement be printed by you in a position equally as prominent as that given to the article of Dec. 10.

"Respectfully yours,

"[Signed] F. LUNDIN."

Mr. Lundin has made at least one misstatement in his letter, Attorney Weymouth Kirkland said.

"Col. McCormick retired from this law firm Nov. 1, 1920," he said. "Under the arrangement made then he was given the right to reënter the firm at the expiration of five years. That five years has elapsed and Col. McCormick has not exercised this right. The firm is now Kirkland, Patterson & Fleming."

Attorney Jackson represented former Mayor William Hale Thompson in the famous million dollar libel suit brought by Mr. Thompson, which reached a mistrial before Judge Wilson due to the illness of one of the jurors and which has never been pressed for trial since.

Mr. Jackson and Mr. Lundin are close personal friends and Mr. Lundin is often in Mr. Jackson's offices. It is said that he has a room in the suite.

TORONTO CHURCH MERGER LEADER VISITS CHICAGO

An enthusiast over the success of the merger of the Methodist, Presbyterian, and Congregational churches into the United Church of Canada is the way Dr. C. G. Pidgeon of Toronto described himself yesterday in an interview in Chicago.

Dr. Pidgeon is a former Presbyterian moderator of the United Church. He passed through Chicago yesterday on his way to Toronto after having visited the church federations in St. Louis and Kansas City.

"In general I can say the union of the former three denominations is more complete, more hearty and more far reaching in its effects than the most sanguine of any of us before the merger believed possible," he said.

PUSH SEAL SALE TO REDUCE TOLL OF WHITE PLAGUE

One hundred thousand people in the United States will sit down to Christmas dinner this year who would be in their graves if the death rate from tuberculosis of a dozen years ago was prevalent today.

"In effect," Mrs. Theodore Sachs, superintendent of the Chicago Tuberculosis institue, said yesterday, "the reduction in the death rate has saved the lives of about 1,200,000 people in the last twelve years, due to the incessant war on the white plague.

"That fight was made possible to a large extent by the sale of Christmas seals. The battle is far from won, and the number of Christmas seals Chicago buys this year will indicate just how much tuberculosis Chicagoans will permit to exist here."

Booths for the sale of the stickers will be opened today at the American Express company and the Randolph Street station of the Illinois Central. Others will be opened this week at the Van Buren station ,the Aurora and Elgin station, the Wilson Avenue station of the North Shore, and the county building.

$25,000 Fire Damage to Boulevard Masonic Bldg.

Fire last night damaged about $25,000 the Boulevard Masonic building, 5511 South Halsted street. The fire is believed to have originated from crossed wires, according to Assistant Fire Marshal Patrick Egan.

$15.00 Down—$3.25 a Week

Other Diamonds in the latest style white gold and platinum mountings, from $25 to $2,500; terms as low as $1 down, $1 a week.

FOR many years diamonds have been cut by a certain geometrical formula accepted as the best to secure the most brilliancy without detracting from their scintillation and with the least waste of the rough stone. If a diamond is cut too thick it loses brilliancy and surface size; and if too shallow it loses even more brilliancy, though surface size is gained by sacrificing that brilliancy. A happy medium method was therefore followed as a standard to get the best and the most out of the rough stone.

ON Dignified CREDIT

At Actual Cash Prices

BUT now comes one of the oldest and biggest and most reliable diamond-cutting establishments and proves that the so-called "best method" was not the "best" after all. By dint of scientific application, covering many years, they discovered a new and better way of cutting diamonds, now called "the super-cut method." By virtue of this entirely new and successful method they secure 25% more surface size from the same material and the same weight stone; retaining the same amount of brilliancy and scintillation. Moreover the production cost is no greater and therefore the retail selling price is the same as a diamond cut in the old way.

DIAMONDS WATCHES JEWELRY ON CREDIT at Cash Prices

We are pleased to give you a convincing demonstration! We will lay the old style and a "super-cut" diamond side by side; weigh them before your eyes and then let you judge which is the better. You will choose the "super-cut" every time.

Isn't that the most interesting and best news you have heard of for many a day? Remember, as yet, the output is very limited, and in Chicago, only one or two of the largest jewelers have these "super-cut" diamonds and then only in small quantities compared to the large stock we have on hand. Better get yours without delay.

We are the only CREDIT JEWELERS in Chicago who have "super-cut" diamonds.

"SUPER-CUT" DIAMONDS ARE MADE IN THIS COUNTRY and the prices start at $150.

Smaller diamonds are all cut in Europe, but the latter also vary in "make," and we always buy the best spread stones we can get.

Of course, these smaller sizes are not "super-cut," but they are much better spread than the average, and we call these smaller-size diamonds:

Arouse the house Christmas with Music on the Gulbransen

The only piano played equally well by roll or by hand—by untrained persons or by musicians

More than 125,000 now in American homes

THE biggest surprise you can give your family Christmas is the Gulbransen Registering Piano—a Gift they'll all share and enjoy for a lifetime. A Gift that will hold the home together—for family life centers around this beautiful instrument. No sooner is supper over than friends drop in and social gaiety starts.

Moreover, the money now spent on outside amusements would soon pay for this remarkable creation. For any Gulbransen dealer will deliver any model—Grand or Upright—on suitable terms, with proper allowance for your old piano, if you have one.

No one who has ever played the Gulbransen Registering Piano will ever confuse it with a player piano. For you play—not "mechanical" music—but human music, just like playing by hand but far more easily.

It is Personal Touch that makes hand playing human. The absence of Personal Touch makes music sound mechanical. And the Gulbransen Registering Piano is the only instrument in the world that you can play by roll with the Personal Touch, the Personal Time, and the Personal Tone Volume that you yourself impart to it.

Strange as it seems, this requires no musical training. You learn how to do it by playing four demonstration rolls.

You learn how to play a piano solo, correctly, accenting the melody.

How to play accompaniments as pianists play them—the introduction, first lively, then slowly as you near the words—how to pause for the singer—how to play the accompaniment notes alone, usually in the bass or lower register, subduing the melody notes so the voice that sings them can prevail.

How to play dance music in perfect time and rhythm.

How to sustain harmony notes. Indeed, how to play without touching the keys, so expressively, so inspiringly, so humanly, it defies the ears of experts to tell your music from music played by hand.

And this on a piano, which, says Florence Macbeth, the lovely coloratura of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, "is one of the most beautifully toned instruments I have ever heard played."

National Prices—Suitable Terms

Gulbransen pianos are sold at the same cash price, freight prepaid, throughout the United States. For your protection, we stamp this price on the back, where you can read it. And Gulbransen dealers are prepared to deliver any model, Grand or Upright, for a small cash payment—balance to suit the purchaser. A reasonable allowance will be made for your present piano, if you own one.

Four Upright Models—Community, $450; Suburban, $530; Country Seat, $615; White House, $700; Gulbransen Grand, $785; Gulbransen Registering Grand, $1275.

The Nat'l Association of Piano Tuners recommends that all pianos be tuned twice a year. Your Gulbransen deserves this care

MITCHELL TRIAL ENDS THIS WEEK; EVERY ONE HAPPY

Anti-Aircraft Statement Hit by Gen. Williams.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Lawyers promised judges in the Mitchell court martial this afternoon that the trial would end with the end of the coming week.

The promise made the ten judges almost like the eight lawyers.

If the promise is kept this court martial, which nobody dreamed last October would take more than a week, will have run more than eight weeks.

Even Col. Mitchell, who loves agitation and suffers not the violet's pangs when he seems his name in the public prints, is content to quit. He has done all his stuff and the testimony offered in rebuttal he declines to take seriously except when a government witness—in qualifying a statement—utters views that sustain some favorite view of the colonel's. But this modified, qualified endorsement of his utterances does not especially rejoice Mitchell. He likes a slam-bang, spacious sentence, like "this is enough to make a soldier ashamed of the cloth he wears." Anything less direct he is inclined to set down as "evasive."

Calls Rebuttal "Lies."

Most of the rebuttal testimony—and there have been volumes of it—he describes either as "trivial," or as "lies." The latter word is popular with him and he broadcasts it with a readiness that causes old soldiers to shudder.

As the trial draws to a close it is possible to report why the judges have allowed the record to be stuffed with an enormous mass of testimony that a civil court would not have permitted. Their state of mind words itself thus:

"Let us hear evidence on every phase and aspect of this officer's contentions that we may discover—if it is to be discovered—what conditions in the air service as observed by him so inflamed his mind and drove him to action so irregular and language so vehement as were his action and language of last September."

Nor is it outside the bounds of legitimate speculation to add that, although the judges have not found that all is well with the air service, the evidence has not convinced them that it is in so dire a state as to warrant the colonel's application of "criminal negligence" and "almost treasonable" to the war department's administration of it.

Star Witnesses to Be Heard.

Star witnesses remain to be heard. The foremost of them is Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, who was commander of the Hawaiian department in 1923, when Col.—then Gen.—Mitchell made his celebrated inspection of the defences of the islands in their relation to protection by aircraft.

It was Gen. Summerall, too, whom Mitchell's counsel challenged off the court on the first day it sat, on the grounds of prejudice.

The second luminary, who will take the stand on Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning, is Brig. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, assistant chief of the general staff, at whose views Col. Mitchell has persistently jibed in print and out, officially and unofficially.

Williams a Main Witness.

Today's premier witness was Maj. Gen. C. C. Williams, chief of ordnance, U. S. A. He went the Germans 5 per cent better in his estimate of the efficacy of anti-aircraft guns. The German figures show that 15 per cent of the allied planes and balloons which the central powers wrecked in 1917 and 1918 were wrecked by anti-aircraft fire. But Gen. Williams today said this:

"Twenty per cent of all allied airplanes brought down during the war were brought down by anti-aircraft fire. It is a good means of protection."

Col. Mitchell says that "less than 1 per cent were so brought down."

SAKLATVALA STARTS A NEW WAR OF PROTEST ON EXCLUSION BY U. S.

S. SAKLATVALA.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Still smarting over the ban against his entry into the United States as a member of the British delegation to the congress of the Interparliamentary union, Shapurji Saklatvala, the Parsee communist member of the house of commons, has started a new campaign of protest against the action of the American government.

Backed by certain members of the British delegation, he has written the secretary of the Interparliamentary union contesting the legality of the American action.

In his letter Mr. Saklatvala argues that it is in the interest of that body to protect itself against the setting up of "a dangerous and undesirable precedent." He asserts that the United States government invited the union to meet in America, and that it was not at liberty to place a last minute ban on a British member of parliament and a bona fide member of the union.

He says Secretary of State Kellogg's reference to his speech in the house of commons was an undesirable form of foreign interference with the affairs of the national parliament.

KILLED BY GRAVEL CAVEIN.

Logansport, Ind., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—William P. Hils, 47, was killed today when he was caught in a gravel pit cavein on his farm near here. His body was recovered two hours later.

HIGH-UPS KIDDED BY EXPERTS AT GRIDIRON DINNER

Coolidge and Dawes Draw Humorous Shafts.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—In the presence of President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes, Speaker Longworth, diplomats, all ten members of the cabinet, and a host of other notable men the Gridiron club, at its winter dinner tonight, parodied outstanding national and international questions and made merry at the expense and foibles of its guests, from the President down. The Gridiron club is made up of Washington newspaper correspondents.

A club member impersonating Vice President Dawes in "The Great Cloture Scene from Macbeth" likened him to Shakespeare's Scottish king, with the counterfeit Dawes declaring that once he was "free and roamed through proud Chicago," but now is "cabined, cribbed, confined and bound in" by "saucy rules and fiendish precedents."

Song About Dawes.

Those senators who opposed his revision of the senate rules "would squeak and gibber in their leathern seats" before he was done breaking the present rules "with admired disorder." There was a song, too, to the Vice President, which served as an introduction to the speech he made. To the air of "All Alone," he was warned that "all alone, on the senate throne," trying to reform the rules:

"Pretty soon he'll know he had no show;
We told you so, Charley Dawes."

A skit with an alleged historical setting served to make sly digs at President Coolidge under cover of his Massachusetts predecessor of 100 years ago, John Quincy Adams. This sought to depict a traditional incident in which Anne Royal, publisher of a spicy Washington sheet, was represented as having commandeered President Adams' clothing while he was bathing in the Potomac and refused to go away and let him come out of the chilly water until he had given her the interview which she had previously vainly sought with him.

The Dry White House.

The opportunity was afforded through this bit of acting to poke fun at the present practice of newspaper interviews with the President. All the questions asked of the counterfeit Adams were present day applications of matters of a century ago. When Mr. Adams said he bathed in the river because the White House was dry the enterprising lady news writer made a note that "no water is used in the White House," which brought a protest from the hampered President on the ground that it would bring the governor of Pennsylvania down on him.

Exasperated over the course of his interviewer, President Adams uttered the fervent wish that Vice President Calhoun was in his place, whereupon Mistress Royal wrote down: "Wants Vice President to succeed him."

The vehement "No, no, no," of the Massachusetts President was obviously meant to apply to Vice President Dawes.

Hit Mitchell and Borah.

Four club members dressed as marionettes, with cords tied to them, gave information as to how the political strings are pulled in Washington. In a discussion as to what a ventriloquist was, it was brought out that Col. William Mitchell was not a ventriloquist, because he could not control his voice, and that Senator Borah was a ventriloquist, because he could speak with many voices and make himself say anything he wanted to say.

Clifford K. Berryman, cartoonist of the Washington Evening Star, was elected president of the club for the coming year. Ashmun N. Brown of the Providence Journal was elected vice president; J. Harry Cunningham, secretary, and Harry J. Brown of the Salt Lake Tribune, treasurer.

Youth Turns In 13 False Fire Alarms; Sent to Jail

A penchant for watching the fire trucks go by has resulted disastrously for William Bohnlifink, 18 years old, of 1815 West 34th place. Yesterday he was found guilty of turning in thirteen false alarms in two days and sentenced to six months in the Bridewell. Bohnlifink had been arrested by firemen of the 21st battalion, who tired of chasing out to fake fires, and played detective for a change.

EAU CLAIRE EX-ALDERMAN DIES.

Eau Claire, Wis., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Former Alderman Martin Severson 66, dropped dead today. Severson had served the longest consecutive term as a member of the old common council here—15 years.

MINORITY CHIEF APPROVES G. O. P. BILL TO CUT TAX

Chindblom Urges Payment of Debts in 25 Years.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—General debate on the tax bill in the house was concluded today. Reading of the bill, section by section, for amendments, will commence on Monday.

FINIS J. GARRETT.
[H. & E. Photo.]

Among those speaking for the bill today was Representative Garrett [Dem., Tenn.], the minority leader of the house. Mr Garrett gave his approval in a general way to the nonpartisan bill as reported from the ways and means committee. He indicated his accord with the program of the Republican leaders for the passage of the bill before the end of next week.

Objects to Life Tenures.

That Mr. Garrett intends to vote for some of the amendments which may be offered was made known by him. He discussed particularly the provision for life tenure of office of members of the board of tax appeals. He said that he regarded this as unwise, and that, if he had his way, he would do away with life tenure for judges of federal courts.

Representative Chindblom [Rep., Ill.], a member of the ways and means committee, defended the bill generally but informed the house that he would have preferred to have kept the exemptions down to the level of the present law. He opposed any further increase as proposed by a group which advocates exemption of all persons with incomes of less than $5,000. In the matter of exemptions, Mr. Chindblom said his views were similar to those of President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon.

Mr. Chindblom approved the Mellon theory of retiring the public debt within the next 25 or 35 years. He opposed the suggestion that the payment be extended over a period of 62 years.

Representative Connally [Dem., Tex.] dealt severely with the representatives of legislatures of Texas and other states who are here to obtain the repeal of the federal estate tax. He declared their purpose was "to bulldoze Bill Green, chairman of the ways and means committee, and John Garner, ranking Democrat," but that they had failed in their attempts.

Berger Calls Bill "Red."

Harmony between Republican and Democratic members of the house ways and means committee has resulted in a revenue measure so bolshevistic in its effects that it would command the votes of Trotzky and Zinoviev if they were members of congress, declared Representative Victor Berger [Soc., Wis.] in an attack on the tax bill.

Mr. Berger paid his respects to the Republican majority in congress which has stripped the Wisconsin delegation in the house memberships on important committees and has not decided what minor committees they will be assigned to.

"The pending revenue bill is in some respects really a bolshevik measure," he said, "and if Trotzky and Zinoviev were members of this house, they probably would vote for it, because the method of taxation it proposes must hasten the concentration of wealth, and that must bring about the downfall of the present economic system.

"This bill has been framed with uncanny wisdom and a great deal of foresight—and also hindsight. It cuts down the income tax of the richest of the rich, about 3,000 in number, about $100,000,000 a year. This will help big business, and thus it will incidentally help the campaign funds of both old parties. As a matter of fact forty-two men get just as much reduction as 2,300,000 small taxpayers do."

KIDNAP PAPER FIRM OFFICIAL; SEIZE PAY ROLL

Leo J. Flynn, credit manager for the Douglas Wray Paper company, 340 West Harrison street, was kidnaped by three handits and robbed of $850, the firm's pay roll, which he was taking to a loop bank at noon yesterday.

The bandits accosted Flynn in front of the offices of the paper company, according to the Des Plaines street police, forced him into a car, blindfolded him, took the money and threw him out of the car in an alley at 715 West 16th street.

The Maxwell street police and two squads from the detective bureau searched the neighborhood but found no trace of the bandits. One was described as about 35 years old, well dressed and wearing amber tinted shell rimmed glasses. The others were both well dressed. The car was said to be a black seven passenger sedan.

CONGRESS URGED TO WIDEN SCOPE OF CIVIL SERVICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Passage of legislation which places prohibition agents, internal revenue agents, and all postmasters on the civil service was advocated today by the United States civil service commission in its annual report to the President.

"The merit system has demonstrated its necessity and usefulness during four decades of practical operation in nation, state, and city and we urge its extension to apply to the selection, tenure, pay, and promotion of all political employés," says the commission in its report.

Would Affect Postmasters.

"The next step in the removal of postmasters from patronage should be the passage of one of the many bills introduced in congress for the purpose of placing all postmasters within the classified service and abolishing the four years' terms and senatorial confirmation.

"Only on that condition can those offices be taken out of politics and become in fact, as they are in legal purpose, mere business agencies of the government. These positions would be more generally open to promotion to the end that the federal service may become a worthy career to aspiring youth.

"We recommend that there be restored to the competitive classified service the positions of deputy collector of internal revenue and of deputy marshal. Only an efficient, honest, and experienced force can execute the internal revenue laws in such a way as to prevent evasions and violations which result in loss of much revenue. Only the merit system will assure such a force."

Examine 216,135 Applicants.

The number of persons examined by the commission during the year ended June 30, 1925, was 216,135. Of this number 55,150 were appointed.

The total number of appointments during the year to positions in the classified service was 48,804. Of these appointments 11,404, or 23.3 per cent, went to persons given benefits under veterans' preference acts.

Up to June 30, 1925, approximately 370,000 claims for preference in appointment to classified positions were allowed, under the veteran preference act. Of the 370,000 veterans who applied for examination, more than 91,000 have received appointments.

COLLINS AWARDS BOY PRIZE FOR TRAFFIC ESSAY

Carl Kaplan, 14 years old, 843 North Lawndale avenue, was awarded a silver loving cup yesterday by Chief of Police Morgan Collins for the best essay on "How to Relieve Traffic Congestion in the Loop."

Four other boys were given $5 gold pieces. They were Israel Perlin, 14 years old, 2023 Potomac avenue; Robert Springer, 13 years old, 7447 Colfax avenue; Louis Glassner, 14 years old, 6147 Vernon avenue, and Robert Broghil, 14 years old, 4742 Linder avenue.

All of the youths participating in the contest were Boy Scouts. The contest was sponsored by the Yellow Drive-It-Yourself System, Inc.

SEEKS MISSING SPANISH WAR VET.

Relatives have asked the police to search for John B. Howlin, 50, a Spanish war veteran missing from his home at 3116 Avondale avenue, since Dec. 6. He is 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 185 pounds. When last seen he was wearing a blue suit, and a dark overcoat. A deep scar is in the middle of his forehead.

BINDER ORDERED TO PAY BRAUDE $15,000 BALM

The price of a lost husband or wife has apparently been set at $15,000 by Cook county juries asked to settle alienation of affection suits.

Harry H. Binder, 3311 Beach avenue, was ordered yesterday to pay Leon Braude, 3129 North Clark street, real estate dealer, $15,000 for alienating his wife's affections. The jury before Circuit Judge John A. Swanson had listened four days to evidence that Binder had stolen Mrs. Ida Baude from her husband.

On Friday, another jury had awarded Mrs. Rose Greenstein $15,000, deciding that her husband, Jack, had lost his love for her because of the plotting of his mother.

DYING FROM AUTO TANK BLAST.

Logansport, Ind., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Ray Shaffer, 35, used a lantern to inspect the gasoline tank of his automobile at his home near here today. Physicians expect death momentarily as the result of injuries he received in the explosion that followed.

FARM BUREAU'S POLICY OUTLINED BY NEW CHIEF

Thompson Not Unfriendly to CoolidgeA He Says.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

S. H. Thompson, newly elected president of the American Farm Bureau federation, in a statement sent to THE TRIBUNE yesterday from his home in Quincy, Ill., said: "The problem of the new administration of the federation will be determined by the resolutions of the recent Chicago convention and carried out by the concurrent action of the board of directors and myself. Sound business practices will necessitate the recognition of continuity of service and continuation of the major activities which the organization has been engaged in."

Mr. Thompson, who is now president of the Illinois Agricultural association and head of the Broadway bank in Quincy, continuing his statement, said:

"The biggest opposition that agriculture has been confronting has been due to a lack of sympathy from other interests which should lend us a hand. Our problem is a common one to all people."

Can Solve Surplus Problem.

He agrees with the view that if congress disapproves of the farmers' own remedies it must come forward with something constructive to take their place.

"The problem of the surplus, which is our principle one, is a problem that can be solved by the brains of America if we will but adopt the right attitude towards it," he said. "It has practical obstacles in it which must be overcome, but American brains can meet practical difficulties."

Attitude on Coolidge.

Mr. Thompson's attitude toward President Coolidge and what he had to say in his address before the farmers here last Monday is made clear in this part of his statement:

"I am not unfriendly to President Coolidge—in fact, I agree with what he said before the American Farm Bureau convention, especially as regards coöperative marketing. He referred to this, but failed to recognize adequately our paramount problem, that of disposing of the normal surplus, which, because it is sold in the world markets at world prices, in competition with the very cheapest standards of living, sets the price on the entire American demand. In taking up the surplus problem President Coolidge, consciously or unconsciously, assumed the responsibility of dealing with it."

Outlines Present Situation.

Concerning agriculture's present situation, Mr. Thompson said:

"I think that such improvements as have taken place in the relative prices of wheat and of hogs have been due to abnormal conditions of production rather than to any correction of the fundamental underlying maladjustment. In 1924 we profited from a worldwide shortage of wheat, due to misfortune abroad. This year we have been placed on a domestic basis with our wheat, because of the partial failure of the winter wheat crop of this country. Hogs are high because we have comparatively few hogs to sell, owing to the short corn crop last year and the unprofitable prices for hogs that have ruled since 1921, while corn this year, of which we have a good crop, is selling today at less than cost to grow it.

Cites U. S. Report.

"In the 1925 report released Monday, the secretary of agriculture says much remains to be done to put agriculture on a profitable basis, and that the purchasing power of farm products in October was still 13 per cent below its pre-war level. Agricultural conditions of the last five years have resulted in a decline of the capital value of agricultural investment of twenty billion dollars.

"Even after writing this off as lost, agriculture is not in a position of parity with normal crops at home and abroad. I can see no reason why the price relationship in the future may not slump further to the disadvantage of these crops that normally are produced in excess of the amount which the domestic market can absorb at a fair value."

CANADIAN BEER POOR STUFF, SAYS NATIVE SAVANT

Dr. Robert Bruce Taylor, principal of Queen's university, Kingston, Canada, yesterday advised Americans not to go to Ontario for beer.

"They're making mighty poor stuff over there," he remarked.

"The problem of smoking and drinking has never come up at Queens," said the principal in speaking of student problems. "I have never seen a girl there smoke.

"I don't know that I would stop her if I did, for, after all, it is her own affair, and largely a question of personal taste."

"Such conditions" he continued, "as I read about in American magazines and newspapers, appear to me highly colored and exaggerated, and not a true picture of the life of modern young men and women. To me their frankness and lack of prudery is delightful. They are healthier and happier than they have ever been."

ADDRESS F I 68, TRIBUNE

MOORS' ENVOY TO PUT PEACE TERMS BEFORE FRANCE, SPAIN, REPORT

ABD-EL KRIM.
[P. & A. Photo.]

PARIS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Le Matin says today that Capt. Gordon Cumming, Abd-el Krim's representativee in London, who arrived at Tangier recently, presumably from a conference with the Riffian chieftain, is believed to be already on his way to Madrid and Paris and that he has full powers to negotiate peace with Spain and France for Abd-el Krim.

Le Matin says that he will propose the following conditions:

Administrative autonomy for the Riff along the lines of the governments of the British dominions; recognition by the Riffs of the spiritual sovereignty of the sultan of Morocco; the right of the Riffs to maintain an army; freedom to conduct commerce on the principle of the open door; the title of emir for Abd-el Krim; Tetuan, now capital of the Spanish protectorate, to be the capital of the autonomous Riff state; recognition of Spanish control over Melilla, Ceuta and Tl Araish; with ten to fifteen miles of hinterland for each of these cities; a commission to be nominated to define clearly the frontier between the Riff and the French protectorate in Morocco.

CAPT. JOHN F. GLENN, 90, DIES.

Hillsboro, Ill., Dec. 12.—Capt. John F. Glenn, 90, a civil war veteran, died at his home here today. He was a prominent figure in Republican politics for more than sixty years.

SUSPEND THREE BAILIFFS OVER FORGED ORDER

Three bailiffs in the court of Judge Marcus Kavanagh were temporarily suspended yesterday by Charles A. Mugler, head of the Criminal court sheriff's office. The suspensions are the result of an investigation being made into an alleged forged court order which resulted in one lawyer taking away a client from another.

Peter Schlentz, personal bailiff of the judge; John Eschenbach, court bailiff in charge, and Walter Lovejoy, colored, are the men under suspension. Lovejoy contends that he had authority from Schlentz and Eschenbach to bring the prisoner from the jail, but this they emphatically deny.

Willis Cotton, colored, is waiting trial on a charge of murder. Harold M. Tyler was his lawyer, but later A. L. Williams was employed. Under the jail rules only the attorney of record can see a prisoner. Last Thursday the forged order calling for Cotton's appearance in court was sent to the jail and Cotton was brought to the courtroom, where Tyler interviewed him and attempted to be again employed as the lawyer, it is charged.

Cardinal Today Dedicates New St. Anselm's Church

Impressive ceremonies will mark dedication this morning of the new St. Anselm's church, 61st street and South Michigan avenue, by Cardinal Mundelein, preceding the pontifical high mass at 11 o'clock. The cardinal will be assisted by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. P. W. Dunne, D. D., and Mgrs. P. J. McDonnell, J. F. Ryan, and B. J. Sheil. The Rt. Rev. Christopher E. Byrne, D. D., bishop of Galveston, Tex., a close friend of the Rev. M. S. Gilmartin, pastor of St. Anselm's, will pontificate. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. James O. O'Neill, D. D., of Highland Park, Ill.

November 27th, 1925.

Mr. G. Charter Harrison,
French Battery Company,
Madison, Wis.

Dear Mr. Harrison:

Seeking the best that the market provided in a dry battery—one giving the most uniform and level voltage, combined with low internal resistance and greatest life—I have come to use the French Battery Company's products because they most nearly approach my standard of requirements.

I am using practically every type you manufacture in some phase of my laboratory and research work and in connection with my Phonofilm or talking motion picture amplifier and in radio reception experiments with the Audalion (my latest invention, incidentally), a new type and theory of loud speaker.

Sincerely,

Lee de Forest

Lee de Forest: DCL

LEE DE FOREST
Ph. D. (Yale), D. Sc. (Syracuse)
President, Franklin Institute Wireless Association of America; Fellow of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; Member Institute of Radio Engineers; Awarded Cross of Legion of Honor

Dr. de Forest is the father of radio broadcasting. He was the first to broadcast music and opera. All radio broadcasting apparatus is built upon his audion inventions. The audion—detector, oscillator and amplifier—made possible the trans-continental telephone service, both by wire and wireless; and the audion or three-electrode vacuum tube made the universal use of radio practical. In 1925 Dr. de Forest had taken out over 160 U. S. and foreign patents on radio, telegraphy and telephony. Since 1919 he has been engaged in perfecting the phonofilm or talking motion pictures—photographing sound waves directly on motion picture film. The voice-reproduction device of this instrument is shown in the photograph. Dr. de Forest is President of De Forest Phonofilms, Inc., New York City.

There are Ray-O-Vac dealers in every community. They also handle Ray-O-Lite flashlights and flashlight batteries (ideal Christmas gifts). If the stores where you ordinarily buy do not have Ray-O-Vac radio batteries, write or telephone us for the name of the nearest dealer or jobber who can supply you.

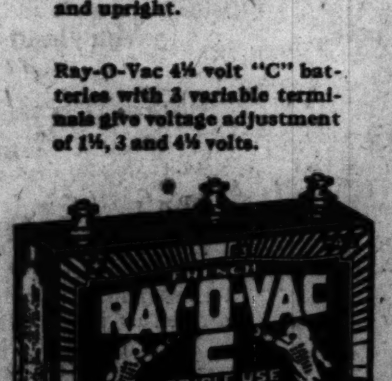
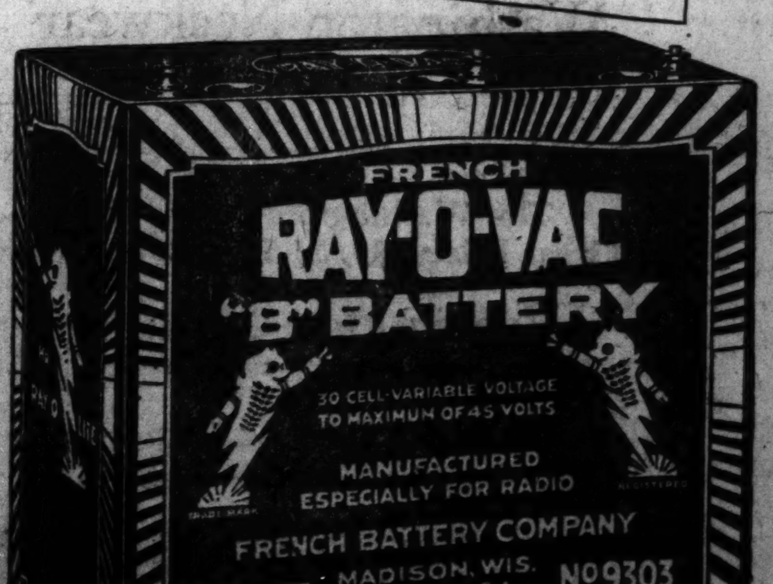
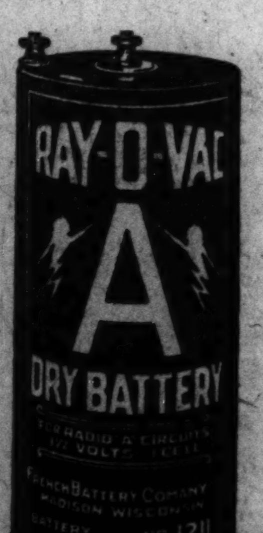
Ray-O-Vac "B" batteries in all standard sizes, both flat and upright.

Ray-O-Vac 4½ volt "C" batteries with 3 variable terminals give voltage adjustment of 1½, 3 and 4½ volts.







Ray-O-Vac "A" batteries recuperate during rest periods, lasting longer and giving excellent reception.

MEMORIAL FOR ROOSEVELT TO GRACE POTOMAC

Plans for Fountain Are Submitted to Congress.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Between curving colonnades set from east to west on an island of white granite to be constructed in the tidal basin of the Potomac river directly southward from the White House will arise a living shaft of water 200 feet in height, an "Old Faithful" among fountains, if the design for the proposed Roosevelt memorial submitted today to congress is approved and accepted by that body.

From the base of the fountain symbolical ships will carry the message of Roosevelt's life to the four points of the compass.

This is the design of John Russell Pope which was accepted by the Roosevelt Memorial association last October for submission to congress pursuant to the joint resolution approved by President Coolidge last Feb. 12.

From the south portico of the White House the vista looking southward will be one of pure beauty. The curving colonnades reflected in the water which separates them from the center of the island will offer no obstruction to a clear view across the river to Virginia, in the foreground of which will rise the column of water, flashing in the sunlight and faintly visible in the cloudy dusk.

Joins South to North.

"Roosevelt was a son of the south as well as the north, and his memorial has been designed to be in a sense a gateway between the two sections," said James R. Garfield, president of the Memorial association.

"The memorial therefore commemorates not Roosevelt only but also that final closing of the breach between the sections when the son of a northern father and a southern mother became president of a 'more perfect union.'

"But that living column rising out of the Potomac waters has a wider and more profound significance. Roosevelt's spirit sprang out of the deep sources of the nation's history and sank back into them, only to rise anew, cleansing the air and inspiring his countrymen with its power, its sparkle.

Recalls American's Ideals.

It is to Roosevelt, the American, exemplar of patriotic devotion, that this design is dedicated, not to exalt an individual, but to recall the basic American principles which that individual upheld and defended."

Nowhere on or about the memorial will appear the statue, bas-relief, or even the name of Roosevelt. It is possible, but by no means certain, that brief quotations from his best known speeches and addresses may be used, but even this is not contemplated by the design.

According to the plan, the island from which the fountain will rise is 280 feet in diameter, the basin 600 feet; from the center of one colonnade to the center of the other is 800 feet; the colonnades themselves are each 670 feet long and 60 feet high. The column of water is to be forced upward by a modern automatic electrical power pump.

Balances Park Scheme.

It is explained by officers of the Roosevelt association that the memorial will not dwarf, but on the contrary will harmonize with and supplement, the Lincoln memorial and the Washington monument, being smaller than the one and some 300 feet less in height than the other and balancing the White House in the park scheme.

The only problem presented in carrying out the design is one of engineering.

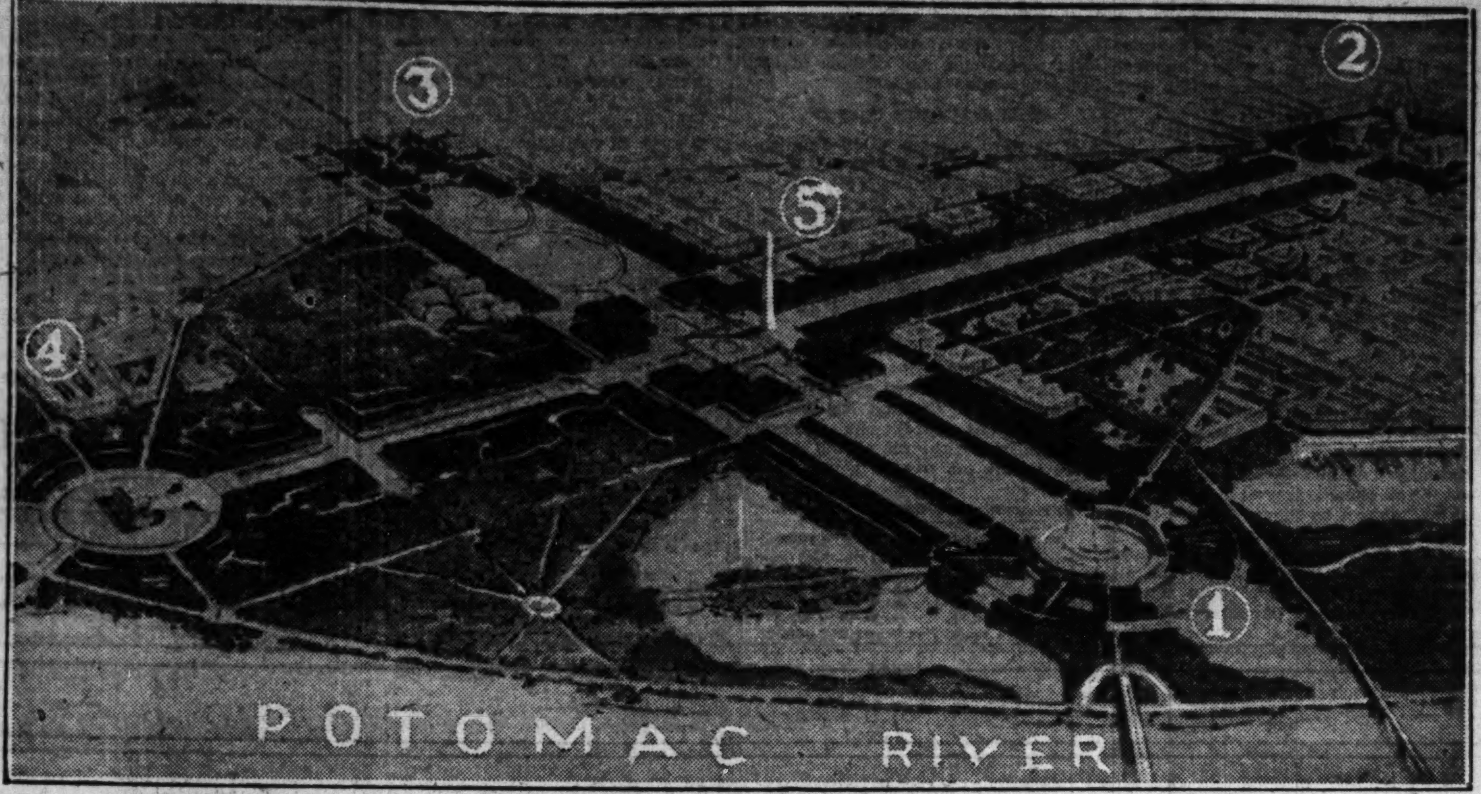
The design meets the stipulations in the joint resolution of congress permitting the association to secure a design with this site in view, and the style is classical.

Marks Roosevelt's Foresight.

"In selecting this site," said Mr. Garfield, "the Roosevelt Memorial association was influenced by the knowledge of President Roosevelt's part in the creation of the 1921 park commission plan, by his unswerving support to it, and by his insistence that each new element of beauty or utility introduced into the city should be in harmony with it.

"Mr. Pope's design fulfills this purpose, transforming the loosely related and scattered areas, from the Washington monument to the Potomac, into a monumental vista from the White House across the river to the Virginia hills, providing the additional setting for the Washington monument and the Lincoln memorial anticipated in the park commission plan."

THE ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL PROJECT VISUALIZED



Architect's conception of the projected Roosevelt memorial in its setting at Washington, plans for which were submitted to congress yesterday. An "Old Faithful" of fountains would rise 200 feet high between curving colonnades in the memorial (1), which would complete the monumental vista provided by the capitol (2), the White House (3), the Lincoln memorial (4), and the Washington monument (5).

WOUNDED BANDIT DELAYS INQUEST IN HOLDUP DEATH

An inquest into the death of Louis Romini, 3623 Ellis avenue, was continued at the request of the police yesterday after Matthew Lusk, 7240 Lowe avenue, had been identified as the companion of Jack Martin, who shot and killed Romini in his home Thursday night. Martin is a fugitive.

Lusk is in the Bridewell hospital from a bullet wound inflicted by Policeman Michael Curtin, who shot him as he was fleeing from a holdup after the murder.

Policeman Edward Mach of the East Chicago avenue station was commended by a coroner's jury for shooting and killing John Miller, 40, as he was fleeing from a restaurant in which he had taken the nickles from a telephone box and from an electric piano.

ALDERMEN FEAR STATE CONTROL OF STREET CARS

Subcommittee Attacks Terminable Grants.

Illinois cities and towns are urged to oppose any terminable permit law or indeterminate franchise legislation unless home rule, supervision, and regulation of public utilities fully are provided—that was the gist of the report handed to the city council transportation committee by a subcommittee yesterday.

The subcommittee, headed by Ald. Donald S. McKinley [19th], was unable, according to its report, after investigation in many states, to find any benefits to the public under such legislation. Therefore, it concluded that indeterminate franchises are of direct advantage only to the public utilities.

Visits Many Cities.

During its investigation the subcommittee, of which Ald. Joseph H. Smith [33d], Wiley W. Mills [37th], Arthur F. Albert [43d], and E. I. Frankhauser [49th] are members, visited Duluth and St. Paul, Minn.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Superior, La Crosse, Madison and Milwaukee, Wis.; Evansville, Terre Haute and South Bend, Ind. City officials and state utility commissions were consulted in all cities visited.

Trouble agreeing with the local transportation lines in drafting an ordinance that will solve Chicago's transportation problem is seen as a result of the subcommittee's report. The lines here have let it be known that before they will talk unification of the lines or agree to any proposition additional legislation is needed to assure adequate financing.

The subcommittee says:

"How cars shall be routed, where they shall stop, whether one man or two man cars are desirable, and such questions are no longer a matter to be settled between the cities and the companies but must be decided by a state commission, most of whose members may never have seen the streets in question. In South Bend the Interurban Car company, since passage of this legislation, has taken the position that it has a right to haul freight cars filled with live stock over a residence street of that city. If Chicago should lose the so-called North Shore Electric railroad case, that company might decide it had a right to use the elevated loop in a silimar manner."

Some Other Conclusions.

The committee's conclusions of its investigations in part are:

That cities on the whole are much dissatisfied at the loss and control over public utilities and are demanding return to home rule.

Federal court injunctions prevent enforcement of state commission orders so frequently and for such long periods that court regulation is substituted for commission regulation.

The effect of such legislation is to free the utility companies of any obligation to local authorities and to the municipalities they serve.

Right of cities to purchase utilities as provided in such permits is without meaning, as few cities have sufficient bonding power or financial means to purchase.

ASSEMBLY APPROVES FORMATION OF A NEW DYNASTY IN PERSIA

TEHERAN, Persia, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The constituent assembly today gave unanimous approval to the amendments to the constitution by which Riza Khan is named shah of Persia and a new line of rulers, the Pahlavi dynasty, taking Reza's family name, is established.

RIZA KAHN.

By these amendments sovereignty hereafter will remain in the Pahlavi dynasty, and the eldest son of the shah will become the crown prince.

Riza Khan will be enthroned on Monday, replacing the former shah, Ahmed Kajar, who was deposed by the national assembly Oct. 31. The deposed shah is in France.

JAIL 2 ITALIAN REPORTERS WHO TRY TO BE FUNNY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 12.—Realistic writing is costing two newspaper men, Sig. Scrafoglio, representing the Mattino of Naples, and Sig. Ambrosino of the Stampa of Turin, seven months' imprisonment, a 500 lire ($20) fine, and the cost of the court proceedings in which they were found guilty of "insulting the army." During the military maneuvers at Piedmont the newspaper men wrote humorous accounts of the "capture of Ivrea," as if the war were serious, mentioning the imaginary destruction, the panic of the population, and the soldiers' seizure of food and wine without paying. The Stampa was suppressed. Both newspapermen pleaded that they tried to be funny.

Ann Arbor's Actors Will Antic Here in a Song-Show

The actors, singers, and dancers of the University of Michigan union are coming next Friday night to the Auditorium for a revel in "Tambourine," a piece in the form of an operetta in a prologue and two acts. One of the authors is Walker Everett, of Chicago, who wrote the "book" with Valentine L. Davies, of New-York; and the score is by Milton A. Peterson, of Detroit. The Chicago date is in an itinerary of thirteen cities to be visited by the Union's mimes: some of the others are New-York, Philadelphia, Washington, Detroit, Cleveland, and Cincinnati.

SIR JOHN LIVES AGAIN IN VERDI OPERA 'FALSTAFF'

Winning New Fame for Rimini, Raisa, Mason.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Some time in the future the Civic Opera company may give a better performance than the one of Verdi's "Falstaff" revived yesterday afternoon, after several years' silence, but it has never done so yet. Here was a case where the company chose to extend itself, and it got results, an ideal opera, almost ideally cast, and pretty nearly a par performance. All of which would seem to indicate that some of the foolish mistakes of the past were unnecessary.

Here was the cast: Giacomo Rimini as Falstaff, Rosa Raisa and Irene Pavloska as Mistress Ford and Mistress Page, the two merry wives; Edith Mason as Anne, Charles Hackett as Fenton, Robert Steel as Ford, Maria Claessens as Mistress Quickly, three lesser characters by José Mojica, Lodovico Oliviero, and Virgilio Lazzari, and, finally, Giorgio Polacco, conductor. If you think you can better that list, you are at liberty to try.

Grew Younger as Composer.

Verdi would seem to have been a most peculiar person, and never more so than from the fact that the older he grew as a man the younger he became as a composer. Some of his early works are old beyond all rejuvenation. But at the age of eighty he composed "Falstaff," which is just about eternal youth in music, and not second childhood, either.

I wonder just a bit, however, whether all the sparkle and laughter and antic that was in this revival was in all the former performances, or whether yesterday's super-performance developed it for the first time. Natually it is in the work or it would not have come out yesterday, but it seemed almost as though I were hearing it for the first time.

There is only one thing that could have improved it. "Falstaff," as all good opera goers know, is a setting of Shakespeare's "The Merry Wives of Windsor," with a few borrowings from the Falstaff incidents in "King Henry IV." If ever an opera cried aloud for performance in English this one does, not as a matter of cult, education, or uplift but simply for the unending fun that is in it. By the way, at least four of yesterday's cast are native born Americans, and at least three more are capable of singing fairly good English.

Might Prepare Surprise.

If it were announced in English a good many would get scared and stay away. They generally do. But suppose it were prepared secretly in English and suddenly flashed on the audience without announcement. I believe there would be conversions. England hears it in English and has for years, and it is immensely popular there.

But, take it for what it was, it became a triumph of singing, acting, staging, and general good feeling. Not a singer in the cast but who was as young as Verdi, the composer, when he wrote the piece, and Mr. Polacco in the pit was as young as the youngest.

This was real opera.

PRINCESS HELPS ILLINOIS FARM BOY GET BRIDE

And Vasily Hopes His Dad Will Be Pleased.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—Vasily Mentko's daddy, who owns a farm in Illinois, sent his son to Europe recently with one second class steamer ticket, two return tickets, and plenty of hard cash, with instructions to go to Russia and find himself a wife.

Vasily's dad did not want his son to marry any of those modern American flappers, with manicured finger nails and the habit of lying in bed until noon.

"My boy," he said, "go to Russia and get yourself a wife who will get up early in the morning, cook your breakfast, and feed the pigs and chickens."

Plenty of Russian Wives.

The other day Vasily arrived in Berlin hunting a soviet visa. He was refused, and sadly prepared to return home. An employé of the White Star line in Berlin, who is a Russian, accompanied him to the station. Vasily was in tears, and when asked what was wrong he replied:

"When I come home without a Russian wife my father is going to knock me for a goal."

His Russian friend told him to dry his tears.

"If it is only a Russian wife you want there are lots of them here," he said.

Enter a Real Princess.

The upshot was that a Russian princess interested herself in the case, and yesterday brought in a dozen good looking Russian girls and told Vasily to take his pick. Unembarrassed by this bevy of beauties, Vasily chose one who, besides having good features, figure, and other attainments of beauty which feature so many Russian girls, looked like a capable housekeeper and farmer's wife. As his dad's instructions were that the marriage be a eugenic one, the future bride was examined today by a doctor and pronounced sound.

"We are getting along fine," said Vasily between trips to the various German official departments to get the necessary documents for marriage. "Last night we went to the movies and kissed in the dark."

The marriage will be performed Monday in Berlin's Russian church.

Falling Stone Kills Youth in Stone Quarry

Nicholas Borinch, 19, a switchman in the People's Crushed Stone quarry on the Plainfield road west of LaGrange, was instantly killed yesterday when he was struck on the head by a large falling stone.

The stone dropped fifty feet after rolling off a dump cart being pulled by an electric motor over a steep incline at the edge of the quarry.

IDENTIFY CASSOPOLIS BANDITS.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Three men arrested yesterday were identified today by Clyde Benham, Cass county deputy sheriff, as members of a band of desperadoes that raided Cassopolis several weeks ago and fled after an unsuccessful attempt to rob the Cass County State bank.

COOLIDGE'S OLD STATE LEADS THE NATION IN PER CAPITA SAVINGS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[U. P.]—Middle westerners are less thrifty than those in other sections of the country, it was disclosed today by statistics made public by the treasury department.

New Englanders are the thriftiest, and Vermont, home state of President Coolidge, leads the nation in savings. With a population of only 355,000, citizens of that state have accumulated $172,585,000 in savings accounts, a per capita of $4,486.15.

Kansas, with its great agricultural area and a population of nearly 2,000,000, had savings deposits of only $12,736,000 on June 30, or $6.90 per capita. Ohio had per capita savings of $187.05; Illinois, $151.89; Indiana, $68.32; Michigan, $41.85, and Iowa, $176.10. The list was not complete, several states being unpresented.

Cleared on Attack Charge, He's Sentenced on Another

Dismissed on a charge of criminal assault, Charles Warren, 26 years old, 1735 Warren avenue, yesterday was found guilty of carrying a concealed weapon, fined $100, and sentenced to six months in jail by Judge Alfar Eberhardt. Warren had been charged with attacking Mrs. Hazel Boyle, 27 years old, 1642 Warren avenue, a mother of three children.

SOCIETY CHEERS FINAL CONTESTS OF HORSE SHOW

Many Notables Are in Boxes.

Society, though not so numerously represented last night as its earlier record during the horse show indicated, made up for the lack with its genuine enthusiasm. It applauded, shouted and whistled its approval during the final international competitions.

Box parties were most informal and hosts and guests hard to identify. Noted with Mrs. Jacob Bauer in the upper boxes were Mr. and Mrs. Townsend McKeever and Mrs. Joseph Long. Miss Emily Larned had a box party near them.

On the opposite side were Mrs. Moses Wentworth, Mrs. Ralph Jame of London and her son, Charles Jame.

Among those occupying the center boxes were Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Mrs. Lester Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Harry C. Halloway, Mr. and Mrs. Dimitri Ivanenke, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Welling, the Augustus S. Peabodys, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Leander McCormick and Eames MacVeagh.

Others in the box circle were Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, and Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Blair.

Assisting Mrs. Leander McCormick in the sale of programs were Mrs. Edward Vilas Platt, Mrs. John L. Cochrane Jr., Miss Peggy Keeley, Miss Emily Otis, Miss Katherine Crerar Miss Janet Fairbank and Miss Rue Winterbotham.

These quality breakfast items indicate how little it costs to dine well at the North American

Every wife and mother knows that food costs are high right now. Yet it is the high cost of "service," even more than the cost of food, that keeps prices up in most dining places. At the North American you "serve yourself." Consequently we don't need to add anything to our prices to cover the cost of serving food to your table. The result is you can dine here more economically than at home.

The best way to prove this is to eat one breakfast, lunch or dinner here, at the North American. You will find that in spite of our low prices the food is as fine as you get anywhere—no matter how much more you may have to pay elsewhere.

Some of our other famous specialties are:

Halibut and Peas: The portion is big—usually enough for two people and, this is one restaurant where there is no charge for portions shared by two 45c

Pork Tenderloin: A good example of our amazing food values 45c

Filet of Sole: 2 big pieces, Tartar Sauce 50c

Fried Chicken: Premium chicken with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce. Dark meat . . 55c
White meat 65c

This is one restaurant where children are always welcome!

WALTER ECKERSALL.

In the middle west the general play of nonconference football elevens, teams of minor colleges especially was above the average. Such elevens were composed of remarkable players, any of whom would have made their mark in the gridiron world had they been members of more prominent teams.

Scattered throughout the country were many wonderful players buried with insignificant teams. Such warriors would undoubtedly have made any major college or university eleven in the country, but the support they received did not give them a chance to attract country-wide attention. It is a deplorable condition, but one which has existed in football ever since the game was played.

Missouri Wins Valley Title.

In the Missouri Valley conference, where some splendid football was played, Missouri again won the title. The Tigers, under the able tutelage of Gwynne Henry, who learned his football at Southwestern university, played consistently throughout the season, but went down in defeat by their respected rival, Kansas, in the final struggle.

Nebraska, which had sparkling players in Capt. Weir, Hutchison, and Rhodes, played inconsistent football. The Cornhuskers started their season by defeating Illinois and closed it with a triumph over Notre Dame. The Kansas Aggies, coached by Charley Bachman, a product of Notre Dame, showed well, as did Drake, where Ossie Solem is the director of football fortunes. The Des Moines eleven flashed a corking end in Sloane, one of the best in the valley. Other elevens in the association did all that was expected of them, with the possible exception of Kansas, which was handicapped a great deal throughout the season. This was particularly true of [illegible], the punting and running full back, whose all around work was the main reason for the Jayhawkers' victory over Missouri.

Rocky Mountain Game Improves.

Going still further west, the brand of football as played in the Rocky Mountain conference was an improvement over that of former years. The Colorado Aggies won the title after playing hard and good football all season. One of the stars of the section was Chilson, quarter back on Colorado. I had the good fortune to see this player perform against Creighton and he was one of the best ball handlers in the country and a player whose work would have attracted more attention had he been a member of a larger university eleven.

Notre Dame had a good year, everything considered. Although Rockne's eleven lost to the Army and Nebraska and was tied by Penn State, the South Bend aggregation won its

Detroit Beats Bears, 21 to 0; Red on Bench

GRANGE OUT TODAY

RED GRANGE will not play with the Bears this afternoon in their game against the New York Giants. This announcement was made official last night by President W. L. Veeck of the Cubs following a long distance conference he had with George Halas and Dutch Sternaman, managers of the north side team. Mr. Veeck also stated that the money would be refunded to any ticket holder who wished it back. Men will be at the ticket booths of the Cubs park all day today to refund money to those who wish to return their tickets.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Footsore and weary, Chicago's itinerant Bears limped and slipped into defeat on a field of mud here today. With their ace, Red Grange, on the sidelines, his left arm in a sling, and themselves battered as the result of their intensive money getting expedition, the proud Bears of a week ago became merely so many individuals and the Detroit Panthers socked them in no foolin' fashion by 21 to 0 before 6,000 spectators.

It wasn't a spectacle, not even a football game. It was just the effort of so many men against a fresh winded aggregation that had them whipped right from the crack of the gun. Probably it was luck for Grange that he wasn't in there. With the help his crippled mates would have provided and with the field treacherously gooey, he would have done nothing and that would have meant another flock of raspberries from the so-called American fan.

Tickets Turned Back.

The advance notice that Grange would not start, spoiled whatever chance Detroit had of seeing its first pro-spectacle. A few days ago a reserved seat was a valued possession. About 15,000 of them had been sold. Today more than two-thirds of that advance was bought back by the management and the refund ticket booth was the busiest spot for miles around. People like football, but they like Grange better.

The famous redhead, hopelessly out of football for at least a week, did the best he could to give the spectators a run for their money. Carrying his inflamed arm in a sling, he walked out on the field between halves to let a crier inform those who cared to know that "the gentleman on my right is Red Grange, football's most famous player." Red bowed in acknowledgment and then had to fight his way off the field to avoid a lot of saps who seemed intent on yanking his good wing out of its socket.

As for the game itself, there wasn't much to narrate except that the Panthers lived up to their monicker. Their back field, with Conzelman, Doane, and Haddon, was both agile and hard hitting. Their line was on a par with the backs, and the combination was too much for the invaders.

Panthers Open with Rush.

The Panthers took their first scratch at their weary opponents right at the jump. The battle was only a few minutes on its way when Haddon, former Washington-Jefferson, scooted 5 yards around end for a touchdown. Then things moved along easily until the third period, when the Panthers again ripped up a lot of turf and mud in their frenzy to get the ball over the goal line twice, Haddon and Doane doing the honors.

Detroit's crew got down to business after several exchanges of punts in the first quarter. The fast and bulky Haddon started it with a 20 yard end run. Then Doane plunged through, and a pass, R. Vick to Voss, put the ball on the Bears' 11 yard line. Doane hit the tackles twice for a total advance of seven yards, after which Haddon swung wide over his right end for the first touchdown. Sonnenberg kicked for the extra point.

The next touchdown occurred at the start of the third period and provided the big thrill of the day. After the kickoff Britton punted to Detroit's 41 yard line. On the first play R. Vick shot a pass to Haddon for about ten yards and the latter went zigzagging through 49 yards of mud and Bears to the Chicago goal line. Sonnenberg again kicked for the point.

Passes Give Panthers Last Score.

In about two more minutes of battling the Panthers had their third and last touchdown. Britton was forced to punt and the ball came down in the hands of R. Vick on the Bears' 45 yard line. A pair of long passes, R. Vick to Conzelman, sent the Bears back spinning toward their own goal, putting the eggplant on the ten yard line. Doane shot through the middle of the line for the remaining ten yards and Sonnenberg kicked again for the last of the twenty-one points. Lineup:

CHICAGO EQUINE KINGS CROWNED AT RIDING CLUB

Taps Closes the First National Show.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Almost at the stroke of 12 last night the old English figure clad in red hunting outfit who has this week become a familiar character to Chicago's thousands of horse lovers, sounded taps on his trumpet and the National horse show, the most noteworthy equine event ever staged in America, came to a close at the Chicago Riding club.

Just as a blast from his trumpet and the click of a telegraph key sounded by President Coolidge in the White House last Tuesday night flooded the gayly decorated Riding club arena with light as a signal opening the show, so did taps give the signal which brought darkness to the same brilliant scene after 125 championships had been decided.

The National Horse show has come to stay in Chicago. It has become an institution, and while it went far beyond the expectation of even its most enthusiastic sponsors this year it will make tremendous strides before another 12 months has passed, and next year it will be not only America's most notable horse show but perhaps the greatest in the world.

Chicago Horses Victors.

Morning, afternoon, and evening sessions were crowded into the final day of the pageant. And Chicago owned horses, after tasting defeat in many of the earlier numbers of the show, came into their own and carried away a majority of the championship ribbons.

Horses from the stables of Benjamin Leslie Behr of Lake Forest, Otto W. Lehmann and Mrs. John D. Hertz of Chicago scored victories which last night brought the big crowd to its feet cheering. And Mrs. Loula Long Combs of Lee's Summit, Mo.; Maude Fawn Banks of Los Angeles, and George J. Peak of Winchester, Ill., kept their horses in the championship limelight right up to the finish.

The French Army team won the International team jumping trophy, after leading throughout the week. They trailed the Belgians for the second time in two nights yesterday, but points gained early in the week cinched the championship for the French riders.

Belgians Nose Out Yanks.

Belgium, by a great rally in the last two days, nosed the American team out of second place, while Canada finished fourth. Scores for the week which count as demerit marks were: France 41, Belgium 52; America 66, and Canada 76. The French team was composed of Capt. Auguste de Lassardierre, 6th Dragoons; Lieut. Pierre Clave, 23d Dragoons and Lieut. Xavier Bizard, 7th Hussars.

Probably the most spectacular event on the closing program was the lightweight hunter championship, in which Benjamin Leslie Behr's Lake Forest horse, Banter Bay, scored a narrow victory over Dansant from John McE. Bowman's New York string. It was one of the few times this week that Dansant was forced to bow in defeat and until last night's final competition he looked like a championship certainty.

Baron Lee Rose, owned by the Brentwood Hall Farm stables of Nashville, Tenn., won the fine harness championship during the afternoon session but in the five gaited saddle championship competition last night finished second to Mountain Laurel, owned by T. W. Minton of Kentucky.

Chicago Hunters Win Titles.

Chicago horses took the entire spotlight in the struggle for the middleweight hunter and heavyweight hunter championship. Lough Eagle, after figuring in sensational performances throughout the week, carried Mrs. John D. Hertz's colors to victory in both events. Among the middleweights he got the decision over the star Hemlock, owned by E. J. Lehmann, and with the heavyweights scored again over an E. J. Lehmann representative, White Oak being the one to finish second this time.

While the Yankee team could not get better than third in the international race, Uncle Sam's colors were carried to a brilliant victory when Capt. Waters from the United States cavalry school at Fort Riley on Buckaboo defeated the best riders and horses France, Belgium and Canada could muster in the officers' jumping competition.

The crowds were the largest of the show at the afternoon and night ses-

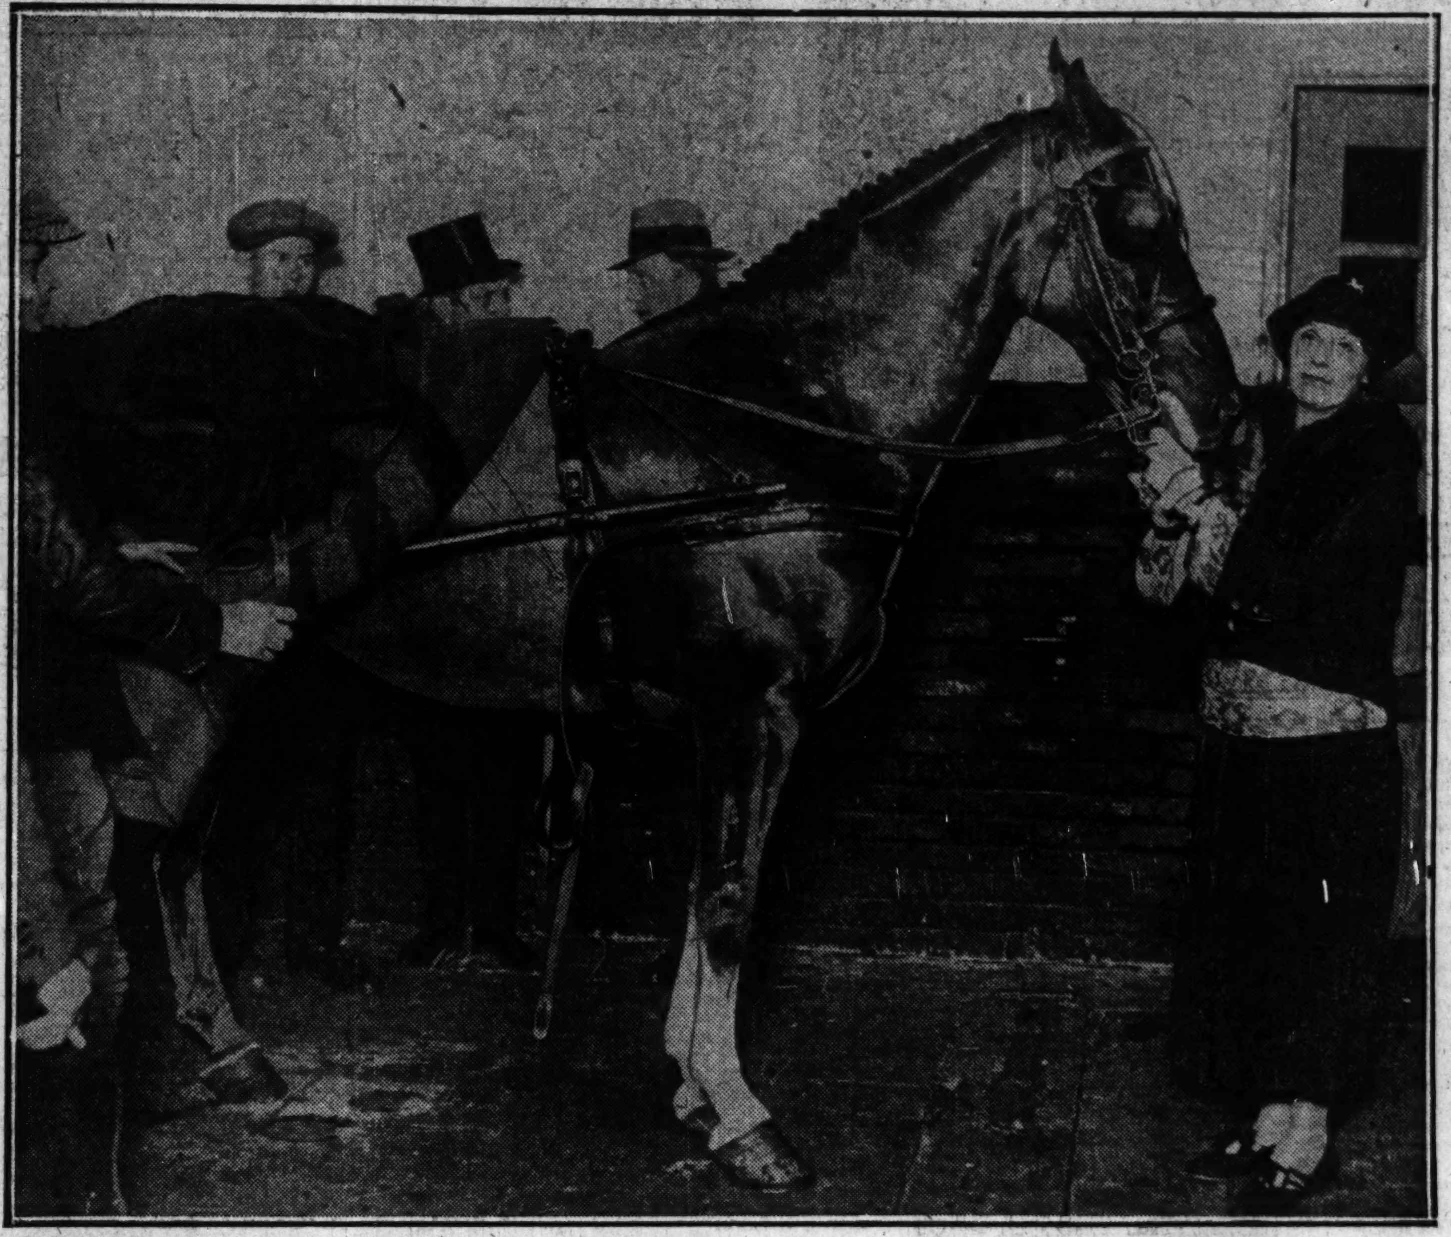
HEAVY WINNER AS SPECTACULAR HORSE SHOW CLOSES



Mrs. Loula Long Combs of Lee Summit, Mo., one of the most prominent horsewomen in America, took one of her many prizes with Ovation, thoroughbred in heavy harness competition, at the National Horse show championship closing last night.

Broken Hearts Certain When Santa Fails

One of the greatest and most insidious tolls of poverty is the inevitable inferiority complex. Children's minds are easily molded and juvenile impressions cast their smirch upon all subsequent years. The mind of a poverty stricken child and the effect of a Good Fellow's Christmas call are more closely allied than you believe.

Take the P—— family that lives in the Haymarket district. Mr. P—— is in the insane asylum. Mrs. P—— undertook to support her five children by working nights scrubbing. The children are Anna, 7; Frances, 6; Stanley, 4; Sophie, 1, and Helen, 2 months old.

It was learned that three of the children were more than 15 per cent underweight, and the mother was asked to give her entire time to caring for the children. A charity supplies a budget that provides food and clothing.

Children Show Timidity.

But the children are timid. The mother explained that the girls were afraid of being alone at night when she was scrubbing. A stranger in the house sends these children into a panic.

They've been so poor that they can't believe there is any sort of a place for them in this world. The writer, appearing before the little shack yesterday in a flivver, was looked upon as some strange man of wealth.

It took almost an hour to start these timid children talking about Santa Claus. O, they know about Santa Claus, all right. Yet it took an hour to find out what Anna, Francis, and Stanley want for Christmas.

They Need Clothing.

Well, a little clothing will help to establish some self-assurance in these children. A good dress each for the girls and a clean suit for the boy. They also want to see their mother in a new and clean dress.

Then they want jacks so they can play with the other children. Helen wants a doll and doll buggy. Stanley wants a wagon. The little ones want bright balls, horns, and such.

Be a Good Fellow. Let's have no empty stockings on Christmas morning. Let's have every child's dream of Santa Claus fulfilled.

Cards' Rivals for Pro Grid Title Likely to Be Outlawed

The Chicago Cardinals soon may be crowned undisputed champions of the National Professional Football league. With both the Cardinals and the Pottsville, Pa., Maroons claiming the championship before the games yesterday, a new situation developed. Now it seems as if Pottsville is not only to lose out in the title race but lose its franchise as well.

The Cardinals trimmed the Hammond, Ind., pros, 13 to 0, at Comiskey park yesterday while the Pottsville eleven defeated a team headed by the former Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, 9 to 7, at Philadelphia.

Violate League Rules.

In playing at Philadelphia the Pottsville boys violated two league rules and President Joseph Carr of the National league declared last night that the Pennsylvania players are liable to be ruled outlaws and the team lose its franchise. The game in Philadelphia was played in the territory of the Frankford Yellow Jackets, who have the Philadelphia district franchise, and as the Yellow Jackets played against the Cleveland Indians on the Frankford home grounds the Pottsville game has been ruled an outlaw contest because of the invasion of the Yellow Jackets' territory.

Then there is another angle. Harry Stuhldreher, one of the Four Horsemen, is outlawed by the pro league. At the start of the season Stuhldreher signed to play with the Providence, R. I., Steam Rollers of the National league but jumped the contract and played with an independent team at Hartford, Conn. For this he was outlawed and now competition against him has endangered the standing of all of the Pottsville players.

Cards Now Have Edge.

As the league standing holds now, the Cardinals have won eleven games and lost two and have played one tie. Pottsville has won ten games and lost two.

Manager Chris O'Brien of the Cards declared last night that he is claiming the leadership of the league but that the whole matter must be taken up in the league meeting in January.

The Cardinals had no soft snap in trimming the Hammond outfit yesterday, 13 to 0, but they proved to be better skidders than the visitors and came out on top, scoring a well earned touchdown in the second quarter and grabbing another in the final period when Swede Erickson snatched a Hammond forward pass out of the air and dashed twenty-five yards to the goal line.

It was an impossible field for good football. The warm air had thawed out about an inch of the frozen earth so the gridiron was something like a plate glass covered with used axle grease. Sol Butler, the colored speedster of the Hammond outfit, was the only fellow who looked natural after the game had gone five minutes. All the others looked like him.

Red's Actions Identify Him.

Red Dunn's performance in the first half was largely responsible for the first touchdown. One was able to identify him by his actions, not by his looks. He hurled some nifty passes before the ball became waterlogged and he made some thrilling dashes from punt formation. It was three ripping runs that produced the touchdown in the middle of the second period. From the thirty yard line he carried the ball over in three plays, starting as if for an end run and then cutting in. The boys gave him some bang up interference.

Red was excused after the first half and Mahoney performed for him. Paddy Driscoll assisted materially in the conquest with some clever dashes off tackle and Koehler got an occasional good plunge through the line. As soon as the second touchdown was tallied, Paddy scooted for the clubhouse to have his uniform pried off.

ERNIE NEVERS OF STANFORD SIGNS PRO CONTRACT

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 12.—[United Press.]—Ernie Nevers, Stanford grid captain and one of America's greatest line plungers, has signed a contract with a group of Florida capitalists to head an all-star team which will play a series of games in the south, east, and California, says a story published today by the San Francisco Examiner.

It is reported that the giant blond from Santa Rosa will receive in excess of $50,000 for his professional football services.

The syndicate arranging the games is headed by J. S. O'Brien, city official of Jacksonville. He is planning to have the sensational Red Grange and Nevers meet, as several games against the Chicago Bears are reported scheduled.

W. G. A. Meets to St. Paul and Indianapolis

BY MORROW KRUM.

Highland Country club of Indianapolis was awarded the 1926 western open golf tournament and the White Bear Yacht club of St. Paul won next year's amateur tournament at the annual meeting of the Western Golf association, held at the Congress hotel last night. The junior, senior, and women's western will be assigned by the executive committee at a later date.

Charles O. Pfeil, gentleman from Memphis, who for two years has been president of the W. G. A., held the gavel when the meeting opened, but after the election of Hobart P. Young of the Exmoor Country club to the presidency he took active charge.

Both Mr. Pfeil and Gus Allen, retiring treasurer and incoming second vice president, were enthusiastically thanked for their work both in resolutions adopted and by the golfing orators.

Little Contest for Tourneys.

There was no particular contest for the 1926 tournaments. The petition of the White Bear Yacht club for the amateur was presented by Harrison Johnston, one time western amateur champion, and seconded by various members who know of the difficulties of White Bear's mountains. It was quickly approved.

Appearing for the Highland Country club in its plea for the western open was Arch V. Grossman and club members. It seemed Tom Taggart, who owns a golf club at French Lick, also desired the tournament, but the address of Grossman soon conquered all competition.

Addresses were made by James Francis Burke of Pittsburgh, chairman of the rules committee of the U. S. G. A., and Dr. O. B. Fitts of Washington, an expert on grasses and bent.

Other Officers Named.

The new officers elected, besides Mr. Young as president, are:

James D. Standish Jr., Lochmoor club, Detroit, first vice president; A. C. Allen, Skokie Country club, second vice president; Robert M. Cutting, Hinsdale Country club, secretary; Joseph C. Leduc, Bunker Hill Country club, treasurer, and Henry A. Gardner, Indian Hill, general counsel.

The new directors elected are:

A. S. Kerry, Seattle Golf club; R. C. Mackall, Minneapolis, Minn.; C. T. Fairbairn, Birmingham Country club; Harry T. Gilbert, Youngstown Country club, and E. B. Tufts, Los Angeles, Cal.

The 1926 nominating committee includes:

Richard J. Collins, Bob O'Link; Arch V. Grossman, Highland Country club; Don Scott, Bellerive Country club; W. H. Foster, Youngstown Country club, and Harrison R. Johnston, Town and Country club.

The members of the association also suggested the 1927 amateur tournament be held in Seattle.

KNUTE FAILED TO GET RELEASE AT NOTRE DAME

Unable to Accept Eastern Offer.

New York, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Despite the announcement made from Columbia university on Friday night that Knute K. Rockne, head coach of the Notre Dame football team, would take charge of the eleven at Morningside Heights next year, Rockne tonight positively denied that he would coach at Columbia next season.

According to a statement issued by the famous coach, he first learned of the Columbia announcement early Saturday morning in Philadelphia. He immediately called Notre Dame authorities on the long distance telephone and said that this announcement was untrue.

Holds Conference with Knapp.

He then hastened to New York, where he was in a long conference this morning with J. R. Knapp, chairman of the Columbia football committee, after which he issued a statement that charged bad faith on the part of the Columbia officials. Columbia earlier had issued a statement charging that Rockne had broken a contract which called for three years as head coach of the Columbia football team.

According to Rockne this statement issued by the Columbia authorities was kept secret from him while Mr. Knapp conferred with him.

Mr. Knapp did not deny any part of Rockne's charges, but after a last effort to induce the Notre Dame coach to amend his explanation he said: "Well, let's forget the whole matter," and withdrew.

Failed to Get Release.

It developed through Rockne's statement that he had signed the contract with Columba, but on condition that he could get his release from Notre Dame and that he wrote to Mr. Knapp on Dec. 7 saying this release could not be obtained and that the agreement with Columbia was automatically canceled.

Mr. Knapp admits having received this letter prior to issuing the announcement of Rockne's appointment as head coach, but refused to make any explanation of why he made the announcement anyway.

When Mr. Knapp found out that Rockne had exposed the fact that the agreement with Columbia had been called off prior to the university's announcement, he tried to induce Rockne to withdraw the part of his statement which dealt with the letter Rockne had written canceling the contract.

Wants Public to Know All.

This Rockne refused to do, saying that the public should know the true facts of the case, and adding:

"I don't know whether I'll have a job left at Notre Dame when I get back to South Bend, but I'm going to tell the whole truth about this matter. Perhaps I would have shielded Mr. Knapp if he had played square with me, but when he sat up discussing what statement to make to the press, knowing full well that a statement already had been made, I knew it was time to expose the whole matter."

ROCKNE'S STATEMENT

Rockne's statement in full follows:

"I agreed with Mr. J. R. Knapp of Columbia university to come to Columbia contingent upon my securing my release from my present contract with Notre Dame. This release could not be secured, and on Dec. 7 I wrote Mr. Knapp and told him the agreement could not be carried out.

"Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Knapp admits receiving this repudiation, three days later he announced to the press that I was to be head coach at Columbia.

Knapp Visited South Bend.

"Last January Mr. Knapp and his wife came to South Bend to try to secure my services. They were then told by the Rev. Matthew J. Walsh, president of Notre Dame university, that I was under a ten year contract. Failing in his efforts to get Father Walsh to release me, Mr. Knapp made every effort to have me break my contract with Notre Dame. They stayed in South Bend for three days before they left.

"Several weeks ago Mr. Knapp initiated the discussion again, and as at that time I saw a possibility of being released, we entered into an agreement contingent upon my securing said release, however. Immediately upon my return to South Bend I wrote Mr. Knapp the letter I have already mentioned, in which I stated that the agreement was off. In spite of these facts, last Friday night, coming into the hotel from the theater in Philadelphia, I saw the announcement in the paper.

Got in Contact with Knapp.

"I came to New York as fast as I could with Mr. J. M. Byrne Jr. and Mr. Rupert F. Wills, Notre Dame's representatives in the east. We had been visiting with Mr. John Neeson of Philadelphia. Having in mind saving the Columbia authorities as much embarrassment as possible, I got into contact with Mr. Knapp.

"We discussed issuing the best possible explanation. At 4 o'clock Mr. Knapp left but we said that if he were not back by 6 o'clock we would issue our own statement. At 6 o'clock we returned to the hotel, where Mr. Knapp joined us. We spent over an hour discussing the statement to be issued to the press by Columbia, but as we were sitting there we were called up by newspaper men and informed that Columbia already had issued a statement.

"In view of the fact that this unfair statement was issued and kept secret from me I felt it best to tell the true facts of the case which are narrated above."

Text of Columbia Statement.

The Columbia statement, issued earlier, was as follows:

"Mr. Knute K. Rockne signed an agreement on Dec. 1 to act as head coach of the Columbia football team for the period of the next three years, at a stipulated salary subject to the approval of the Columbia university committee on athletics.

"The football committee presented the agreement to the university committee on athletics on Dec. 11, recommending its approval. Thereupon the university committee on athletics approved the agreement and the announcement of Mr. Rockne's appointment as head coach followed.

What Rockne Told Them.

"At the time this contract was made, Mr. Rockne stated that he was not under contract to the University of Notre Dame. It now appears both from statements by the Notre Dame authorities and by Mr. Rockne himself that Mr. Rockne was in fact, and still is, under contract to the University of Notre Dame.

"The Columbia committee would not have offered a contract to Mr. Rockne or to any other man, or appointed him as head coach, if it had known that he was under contract to another university, and regrets the entire situation. In view of the foregoing, the appointment of Mr. Rockne is withdrawn."

Knapp Exonerates Rockne.

In his effort to induce Rockne to withdraw the part of the statement exposing the fact that Rockne had canceled the contract he signed with Columbia before the announcement of that contract was made public, Mr. Knapp later issued the following statement, exonerating Rockne:

"I believe Mr. Rockne, in making this statement, that he was not under contract to Notre Dame, believed he had a right of release under that contract, which amounted to the same thing."

Mr. Knapp showed a copy of this last statement to Mr. Rockne, and said: "There, I've exonerated you from any blame, and I want you to withdraw that part of your statement about having written me that negotiations were off before I made the announcement."

Rockne Explains His Stand.

"I refuse to do that," Rockne replied. "You issued a statement from the University club earlier in the afternoon which made me out a quitter. You not only kept the fact that you had issued a statement secret from me but you pretended to be concocting a statement that would exonerate both parties when in fact the press already had your statement. Had it not been for the newspaper men who called me up and asked me what I had to say in regard to the Columbia statement I would have been kept in the dark until your explanation had been published and my side of the affair would not have been known for days.

"In view of those facts, I refuse to withdraw any part of my statement, which is the truth of the whole affair."

When Contract Was Made.

The conditional contract with Columbia was made during Rockne's visit here to collaborate with Glenn Warner and Fielding Yost in the scramble for the late Walter Camp's mantle, a garment which has now been torn to shreds by a dozen or more individuals and groups who claim the right to pick the all-American team. Rockne, Warner, and Yost picked an all-American team together, and they may be said to have gotten away with a fairly big hem of the garment, in celebration of which achievement they were bidden to a feast by the syndicate which sells certain articles which are known as their writings.

Columbia had flirted with Rockne three years ago, and the wooing recommenced when the relaxation of the post-season time was in effect, two weeks ago.

TWO CHICAGOANS WIN THE CORNELL FROSH NUMERALS

Mount Vernon, Ia., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Richard Tiesing, for two years a member of the Lake View High school football team of Chicago, and Edward Sproat, former West Chicago High star athlete, were awarded freshmen football numerals at Cornell college as a result of their recorrds on the yearling squad this season.

Two other Illinois high school stars were listed as numeral winners. They are John Clements of Taylorville, president of the Cornell freshman class and all-around athlete, and Russell Erickson of Rockford.

TROJANS BEAT ST. MARY'S, 12-0

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12.—(AP)—St. Mary's scrapping football team from Oakland battered and hammered the Trojan line of Southern California here today in vain while the Southerners tallied two touchdowns for a 12 to 0 score. Flocks of passes and penalties featured the meeting. It was U. S. C.'s first win in three clashes with the northerners since 1917.

Snodgrass Drops Amateur Tennis; Enters Pro Game

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Professional sport made an inroad into another field today when Harvey Snodgrass, No. 6 man of the national tennis ranking list, announced his withdrawal from amateur ranks to become pro for the Palomar Country club of Beverly Hills, Cal.

Snodgrass' action is unprecedented in the history of tennis. No ranker of the first ten ever before turned pro.

Snodgrass was offered a fat contract to go to a Detroit club, but accepted the best of three other propositions because he prefers to stay in California. His salary is said to be $500 a month, the contract to run for three years.

Snodgrass has beaten every one of the first ten in American tennis except Bill Tilden. The titles he now holds include that of western sectional singles champion, national clay court doubles champion, and the Wisconsin and other state titles.

Say, Babe! Wanta Get Rich? Let Jim Be Your Manager

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 12, 1925.

Mr. George Herman Ruth,
Yankees Baseball Club,
New York City.

BABE RUTH.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Dear Babe: I suppose you have been kicking yourself all the way up and down Broadway this winter because you never had a personal manager such as Red Grange has to exploit your athletic prowess. Here for the last four years you have been playing baseball for a paltry $50,000 or so a year, and along comes this young Grange and makes that sum look like a package of postage stamps in a couple of weeks' time.

I've seen a lot of bone headed things done by ball players in my time, but you'll have to admit, Babe, that you pulled a champion when you signed a five year contract with the Yankees for $50,000 a year, though I must admit that at the time not many of us thought you were worth it and we figured that you were pretty lucky or pretty smart.

But now all of us know that the way to get the money is first to get a manager and split with him and then turn him loose to talk to the promoters. You see, Babe, a fellow like you, who can knock the cover off a baseball, or a fellow like Grange, who can run wild on a football field, seldom has a good head for business. I'll just bet that five years ago $50,000 looked like something tremendous to you and you couldn't sign your name to the contract quick enough. But I guess, Babe, if you had it to do over again you'd be sitting in the background telling the magnates to talk to your manager and you'd have a manager with a steely eye and a hard heart.

Why, just think of it, Babe, this fellow Grange hasn't played in as many games as you would play in a month, and yet see how the money has rolled in for him. If he hadn't had that smart manager I suppose he would have signed to go out and play for about $1,000 a game. Instead he split with his manager, who signed with the promoters for a percentage of the gate, and just look what happened. Why in one game their share was $36,000. Of course Red had to hand over about half of that money to his manager, but I guess any of us would be glad to fork over $18,000 to a fellow who could get us $36,000 for a day's work.

Talk about big crowds and drawing power, I guess, Babe, you can tell the world something about that yourself. I've seen ball parks jammed all over the country with fans who came out just to see you. Now, suppose you had been working on a percentage of the gate, such as Grange is, all these years. I guess you would have had to use a truck lots of times to haul your share away, even if your manager did get a split.

The way I figure it, you alone have drawn a couple of million dollars in at the gate in the last four years. Just supposing you had cut into a large percentage of that. I guess you'd never have to worry about any wolves coming around your door. You could have bought a new motor car every month instead of just two or three a year. But I suppose we all have to live and learn. See you at the ball park next spring. Sincerely yours.

JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

P. S.—Say, Babe, if you should hit 60 homers next summer and break your own record the last year of your contract, I should like to be your manager for the next year.

Walter Spence Lowers Own Record in Swim

Yonkers, N. Y., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Walter Spence of the Central Y. M. C. A. of Brooklyn tonight broke his own world's record for the 150 yard breast stroke swim, negotiating the distance in 1:50 4-5. His former record was 1:52 4-5. Spence created the new mark in an exhibition at the municipal pool.

Two Nebraska Grid Stars on Eckersall's All-Western

other games. Rockne did not have the material of former years and did well under the conditions. He developed two scintillating players in Enright, the full back, and Flanagan, the flashy half back.

Among the star players in minor colleges was Kuick of Beloit, a great guard who scaled 195 pounds. This player was developed by Tommy Mills, a veteran coach and an excellent judge of players. It was Tommy's contention that Kuick was the best guard he ever coached and was entitled to a place on any man's mythical elevens.

Weir Star Tackle.

The game also showed improvement in the minor college conferences of the middle west. Columbia of Dubuque, Ia., where Elmer Layden is coaching played consistently all season, and the same was true of De Paul, Loyola and St. Viator. Capt. Gaffney of De Paul and Dowling, an end, deserve mention for their general play all season, and the same is true of Capt. Harmon of Loyola. These teams, like others in the section, were developed by excellent coaches who are teaching a higher standard of sportsmanship and living up to the ideals as taught by the western conference.

Among the really great players developed outside of the western conference, a warrior who showed to even better advantage than he did a year ago was Capt. Ed Weir, the aggressive tackle of Nebraska. Weir was a magnificent player last season, but his work this year was even better.

He was a prime factor in his team's victories over Illinois and Notre Dame, two of the most important struggles on the Nebraska schedule. It was his superb defensive play which aided in the win over Illinois, while his perfect defensive work and great offensive playing spelled defeat for Notre Dame.

Boots Long, High Punt.

Although essentially a lineman, Weir was used for ball carrying purposes. He was called five yards back of the scrimmage line and then carried the oval into the line, off the tackles, or around the ends. It will be recalled that Weir is one of the best high hurdlers in the middle west, and possesses great speed for a big man.

Aside from his ball carrying ability and defensive qualities, the Nebraska leader was a great punter. It was his long, high punt which enabled Nebraska to score its first touchdown, early in the opening quarter, against Notre Dame. He booted the ball from deep in his own territory, and it came to rest inside of Notre Dame's five yard line. A few seconds later Nebraska scored a touchdown. In the same game Weir booted a field goal from placement. His punting also was a dominant factor in Nebraska's victory over Illinois. There is little question regarding the right of this player on any honorary eleven.

Picks Enright for Full Back.

Rex Enright of Notre Dame is awarded the position of full back on the honorary all western first eleven. This player was one of the main cogs in Notre Dame's defense, and he had few equals as a line plunger and blocker. He was of the reliable type and generally always managed to make the short gains necessary for first downs. In addition, he was a kicker of ability.

Le Vern Dilweg, who has been one of the reliables of the Marquette university eleven of Milwaukee for the last three years, is selected for right end. This player scales 196 pounds, is six feet tall, and a high hurdler of ability. His defensive qualifications may be gathered from the fact that few plays were sent at him all season, and those which were directed at him were cut short without gain. He used his hands to weave through an interference, boxed a tackle faultlessly, and was an excellent receiver of forward passes. He makes an ideal running mate for Oosterbaan of Michigan.

Puts Hutchison at Center.

Harold Hutchison of Nebraska is awarded the center position. Hutch played intelligent football throughout the season and at Nebraska is considered the greatest center in Cornhusker football season. No other person than Cy Sherman, who has been writing football for Nebraska and other schools for over thirty years, claims Hutchison is by far the best center who ever wore the Scarlet and Cream of Nebraska.

Hutch knew when to play in a roving position and he knew when to go up in the line. His intelligence may be gathered from the fact that he frequently inquired of the referees as to the down so that he could adapt his defensive play accordingly. He tackled in deadly fashion on the wings, passed accurately and had practically all the qualifications of a reliable and steady center.

Other players selected for the first all-western eleven are those who were chosen for the honorary conference team a week ago. It is not deemed necessary to go into detail again regarding their qualifications. Harold Red Grange is captain of the first team, which is fortified in all departments with Harmon and Enright to do the punting, Friedman the forward passing and place kicking, and Oosterbaan and Dilweg to receive forward passes. Edwards and Weir make an excellent pair of tackles to rush opponents' passing game and the team would be equally strong, offensively and defensively.

Whiteman of Missouri was an excellent back, one of the best in the Missouri valley conference. Lindenmeyer of Missouri was considered nearly the equal of Weir of Nebraska by valley critics and Sloane of Drake one of the best flank players. John McMullen of Notre Dame showed great possibilities in a tackle position early in the year but an unfortunate injury in midseason prevented him from showing his best in later games.

Freidman Should Improve.

Flanagan of Notre Dame should be one of the star backs of the country next year, while Bennie Freidman, who will pilot next year's Michigan eleven, should show even greater improvement than he did last fall. In fact, the same is true of other players who will grace the chalk lines next fall and all indications point to another great year which is expected to develop another crop of splendid performers.

JUDGE AND COACH.

JUDGE WALTER P. STEFFEN of the Superior Court, all-American back and captain of the University of Chicago championship eleven of 1908, often is referred to as coach of the football eleven of Carnegie Institute at Pittsburgh. Officially, Judge Steffen is advisory coach, although he maps out the Carnegie offense and defense and the team is under his direction during its scheduled games.

How can one man combine judicial and athletic duties without slighting one or the other? Judge Steffen has solved it. We will explain what we know and then let him tell the rest.

"Wally" Steffen began coaching at Carnegie in 1914. He was a success. Although having smaller enrollment, Carnegie, under his tutoring, recorded frequent victories against Pittsburgh, its principal rival. Steffen had become a coaching fixture when he was elected to the bench in Chicago.

Carnegie was in a dilemma. Alumni asked him to name his own figure to remain, offering to outbid his salary as judge and suggesting he practice law in Pittsburgh, thereby adding more to his income. But Steffen valued his new honors and realized law was his profession. He declined.

Then Carnegie asked him to try his luck as advisory coach with what time he could give. He accepted with misgivings. But Carnegie beat Pittsburgh in 1923 and 1924, and beat W. and J., another formidable rival in 1919, 1922, and tied in 1923.

That's the part The Wake knows. But how he did it, we couldn't quite grasp so we wandered over to the County building one day at the noon recess and asked him. Removing his judicial robe, Judge Steffen replied:

"I take my vacation the latter part of August and until court resumes sessions about Sept. 20. I go to Pittsburgh and become acquainted with my material. We practice and build the foundation of our game, both offense and defense. Thus I have several weeks with the team. When court convenes in Chicago, I return to the bench and no longer am Carnegie coach but simply advisory coach. Meantime I have left behind with my assistant diagrams of more complicated plays to be learned.

"We have no court on Saturday. So on Friday night, I take a train and am on the scene the next morning. We go over the tactics for the day. I sit on the bench. Observing what happens, I make suggestions for the following week's practice and our next opponents, perhaps giving new plays or variations of those we have. That night I take the train home and am with my family on Sunday morning with a day of rest before returning to court on Monday.

"I enjoy football so much that I get from my day in Pittsburgh the relaxation which other judges obtain from their golf or motoring or week-end in the country."

So that's how a man can be a judge and an advisory coach at the same time.

Poetry.

'Tis but a half developed thought
That while it passes leaves behind
A subtile essence that is caught
And fixed in some poetic mind;
Is caught and wove in pleasing rhyme,
And closely held in thralldom sweet,
Then to heart music set in time,
And mirrored in a mind replete
With qualities that easily give Expression to poetic thought,
Which afterward in print doth live
In glowing words with pathos fraught.
The world bows to the tuneful lay,
And thus his simple, pleasing rhyme,
Although the bard has passed away,
Goes sounding down the halls of Time.

This Effeminate Age.

Dear Harv: This here game of football is going to the dogs fast. Back in the good old days we used to uphold tradition by repairing to a handy vacant lot with two trees at one end and rig up an embalming parlor at the other. If real estate values prohibited the use of such a lot, we played in the stone quarry.

First class goal posts were erected by pressing into service the crutches of incapacitated members from the week before. The referee was the town's bad man. At his whistle the crowd was treated to rival schools' versions of assault, mayhem, and near-murder. If the casualty list did not meet expectation of fans, they demanded their two bits back and got it. And the only press agent in our day was the coroner. Chicago '93.

College Department.

Dear Wake: Did you notice the new lease of football life taken by De Paul university, under guidance of Eddie Anderson, in the season just ended? The "Demons"—most of them were "D" men—evened up a lot of old scores.

There was real class on the eleven. Capt. Harold "Count" Gaffney was given mention on Eckersall's all-western in 1924 and played even better this year. Kelley, full back, was another ace. Dowling, at end, perhaps is relatively better than either.

When the freshman rule next year gives a better schedule, come out and look 'em over, Harve, and you will realize all the game's stars are not performing before 35,000 spectators. TAX.

REISELT, HALL DIVIDE IN FINAL 3 CUSHION GAMES

Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia and Allen Hall divided their final National Three Cushion Billiard games at Mussey's Madison street room yesterday. The visitor annexed the afternoon contest, 50 to 47, in 43 innings, while Hall gathered a 50 to 43 victory in the evening. Hall made the highest run, a 7 in the afternoon. Reiselt's best was 6, which also came in the afternoon.

K. OF C. CAGE GAMES SHIFTED TO LARGER GYM

Four Feature Contests on Today's Program.

Because of constantly increasing attendance central division games in the Knights of Columbus Basketball league will be played at the 131st regiment armory, 16th and Michigan, starting today. The Fort Dearborn-De La Salle clash will feature central division program.

In the southern division Auburn Park and McHale will meet in the leading attraction at the eighth regiment armory.

Marquette and St. Cyr headline the northern section bill at the Broadway armory, while Barry and Feehan are scheduled to pop the fireworks in the western division at the 132d regiment armory. Today's schedule:

CENTRAL DIVISION—Fort Dearborn and De La Salle, St. Patricks and St. James, Sheridan and Hughes, Madonna and O'Connell.
NORTH DIVISION—University and De Sota, Marquette and St. Cyr, Brownson and Hennepin, Ravenswood and Lafayette.
WEST DIVISION—Barry and Feehan, Carroll and Setters, Hildebrand and Tonti, Dames and O'Connell.
SOUTH DIVISION—La Rabida and Bowling, Aquinas and Englewood, Loyola-Hyde Park and Peres, McHale and Auburn Park.

FOUR HORSEMEN ELEVEN BEATEN BY POTTSVILLE

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Eleven thousand spectators today saw the Four Horsemen fall in defeat before the Pottsville Maroons. The lads from the coal country won, 9 to 7, in one of the greatest pro football games ever seen in the east.

The game was decided in the final period with only three minutes left. From the 30 yard line, Berry kicked a field goal that brought victory to the Pottsville eleven. Lineup:

GRANGE WANTED FOR VAUDEVILLE ACT IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Harold Grange may yet be seen in vaudeville in an act scheduled to begin March 1. Charlie Morrison is making strenuous efforts to land him for the two-a-day houses. The Hippodrome would like to surround Red with a Foster ballet for a week or two, with girls doing a football chorus scene of some kind. With the "Hip" engagement assured, other dates would be easy to obtain.

Stop and consider—use your own judgment—why so many men who can afford to pay much more for cigars disregard the low price of WHITE OWLS and judge them solely by their amazing quality. Figure it out for yourself. Every commercial success has been made through giving far greater value at smaller profit. And in the cigar field there is no more outstanding success than WHITE OWLS. A million a day to meet the demand of those who choose this cigar by preference alone!

This vast popularity benefits the smoking public in quality as well as in price. It builds enormous purchasing resources which enable the manufacturer to buy up and store tremendous quantities of the best tobacco the market affords.

No better proof of this can be offered than the WHITE OWLS that are being smoked today. Great purchases of tobacco from the finest crop in years have added a new sweetness, a new mellowness to a cigar so universally liked and praised that improvement seemed impossible.

—why White Owls are now tasting better than ever

THE tobacco now being used is from the sweetest, mellowest crop in years . . . and WHITE OWL is giving you the full advantage of it.

MICHIGAN COMES FROM BEHIND TO WIN 32-27 GAME

Ohio Wesleyan Five Gives Wolverines Scare.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Michigan's basketball team barely squeezed out a 32 to 27 victory over Ohio Wesleyan tonight, coming from behind in the last few minutes of play to win. Michigan led through most of the first half, but Wesleyan came up and finished the half in the lead, 16 to 13.

Harrigan starred for the Wolverines with 16 points, while Turney led the Ohio team with 12 points. A crowd of 8,000 persons turned out to see the opening game here. Lineup:

ILLINI NIP BUTLER

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—The University of Illinois basketball team dedicated its new $250,000 gymnasium with a thrilling 23 to 22 victory over Butler college tonight. Six thousand two hundred fans jammed the structure for the opening game of the season. Butler broke loose with a sensational rally in the closing period after the Illini had led, 18 to 5, at half time. Three field goals by Keach and two by Chadd brought the Hoosiers within one point of Illinois, while Coach Craig Ruby's reserves were in the game. Lineup:

GOPHERS EASY FOR N. D.

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's basketball team, flashing a passing game which completely dazzled Minnesota, swamped the Gophers tonight, 36 to 14, before a crowd of 3,500. Capt. McNally, Clem Crowe, and Nyikos each scored four field goals for Notre Dame. Racey was Minnesota's star.

OHIO STATE VICTOR

Columbus, O., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Ohio State's basketball quintet was battled to a standstill by Ohio university tonight, but won, 33 to 27. It was Ohio State's first game of the season. Ohio university lost the game because of rough tactics, the Buckeyes scoring fifteen points on free throws.

St. Philip's Basket Team to Play Monons Tuesday

The two teams that established the high scoring record for basketball in America last season will meet next Tuesday night at St. Philip's gymnasium, Jackson boulevard and Kedzie avenue, when St. Philip's and the Monons of Lafayette, Ind., clash. These fives went into the third round of the National A. A. U. championship series at Kansas City last season and are regarded as two of the strongest in the middle west.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Edward Fiechier, 4651 West North avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you go to see the team or the individual star when you attend a professional football game?

Where Asked.

Adams at Dearborn street.

The Answers.

B. L. Maller, 7539 Kingston avenue, salesman—Under average circumstances I go to see the team play as a unit. In the case of Red Grange or stars of his caliber, I attend to see them perform. Pro football is like any other form of entertainment which advertises a headliner: People want to see stars about whom they have read so much.

J. W. Davis, 1415 Otto street, engineering department, Lincoln park—I want to see the team play, not the individual work of some great star. Of course, Red Grange's drawing power boosts the attendance at the Bears' games, but if Red wasn't connected with the north side club I'd attend the games anyway.

Clarence White, 6532 South Lincoln street, clerk — My attention is centered on the whole team, not the capabilities of one player. He couldn't do a thing if he didn't have the support of his teammates. A pro team is composed of stars. What does one player count?

Anton Lugo, 12239 Lowe avenue, messenger—I go to see the team, not the individual star, when I attend a pro football contest. I lose interest in a team which takes an outstanding star and press agents him to death. It hurts the game. The true fan follows team play, which was exemplified last year when Knute Rockne developed that great Notre Dame eleven.

M. E. Wesala, 2024 Howe street, deputy clerk—My interest in attending a pro grid game is not in the individual star but the play of the entire team. The pro outfit is an all-star aggregation and I think fans who go to see the individual star do his stuff know little about football. They are just out for a thrill. The real enthusiast wants to witness the team play.

Canadian Woods Give Walker K. O.; He's Lost 2 Days

Halifax, Dec. 12.—(AP)—For forty-eight hours ending last night fears were entertained that the Cape Breton woods had done what many fighters had failed to do—knocked out the world's welterweight champion, Mickey Walker.

Walker has been spending a vacation with the officials of the Oxford Paper company in the most isolated section of Cape Breton. He went out hunting Wednesday afternoon and did not return at nightfall. The business of cutting pulpwood was abandoned while the workers joined in a hunt for the fighter. Arrangements were being made to put bloodhounds on the scent last night when word came from a camp saying Walker had arrived there safely. He had found an old deserted log cabin in the woods and had built a fire and made himself comfortable.

A. JENSEN WINS FIFTY BIRD SHOOT AT LINCOLN TRAPS

A. Jensen won the fifty target singles event, feature of the regular Saturday gun program at the Lincoln park traps yesterday afternoon. Although D. E. Thomas and O. Johnson tied with the winner in the regular round, breaking 47 clays each, Jensen won the shootoff. He broke 25 straight birds for victory. The others broke 24 each. Other high scores were:

C. Pike, 46; Ford Carter, 45; Grover C. Alexander, 44; T. Cook, 44; G. Grosvenor, 44; H. A. Henry, 42; Edward Swift Jr., 41; Dr. L. J. Frey, 40; J. Beymer, 39; Dr. Blake, 39; F. R. Etchen, 39; E. Ferguson, 36.

Roseland Panthers and Pullman A. C. Mix Today

Rivalry between two neighboring pro grid squads, the Roseland Panthers and Pullman A. C., will break out again this afternoon at 115th and Halsted streets. The Panthers depend upon the talents of Ira Young, Bill George, and Paul Fiske to carry them to victory, while the chief strength of the Pullmans is in Chuck Hanley, Minnie La Forest, and Gawronski.

RECORD PRICES AT SALE CHEER TROT LEADERS

Chicagoan Pays $10,000 for Justice Brooke.

A tremendous boom in harness race interest is seen in the successful Old Glory auction which has just closed in New York.

A total of 440 standard breds were disposed of at the sale for the record receipts of $360,000. It was almost $100,000 more than the receipts of the same sale last year, when a greater number of horses went under the hammer.

The fourth highest price ever paid for a stallion in the history of the sale was brought in by Chestnut Peter, 10 year old chestnut, the amount being $29,000. Chestnut Peter, which is by Peter the Great and Dorothy Axworthy, was purchased by the Walnut Hall farms of Donerail, Ky., from Charles W. Leonard of Beaumont farm, Boston.

Yearling Brings $10,600.

Hardly had the exchange of comment regarding the sale of Chestnut Peter began to subside, when Kitty Volo, a yearling, was sold for $10,600, the second highest price ever paid for a yearling at the Old Glory sale. Kitty Volo is by Peter Volo and Katie O'Neill, and went to S. R. Norman of Washington, D. C. The Walnut Hall farms sold Kitty Volo.

Mr. Straus purchased Bob Armstrong, one of the get of Chestnut Peter, for $5,000, after a conversation with Mr. Tranter, in which the latter said that possession of a fine horse would make a man feel many years younger. Mr. Straus agreed and soon after bid $5,000 for Bob Armstrong. When the animal was knocked down to him at this price he laughingly remarked that he felt ten years younger already.

The only horses to bring a higher price than Chestnut Peter at an Old Glory sale are Bingen, sold in 1904 for $32,000; Todd, sold in 1907 for $30,000, and The Harvester, sold in 1917 for $30,100. William Bradley bought Todd and Paul Kuhn purchased The Harvester.

Chicagoan Buys Justice Brooke.

Two notable sires were among the offerings reserved for the closing day. One of these, Justice Brooke, 2:08½, is the sire of last year's sensational trotter, Tillie Brooke, 1:59, as well as seventeen others in the 2:10 list. He is 17 years old, but looks only half that age. He was sold by the executors of the late Philip Hoeffner of Montgomery, N. Y., and was purchased for $10,000 by W. M. Wright, the Chicago baking powder king, who bred Peter Manning, 1:56¾ and who recently established Calumet farm, near Lexington, Ky.

Ortolan Axworthy, 2:07½, the other prominent stallion sold, was consigned by Mr. Tranter and was purchased for $5,500 by Peter Goode, of Goshen, N. Y., who has been buying for export to Europe. The fourteen year old son of Axworthy, 2:15½, is the sire of Doctor Strongworthy, 2.04¼, and many other fast ones. Thirteen yearlings by him were sold for $3,780, an average of $291.

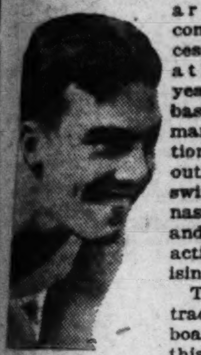
WINTER SPORTS ARE BOOMING AT THE MIDWAY

Basketball and Track Hold Major Interest.

Interest in winter sports at the University of Chicago indicates that Maroon partisans are hopeful of considerable success in the indoor athletics this year. Track and basketball command chief attention, though the outlook for the swimming, gymnastic, wrestling, and other minor activities is promising.



JIMMY CUSACK.

The Midway track squad will boast few stars this year, Capt. Jimmy Cusack being the only man who is doped to stand out in the conference meeting. There is enough talent on the team, however, to enable the Maroons to give most conference squads a good run in dual meets.

Spence Lost to Squad.

In the 50 yard dash McKinney and Kernwein, letter man, are the outstanding candidates, though two sophomores, Wadell, formerly of La Grange, and Metzenberg, a Hyde Park High product, may contribute some points. McKinney, Wright, and Wadell are scheduled to run the hurdles for Chicago. Coach Stagg will not have his star, John Spence, in the 440, the former St. John's academy speed merchant having been ordered by the athletic department physician to stay out of competition for a while. Jim Cusack, Lester Field, Mickleberry, and several sophomores will fill the gap.

In the half, Cusack and Don Kelso, former Oak Parker, are relied on, while Pete Duggan, John Cusack, the captain's brother, and Owen, cross country captain, will compete in the mile run. Hegovich and Owen will run the two mile grind.

Purdue First Opponent.

In the high jump, Burg, Kyle Andersen, Cody, and Althine will represent the Maroons, Webster and Burg being scheduled for the pole vault, Hobscheid, Duval, Olwin, and Krogh, all football men, are slated for the shot, Hobscheid and Duval being the brightest prospects.

The Maroons will engage in their first meet against Purdue on Jan. 30.

Strength in the relay will be a big aid to Chicago's natators, weakness in this event having handicapped them for several years. With Capt. Petrolowitz, Gilchrist, Hall, Jelinek, and several other men to rely on, Coach McGillivray is likely to produce an able water polo team in the first year that the game is to be played in the conference.

Coach Hoffer's gymnasts are developing skill, though the team is lacking in such all around turners as it had last year in Capt. Van Vactor.

The cage squad, late in getting started on its drill, is rapidly rounding into form, speed and height being combined in the candidates to afford good material on which to base prospects for high standing.

U. S. Women's Tennis Team to Invade Britain

New York, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—A woman's team of four players will be sent to England next June to challenge for the Wightman cup, and also play in the English championships at Wimbledon. This decision was reached at the annual December meeting of the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association, held today at the Hotel Vanderbilt.

A recommendation was made and approved that two of the leading men players of the country be sent to play at Wimbledon. Wimbledon will celebrate its jubilee in 1926, marking the fiftieth anniversary of the English championships, which, until a few years ago, carried with them, unofficially, the world's championship.

Helen May Meet Suzanne.

Miss Helen Wills, the National women's champion, is leaving for Europe shortly after the start of the new year, and will engage in tournament play in the Riviera season. The long anticipated meeting between the Berkeley girl and Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen of France is expected to take place before the winter is over, and it is probable they may face each other at Wimbledon.

As the national champion, Miss Wills, of course, will be the No. 1 player on the American women's team that will meet the British in the fourth match for the international trophy.

Others Who May Go.

The other members of the team will be selected from Mrs. Molla Mallory and Miss Eleanor Goss, both of New York; Miss Mary K. Browne of Santa Monica, Cal., and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del. It is possible that Miss Elizabeth Ryan, who returned to the United States from England last summer, after an absence of thirteen years from her native land, also will be named on the team.

While it was expected that the U. S. L. T. A. would send a team to England, the action of the executive committee was necessary before the step could be taken.

LINDBLOM, LANE, SENN IN FIGHT FOR SWIM TITLE

Prelims Held in Tank of Chicago U.

Lindblom, Senn, and Lane Tech High schools will vie for honors in the eleventh annual city public high school indoor swimming championships next Saturday at the University of Chicago pool. In the preliminaries yesterday at the Midway tank paddlers representing these schools placed heavily, which will result in battles between Lane and Senn in the junior class and between Lane and Lindblom in the senior division.

Senn qualified ten juniors and Lane eight swimmers, indicating a hard fight for the title. The Techs made the best performances in three individual events and in the relay. Senn had the best time in two events.

In the senior class Lane qualified nine against six for Lindblom, but the latter school is almost certain of three first places to Lane's two in the individual events. The relay, in which Lindblom recorded the best time, may decide the winner.

Schwartz of Marshall and Peterson of Lindblom were the outstanding performers among the seniors. The Marshall star bettered the record in the 40 yard swim and easily was the best of the 100 yard free style paddlers. Lindblom's ace lowered the records in the 100 yard breast stroke and the 20 yard head carry. The qualifiers, in the order they finished, follow:

THE SPORTING GOODS
By WESTBROOK PEGLER

THERE GOES FOOTBALL.

There goes football.

There was no reason to scream for police when some of the most noted varsity players of the season received large offers from promoters of professional football.

WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Amateurs have become professionals before and the game hasn't suffered noticeably. Furthermore, there's no reason to assume a snippy attitude toward the professional game. Honest professionalism is no shame.

But when the amateur begins to twiddle the spacebar and toy with the uppercase I on the typewriter, inditing first person pieces about himself, there goes football the way tennis went.

Even if the player does compose his own literature, as he probably doesn't, having too much else to fill his time, it's still a fact that its only value consists of the athletic fame of the name above it. The best critics doubt the literary value of a piece in which a famous athlete takes a half column to say what he likes for breakfast or what he thinks of the Charleston and what with.

One may argue that these compositions are valuable, coming from prize examples of the physical life. But if that were the motive, then we would be bombarded with personal essays by dirt farmers and ditch diggers who lead a physical life the year around, whereas the athlete's exertions are seasonal.

The case is no more sanitary even if the actual writing is done in competent style by journeymen writers. It is no more sanitary even though the most illustrious name that ever adorned the game of football also adorned many columns of literature that was turned out by newspaper men who often furnished the ideas as well as the labor.

When the star of the game puts his name on the counter, you have snide amateurism and bunk journalism, and there goes football.

WITH ROD, OR GUN.

The National Prize Fighters' union, which might be described as a Cauliflower Kiwanis, is much disturbed by the increase of armpit artillery in the profession. The union is pledged to an upward-and-onward program, and in this ethical crisis, the older members are agreed that steps should be taken. But nobody wants the doubtful and, perhaps, fatal honor of taking the first step.

It may seem strange that the prize fight profession should recoil from the presence of rough characters in the craft, but it is even so. Prize fighting at heart is a gentle business, you will hear from such a kindly and upright member as Charles Harvey, who has grown elderly with a conspicuous reputation for the cleanliness of his speech and his business methods.

The Cauliflower Kiwanis views with alarm the invasion of the profession by an element drawn from the bootlegging profession and even from the wholesale and retail narcotic trades. Accustomed to fighting in their line of work, captains of these industries have been attracted to the prize fight trade as a gentle relaxation from the more serious strife of their special fields.

And whereas, in the past, the most formidable business implements of the prize fight profession were the chisel and the razor, for trimming or slicing the dough, nowadays the rod, or gun, is becoming ominously evident.

There are quite noisy whispers to the effect that at least two combats of the summer season were decided more by the influence of the shooting utensil, ill concealed in a holster slung beneath some tough guy's armpit, than by the influence of well-driven knuckles.

A noted Cauliflower Kiwanian, of conservative leaning, deplores the fact that tough guys seem to have mistaken the ring for the field and stream. The ring, he maintains, is not the place for the rod, or gun. He wishes somebody would banish the tough guys from the profession or racket before the racket itself is banished by law, which would be no new experience, but a sad one, nevertheless.

"But," he stipulates, "a man who has always done business with the honest chisel and razor does not wish to go after the tough guys who use the rod, or gun."

ELKS TO BUILD COUNTRY CLUB NEAR WHEATON

Oak Park and River Forest Lodges Join in Plans.

Members of the Elks lodges of Oak Oak Park and River Forest and other western suburbs of Chicago are building a golf and country club all their own. The newest addition to the local golfing colony is to be known as the Antlers Country club, and the club is located south of Wheaton on the Butterfield road.

Plans for the club call for a modern and complete plant, with an eighteen-hole golf course, tennis courts, handball courts, volley ball courts and swimming facilities with a real sand beach on one of the two lakes on the golf course. There also will be room for a few cottages.

Lee Murray, who has been professional at the Galewood public fee course for two years, will be in charge of the links. Murray has been working with the contractors in the building of the course, and yesterday declared that the full eighteen holes will be ready by June 1. Nine holes will be ready by May 1.

The golf course is laid out in such a manner that there is room for eighteen more holes if the membership of the club, which will be closed when the 350 mark is reached, is ever extended.

James J. Lalla is president of the new club; Frank N. Smith, vice president; Phil C. Griffin, treasurer, and Fred H. Torbeck, secretary.

The board of directors consists of: John Wymond, chairman; James J. Lalla, Frank N. Smith, James Finn, Phil C. Griffin, Fred H. Torbeck and Edward G. Roberts.

Roberts is also chairman of the grounds committee, and has been in active charge with Murray of construction work.

LAKE SHORE CLUB WILL STAGE ICE RACES ON DEC. 27

Oneill Farrell, winner of the Silver Skates Derby last year, and Harry Kaskey, who has been recently restored to amateur standing, will be among those who will compete in the North Shore Outdoor Amateur championship tourney to be held by the Lake Shore Skating club Sunday, Dec. 27, at their rink at Clarendon, Leland, and Lakeside avenues.

This meet will officially open the outdoor skating season and promises to draw a large entry list of brilliant skaters. Farrell, along with his teammates, Edward Murphy and Henry Nelsen, will represent the Midwest Athletic club. Kaskey will wear the colors of Loyola university.

Entry blanks can be obtained at the Lake Shore rink or from Otis J. Taylor, secretary, 64 West Randolph street. Entries will close Wednesday, Dec. 23.

Hoosier Grid Teams Finish Cards for '26

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Representatives of the Indiana Intercollegiate conference in an all day session here today more clearly defined the one-year, freshman, and migratory eligibility rules as used in the Western conference, and filled most of the gaps in their 1926 football schedules.

Purdue still has Oct. 2 open, but otherwise the Boilermaker schedule is: Oct. 9, Wabash at Lafayette; Oct. 16, Wisconsin at Lafayette; Oct. 23, at Chicago; Oct. 30, De Pauw at Lafayette; Nov. 6, at Northwestern; Nov. 13, Franklin at Lafayette; Nov. 20, Indiana at Lafayette.

Indiana Card Complete.

The Indiana schedule is complete with De Pauw and Kentucky at Bloomington; at Northwestern; at Wisconsin; Northwestern at Bloomington; Indiana, at Notre Dame; Mississippi A. and M., at Bloomington, and Indiana, at Purdue, on consecutive Saturdays.

Notre Dame probably will open Sept. 25 before playing Drake Oct. 2, and then play at Minnesota; Penn State at South Bend; Northwestern at Evanston; Georgia Tech at South Bend; Indiana at South Bend, and the Army at New York. Nov. 20 and 25 are open on the Irish card. Notre Dame goes to Southern California Dec. 6.

Butler's schedule is: Sept. 25, Earlham here; Oct. 2, Hanover here; Oct. 9, at Illinois; Oct. 16, Franklin here; Oct. 23, De Pauw here; Oct. 30, open; Nov. 6, Wabash here; Nov. 13, at Minnesota. An eastern eleven will close the year.

Wabash to Play Big Ten Teams.

De Pauw may get a September trial horse before meeting Indiana Oct. 2. The remainder of the Tiger schedule is: Oct. 9, Hanover; Oct. 16, Earlham; Oct. 23, Butler at Indianapolis; Oct. 30, at Purdue; Nov. 6, Franklin; Nov. 13, Illinois Wesleyan; Nov. 20, Wabash.

Wabash will probably have four Big Ten opponents again, but has scheduled only one home game, State Normal, Oct. 16. Other Scarlet games are: Oct. 9, at Purdue; Oct. 23, at Minnesota; Oct. 30, at Iowa (tentative); Nov. 6, at Butler; Nov. 13, at Illinois (tentative); Nov. 20, at De Pauw.

BRUINS OPEN PRO CAGE CARD HERE ON WEDNESDAY

With three eastern pro cage stars already signed for the Chicago Bruins, George Halas and Lorrie believe Chicago will have one of the strongest teams in the American Pro Basketball league this season.

The Bruins open the home season next Wednesday night when they play Boston at the 132d Regiment armory, Rockwell and Madison streets.

Most noted of the new Bruins is Jimmy Campbell, one of the high scorers in the eastern pro league while a member of the Camden team during the last four years. Stretch Miller of the Atlantic City five is another Bruin star.

With Art Dexter of Syracuse, Jack Tierney, Duke Dunne and other basket stars yet to be announced, Managers Halas and Walquist see prospects of a successful season.

HOREMANS AND SCHAEFER CLASH AGAIN JAN. 4-6

New Billiard Champ Must Defend Title Here.

PETERSON TO REFEREE

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Charles C. Peterson of St. Louis today accepted an invitation to referee the world's championship balk line billiard match between Champion Edouard Horemans of Belgium and Jake Schaefer of Chicago, at Chicago, Jan. 4, 5, and 6.

Edouard Horemans, champion of the world at 18.2 balk line billiards, must look well to his game if he is to retain the laurels earned a fortnight ago when he defeated Young Jake Schaefer.

It was announced yesterday that the Belgian will have to defend his title early in January against Schaefer. The news aroused a furor of interest in the local billiard world.

Settle Row Over Referee.

The present champion will have to play three blocks of 500 points each for a total of 1,500 points. The matches will be staged in Orchestra hall on Jan. 4, 5 and 6. On the first two days the play will start at 8 p. m. On Jan. 6 the play will begin at 2 p. m.

The controversy which arose over a decision of the referee in the second block of their recent match, which was concluded under Schaefer's protest, and then only on the condition that, win or lose, another match would be played within thirty days, has been settled, and the two rivals will have a chance to fight it out all over again before Chicago fans.

Hagenlacher Is Challenger.

Should Schaefer win the coming match the title will revert to him, and he will have to defend it against Erich Hagenlacher in a 1,500 point match in Philadelphia in March. Should Horemans continue in the championship he will be compelled to meet Hagenlacher.

Both Schaefer and Horemans are playing exhibitions about the country, and both are said to be in good form.

CULVER QUINTET SWAMPS TILDEN BY 43-25 COUNT

Culver, Ind., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—The Culver Military academy basketball team opened its season this afternoon with a 43 to 25 victory over Tilden High of Chicago. Honors were even, 18 to 18, at the end of the first half. Suess, the lanky Chicago schoolboy, accounted for 11 points in the visitors' column in this half. Close guarding, however, held him to one field goal during the second half.

Birds Need Food and Shelter Now That Winter's Come

BY BOB BECKER.

One of the few "junco hotels" being operated along the shore of Lawe Michigan is now open for business and every night we watch the hardy little birds that check in for protection from the cold winds and a comfortable night's rest. This bird hotel is quite a simple thing. Any one can erect such a hostelry by growing a thick tangle of grapevines over a shed or high fence, thus forming a cozy bit of shelter.

Such a jungle of grapevines and other vegetation is found in our yard and for the last few weeks a shingle has been out telling the juncos that they're welcome. And they seem to like the lodgings provided, as along toward dusk we can stand near a window and keep tab on the birds fluttering into the place with a great display of their white outer tail feathers which are friendly signals to the bird fan.

This is the time of the year when the winter birds welcome both shelter and food. The latter is easy to provide during the cold months as anything from crumbs, suet and oatmeal to sunflower seeds and cracked corn helps to make the world go 'round for the juncos, jays, nuthatches, chicadees, cardinals, woodpeckers, and other species which one can attract to the back yard at this time of the year.

Suet seems to attract more birds than any other one food. Screech owls, hairy woodpeckers, downy woodpeckers, jays, juncos, nuthatches, chicadees and flickers more than go after the suet. Bread crumbs are liked by a number of winter visitors. Among the birds that are known to eat crumbs at a feeding station may be mentioned the tree sparrows, junco, cardinal, brown creeper, chicadee and white crowned sparrow.

One of the most attractive and serviceable feeding stations that can be put out at this time of the year utilizes the common cocoanut. Take a dried cocoanut and cut a hole two or three inches in diameter in the side of it. Then gouge out the meat from the top of the cavity exposed, allowing the meat to fill the bottom half. Suspend the nut in a tree near the house and your "cocoanut grove" bird restaurant is ready. The chicadees will have the time of their lives lunching at this café and they'll provide their own entertainment while dining.

Belgian Wins Mexican Welterweight Ring Title

Mexico City, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Arthur Schaekels, Belgian pugilist, tonight won the Mexican welterweight championship by getting the decision over Tommy White, who held the title for three years.

Lewis Will Match Grips with Labriola

Strangler Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Leon Labriola will meet in the windup of the mat show to be staged by Paddy Harmon in his Dreamland arena tomorrow night. It will be a finish match, best two in three falls.

Labriola is a big, powerful wrestler who has more than an average knowledge of the game. He knows how to apply the head lock and, like most Italians, can secure arm locks from any position, and he converts these ing short arm scissors.

Raeffaele Grenna, another Italian heavyweight, will meet Wallace Duguid in the semi-windup. Hans Bauer and Frank Le Mark will open the show in a one fall encounter, while Toots Mondt and Taro Miyaki, the Jap, will be the principals in the other match.

New Captains of Leading Grid Teams

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—In the elections of football captains for 1926 of college teams to date, among them the Big Three, eight of the Big Ten, Dartmouth, Notre Dame, and Alabama, the successful candidates are equally divided between the back field and the line. Notre Dame and Missouri have each picked two captains, which is believed to be a record, particularly in the case of Notre Dame, where both leaders are red-headed. However, they will command on alternate Saturdays, so no conflict is feared. The list:

REO MOTOR CAR COMPANY • • Lansing, Michigan

Come in and see it

It is a roomy, three-passenger Coupe, with the Reo 6 ground-cylinder motor and a 120-inch wheelbase, for only $1495.

It combines—as no other car in its price class does—eye-attracting beauty, three-passenger comfort, chassis reliability that outlasts the speedometer, and a price that gives new meaning to value.

It offers an exceptionally wide range of color selection—the two-tone Pyramid Gray and Desert Sand, Gulfstream Blue, Cuban Gray Simplex finish, and a number of others.

It is the only Coupe in its price class that has a torque-arm drive—an important factor in chassis reliability and low maintenance cost. The other Coupes with torque-arm drives cost at least $1000 more.

It is the only car in its price class that has double frame mounting for all major units—an important factor in long and quiet chassis life. The other Coupes that have this feature cost more than $5000.

Come in and see it.

This is the car that Jordan built with the all steel body.

Steel Body Saves Three Lives!

A JORDAN owner with a new Jordan Sedan started on a trip to Florida.

Down in North Carolina, with two passengers in the rear seat and the owner driving, they struck a hairpin turn on a strange road, crashed through a fence and rolled over a ninety foot embankment.

The car turned over and over—they do not know how many times—and landed at the bottom on all four wheels.

No one was injured. The new all steel, all vision Jordan body had saved the lives of the passengers in the car.

The only thing that could be found wrong with the car mechanically was that the front axle was slightly bent.

The car immediately started and was driven up the embankment under its own power.

It was then driven three hundred miles to Atlanta, Georgia and eight hundred miles back to the Jordan factory, without being touched anywhere for repairs.

Remarkable to relate, the glass on one side of the body was not broken. The doors could all be opened and closed.

What would have happened to the passengers if this car had been equipped with the old fashioned, wood-frame, steel-coated body?

It's the splinters that kill.

The Public Has a Right to Demand Safety

The time will come when the law will require motor car manufacturers to use the new all vision safety type body with the narrow pillars which protect the driver against obstructions to sight.

The time will come when the safety of passengers and pedestrians will be uppermost in the minds of all manufacturers.

The time will come when all motor car bodies will be all steel, all vision, for the same reason that the day is already here when all modern Pullman coaches are built in that way.

Ford, who builds for economy, gave the automobile industry its most significant contribution this year when he adopted the all steel type of body.

From the standpoint of style, the finest custom bodies at the Automobile Salon in New York—those exhibited by such style leaders as Rolls-Royce, Mercedes and Le Baron—were constructed exactly like the Jordan with the all vision front.

If the automobile buying public could have visited the Salon, and if they knew the preparations that are being made in the automobile industry for steel body production, they would know what we are talking about.

The public has a right to demand safety.

The public will insist upon the broadest vision and the utmost strength.

That is what Jordan has provided in the new Line Eight.

Sedan $1845—Playboy $1695. Jordan Sales have tripled.

Chicago Highway Meeting to Air Building Secrets

All Phases of Billion Dollar Industry on Program.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

AMERICAN highway builders are preparing to blow the political lid from the good roads industry and let the public in on every phase of its annual billion dollar transportation development.

Officials of the American Road Builders' association, the national body which includes both contractors and public road authorities in its roster, announced yesterday that all controversial matters in the road building game will be thrown open for public discussion and settlement for the first time during the international convention and highway show to be held in Chicago Jan. 11 to 15.

This means that such long avoided questions as the superiority of certain types of paving, methods of financing highway improvements, operating methods, standardization of equipment, and winter road construction will be fought out on the convention floor, as well as the more familiar questions of pavement widening, safety, and allied subjects.

The convention program now being framed by W. H. Connell, president of the association; Frank T. Sheets of Illinois, representing state highway officials, and Samuel Williams, representing road contractors, includes many subjects about which there is a wide divergence of opinion.

The future development of the automotive industry, which is so closely linked with highway improvement, will come in for greater consideration this year, because, notwithstanding that the federal government and the states, counties, and cities are now spending approximately $1,500,000,000 annually for new roads and streets, the highway program continues to lag behind the production of motor vehicles and the demand for paved roads. Highway engineers are as interested in ascertaining the saturation point in automobile production as are the automobile men themselves.

Other subjects to be discussed at the Chicago convention, according to President Connell and Charles M. Upham, state highway engineer of North Carolina, who is the convention manager, are: Highway location, routing highways through cities, highway safety, governing factors in the selection of pavement types, recent developments in the construction of concrete and asphalt pavements, highway operation and maintenance, snow removal, surface treatments for highways, making the contracting business profitable, estimating on road contracts, cost accounting for road building, contractors' qualifications, operating methods for contractors, increased costs due to improper fine grading methods, methods of handling road materials, how to stop cement overrun, and one sided clauses in public works specifications.

Among the other subjects that will receive serious consideration also are those of continuing federal aid funds for road building, salvaging old roads, the gasoline tax, tests for road building materials, detours, traffic regulation, highway finance and accounting, research, design, beautification, patrolling and policing, repair and maintenance, snow removal, and the latest methods entering into the construction of unsurfaced Portland cement concrete, brick, granite block, wood block, sheet asphalt, sand asphalt, asphaltic concrete, asphalt penetration, tar macadam, waterbound macadam, gravel, earth, and sand clay roads. The program will cover every phase of activity in road construction and maintenance, from the floating of the bond issue to laying the last strip of pavement, opening the road to traffic and maintaining the road through its life.

From 25,000 to 30,000 delegates from the United States and other countries will be in attendance. The governor of each American state and the mayor of each American city, as well as the county board of every county in the country, will appoint official delegates to attend.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Mrs. George Schwartz, 11 North Parkside avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

How would you go about making Chicago streets safer for both pedestrians and motorists?

Where Asked.

Adams and Dearborn streets.

The Answers.

Rocco Tamburino, 1613 West Ohio street, chauffeur — If Elston avenue from Lawrence to Milwaukee avenue were widened and other of the heavy traffic streets were also widened, many of the deaths that now happen on these pavements would be stopped. These streets are too narrow, and the paving is bad.

Herman H. Woeltjen, 835 Diversey parkway, deputy clerk, Circuit court—Remove the elevated supports from the middle of loop streets and make pedestrians observe the traffic rules in exactly the same way that motorists observe them, and we will find that loop streets can be made fifty per cent safer. Building tunnels or elevating the roadway at dangerous intersections would also help.

Bernard Lasinski, 5800 Calumet avenue, clerk—By building either subways or elevated roadways where our most dangerous intersection are now, the city could reduce traffic accidents. Many people will not walk downstairs to cross in subways, but if more were built, and their use made a law, they might be made valuable.

Sam Kanter, 2035 Haddon avenue, revenue collector—I believe that by building more subways at dangerous intersections, and by making pedestrians observe traffic laws both in the loop and in outlying districts, Chicago could immediately cut down its fatal accident toll.

Ben Feldman, 3525 Grenshaw street, court reporter—I believe that the only thing that can keep pedestrians and motorists separated is to build gates at every dangerous intersection to stop both pedestrians and automobiles when the traffic lights flash. The city must keep these two classes separated in order to stop accidents.

Motor Owners Pay for Final Links in Midwest Roads

Ten States Register More than Eight Million Cars.

THE ten states in the heart of the middle west have collected this year from auto owners two-thirds of the cost of building 1,000 miles of hard surfaced highways to link east and west, according to an Associated Press survey.

All but two of these states are now on a virtual cash basis, but these two, Missouri and Illinois, lead in the construction this year of permanent highways, largely concrete, with bond issue funds.

The eight million auto owners in these state have paid this year more than $61,000,000 in license fees and nearly $30,000,000 more in gasoline taxes. Illinois is the one state of the group which does not have a gas tax.

In Indiana the gas taxes exceed the portion of license funds available for road construction, this year's receipts being $6,191,552 from gas taxes and $4,621,286 from license fees. The tourists from other states have helped to swell the tax receipts, beyond the license total paid only by the Hoosiers.

Michigan, one of the leading tourist states, leads in the total collected from gas taxes with $7,500,000, but raised $13,500,000 from license fees through weight and other special taxes.

Federal aid funds added nearly $20,000,000 to the total available for trunk highways this year, which, added to the $90,000,000 contributed directly by auto owners, makes $110,000,000 of the approximate $150,000,000 spent this year in the central middle west for hard roads.

The most elaborate program of the year was in Missouri, which this year completed 944 miles of a 7,000 state program. This makes 5,400 miles of the network finished, including an "air line," from St. Louis to Kansas City, which is one of the largest direct roads in the world. It will be concrete surfaced throughout in 1927.

Some of the states, notably Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota, have finished this year almost as many miles of graveled roads as hard surfaced. These interconnecting roads bring the total hard road mileage in the ten states to 32,000 miles.

In the last year the number of auto owners in these states has increased nearly one-third, or about two millions, the approximate totals for 1925 being 8,191,155 cars and trucks. Ohio and Illinois alone are in the middle class, with Michigan, the home of many of the big auto companies, having an estimated total of 975,000.

English Landscape Cleared of Signs

Beauty spots in the English countryside are no longer to be disfigured by unsightly advertisements. For 18 years the advertisements regulation act, designed to protect landscapes from advertisements, has had a loophole which made it inoperative, but this has been stopped by an amending act which received royal assent on the last day of the recent parliamentary session.

Convictions and fines will now be the order of the day for any one disfiguring the landscape with offending advertisements.

QUEER HILL.

Magnetic hill, near Hollywood, Cal., is an optical delusion, and automobiles ascend with the power off. While it appears that it is an upgrade, it is in reality a 2 per cent down grade.

GETTING HABIT.

People of Guatemala are getting the automobile habit and many American cars are being purchased.

"and that one word is VALUE"

When an article of outstanding merit is offered to the public its success becomes immediate. And so it is with the latest Oldsmobile. Only one word can explain its quick acceptance and success:

"—and that one word is Value!"

Comparison and demonstration prove Oldsmobile's value. Increasing demand verifies it. Owner satisfaction confirms it.

Still another value-advantage is available to the man who buys an Oldsmobile on time through General Motors' own financing plan. GMAC rates, always the lowest, are now even lower. Let us show you the GMAC rate card and learn how easy it is to own an Oldsmobile!

Buyers Invest

in Hupmobile's finer eight-cylinder motoring

Less than a year ago the Hupmobile Eight brought to the public a new conception of really fine motoring.

The public quickly grasped the fact and the opportunity.

Right from the start, it made the Hupmobile the largest-selling straight eight in the world.

To date, buyers have invested $32,000,000, in round figures, in the Hupmobile Eight. Its first year is not yet completed, and the new year promises still greater volume.

You don't have to look far to find the reason why this Eight instantly won public preference.

People everywhere drove it for themselves and immediately recognized performance the like of which they had never before experienced.

Here at last was comfort linked with speed—all they wanted; captivating beauty; powerful, hair-trigger, pick-up; steering and braking of surpassing ease—with Hupmobile dependability, long life and economy.

Nothing more was needed to make the Hupmobile Eight a great car.

Drive it yourself, and do with it, easily and surely, the things you never before dared to do with any car.

It is particularly impressive that every woman who drives the Hupmobile Eight finds it the sweetest driving car of all she has ever known, and immediately says so.

THE first five hundreds miles are by far the easiest on this new winter route combination to the Pacific coast, but every mile of it will be passable this year in all except the worst weather.

The map uses the Dixie highway and Illinois pavement 25 south to Effingham, and the old National trail west and southwest to Los Angeles with a good option via El Paso and the Spanish trail.

All weather pavement leads to St. Louis and across Missouri where highway construction has closed all but one 20 mile gap in the run to Kansas City. Missouri highway 2 now offers 209 miles of completed pavement between the two Missouri cities.

Good graded dirt, gravel and pavement stretches take the road on to the coast.

Noise and Lagging Offend John Bull

One man was solemnly fined 10 shillings for whistling for a taxicab in London, while another was assessed 30 shillings at Epsom for "driving too slow."

The whistling offender used a little whistle to hail a passing cab at night, a violation of "Dora," as the war-time defense of realm act was called, and the Epsom automobilist was charged with refusing to go faster, thereby blocking motor cars wishing to pass his auto. The whistling law is a war-time regulation made permanent, and Judge Sir Charles Biron in passing sentence exclaimed: "I hope it will be recognized by all Londoners that whistling for cabs is not allowed. I don't suppose there is a more intolerable nuisance than this, making a hideous noise just when decent people are going to bed."

Southern States Improving Roads

That the southern states are rapidly forging to the front in the construction of new paved motor roads is indicated in reports of the state highway departments of the sixteen states of the south, which show that under their direction a total of $170,000,000 is available for new roads this year. Including the construction work already under way by counties and townships, the sums being spent in the south this year for road improvements will aggregate approximately $400,000,000.

What a $75,000,000 Combination Means to Moon Buyers

Moon is the product of a combination of the world's best automotive manufacturers. Their combined assets of $75,000,000 give Moon the advantage of quantity production of quality units. They insure Moon service in every part of the country, high re-sale value and the lowest possible factory cost per car.

These factors combined with Moon's close profit policy combine to give you the greatest quality car value on today's market.

This is proven by the fact that Moon sales have increased 50 to 100 per cent every month during the latter half of the year.

New savings due to this greater production are now passed on to you in reductions of $50.00 to $200.00 per car over Moon prices earlier in the season.

Now is the time to see this car and study its greater value from the point of view of today's purchase and tomorrow's usage.

The Gift of Gifts

No gift could possibly be more acceptable, or provide more happiness for both giver and receiver, than a Better Buick.

The cost is small when balanced against the pleasure this better motor car will bring to those you love.

If you are thinking of giving a Better Buick for Christmas, it would be a good idea to make your selection soon. We will have it waiting at your door when the sun comes up, on Christmas morning.

Here's a good thought just in time for Christmas. Give an Allen Shutter Front to your motorist friend. He'll surely appreciate the ALLEN SHUTTER FRONT with its beautiful black japan enamel finish, and its perfect fit—and the Allen is a real motoring necessity, too!

It quickly brings your motor to the right degree of heat for maximum operating efficiency. It saves gas and oil and minimizes wear and tear on your motor, caused by crank case oil dilution.

The cold days and nights are here. Don't forget that anyone can attach the ALLEN SHUTTER FRONT in a few minutes. The full opening which you find only on the ALLEN gives perfect radiation during all kinds of weather—should be used the year round.

15,000 Stand Erected!

Harris patented permanent garages as they are now equipped with Cellu-Seal insulator lining, new patented Roll-Away or Quicklock doors are by far the world's best garages and today's best buy. The heavy construction and ingenious patented features from foundation to roof make them stronger and more permanent—warmer in winter and cooler in summer. Erected complete on your lot in a day on No. 1 cedar posts. No extras to pay for—no muss around the yard—no chance of disappointment when your garage is completed.

And don't forget, more than 15,000 satisfied garage buyers before you, made these buildings their choice. Three designs are shown in this page. Go to the naborhood showyard nearest you (locations below), where you can see and examine the entire line. Twelve other models in fifty sizes to choose from.

Delivery Complete in 48 Hours

Built Strong and Warm

Harris Patented-Permanent garages are built for cold weather service. You'll never have to shovel your way in or out through the snow with the new Roll-Away doors. Simply roll them back along the wall, inside. Make it a point to come and see the heavy, tight construction of these buildings. Then examine the Cellu-seal air cell insulator lining which will retain the heat from the engine of your automobile for several hours. Other exclusive and patented features include extra heavy top and bottom wall plates, patented interlocking method of wall framing lumber. Clear kiln dried Oregon fir siding. Extra heavy corner post construction. Patented notch lock roof trusses—roof guaranteed to hold any snow load. Matched and beaded roof sheathing. Heavy "A" quality surfaced roofing. Patented, guaranteed no sag garage doors, painted both sides. Yale cylinder locks and best hardware. All garages painted one good coat.

MOTORDOM

Motor Factories Bet $100,000,000 on 1926 Demand

Used Car Problem Looms as Chief Worry of New Year.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—With but two weeks more to go before the dawn of a new year, and with all doubts removed that the current year will set a new high record for the automobile industry in the number of cars and trucks manufactured and sold, manufacturers are giving their attention to plans for 1926. If followed according to the schedules now being drawn up, the program will result in another new production record.

At least ten of Michigan's largest automobile plants have recently announced their intention of running at capacity throughout the winter months. In doing this, however, manufacturers are anticipating three factors—removal of federal excise taxes, expansion of America's highway program, and adequate relief for the automobile dealer in handling used cars.

Although the used car problem has been a serious one for the last several years, it is expected to be greater than ever before during the early spring months of the coming year. Almost every automobile sale, it is said, will involve the taking over of the purchaser's used car.

The program of the automobile industry as a whole calls for an expenditure of approximately one hundred million dollars for new buildings and installation of machinery. Much of this vast sum is now being spent or has already been spent. Of this great amount of money, Ford leads all other manufacturers with about $35,000,000, and a like sum is planned for 1926.

Additional manufacturing facilities will cost the Hudson-Essex concern about $10,000,000. This will include equipment for its own body plant. The Dodge Bros. corporation has nearly completed an $8,000,000 expansion program that will increase the capacity of the plant to 1,800 cars a day during the coming year.

The Buick plant, in Flint, will have completed a $2,000,000 expansion program by early spring, making possible a production of 1,200 cars daily.

Another indication of next year's activities in the passenger and truck industry is the increased steel orders being placed. The trend toward heavier outputs in 1926 has been felt first in the steel centers. Bankers claim that while Detroit factories form the thermometer of the automobile trade, the steel mills are its barometer.

A careful survey has brought out the fact that at the end of the current year carry-over will amount to perhaps half a million cars, which is about 13 per cent of the total production for the year. Stimulation of automobile sales by price cuts and new models during the months of August and September resulted in increased production by practically all manufacturers to meet the demand. Although they claim that they are guarding against overproduction, their increased output may also increase the carryover at the end of this month to a figure above that of 1923, which was approximately 500,000. Even so, unless manufacturers fall again into the error of early 1924 overproduction, which seems unlikely, such a carryover will not prove at all burdensome.

To the unenlightened, 500,000 cars in stock seems an enormous number, and perhaps indicates an inflated condition of affairs, and one liable to cause curtailing of output during the early months of next year. But it must be remembered that during the month of October General Motors corporation's subsidiaries sold 96,000 cars; also that in the two weeks' period following the public announcement of the new Ford models, orders received were upward of 200,000 passenger cars alone. Obviously this reveals a tremendous demand for automobiles, and that a 500,000 carry-over would not mean much to the manufacturers.

It is also the talk in some automobile circles that manufacturers are stocking dealers for the early spring rush which is anticipated.

During the early weeks of November it was generally estimated that automobile production this year would establish a new high record of better than 4,200,000 cars and trucks. Entering the final weeks of the year, and with more accurate data at hand it does not appear necessary to revise the estimate. The year will set a new production record.

The trend of demand towards closed passenger models is expected to continue until eventually 75 to 80 per cent of passenger car production will be closed models. This is being caused by the greater utility of the closed car, its better appearance, and the lowering of differences between closed and open model prices.

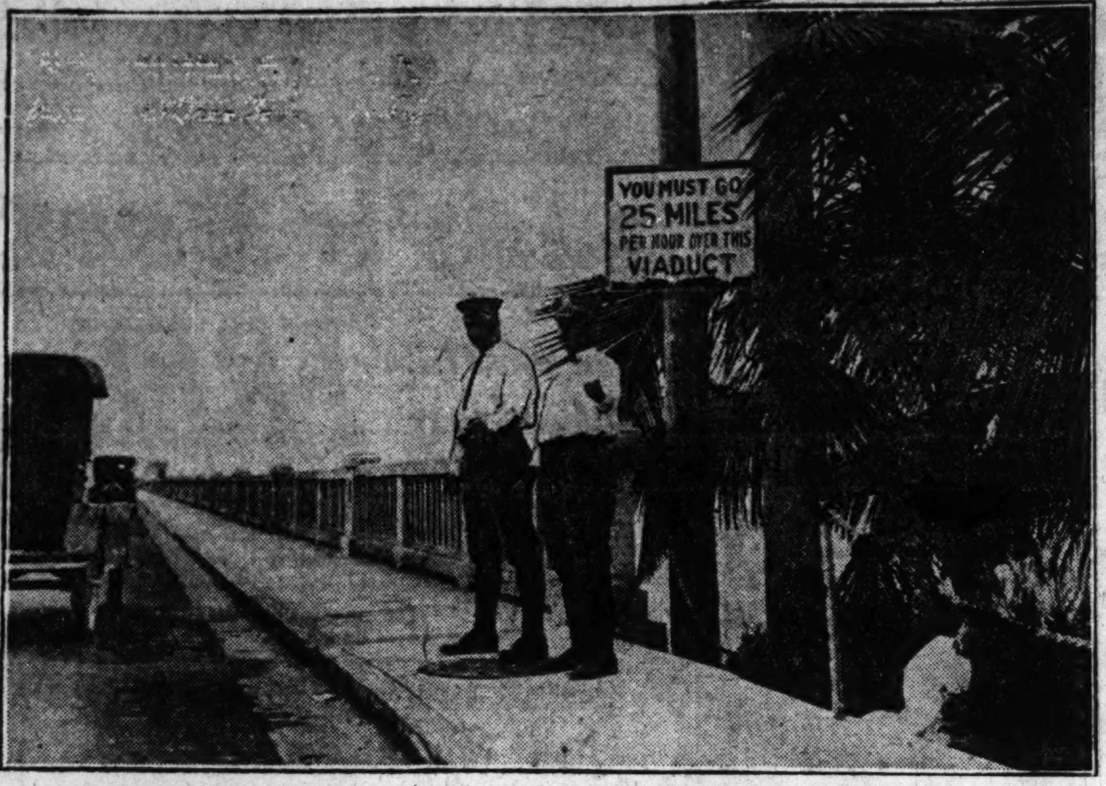
Keep Still.

Conversation is believed to be the greatest single cause of automobile accidents where passengers are being carried. The driver gets too deep into a subject that interests him, diverting his attention from driving. The less drivers and passengers converse, the better it is for all parties. A continual chatter on topics of the day is as dangerous as it is unnecessary and frequently leads to a collision or an upset in the ditch.

Accessory Boom.

A noticeable increase in the business of automotive parts, and accessories for the first nine months of the year, ran approximately 30 per cent ahead of the 1924 period and is expected to continue at about the same ratio for the final quarter. All such plants are keeping pace with the unprecedented activities of the automobile and truck industries at this season of the year.

STEP ON IT!



Speedy traffic is working out with remarkably few accidents to keep Miami streets and boulevards clear of congestion. Here is one view of the great causeway linking Miami with Miami Beach and plastered with a minimum speed limit of 25 miles an hour. Even at 25 the driver may find a motorcycle cop at his side demanding:

"What's the matter with that car? Can't it run."

If you assure him that it can, he'll tell you to "run it!"

Gossip of the Auto Trade

E. S. JORDAN of Cleveland, president of the company that bears his name, believes that the most significant development of the automobile industry came with the recent adoption of all-steel car bodies by various of the manufacturers. His opinion was justified the other day when a car carrying three passengers rolled down a ninety foot embankment in North Carolina, climbed up the bank on its own power, and was then driven 1,000 miles to the Cleveland factory to have the body straightened.

F. E. Moskovics, president of Stutz, is authority for the statement that the next three years will see more radical changes and advancement in automobile design than has been developed in the last decade. Following the annual salon in New York, he predicted that the development will be along the line of increased safety, with cars built much lower to the ground than ever before and equipped with better brake design, springs, and all other details in keeping with a real safety chassis.

The latest addition to the ultra modern automobile developments to feature the National Automobile shows in New York and Chicago is the "New Day" Jewett, just announced by the Paige-Detroit company. The new car is said to be perfectly adapted to present day conditions in American cities.

Exactly one week under the six months from the day the first car was built, factory workers in Racine celebrated the production of the 10,000th Ajax six.

The advent of the new Peerless "6-80" sedan brought about more public interest than announcement of any other model in the company's history, according to officials in the Cleveland plant. The new cars are being shipped by express to meet rush orders, according to Edward Ver Linden, president of the company.

Cadillac officials have announced production of the 200,000th car equipped with the V-type eight cylinder motor. The feature car was bought by Glenn N. Curtiss, noted airplane and hydroplane manufacturer.

Ocean of Gasoline Wasted Each Year

Statistics compiled by Prof. Alexander Silverman, head of the chemistry department of the University of Pittsburgh, disclose that automobile and truck drivers annually are wasting 385,270,200 gallons of gasoline. This waste is caused by permitting motors to run while the machines are standing still.

In addition to the gasoline waste the useless operation of the motors, declares Prof. Silverman, releases 257,864,120,400 cubic feet of carbon monoxide gas, which has caused numerous deaths.

Army of Riders Causes a Scarcity of Saddle Horses

Dealers Scour Country for Mounts to Meet Demand.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

RIDING horseback is becoming one of America's greatest indoor and outdoor sports. There is a greater demand today for saddle horses, hunters, and polo ponies than there has been for many years. In this country there are twenty-five or more big horse dealers who are scouring every section of the United States in search of good saddle horses to meet the increasing demand in small towns as well as the larger cities.

Automobiles drove the saddle horse off the streets of cities and towns and gave riding a temporary setback, but the horse is coming back stronger than ever, according to men who keep in close touch with the situation. When it became apparent that the horse had to leave the streets, stables were transformed into garages, but there soon came a time when men, women, and children wanted to ride. There was no place to do so except on crude bridle paths, poorly kept, and the rider was unprotected in attempting to cross streets buzzing with heavy automobile traffic.

Doctors Recommend It.

This condition, according to Harry McNair of Chicago, a judge at many of the best horse shows in the country, has been largely overcome. He says doctors throughout the country have recommended horseback riding to city people, especially business men. To meet the demand for animals and places to ride, riding clubs and academies have been established, bridle paths have been built through the city parks, and riding trails have been made through suburbs and timbered sections adjacent to large and small cities. In many of the smaller places clubs and bridle paths have been developed as a part of golf clubs.

At Kenosha, Wis., there is a club where horses are kept for those who want to ride as well as play golf. At Geneva, Ill., a community stable has been built, where riders from Geneva and Batavia keep their horses and prorate the costs.

Mr. McNair says that ten years ago a man wanting to take a ride could get only a livery horse, while today even in many small towns horses may be rented by the hour, day, week, or month. In many cities and towns men do not want to own their horses, but rent them from academies.

All of these factors, coupled with the fact that horse shows are increasing in number and are being improved each year, cause the demand for good horses throughout the country—for much better horses. Show horses have set high standards in the minds of the new army of riders. There are a great many more shown today at the big shows than a few years ago. Three big shows—the International, the National, and the South Shore Country club—have been held in Chicago this year.

"Winning horses," Mr. McNair says, "at the best shows in the country are bringing from $2,500 to $10,000, and in exceptional cases a great deal more. I know of a Missouri breeder who recently sold a three year old five gaited stallion to a woman in Los Angeles, Cal., at a reported price of $25,000. That is, of course, an extreme case, and the highest saddle horse price I know of, but this horse met and beat the best five gaited saddle horses, all ages, in the west and midwest.

"Untrained park horses can be bought at prices ranging from $250 to $350. A good park horse, trained so well that he can be sold with a guarantee, is bringing from $600 to $1,500. I'd give at least a third more for a horse well trained and ready for an amateur to ride than a horse which is only farm broke and untrained for the city bridle paths."

Part of College Sports.

Colleges and universities are now offering horse back riding to students as a form of athletics. Horses are available for the use of certain students at the University of Chicago and the University of Wisconsin, according to Mr. McNair.

Since riding has become an all year around sport, the demand for saddle horses no longer comes merely in the spring. Horse dealers are now buying and selling every month in the year. If men do not want to ride in the open there are indoor riding arenas in practically all of the principal cities in this country.

In the various localities there is a demand for different types of horses. In some places it is the saddle horse, others want the hunter type, and still others want the polo pony. In Cleveland and Detroit and within a radius of fifteen miles of each there are several hunt and polo clubs where from 100 to 200 horses are kept in each club's stables. Most of these are of the hunter and polo type.

Chicago in Lead.

Wayne Dinsmore of the Horse Association of America says the demand for saddle horses tripled and quadrupled since 1920, due to several factors. His organization has conducted a nation-wide campaign to interest people in horseback riding, polo and hunting.

There are more than 2,000 riding horses and between 8,000 and 9,000 riders, or four riders to every horse in Chicago. In the United States, Chicago ranks first in mileage and quality of riding paths and trails. In the city there are more than twenty miles of bridle paths and in the forest preserves near Chicago there are 175 miles of riding trails.

Boston has approximately 500 horses and 2,000 riders, ranking second with paths and trails. New York has 1,500 horses and about 7,000 riders. Philadelphia and clubs nearby have a total of more than 900 horses and about 2,700 riders. In Washington, D. C., there are from 700 to 800 horses, including the military mounts, and 2 500 riders. Los Angeles is swarming with more than 600 horses and 2,5[illegible] riders who are on the paths winter and summer, according to information gathered by Mr. Dinsmore.

"There is a fairly good supply of hunters and polo ponies," Mr. Dinsmore says. "The majority of men and women who ride must have tame horses, and saddle horses of that kind are scarce; the demand far exceeds the supply. Ours come chiefly from Missouri and Kentucky; polo ponies from the range states—Texas, Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana—where cow ponies are crossed with thoroughbred sires.

The Tribune manufactures and distributes 700,000 separate units of its product every 24 hours, between midnight and breakfast. There is probably no other business in the world in which so many individual orders have to be filled daily.

At the delivery end of each press unit an especially designed conveyor takes the printed Tribunes as they leave the press and delivers them at the rate of 10 a second on the floor above. This unique machine is the solution of one of the ancient problems of the newspaper business—getting the papers away from the presses as fast as they were delivered.

A Business which fills 700,000 separate orders daily!

BEHIND the fair exterior of Tribune Tower are unit upon unit of giant presses, the most modern, fastest-operating, probably the most efficient newspaper presses in the world.

At the touch of an electric switch the great rotors start to turn each night at 9:30, running off the first edition. As the printed Tribunes leave each of the sixteen press units specially designed conveyors receive them and deliver them at the rate of 120 a second in the Mailing Room on the floor above.

Like an army, these papers must be kept on the move. They are wrapped, addressed, and loaded into trucks as fast as the press delivers them.

Papers are piled up at the end of the fly or conveyor in bundles of fifty, where they are hurriedly taken off, carried to convenient tables for wrapping in paper containers already addressed. A conveyor belt carries the bundles to the dispatch tower. There the dispatcher directs them down the eight chutes at the ends of which are trucks and wagons waiting to carry them to the fast mail trains. Because The Tribune delivers so much in value for so little cost to its readers and advertisers its daily circulation has grown until it is 50% greater than that of the next Chicago paper. To meet this great strain on its delivery facilities The Tribune employs 150 men in its Mailing Room, 500 in its delivery service; it maintains 75 trucks and wagons, owns garages, an auto repair shop, a wagon repair shop, and a stable, and spends $2,000,000 yearly to get Tribunes to readers before breakfast.

The drastic break in hog prices was checked temporarily on the week-end session, when offerings were hardly large enough to fully test even a Saturday demand. Medium and weighty hogs which suffered the sharpest declines since a week ago sold to slightly better advantage yesterday. However, with buyers making a general "clean up" of the accumulation of lower priced stock, the average lowered to $10.40 in face of the stronger market for better grades of butchers. Top at $11.00 was on par with previous day's extreme close, but 25c under Friday's high time and 60c under the previous Saturday. Odd lots of 140@150 lb. averages at $11.10@11.25 was no criterion. Only 3,000, mostly pen holders, were left at the close. Shippers took 4,000, equal to the total fresh arrivals.

Hog receipts last week at 207,100 were the largest since February, but smaller than any corresponding weekly supply in over five years, being 51,300 under the five year average. The estimated average weight at 240 lbs was 1 lb lighter than the preceding week, but heavier than any corresponding period in over five years, comparing with a five year average of 230 lbs. The week's average at $10.80 stands within 5c of the lowest since the first week of February, but is $1.70 higher than a year ago and $4.10 above two years ago.

Cattle Market Erratic.

The cattle market was an erratic affair during the last week, breaking sharply under stress of excessive supplies during the first three days. A letup in supplies Thursday resulted in a slight reaction, but weakness appeared again at the close, with prevailing quotations on beef steers 50c@$1.00 under the close of last week. Common grades show only 25@50c loss. Cows closed 25@50c lower for the week, with heifers off 75c. Cattle receipts at 78,000 were largest since October. Prime 1,465 lb steers to Boston and Milwaukee buyers Thursday topped at $14.00, with yearlings averaging 1,021 lbs at $13.50 Tuesday. The average price of beef steers dropped to $9.65, the lowest since last February.

Lamb Market Erratic.

Urgent orders for fat sheep and lambs were curtailed as prices soared to new high marks for the season early last week, resulting in a drastic break, despite moderate supplies and prospects of comparatively small receipts in the near future. Lambs declined mostly 75c to $1.25 in four days, carrying top lambs down from $17.45 Monday to $16.60 Friday. Yearlings broke unevenly 75c to $2.00, with heavy off most. Yearlings reached $14.50 Monday, but best sold at $13.50 at the close. Aged sheep slumped 75c to $1.50. Two year old wethers reached $13.00 Monday, when matured stock brought $12.00. Good aged wethers sold at $11.00 Friday. Top ewes Monday $10.25, and Friday $9.50.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 28,000 cattle, 64,000 hogs, and 20,000 sheep, against 29,859 cattle, 43,050 hogs, and 10,616 sheep a week ago, and 28,848 cattle, 122,749 hogs, and 26,687 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 65,000 cattle, 220,000 hogs, and 80,000 sheep, against 62,828 cattle, 335,475 hogs, and 85,318 sheep a year ago.

District Manager—Bonds

An opportunity is open in our organization for a man who can show a successful record selling bonds to investors in the Illinois territory. The position will pay a very substantial salary in addition to a bonus on sales of men in the district.

A letter addressed to the General Sales Manager, The Straus Brothers Company, 10 South La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill., setting forth complete details of qualifications, will receive immediate attention and be held strictly in confidence.

FINANCIAL NOTES

An advance of 25 cents a barrel in the price of six grades of Pennsylvania crude oil was posted yesterday by leading purchasing agencies.

At least $500,000,000 of new money will be drawn into Canada as a result of this year's harvest, according to Sir Vincent Meredith, president of the Bank of Montreal, in his report at the board's annual meeting in Montreal. Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, general manager of the bank, said that Canada now has one branch bank for every 2,200 people, as compared with one bank for every 3,700 persons in the United States and for every 3,000 persons in Australia.

Montgomery Ward & Co. plans an addition to its Baltimore plant, which will add approximately 40 per cent to the mail order and retail facilities there. The plant was opened Aug. 1 and immediate expansion is made necessary by the fact that success has greatly exceeded expectations.

Figures from the leading cities of the country show bank clearings for last week of $10,425,925,433, an increase of about 5 per cent over the corresponding period last year, when total clearings were $9,931,052,902. New York City clearings showed an increase of 2.3 per cent.

Common stock of the Glidden company yesterday was restored to a $2 annual dividend basis through declaration of a quarterly payment of 50 cents a share. No dividends have been paid on the issue since 1921, at which time the 50 cent rate was in effect. The Auto Sales corporation resumed dividends on the preferred stock by authorizing a payment of $2.50 a share. The last previous dividend was paid in 1921.

RAILROAD NOTES

The revival of railroad equipment buying last week brought the largest orders in several months to manufacturers. In addition to the orders placed, inquiries for locomotives and freight cars have been received from the National Railways of Mexico, Florida East Coast Railway; Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, Mobile and Ohio, and Chicago and Eastern Illinois.

Reading has purchased 1,000 freight cars, divided 250 to Pressed Steel Car, 250 to Standard Steel Car, and 500 to Bethlehem Steel. The Pittsburgh and West Virginia has awarded an order for 400 steel gondolas and 380 composite cars to the Pressed Steel Car company. The Nickel Plate, the Chicago and Western Indiana, and the Lackawanna have placed orders for interlocking devices with the Union Switch and Signal company. Lehigh Valley has distributed orders on 1,100 freight cars, divided 600 to Bethlehem Steel and 500 to the American Car and Foundry. Orders aggregate about $2,200,000.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

AMERICAN CAR AND FOUNDRY.

For the six months ended Oct. 31 last net income was $2,107,918 after taxes and charges. This is the first semi-annual statement issued by the company. Net of $2,107,918 is equal after 7 per cent division to $1.76 a share on 600,000 no par common shares and compares with net income for the entire fiscal year ended April 30, 1925, of $6,164,104.

UNITED STATES STORES.

Gross sales for the four weeks of November, 1925, were $2,824,453, as compared with $2,626,080 in the same month of 1924, an increase of 7½ per cent.

WASHBURN CROSBY COMPANY.

For the eleven months ended June 30, 1925, net sales amounted to $92,007,355, and net income after interest and federal taxes was $1,854,990.

GENERAL OUTDOOR ADVERTISING.

Net earnings for the eight months that the company has been in operation totaled $2,037,000, while gross revenues aggregated $19,800,000. The amount available for common stock was said to be equivalent to $1.90 a share.

PACKING PLANT GUARDED AFTER MANY THREATS

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Authorities here today again surrounded the plant of the Chappel Brothers horse meat packing firm with guards, following receipt of a threatening telephone message by Ernest Chappel, official of the company, and the appearance of three suspicious characters near the plant. J. M. Pratt, county humane officer, also received a "mysterious call."

Frank Letts, who claims to be a Montana cowboy, and who was indicted by a special grand jury on a charge of attempting to dynamite the plant two weeks ago and for arson, as the result of his confessed firing of the plant in October, is demanding an early hearing, with the avowed intention of pleading guilty.

Police are hunting for an aged man, said to appear to be at least 70 years old, who told many persons here that he was a friend of Letts and that he "would see nothing happened to him." They believe that he may have some connection with the mysterious phone calls received by plant officials.

M'Cord Mfg. Co. Has Plan to Readjust Its Capital

The McCord Manufacturing company has sent to its preferred stockholders a plan which, if it is approved by the shareholders, will open the way to payment of accrued dividends on the present preferred shares. As of Jan. 1, 1926, the back dividends will amount to $35 a share. They will be liquidated by the issue of debenture stock.

The company plans to issue 13,250 shares of new 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock and a like amount of cumulative no par value debenture stock, which will have preference after the preferred stock as to assets and dividends. Exchange of the present preferred will be made on the basis of one share of each of these classes of stock for every share of preferred now held.

The new preferred will be placed on a $7.00 annual dividend basis and the debenture stock on a $2.00 annual basis. Application will be made to list these stocks on the Chicago Stock exchange.

The writeoffs necessary on obsolete plants and the company's desire to retire the collateral trust notes outstanding are given as the reason for conservation of cash on hand.

American Financiers Buy Interest in German Bank

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Acquisition of an interest in the Disconto-Gesellschaft bank of Berlin was announced today by Dillon, Read & Co. and their associates, who have purchased a large block of shares for investment. The institution is one of the so-called "D" banks of Germany, ranking with the Deutsche bank, the Dresdner bank, and the Darmstaedter National, and is interested in the management of more than 600 German corporations.

The Disconto-Gesellschaft before the war was instrumental in placing the securities of a number of foreign corporations in Germany, among which were the securities of the Pennsylvania railroad and other leading American companies. The issued capital stock of the bank is 100,000,000 reichsmarks.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Butter prices declined 1½c on Saturday to 46½c for extra creameries. Eggs were taken fairly at unchanged prices with supplies ample, and live hens sold at 24c, a drop of 1c.

In the potato market there was an easier feeling, with trading slow, but arrivals were only 61 cars with 153 cars on track.

LEECH DISCUSSES WORLD COURT IN TERMS OF TARIFF

BY HARPER LEECH.

With the notable exception of President Coolidge, who recently took occasion to reaffirm his tariff views in pointing out the very real stake of agriculture in protection, most of the prominent advocates of the world court have at one time or another expressed the view that our protection system is obsolete or that it must be profoundly changed in order to stabilize our present financial commitments in Europe.

Business men who benefit, or think they benefit, from a protective tariff have a right to consider this pertinent to their affairs. They owe a duty to themselves and to American industry to investigate very carefully the probable effect in the long run of American adherence to the world court on the fiscal policies of Hamilton—the policies which have made us.

Although it contains one of the prohibited methods of discussion, the old proverb "birds of a feather, flock together" expresses a rule of life that we all follow—that sensible men know contains truth, even if it does not fit the artificialities of formal logic.

To this writer it is almost inconceivable that European politicians, as hard pressed as they are for popular poses, would not take advantage of our adherence to the court to raise the question in some manner of the effect of our protective duties on their affairs. Of course, we could call it a domestic question, but adjectives are no good in certain situations. What we consider domestic as applicable to us, isn't a domestic question in that sense, when we deal with Nicaragua. We will probably wake up, if we get into the court, to find that it is easier to keep things "domestic" in one situation than another.

American prosperity is very offensive to a very large section of the penmen and politicians of other countries. The success of our capitalism is a standing reproach to their anti-capitalistic policies—a rebuke to the decadent and socialistic bias of most European literary craftsmen.

The fact that we have violent boosters and even partisans in Europe only makes the opposition to us more envenomed.

The British Federation of Industries uses America as an argument to confound the British Labor party.

Mussolini taunts the parliamentarians of Italy with the picture of prosperous America, and tells them that our prosperity is due to our institution of the presidency as contrasted to the cabinet system. He says we invented Fascism for him. In Russia Trotsky points to the American standard of production as the goal for the Bolshies, which we can be sure makes no hit with Trotsky's enemies.

Every European nation wants in on our markets. They regard the tariff as our vulnerable spot. They probably do not delude themselves into thinking that any international court could force us to change it—but they could rely on the financial element in this country opposed to the tariff, to help make things embarrassing.

American manufacturers also might note this. American interests which have bought into European industries are not so much concerned with protection as before. Gentlemen connected with such concerns are among those advocating our entry into the world court, it is said.

STANDARD OIL DIVIDENDS HIT NEW HIGH MARK

New York, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—The so-called group of Standard Oil companies, which were split into separate units in 1911, upon the dissolution of the old Standard Oil company of New Jersey, will distribute $153,506,099 to stockholders in cash dividends this year. This is a new high record, the previous record having been established in 1924, when cash dividend distributions aggregated $150,388,555.

The Christmas stockings of the Standard Oil company stockholders will be filled by $42,104,169, which compares with a total of $40,000,286 distributed in the Christmas quarter last year. Another interesting comparison in regard to the cash dividends by these companies is that 1925 dividend payments will triple the dividend distributions of 1912, the first year following the dissolution.

The cash dividends for the last quarter of 1925, amounting to $42,104,169, are the largest for any quarter of this year. The total is also the largest quarterly payment on record with the exception of the last quarter of 1922, when $11,600,000 was paid as an extra dividend by four eastern pipe line companies, and the first quarter of 1913, when Standard of New Jersey distributed a special dividend of $39,335,352, representing liquidation of loans by former subsidiaries.

Open Interest in Wheat Decreased in November

The open interest in wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade at the close of November was 109,546,000 bu, representing the short side of contracts only. It was within nearly 3,000,000 bu of the lowest of the month, compared with 113,-[illegible] bu as the average for the month, against 111,016,000 bu as the average for October, and 119,174,000 bu for November, 1924. The average open interest in corn last month was 56,161,000 bu, against 46,647,000 bu in October and [illegible] bu in November last year. In oats the average in November was 50,-[illegible] bu, against 49,720,000 bu in October and 76,459,000 bu in November last year. In rye the average was 11,730,000 bu, against 19,117,000 bu last year. In all grains the November average was [illegible],212,000 bu, against 291,275,000 bu last year.

Total wheat trading in all markets as represented by sales in November was [illegible],378,000 bu, against 1,339,724,000 bu for the same time last year. Chicago furnished 1,116,467,000 bu. Corn sales were 317,029,000 bu, against 557,384,000 bu last year. Oats, 124,247,000 bu, against 302,696,000 bu last year. Rye, [illegible] bu, against 111,451,000 bu last year.

LONDON PAPERS BLAME RUSSIA FOR HIGH WHEAT

LONDON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—London newspapers today charged bolshevist agents with having rigged the world wheat market by circulating reports earlier in the year that Russia would export large quantities of wheat, although they knew this could not be done, and by buying in the Winnipeg and Chicago markets, realizing that the price must rise when it became known that Russia could not export much wheat this year.

Meanwhile many European buyers had delayed, and had to buy after the Russian figures proved wrong and prices were high. Then the Russians sold, taking huge profits. That's the way it looks to the papers.

The food council will open a public inquiry on Tuesday to attempt to discover the real cause for the unprecedented rise in wheat prices. The council will investigate how far Russian statements to the effect that Russia's exports would be large are responsible for the extraordinary increase.

Within eight weeks wheat on the English market has risen from $10 to $15 for a quarter ton of eight bushels. An increase of $1.25 was the maximum expected by English bakers and the public.

Believed Russia Faking.

Dispatches from London yesterday that investigation would be made of charges that the Russian bolsheviki had rigged the world's wheat market by circulating reports that Russia again would be a great wheat exporter, caused little surprise here. While this Russian rumor had been holding down prices of wheat in many markets, the London press charged yesterday the Russians were buying large amounts of wheat. They knew that the Russian exports could not equal the rumors and thus were in a position, it is charged, to know that wheat was bound to go up.

After the recent sensational rise in the wheat markets of the world had taken place, the brokers for the Russians, it is believed here, sold not only what they had, but sold short. Speculators of all nations were in the world's markets, and great fluctuations of prices followed. The Russians are said to have bought at the recent lowest price, covering their shorts.

In the meantime wheat products have been advanced immensely in price all over the world and in the last few days have suffered an immense slump.

Exploded Moscow Pretense.

Shortly after the stories of Russian exports appeared months ago, The Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service carried a story that the figures coming from Russia were grossly overdrawn.

While Russia is said to have cleared 256,000 bushels last week, there has been a virtual embargo officially declared on wheat shipments.

Arthur W. Cutten was credited with making large sums of money on the sensational wheat advances of recent months, while on the slump Jesse Livermore of New York, a stock trader as well, was credited in some wheat pit rumors yesterday with having made $1,000,000 on the short side of the market in the last six days.

More Chicago Banks Vote Yule Dividends, Bonuses

Yuletide gifts to stockholders and employés were announced by several more Chicago banks yesterday. The Pioneer Trust and Savings bank declared an extra dividend of 4 per cent and the Stony Island State Savings bank declared 2 per cent extra. The Reliance State bank voted additional compensation to employés.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1925: Fairchild News Service.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Quiet reigned in the local gray goods market today. Prices did not change.

PHILADELPHIA.—Two reasons are given for the ground lost in carded cotton yarn rates last week. The first is that cotton weakened somewhat after the government crop estimate was issued and the second reason is that yarn dealers have shown a willingness to sell close in order to get some action after a long period of inaction.

NEW YORK.—Prices held firm today in the local raw silk market, but little business was transacted. Cables from Yokohama disclosed that prices were advanced on a firm basis with exchange touching the highest point in months.

NEW YORK.—Much progress has been made in booking Rayon production for the first quarter of 1926 during the last week and today one of the largest firms announced it was almost ready to close its order books.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

The official forecast for today and tomorrow and yesterday's table of records follow:

Indiana—Fair and colder Sunday; Monday increasing cloudiness, becoming unsettled.

Lower Michigan—Partly cloudy to cloudy Sunday; colder; much colder in extreme southeast portion; Monday probably fair.

Upper Michigan—Mostly cloudy Sunday, probably snow flurries near Lake Superior; Monday mostly fair; continued cold.

Wisconsin—Fair and continued cold Sunday; Monday increasing cloudiness, rising temperature in afternoon.

Missouri—Fair and colder Sunday; Monday probably unsettled.

Iowa—Mostly fair Sunday, somewhat colder in south portion; Monday unsettled, possibly some snow.

Ohio—Generally fair and much colder Sunday, Monday increasing cloudiness, probably snow or rain by Monday night in west portion.

Minnesota—Generally fair Sunday; Monday unsettled and slightly warmer, probably some snow in south portion.

Rules for SAFE INVESTMENT

INVESTORS have come to realize more every day that the safe investment of money is not a question of luck; it is not a question of reaching in the hat and pulling out a lucky number. But it is a question of following very definite principles or rules which have been evolved from a table of investment experience of many generations.

In our new book, "Rules for Safe Investment," Mr. William J. Moore, president of the American Bond & Mortgage Company says:

"During my half century of business experience, I have handled the sale of tens of thousands of city lots and bought and sold thousands of city homes, borrowing from Banks and Insurance Companies to finance these developments. During the past twenty years, I have had associated with me an organization of many men with real estate, building and financial experience. Out of our combined experience in investing millions of dollars of other people's money, we have devised the following rules of safety—."

WHEAT ERRATIC; CLOSE 1½c DOWN TO 1½c ADVANCE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat fluctuated in a most erratic manner, with bulges and breaks of 1c or more following each other with great rapidity. An opening bulge of 1@2c on unexpected strength in Liverpool was followed by a break of 2⅜@4½c from the top with the finish on a rally with December ⅜c lower and the deferred deliveries 1⅜@1½c higher for the day. Corn was weak and ⅛@⅞c lower on prospects of larger receipts. Oats and rye finished unchanged to ¼c lower.

Wheat Prices Slump.

Wheat prices declined the last week almost as rapidly as they advanced the previous week, and while the close on Saturday was about 2c above the inside figures net losses for the week were 5⅛@9½c. Corn was unchanged to ¼c lower, oats ¼@⅝c lower, and rye off 4⅜@6¼. Lard went from 42½c to 52½c, ribs were unchanged to 37½c higher, and bellies 25c higher.

Fluctuations in the wheat market were largely the result of speculative actions. Foreign news was more bullish, with Liverpool 1⅝@2d higher, on prospects of small world's shipments and smaller offers of Manitobas. Buenos Aires advanced 1¾c and there were claims of rains in parts of Argentina. All offers of Manitobas made at the seaboard overnight were accepted abroad, with sales of 500,000 bu or more in all positions. An official Argentine cable confirmed black rust damage in the province of Cordoba.

Houses with eastern connections were free buyers of wheat on the breaks and there was also general evening up on the part of pit shorts toward the last. Sentiment was decidedly mixed. Winnipeg showed strength and was up 1⅜@2⅞c for the day.

Corn Under Pressure.

Corn was under pressure the greater part of the day, with local sentiment much more favorable to the selling side on expectations of larger receipts. Prices held within a range of around 1¼c, with the finish within a fraction of the bottom. Sales of 100,000 bu were made to go to store. Country offerings were not large, but interior elevators are reported as consigning rather freely. Little was heard regarding export demand. Recent rains have been beneficial for the new crop in Argentina. Oats followed corn and fluctuated rapidly, with trade largely of a local character. Strength in wheat had considerable influence on rye. Norway was reported as having bought 100,000 bu at the seaboard.

Provisions averaged higher on scattered commission house buying, and toward the last a cash interest was on the buying side, making the close well toward the top, with net gains of 10@12½c on lard. Ribs were unchanged to 5c higher and bellies unchanged. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the winter season to date aggregates 778,000, against 1,481,000 last year. Deliveries on December contracts were 200,000 lbs lard. Prices follow:

BIG CANADIAN WHEAT SHIPMENT; LAKES "CLOSING"

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 11.—[Special.]—Ceaseless activity in loading 24 ships is reported tonight from the head of the lakes. The 24 steamers are taking on wheat, and expect to clear with approximately 7,000,000 bushels before the ports are officially closed for the winter at midnight tomorrow.

This will reduce the wheat at the lake heads elevators to about 14,000,000 bushels. About 30,000,000 bushels are reported at present in transit to those lake front elevators, in addition to the large stocks held in interior elevators, which official figures issued tonight say are 48,140,000 bushels.

Insurance facilities will also be withdrawn at the close of navigation tomorrow.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Foreign demand for cash wheat at the seaboard was fairly active with all offers of Manitobas abroad overnight accepted. Sales of over 500,000 bu were intimated, but it was hard to secure figures. The pool offered sparingly, which checked business. Norway took 100,000 bu rye.

Chicago handlers sold 3,000 bu wheat, 30,000 bu corn, and 52,000 bu oats to the domestic trade with 100,000 bu corn to go to store. Deliveries on December contracts were 41,000 bu wheat, 556,000 bu corn, 153,000 bu oats, and 17,000 bu rye.

No change of consequence was made in the basis on cash wheat in leading markets. No. 2 red winter here was 2@8c over, and No. 2 hard, 1@1½c over December. Price for red winter depends mainly on quality, which accounts for the wide range in the basis.

Offerings of cash corn were fairly liberal and the basis unchanged to ½c lower, with No. 4 grades 2@4c under December. The poorer kinds showed the decline. Outside markets were ½@3c lower.

Demand for cash oats was fair with heavy weights selling above the basis for ordinary run. No. 2 white, 1¼@1½c and No. 3 white, ¾@1c over December.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 33 cars; corn, 309 cars; oats, 51 cars; rye, 7 cars; barley, 10 cars.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

Sentiment in the wheat trade was mixed owing to the market being highly professional. It was said that the big eastern shorts had greatly reduced their line in May and leading local bulls were credited with having fairly evened up. Pressure on December caused a narrowing of the premium over May to 2½c on new and 2c on old style. Pit conditions are the dominating factor for the time being.

Most of the local traders are bearish on corn. They say that there has been an immense covering by shorts within the last week, which has been mainly responsible for the advance in prices and that accumulations from now on should be greater, and pressure on December increased. The trade expects a liberal movement to continue and the disposition is to sell on all bulges. Deliveries have been more than 2,000,000 bu in the last two weeks, and December longs are being filled up.

In a test case of the Canadian wheat pool against farmers for nondelivery of wheat, the decision gives the farmer the option of delivering to the pool or selling in the open market. A Winnipeg message to W. C. Eaton suggested that, as the pool is only advancing $1.00 a bu at present and the final payment is to be made when the year's business has cleaned up, the farmers will take advantage of the open market.

Harry Hunt, one of the oldest corn traders, had a fainting spell in the Board of Trade Barber shop yesterday afternoon and was taken to St. Luke's hospital.

J. P. Griffin says that the advance in May wheat to $1.77 was unwarranted and believes that it has discounted the damage to the Argentine crops. Liquidation that has followed the advance has bettered the market position, and it is likely to act more normal.

Wheat traders are looking for an increase in the visible supply in Monday's statement, a decrease in Chicago's stocks and small world's shipments.

The Argentine government's commercial statistician says that reports from various black rust affected sections were contradicting and that no official information will be available before Dec. 15. Buenos Aires cables say that the decrease in the wheat crop is not less than 50 per cent in Cordova, and it is officially reported by government executives that black rust has affected 70 per cent of the crop in that region.

The strength in the closing cables was a distinct surprise to the wheat trade and were undoubtedly due to the small world's shipments for the week. There was also the fact that the market has had a severe break, with liquidation thorough and some evening up was in order. The only explanation for the drastic decline from the recent high point is the disturbed confidence among some of the larger professionals. Bulls see no change in the fundamentals, and believe that as soon as liquidation has run its course the market will readily respond to any new buying.

New York, Dec. 12.—[(AP)]—Stock prices pointed upward during the greater part of today's market, but a renewal of profit taking and sporadic bear selling in the last half hour gave closing quotations an irregular appearance. Trading was in relatively heavy volume for a half holiday session, total sales running above 900,000 shares.

Speculative interest was confined largely to about a dozen specialties and rails. A sudden outburst of buying in Allis-Chalmers, based on reports of expanding business, sent that stock up nearly 6 points to a new high record for the year at 96⅞. The demand for Stewart-Warner Speedometer, which showed an extreme gain of over 4 points at 92⅞, a new 1925 top, was stimulated by reports of a heavy radio business.

New High Marks Made.

New peak prices in the industrial group also were attained by American Water Works, Artloom, Case Threshing Machine preferred, Continental Can, Devoe & Raynolds, International Paper, Jewel Tea, Mathieson Alkali, and South Porto Rican Sugar. American Smelting advanced fractionally to 135½, the highest price in nearly 20 years, in the early trading, but later fell back to 134 for a net loss of 1¼ points on the day.

American Can scored an extreme advance of over 3 points at 259⅝, and then eased to 258½, but the other standard industrials were reactionary. United States Steel common closed a point lower at 135⅛, and Baldwin yielded fractionally to 128½. Commercial Solvents "B" broke 4 points on a small turnover and losses of 2 or more points were recorded by American Chicle, Beechnut Packing, Chrysler, Postum Cereal, and United Fruit.

Railway Shares Are Strong.

Interest in the rails was divided between Pittsburgh and West Virginia, which soared over 6 points to a new peak price at 123 and then yielded to 122⅛, and Rock Island common, which closed over 3 points higher at 50⅛; Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake and Ohio common and preferred, Chicago and Northwestern, New York and Harlem, Nickel Plate, and St. Louis Southwestern all broke through their previous 1925 peak prices.

Acute weakness of French francs sent the Paris rate down to a new low level for the year at 3.63½c, or less than a quarter of a cent above the extreme low record last March. Offerings of francs originated largely in European centers, the weakness of the currency in Paris being attributed to the heavy purchase of foreign securities there. Speculative uneasiness over the success of the Loucheur financial program was a contributing cause to the selling in other centers.

Third Liberty Bonds Rise.

Enormous buying of third Liberty 4¼ per cent bonds, causing a sharp upturn in the price, enlivened otherwise dull trading in the bond market. Sales of more than $4,000,000 in this issue represented half the day's total transactions. Purchases were believed to be for government account.

Railroad liens continued to follow the upward trend of the carrier stocks, the demand embracing Delaware and Hudson 5s, Chesapeake and Ohio convertible 5s, Denver and Rio Grande 4½s, Rio Grande Western 4s, Rock Island refunding 4s, Katy adjustment 5s, and Nickel Plate 5½s.

French government 8s advanced a point, while the 7s fell back almost as much. Other foreign bonds were quiet. Independent strength was shown by a number of industrial liens, including International Mercantile Marine 6s, International Paper 5s, Duquesne Light 6s, and Manati Sugar 7s.

New York Bank Statement.

An increase of $11,977,060 is shown in the surplus reserve of the New York clearing house banks in the weekly statement as a result of the more liberal rediscounting at the Federal Reserve bank. The excess in reserves amounts to $14,472,430. Loans, discounts, and investments decreased $290,000. Net demand deposits increased $5,270,000 and time deposits fell off $253,000.

The federal reserve board's weekly statement of condition of member banks in leading cities as of Dec. 2 shows an increase of $47,000,000 in loans and discounts and a decline of $12,000,000 in investments. These changes were accompanied by a decrease of $12,000,000 in time deposits and increases of $74,000,000 in net demand deposits and of $23,000,000 in borrowings from federal reserve banks. Loans on corporate stocks and bonds declined $2,000,000. All other loans and discounts were $46,000,000 larger.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Increased activity at advancing prices, in which the majority of issues participated, characterized trading in the local unlisted securities market last week.

The demand for Elgin National Watch continued, causing this issue to advance 8 points to high sales at 98. At the close additional stock was wanted at 97, with no offerings appearing near the current level. Dolese & Shepard was also stronger, moving up to sales at 62½. Congress Hotel was actively traded in, advancing about 6 points to sales at 216. Wahl preferred gained an additional point at 52½ bid, 55 asked. Palmolive common on small transactions changed hands at 107. The close was steady, stock being offered at 108, with buyers at 105. The preferred changed hands between 105¼ and 106¼. Butler Brothers showed a slightly easier tendency, declining from opening sales at 34⅝ to closing transactions around 34¼.

The announcement by the McCord Manufacturing company of a plan to exchange a new class "A" preferred and debenture stock for the present preferred stock, on which there are accumulated dividends amounting to $35 per share, caused an advance in the preferred to transactions between 95 and 97. The common also became active, advancing to high and last sales at 15. Northwestern Yeast moved up from 152 to 156, at which price additional stock was wanted.

Good buying in By-Products Coke common moved that stock up from early sales at 77 to sales at 79, the market closing 78½ bid, with stock offered for sale at 80. The preferred was rather quiet, with 109 bid and no stock offered. Considerable trading was reported in Holland-St. Louis Sugar common at prices ranging from 4 to 4⅝. Four was freely bid throughout the week, with cheapest offerings coming at 4⅛@4⅝. A few shares of Hotel Sherman preferred changed hands between 94½ and 95½. Sullivan Machinery was more active, indicating a firmer tone, with 48 bid and a few shares of stock available at 50.

Renewed interest was shown in Benjamin Electric preferred, that stock being in demand at par, with offerings being asked for and little stock coming out. Gossard preferred was likewise in excellent demand, 102 being bid, with no stock offered for sale. This strength came simultaneously with the announcement of an increased dividend in the common stock and offering of rights to common stockholders. Albert Pick preferred continued in excellent demand at 99⅝, with few shares of stock changing hands around that figure, the market at the close, however, being 99⅝ bid, with stock offered for sale at 101.

The exceptional strength which the bank shares have displayed for several weeks continued—many establishing new high. First National changed hands at 600, closing at 596 bid, 600 asked. Illinois Merchants rose from 493 to a new high of 502 and closed in demand at 500, with offerings at 505. Union Trust was traded in between 380 and 385. There were numerous bids for Standard Trust and Savings at 215, with the cheapest stock at 225. Continental and Commercial National made a new high in selling at 410. Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust was wanted at 445, with small lots available at 455. Transactions were recorded in Central Trust Company of Illinois at 275. Chicago Trust moved up to 222 bid, 226 asked.

RICE MARKET.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 12.—(AP)—RICE—Rough, quiet; sales, none; receipts, 2,788 pockets. Clean rice quiet; sales, 1,461 pockets Blue Rose, 6⅝@7c; 150 pockets screenings, 3⅝c; receipts, 7,439 pockets. Bran and polish unchanged.

Why Not Save That Christmas Bonus?

As the holiday season approaches the thought of a Christmas bonus comes to the mind of many a salaried man and woman.

It is the season of giving and a great many concerns have taken this method of showing appreciation of the work of their employés during the year—a gift of money, based on the size of the salary and the length of service.

It is a pleasant thing to look forward to. It gives one something over and above what he or she is accustomed to live on. It is extra money and one usually begins to plan early how to use it.

Have you already spent your Christmas bonus in anticipation? Have you decided just what things you are going to buy with it—or have you decided to save it?

It is a comfortable feeling to know that you have some extra money—a surplus to fall back on in an emergency or when something comes along that you want very much to have.

If, instead of looking around to find some way to spend your Christmas money, you decide to save it for a time when it really may be needed, you will doubtless be glad later that you did so.

Money spent is gone forever. Money saved is constantly available against a time when it may be most needed.

Why not start in this year building up a capital or adding to that which you already may have saved, by saving your Christmas bonus?

Capital means resources. Resources mean power. Capital enables you to have the things you need. It enables you to invest where your money will bring an income and will increase itself.

Crises frequently arise where the possession of capital means the difference between misery and comfort.

Why not smooth out worries from your future path by starting saving now?

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $711,400,000, an increase of $24,200,000 over the preceding week and also a gain of $66,300,000 over the corresponding week in 1924. Back to Land Movement Spreads Over Country, Survey Says

SKYSCRAPER TO STAND ON SITE OF VOGELSANG'S

"Blackhawk" May Soar 22 Stories.

Madison street is to have another skyscraper. The Madison Street Building corporation yesterday secured the old Vogelsang restaurant site, opposite the Hotel La Salle, and are having plans drawn by Frank D. Chase, Inc., for an office building to be at least sixteen stories, and probably twenty-two. It will have a frontage on Madison of eighty-five feet.

JOHN Z. VOGELSANG.

The leasehold interest was acquired from the Blackhawk Hotel corporation for an undisclosed consideration. This is the site on which the Vogelsang interests at one time contemplated erecting a tall hotel to be known as the Blackhawk, in honor of the Blackhawk division, A. E. F., with which John A. Vogelsang, son of John Z., fought.

De Wolf & Co. to Finance It.

De Wolf & Co., investment bankers, will finance the project, work on which will start as soon as present leases expire, which will be not later than May 1.

The two holdings under the present two and four story buildings are under long term leases having several years to run at a total annual net rental of $29,000.

The west sixty feet, having a depth of 100 feet, are under lease from Kate F. Ross, G. A. Tate, and Harriet D. Lewis for ninety-nine years from Nov. 1, 1912, at $22,000 annually.

The 25x189 adjoining it on the east was leased by John Z. Vogelsang from Harriet Blair Borland for ninety-nine years from March 1, 1905, at $7,000 annually.

Once Famous German Restaurant.

The present remodeled buildings were once famous as the home of Vogelsang's restaurant. The two story structure was occupied as a grill while the taller building house the regular restaurant.

Fred J. Tucker, acting for Willoughby & Co., represented all parties in the negotiations for the acquirement of the site. Willoughby & Co. will manage the new skyscraper. It has been suggested that "The Blackhawk" would be a good name for the new office building.

LEON D. M'KENDRY NEW HEAD OF EVANSTON REAL ESTATE BOARD

Leon D. McKendry, head of the McKendry Realty company of 1573 Sherman avenue, Evanston, has been elected president of the Evanston Real Estate board, succeeding William L. Dormand, sixth president of that organization. Other presidents, whose names are inscribed in the entrance hall of the Evanston Real Estate Board building, are C. A. Wightman, J. W. Work, J. R. Smart, R. S. Carne, C. J. Golee, H. D. Bent, and Mr. Dormand.

LEON D. McKENDRY.
[Toloff Photo.]

Other officers elected were: Edward H. Payne, vice president; David C. Malin, secretary; Nels M. Hokanson, treasurer. Garfield Anderson was made a director for three years.

A feature of the various annual reports made at the annual meeting of the board was the statement that the valuation committee, composed of L. D. McKendry, C. J. Golee, and H. D. Bent, had appraised a total of $1,392,-650 worth of Evanston property during the year, by far the largest volume of business of this sort done by the board in its history.

J. F. HECHT ELECTED PRESIDENT OF COOK COUNTY REALTY BOARD

J. F. Hecht has been elected president of the Cook county real estate board on the regular ticket. Robert Clark Duncan is vice president; Samuel E. Erickson is reëlected secretary; Nicholas J. Schmidt is treasurer, and A. L. Riemenschneider, retiring president, and Paul Schwarzlose have been made directors for three year terms. Mr. Hecht is one of the original Torrens advocates on the board, according to Samuel E. Erickson, secretary. There was no opposition ticket in the field this year.

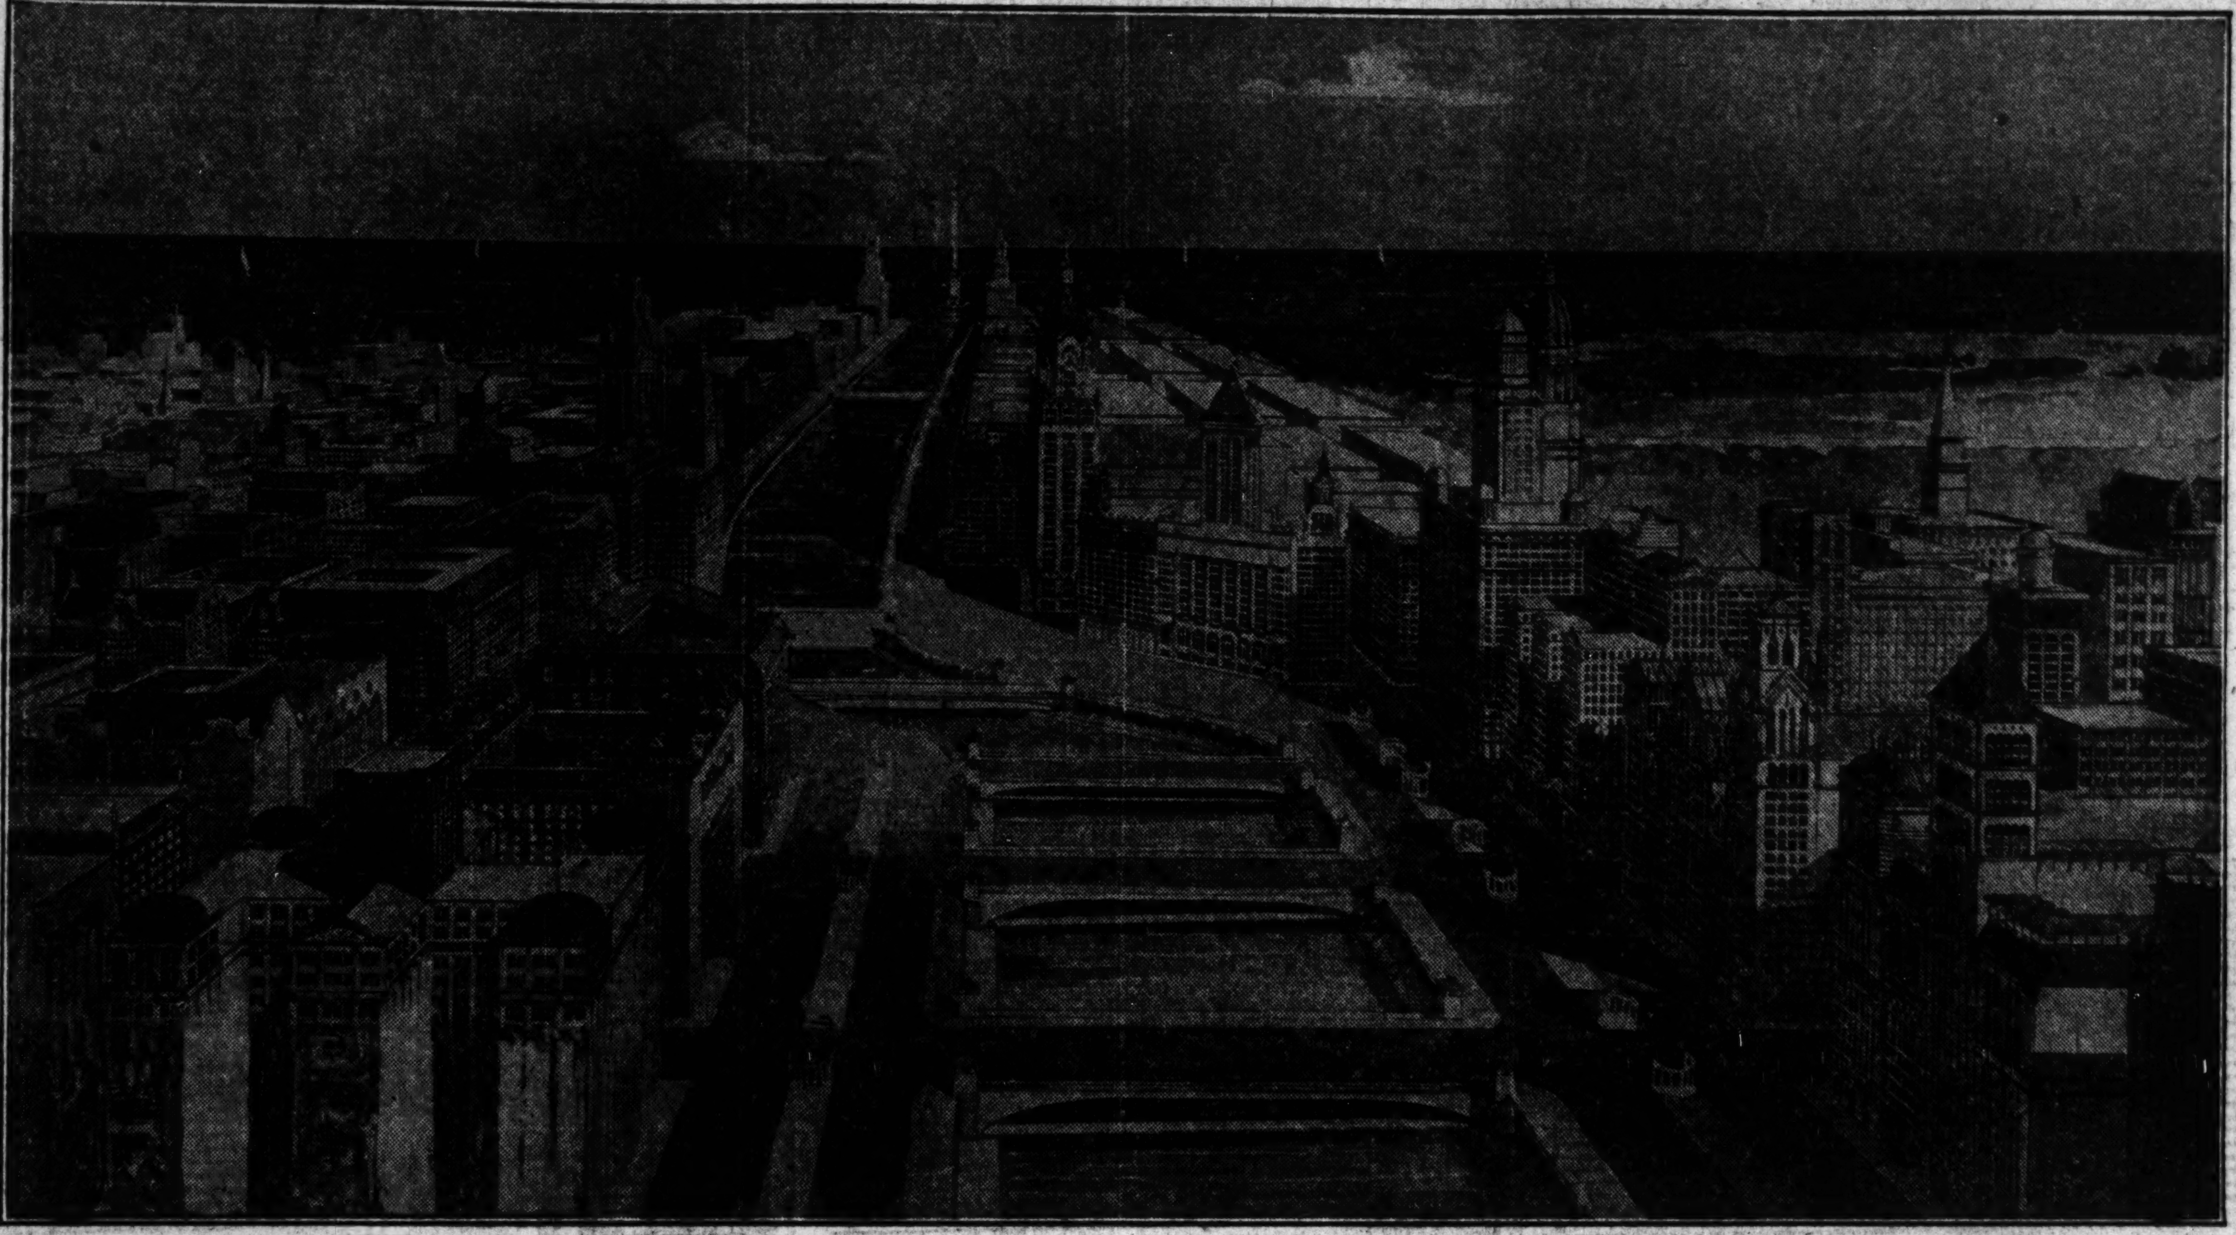
HOW THE CHICAGO RIVER COULD BE MADE INTO ONE OF WORLD'S MOST IMPOSING WATERWAYS



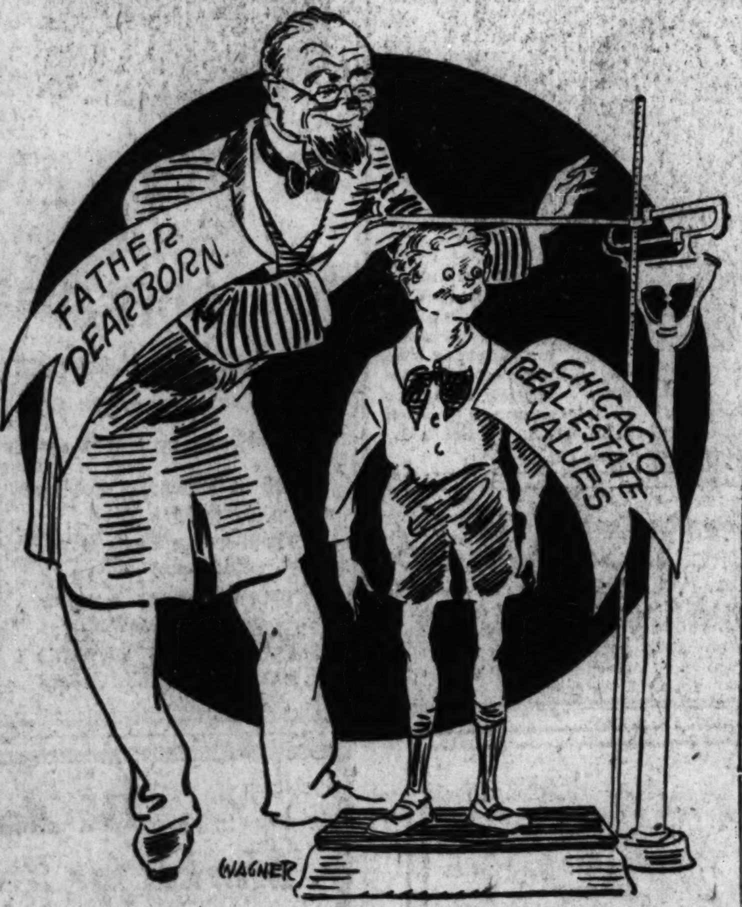
This is how Architect Daniel J. Schaffner pictures the Chicago river when Wacker drive is extended east of Michigan avenue to the lake shore and when a duplicate of Wacker drive graces the north bank of the river from Lake Michigan west to where the north branch turns. It also gives a good idea of what the removal of the present lift bridges and their replacement with permanent stone structures would mean architecturally.

The first bridge shown above is at Clark street. Mr. Schaffner apparently is an optimist, for his picture hints that we're going to have a subway some day—at least, the Clark street bridge has no elevated tracks over it, so we presume the trains are rumbling under the river in a tube. The next two bridges to the east, of course, are Dearborn and State streets, then comes the proposed Wabash avenue bridge, then Boul Mich and, a few blocks to the east, the contemplated bridge linking Grant park with Lake Shore drive, via McClurg court. The last of the bridges will be at the mouth of the river, not very clearly shown but in the picture nevertheless.

Of course, practically all of the huge structures along the south bank of the river, with the exception of the Jewelers' building and the London Guarantee, are imaginary and merely shown to aid the reader in mentally picturing what Wacker drive will be like some day.

It is suggested by Mr. Schaffner that Carroll avenue, between Wells and State streets, be vacated and the proposed north bank boulevard made as wide as Wacker drive. Carroll avenue is a public street between the river and Kinzie, mostly occupied by railroad and "L" tracks. The original of the above drawing, made by the Acro studios for Mr. Schaffner, is now in the hands of Murray Wolbach, secretary of the Wacker Drive-South Water Street association, for consideration.

Shooting Right Up



IF YOU OWN FLORIDA LAND DON'T READ THIS; IT'LL MAKE YOU MAD

Below we give a lovely bit of verse which may bring tears (of some sort or other) to the eyes of certain Chicagoans. It's called "The Florida Bull Market":

Mah Florida mammy and Rastus and Sammy
Don't live in a cabin no more—
They's all got positions and earn big commissions
By selling choice lots on the shore.

Mah kind hearted mammy owns half of Miami,
And old Aunt Jemima and Joe
In old Tallahassee are ritzy and classy
And rolling in diamonds and dough.

They don't hoe pertaters; they're all real estaters
And dabble in acres and plots.
The white fields of cotton have all been forgotten
And now serve as choice building lots.

The Mandys and Minnies—the pert pickaninnies
Don't harvest the cotton and cane,
But sell costly pieces and property leases
To suckers from Jersey and Maine.

This lyrical masterpiece is anonymous. It was gleaned from the market sheet of a New York stock exchange house—F. J. Lisman & Co.

RIGHT HERE IN CHI!!

Yes, right here in Chi! Mrs. Ellen R. McHugh bought the southwest corner of Phillips avenue and 75th street, 107x125, a year ago for $65,000. Yesterday she sold it to Dr. John F. Hough, a dentist, for $107,000. Florida boosters please note. Earl Southard of Draper & Kramer negotiated both sales.

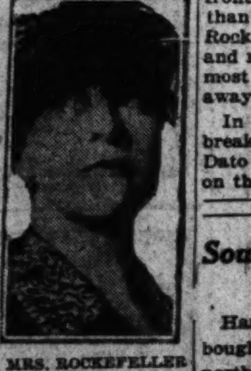
A syndicate which bought seventy-eight acres at the southeast corner of Butterfield road and 22d street extended, in Du Page county, for $78,000, or at the rate of $1,000 an acre, thirty days ago, yesterday sold the tract to Fred A. Frolich, a Flossmoor operator, for a reported $109,200, or at the rate of $1,400 an acre. This indicates a profit of $400 an acre, or $31,200, for the syndicate in thirty days. Lindheimer & Wells were brokers.

Vernon-64th Apartments Change Hands: $116,500

According to the county records Wendall Walker paid $116,500, subject to $87,500, to Roland M. Watt for the twenty-seven flats at the southwest corner of Vernon and 64h, lot 128x124.

Mrs. M'Cormick to Have 'Coffee And' with Krenn & Dato Staff

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Edwin D. Krenn and Edward A. Dato will eat a sentimental breakfast Tuesday morning of "coffe and" with several hundred employés of Krenn & Dato, from one arm chairs in the John R. Thompson company's newest feed 'em quick eateries at the northwest corner of Boul Mich and Ohio street. This will be the formal opening of the restaurant.



MRS. ROCKEFELLER McCORMICK.

The sentiment in this democratic high speed meal circles about the fact that it was on this spot three years ago, on Dec. 15, 1922, that Krenn & Dato started in the real estate business with five employés. Today they have 750. Their business has grown from $400,000 in 1923 to $10,000,000 in 1925.

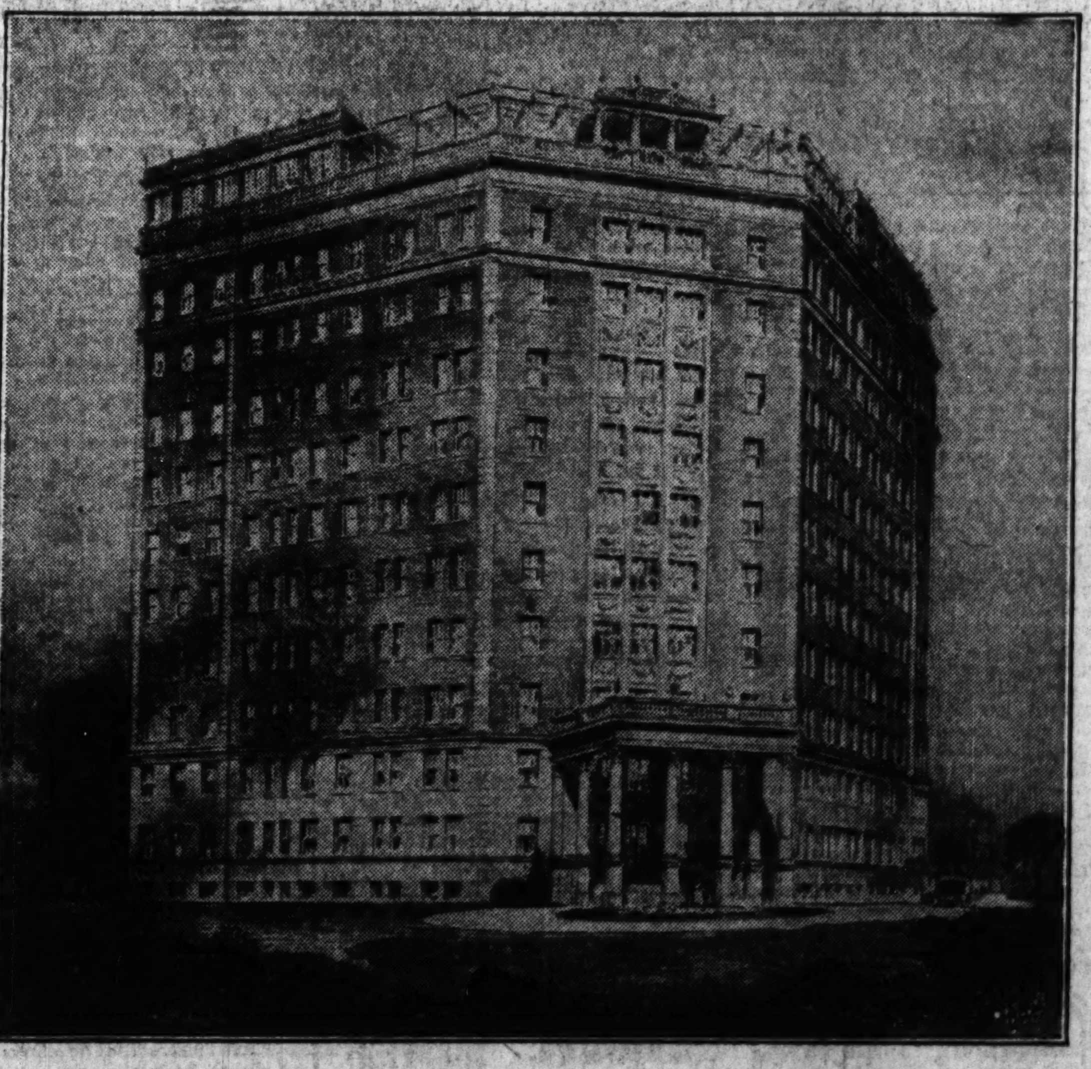
Six months after starting Krenn & Dato absorbed two adjoining offices and then took over the entire first floor in the old building which since has been replaced by Mr. Thompson's stone front Michigan-Ohio building. Less than a year later they moved into the Rockefeller block, opposite the Drake, and now occupy nearly all of that and most of another building two blocks away.

In vivid contrast to this arm chair breakfast will be the annual Krenn & Dato banquet to be held at the Drake on the evening of Dec. 22.

Southmoor Hotel Sold by I. Gittler to Syndicate

Harry J. Stoops and associates have bought the Southmoor hotel, at the northwest corner of Stony Island avenue and 67th street, from Isaac Gittler. It is ten stories and has 550 rooms. It was purchased subject to a bond issue of $2,500,000 made by S. W. Straus & Co. Altheimer & Mayer and Kaplan & Kaplan were attorneys. The buyers already own the St. Giles, Sherwin, Shorecrest, Briar, and other hotels.

Chicago Memorial Hospital



This is the new Chicago Memorial hospital, to be erected in Groveland park, at 33d street and the lake, designed by Frank D. Chase, Inc., engineers and architects. It will take the place of the present Hahnemann hospital, opened in 1865. The above building will be of Adam design. The work will start Jan. 1. More is told about this project on page 2.

O. K. PLANS TO BREAK BOTTLE NECK AT TOWER

Plans have been approved by both the Lincoln park board and the city whereby the Boul Mich bottle neck at the old water tower is to be broken. The North Central association has had engineering studies made which are to be carried out next spring, of a new one way drive around the west side of the tower.

About two-thirds of the little park around the tower will have to be sacrificed and when this is done there'll be a sweeping drive seventy-eight feet wide, which will be used only for south bound traffic.

The Lincoln park board will widen Boul Mich between Pearson and Oak streets to eighty feet as soon as the city has finished the new tower drive. Michigan avenue pavement is now eighty feet wide south of Chicago avenue.

Famous Old Gold Coast School Forced to Seek New Quarters

One of the city's best known educational institutions, the Chicago Latin school, at 18 East Division street, which has been on the Gold Coast for thirty-five years, according to Miss M. F. Vickery, one of the two principals, is looking for a new site in Edgewater. Its northern hegira is not from choice; the building has been sold over its head.

The actual sale has not been completed but the American Hospital association has an option, has placed an initial payment in escrow, and the deal is practically assured.

E. B. Valentine, manager of the exclusive Casino club on Delaware place, in Streeterville, and also said to be a highly successful real estate operator, has sold the school building for $125,000. It is said he has made a big profit in this deal, which is the second time it's been sold recently.

The new owners will take possession after extensive remodeling, according to Dr. W. H. Walsh, executive secretary of the American Hospital association, now at 22 East Ontario street. Earle Shilton was broker.

Edison Official to Speak at Luncheon of Realtors

William A. Burgin, director of public relations of the Commonwealth-Edison company, will speak at the regular luncheon of the Chicago Real Estate board next Tuesday at 1 p. m. on "The Service Behind the City."

FARM LANDS AT LAST GET INTO REALTY UPTURN

Signs Prophetic of Better Times.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Farms and farmers at last are getting their share in the American real estate market advance, with a distinct "back to the land" movement fast developing in urban centers, according to the annual survey of farm lands in twenty-two states and one Canadian province, just completed by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, of which Charles G. Edwards is president.

CHARLES G. EDWARDS.

Eighty-one per cent of the replies of those reporting to the questionnaire indicate a more active market than during 1924. Evidence that the market is on a stable basis is found in the fact that half of the inquiries reported come from those who are purchasing farms as homes and to operate as a business.

Back to the Farm.

One reply states that the market is "fast changing to a 'back to the land' movement, and many of the farmer boys who had left the farm on account of high wages in the city are now awaiting the proper opportunity to return to the farm."

The entire survey is summarized in the following comment sent in on the questionnaire:

Agriculture has had plenty of ups and downs during the last few years, with the downs in the majority. A lot of inefficient farmers who never took their profession as agriculturists very seriously have moved to the city. We have a higher type of men and women on the farms today than ever before. Due to boys' and girls' club activities, we are developing a brand of young folks who will make the progressive farmers and farmers' wives of the future. They will mean much to our future as farmers. All in all, the signs are prophetic of better times for agriculture, our greatest industry.

The weight of opinion is decidedly to the effect that prices in the future will increase. Opinions on this point are practically unanimous.

Some of the Reasons.

Here are some reasons:

"Farm land sales will increase because this year will wind up most of the excessive loans that were made during war prices and put farms on a stable basis."

"The farmer is beginning to replace haphazard methods with scientific methods which will make farming more prosperous. The difference in favor of city life as compared with farm life will not be so great."

"Farm sales will increase because of generally improved farm conditions and greater confidence in the value of land."

"The outlook for 1926 business is good. The price of hay, grain, butter fat and potatoes is exceptionally high, and will put many farmers throughout the middle west on their feet. The bulk of our business comes from the farmer element, many of whom were formerly farmers but went to the cities on account of high wages and have about made up their minds to return to the farm."

Farm Demand from New Source.

"Combined with the return of the purchasing power of the farmer comes a demand for farm lands from a new source," says the survey. "Farm land dealers in the vicinity of large communities indicate practically unanimously an increasing demand from city dwellers for a home in the open where they can have a garden patch, a few trees and plenty of fresh air and sunshine."

Real estate dealers throughout the United States and Canada report an increase of 45 per cent in the number of sales made in 1925 over 1924. The number of acres reported sold increased 146 per cent.

WARREN EASTER WINS 5 MINUTE LONNQUIST CUP

Warren T. Easter of the Oak Park realty firm of Holman & Easter won the five minute speech cup contest at the annual banquet of the Chicago Real Estate board on Thursday evening. The judges, instead of announcing the winner on the same evening, deliberated longer than usual and made their decision public last night. Mr. Easter's subject was "Suburban Chicago." Frank Wells of Lindheimer & Wells, who told of the advantages of the south side, won second place.

COMMENCE WORK ON MEMORIAL HOSPITAL JAN. 1

Will Take the Place of Old Hahnemann.

JOHN E. WILDER.

Work is to start on Jan. 1 on the $1,000,000 Chicago Memorial hospital — formerly the Hahnemann hospital—to be erected in Groveland park, at 33d street and the lake, from plans by Frank D Chase, Inc. Although it will have foundations for eleven stories at present only six will be built, the cost of which will be approximately $650,000 for building and equipment.

One hundred beds will be provided at the outset and later increased to 200. Complete general hospital facilities will make this one of the most modern and complete in the country.

Opened in 1865.

"The Chicago Memorial hospital was opened in 1865 as the Hahnemann hospital in a small building which stood on the site now occupied by the nurses' training school of the hospital," said John E. Wilder, president.

"For more than sixty years the hospital has kept its doors open to the sick of the city. It is non-secretarian and it has averaged through the years to carry 25 per cent of its work without cost of any kind to the patient; that is, 25 per cent has been charity work.

"The hospital belongs to the public, there being no stockholders, and in consequence is run for those who can pay and those who cannot pay.

Old Hospital Has Its Day.

"The hospital has numbered among its presidents who have served it faithfully and well, Erskine M. Phelps, Harlow N. Higinbotham, and John J. Mitchell.

"The old hospital has served its purpose. It contains 150 beds, but is neither modern nor fireproof, and on this account its board of directors has decided to build the new hospital at once."

In addition to President Wilder, the board of directors is made up of Chauncey Keep, first vice president; Walter S. Ross, second vice president; John J. Mitchell, treasurer; Lewis W. Riddle, secretary; Robert Allerton, Raymond Ashcraft, Ira C. Darling, Dr. Charles E. Kahlke, James P. Soper, William Southerland, Dr. Julis C. Strawn, Edward Swift, Mrs. Edward Tilden, and William Wrigley Jr.

REALTY HEAD NAMES BODY TO STUDY TAX REFORMS FOR STATE

S. Charles Iversen, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, has appointed a committee of well known Chicagoans to make a thorough investigation and study of tax systems used in various states throughout the Union and to suggest basic reforms for Illinois.

ALBERT H. WETTEN.

"The present tax system in our state was enacted in 1872 when the state constitution was adopted and the great change in conditions since that time makes it increasingly necessary to revise these laws," said President Iversen in making the announcement. "The change in real estate conditions in this time alone calls for tax reform, though this committee will not confine its work to a study of real estate taxation."

The members of the committee include Harrison B. Riley, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company; Wyllys W. Baird, Baird & Warner; Bertram M. Winston of Winston & Co.; Albert O. Anderson of Albert O. Anderson & Co.; Gordon Strong, Gordon Strong & Co.; George O. Fairweather, University of Chicago; Howell N. Tyson, of Quinlan & Tyson; Henry G. Zander of Koester & Zander; Francis E. Manierre of Dibblee & Manierre; Albert H. Wetten of Albert H. Wetten & Co.; Judson F. Stone; D. Avery Kimbark of Tittman-Kimbark & Co.; Gilbert Scribner of Winston & Co.; Callistus S. Ennis of Callistus S. Ennis & Co.; William Scott Bond of William A. Bond company; Albert F. Keeney; Aldis [illegible] of Ross & Browne; [illegible] Wolbach; Byron V. Kanaley, [illegible] Cooper, Kanaley & Co.; Buckingham Chandler of the First Realty company; John Lyle Vette and Max Murdock, executive secretary, Illinois State Association of Real Estate Boards.

In a Sound Real Estate Investment

A 5 year old large modern commercial building is being offered for sale today by the owner, whose present plans necessitate its immediate disposal. This is, we believe, an exceptional opportunity for a sound, profitable investment. The building, with 54,000 feet of floor space, is mill construction and sprinklered throughout. It is located in a desirable business section of Chicago on a car line corner. Ground floor is now used as a salesroom by a prominent concern. An old established company holds a 10 year lease. This building could be used as a model factory for light manufacturing or as a commercial building. Will take $100,000 cash to swing deal.

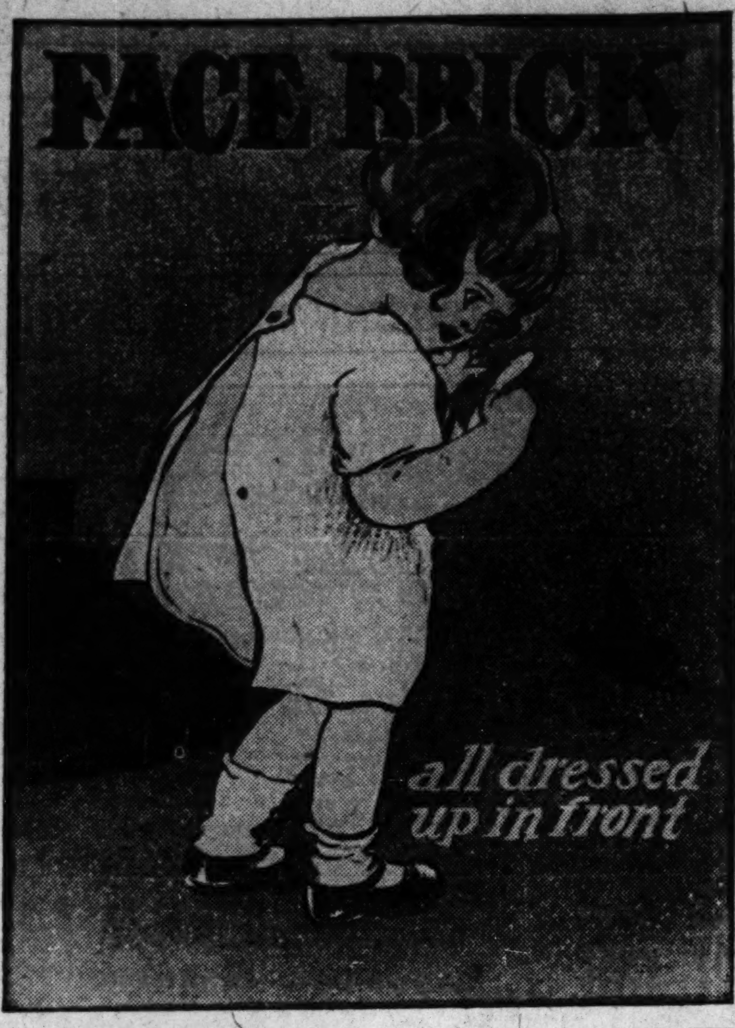
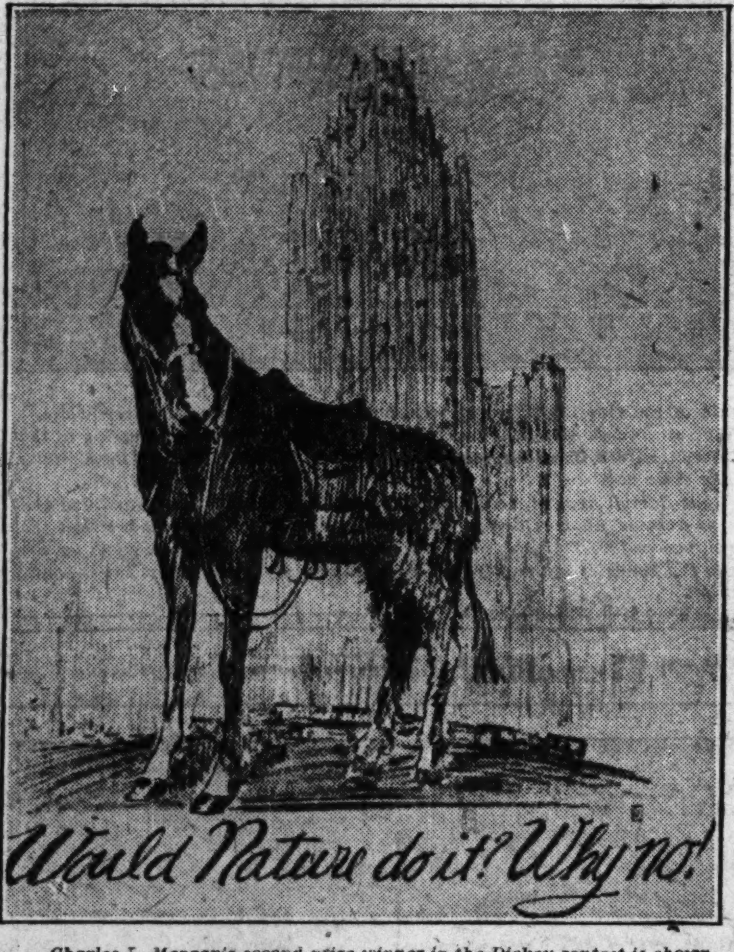
Charles Morgan Wins Two Prizes



FACE BRICK
all dressed up in front

Charles L. Morgan, in addition to winning second prize, was awarded fourth place in the "Dickey contest" with this humorous double play on the feminine foible of face fixing and the architectural atrocity—the "shirt front" building.

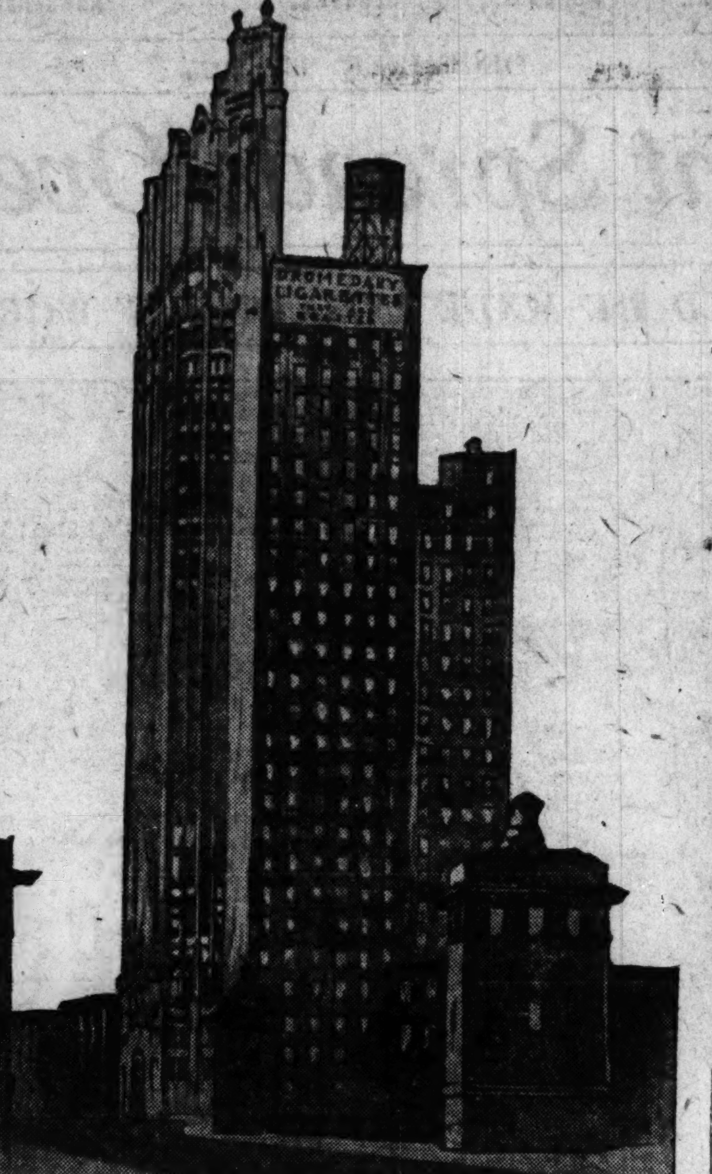
Wins Second "Dickey" Prize



Would Nature do it? Why no!

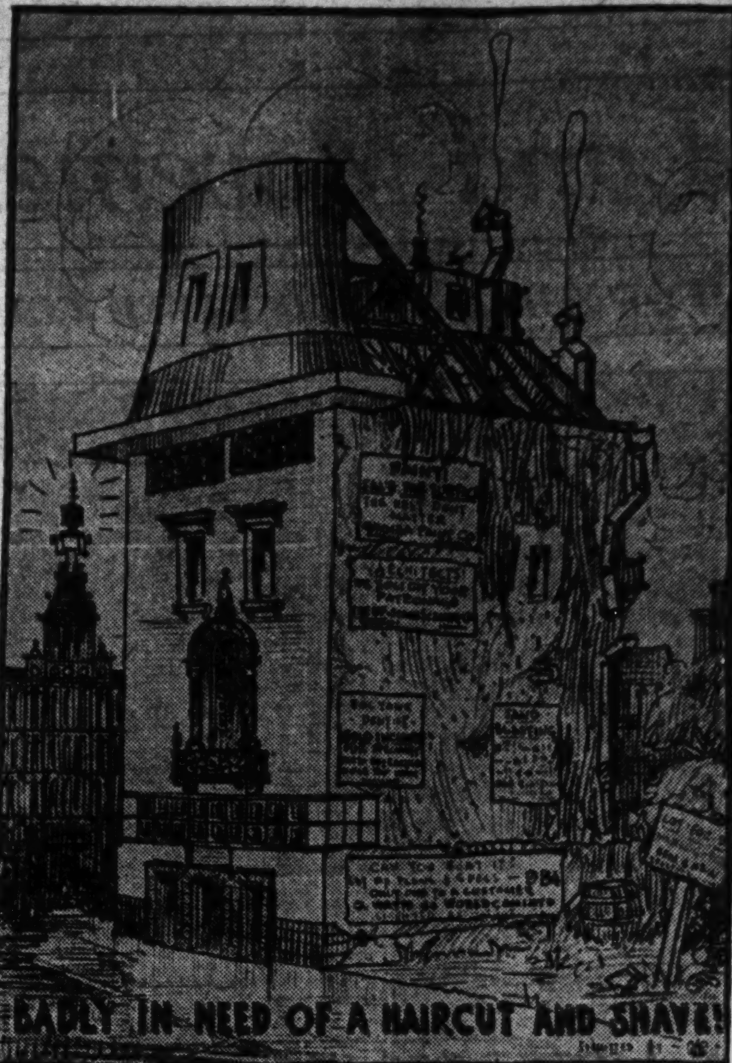
Charles L. Morgan's second prize winner in the Dickey contest is shown above. He gets $100 from the Chicago Face Brick association for this bit of fun poked at the "shirt front" style of architecture.

First Prize Winner



Robert Dando, designer for Schmidt, Garden & Martin and president of the Architectural Sketch club of Chicago, won the first prize of $250 for the best bit of sketchy ridicule of the "shirt front" or "dickey" style of architecture which so many of our well known Chicago architects still insist on inflicting on a long suffering public. It shows what The Tribune Tower would look like if it had been built with a false front, instead of Bedford stone on all sides. All of the prizes were awarded by the Chicago Face Brick association.

Third Best Dickey Kidder



BADLY IN NEED OF A HAIRCUT AND SHAVE!

Robert L. Minkus, with Parsons & Bennett, is winner of the third prize of $75 in the Chicago Face Brick association contest for the best cartoon ridiculing the "shirt front" style of architecture.

Robert Dando Wins First Place in "Dickey" Cartoon Contest

A sketch of how The Tribune Tower would look if its architects had designed it along the "shirt front" or "dickey" style of architecture, so undeservedly popular in Chicago, won Robert Dando first prize of $250 in the recent competition for cartoons ridiculing the false front building, awarded by the Chicago Face Brick association. The contest was conducted by the Architects' Club of Chicago.

ROBERT DANDO.

Mr. Dando, a designer for Schmidt, Garden & Martin, also is president of the Architectural Sketch Club of Chicago. He is a Chicagoan, though he has also lived in Milwaukee.

Morgan Wins Two Prizes.

Charles L. Morgan, a member of the American Institute of Architects, Chicago chapter, won both the second price of $100 and fourth prize of $50. The second prize shows a horse whose front legs and head and half his body are perfect but who has the rear portion of a mule. Mr. Morgan's caption is "Would Nature Do It? Why, No!"

His other prize winner is a young flapper of three, very naturally so absorbed in looking into a mirror to see that her face is satisfactory that she's overlooked her southern exposure. His caption is "All Dressed Up in Front."

Exhibited at Architects' Club.

Robert L. Minkus, with Parsons & Bennett, won the third prize of $75 with his "shirt front" building and its captaion, "Badly in Need of a Haircut and Shave." Pierre Blouke, member of the firm of Frazier, Blouke & Hubbard, architects, won fifth prize of $25.

"Our city can never become 'Chicago Beautiful' unless we abandon the bad habit of building structures of which some of the exposed walls are unsightly," the Chicago Face Brick association, which gave all the prizes, states in its initial outlining of the contest.

The entries in the contest have been on exhibition at the Architects' Club of Chicago, 1801 Prairie avenue.

EVANSTON REAL ESTATE BOARD IS TO HAVE BANQUET

H. Dyer Bent will be the toastmaster at the annual banquet of the Evanston Real Estate board, to be held next Thursday evening at the Orrington hotel. Maj. Thornton A. Mills will be the speaker. After dinner here'll be dancing and cards. D. C. Malin is chairman of the program and entertainment committee of the Evanston Real Estate board. Mr. Malin states that, contrary to usual banquet custom, the announced time for dining means that time, and that dinner will be served promptly at 6:30 p. m.

Beg Your Pardon.

We are informed that the firm of Marshall & Fox designed the Murphy memorial, a picture of which was shown in this department last Sunday. W. E. Carr, secretary of the Dr. John B. Murphy Memorial association, was the authority for our statement that Benjamin Marshall was architect. Mr. Marshall, at the time the building was designed, was a member of the firm of Marshall & Fox.

In reporting the sale of the store and office building at the southwest corner of Prairie and 58th, last Sunday, the name of the buyer, through an error, was given as Loretta Harrison. It should have read Loretta Hanson. That's one on us. The other error is on the attorney, who put more revenue stamps on the deed than was required and also was due to the fact that a second mortgage wasn't disclosed in the county records. Therefore, according to J. J. Devine & Co., brokers, the price was $120,000 instead of $112,000 as reported.

TRADES CINEMA FOR BOULEVARD FLAT BUILDING

The fifty-seven apartments at the northeast corner of Austin boulevard and Fulton street have been sold by L. Dannenberg and L. Rosky to Henry Moss for a reported $387,000, subject to $217,000. Mr. Moss took in part payment the Commodore theater property, containing a 1,000 seat cinema, four flats, and two stores, at the southwest corner of Irving Park boulevard and Albany avenue, at $200,000, subject to $162,000. Alex B. La Zoris was broker.

Sisters Lease Shop in New Michigan-Ohio Building

Two sisters, Rita and Alice O'Donnell, connected for a number of years with Mandel Brothers and Charles A. Stevens & Brother, have leased a 34x75 store in the new Michigan-Ohio building for ten years at an annual rental starting at $12,000. The shop number will be 608 North Michigan avenue. B. M. Marcon, representing the John R. Thompson company, owners, negotiated the lease.

BUYS OIL STATION SITE.

The Standard Oil company has bought the southeast corner of Garfield boulevard and Princeton avenue, 85x130, for an indicated $22,000, from A. B. Juergens.

NEXT PRESIDENT OF REALTY BOARD TO BE SPEAKER AT Y. M. C. A.

Joseph K. Brittain, next president of the Chicago Real Estate board and secretary of the real estate brokers' license commission of Illinois, will be the speaker before the Chicago Real Estate board's class in real estate practice at the Central Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce next Tuesday evening. His subject will be "The Ethics of the Real Estate Profession and the Operation of the Real Estate Brokers' License Law in Illinois." Maj. C. G. Kinney of the Chicago Title and Trust company spoke to this class on "How to Show Title to Real Estate by Abstracts and Guarantee Policies" last Tuesday.

JOSEPH K. BRITTAIN.

John T. Redmond, manager of the National Bank of the Republic building, will be the speaker before the Chicago Real Estate board's class in Property Management next Tuesday evening, Dec. 15. Mr. Redmond's subject will be "Managing Office Buildings." William A. Niles, building manager of Albert H. Wetten & Co., addressed his class last Tuesday evening on "Managing Business Property." Both lectures will be given at Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street.

Florida!

BROKERS ATTENTION - LAKE GLENADA WOODLANDS—
one of the very best properties in Florida is now being developed and marketed. It is situated in the Highlands of Florida adjoining the city of Avon Park, The Payroll City, THE WORLDS CITRUS CENTER. Extensive packing, canning and manufacturing plants are located here. This development fronts on Lake Glenada with two lakes and a brook entirely within its boundaries. It's charming, deep water lakes afford excellent boating, bathing and fishing. It is served by the Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard Air Line Railways. Main highways radiate in every direction. It's climate is the best in the world.

LAKE GLENADA WOODLANDS will have one of the largest and most beautiful hotels in the Highlands. A Club House and the sportiest Golf Course in this section. A large and handsome Casino—a Community Center. Winding boulevards, 80 feet wide, with White Way lighting system. Electricity and water to every lot. A large modern Community Church. A School and Public Building site. A fully equipped Children's Playground.

The entire property will be beautifully landscaped and beautified with tropical trees shrubs and flowers. All the public grounds, improvements and buildings will for five years be maintained by the developers at their expense.

The Highlands are considered by many the most beautiful part of Florida and the best place for a home and for investment. Such nationally known men as Coleman T. DuPont, Otto Kahn, Percy Rockefeller, and Rex Beach have purchased property in this vicinity. Roger W. Babson, Edward W. Bok, Cyrus H. K. Curtis, August Hecksher, E. H. Bedford, A. J. Reynolds, H. H. Warner, George Harder and other prominent men have homes and large investments in the Highlands section.

The LAKE GLENADA WOODLANDS property appeals to the better class of people, for homes and for investment, because of its sound and substantial nature . . . the location . . . the extensive improvements . . . the prices and terms. Our manner of distribution enables us to make a most attractive proposition to a live sales organisation in this city, who can qualify with us as to their responsibility and ability to secure the volume of business to which we believe we are entitled.

If you are in a position to properly represent us and are ready for business NOW—write us fully regarding your qualifications and we will give you details. QUICK ACTION IS NECESSARY. The developers of this property are members of realty boards of Avon Park and Miami and are thoroughly responsible.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS PREPARES FOR RAPID GROWTH

City to Be Zoned and Plan Experts Engaged.

WILLIAM F. HILDEMAN.

Planning for a greater Chicago Heights, a city of 50,000 within a few years, and from that on indefinitely to the goal of one of Illinois' large municipalities, the chamber of commerce and city commission of that community announce a comprehensive program of civic betterment. One of the first steps will be the adoption of a zoning ordinance and the development of the city along property city planning ideals.

"Chicago Heights realizes that it is about to receive an increase in population from Chicago commuters far greater than anything which can be hoped for through the further development of our local industries," said William F. Hildeman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Chicago Heights.

Only City in District.

"We are the only city in the newly active Illinois Central section beginning at Homewood. We possess the only existing complete municipal plant, with sewer, water, electric, and gas service, together with fire and police protection fully developed. It is our duty to make these conveniences available for as large a portion of the newly opened territory as possible, especially since the development of utilities in this territory offers problems of unusual difficulty.

"To make a study of this problem and to find out how to meet our responsibility, we are now advocating the enactment of a zoning ordinance for our city, and the appointment of a zoning commission which will have the fullest authority possible under our laws, and employ experts to prepare a plan of development according to the best standards of city planning and in harmony with the Chicago Regional Planning association's ideas."

City Planning to Be Easy.

Mr. Hildeman pointed out that Chicago Heights lies in the center of proposed development in the Illinois Central zone; and that the city's development has been guided, no doubt, by the far seeing eye of Charles H. Wacker, one of the founders of Chicago Heights, along lines which make the task of the city planners easy. Industrial plants in Chicago Heights are all east of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, and future industrial development will be in an easterly direction.

Most of the industrial workers live on the east side, while on the west side of the city are residence sections which compare favorably in landscaping and architectural standards with any developments in the Illinois Central district, it is said. Much of the land is wooded, picturesque Thorn creek winds through it, and a system of small parks has been laid out. In the city and on its outskirts, to the west, north, and southwest, between 500 and 600 acres of wooded land have been acquired by the forest preserve district. The city has a high school with a 22 acre athletic field.

SONG CONTEST TO BE FEATURE OF REALTY BOARD'S BANQUET

A. L. RIEMENSCHNEIDER.

The newest thing in realty board banquet entertainment is a vocal contest in which the president of the Cook County Real Estate board, A. L. Riemenschneider, and several former heads of that organization, are to take part next Thursday evening at the annual banquet of the board at the Congress hotel. Each contestant is to sing one verse of the "Song of the Real-Estaters" with the audience joining in the chorus. What the prize will be hasn't been determined yet. Albert Wahl wrote the words to the song; the music is "Marching Through Georgia."

It was hinted last night that in addition to the speakers already announced, President Riemenschneider may spring a new one Thursday night—a figure at present conspicuously in the public eye. It all depends on word from Washington.

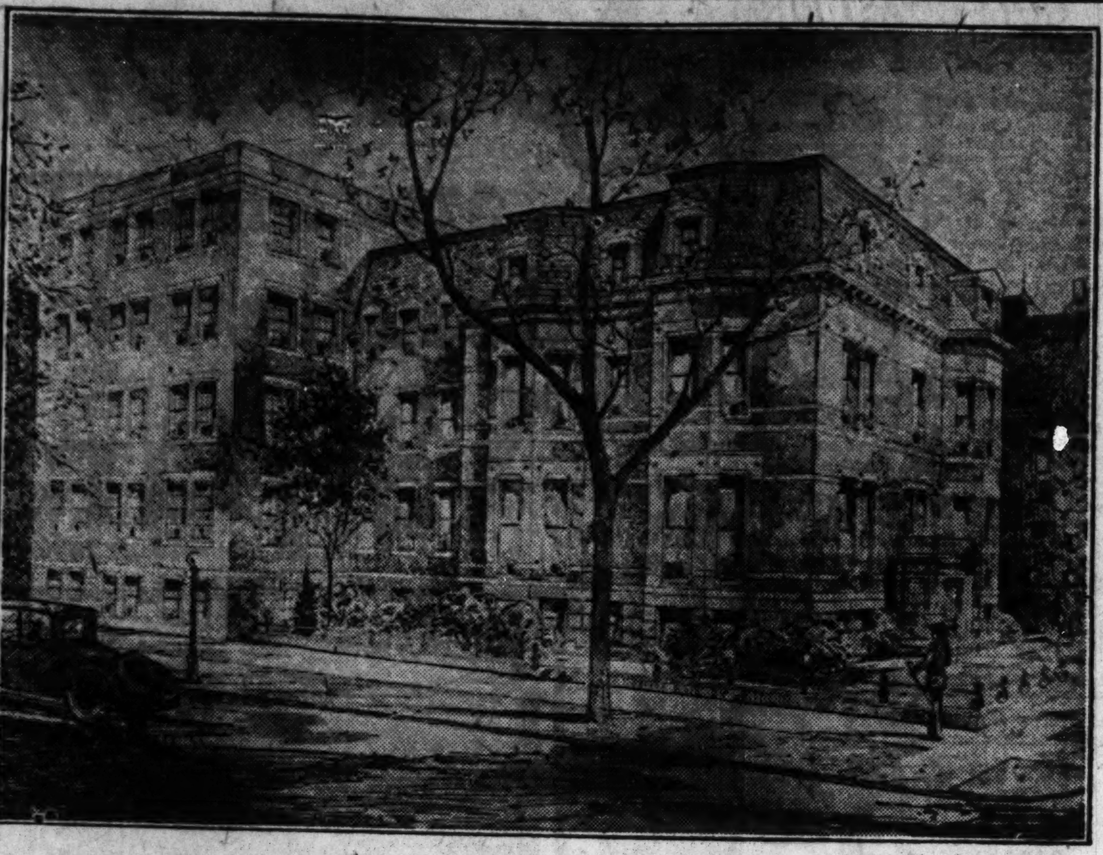
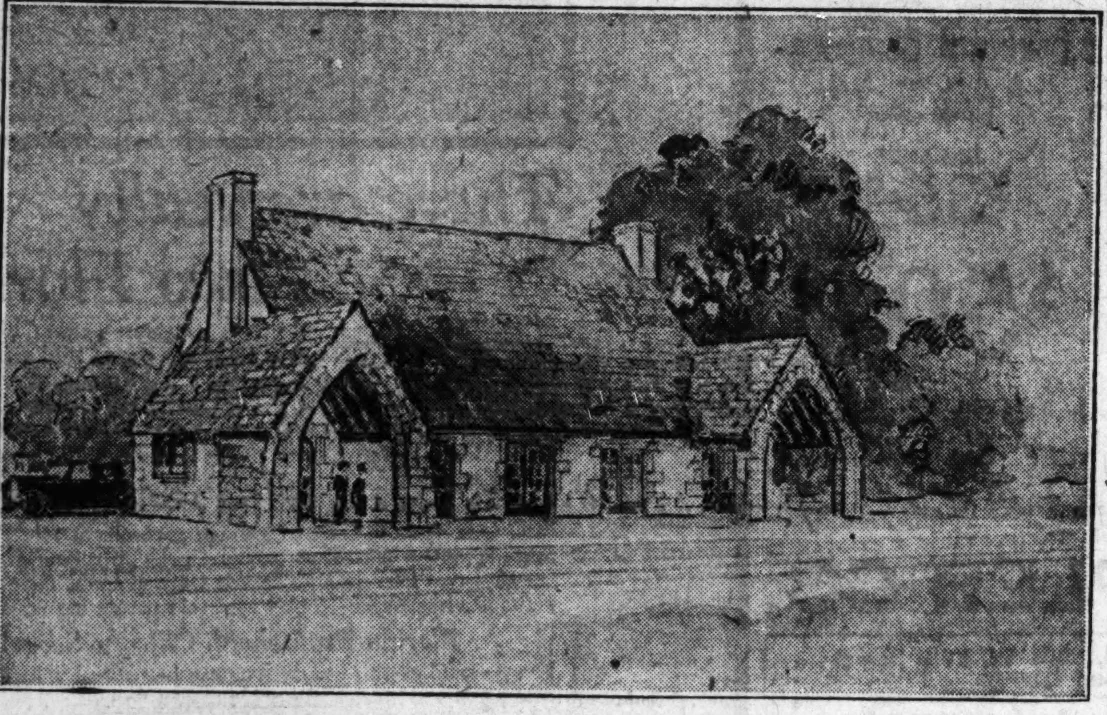
Wreckers Barred on This North Side Improvement



John Archibald Armstrong designed the above grouping of the old Dunlap residence at the northwest corner of Dearborn and Oak with a modern four story building adjoining it on the west the whole to be used by F. E. Compton & Co., publishers. It will be ready May 1. More is told in another column.

Glen Ellyn at Last to Get "Station Beautiful"



Architect John Archibald Armstrong has designed one of the most attractive suburban stations in the country for the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad at Glen Ellyn. The interior will have a heavily beamed ceiling, with antique iron lanterns and a four foot wainscoting of random widths of oak around the 36x22 waiting room. It'll have 500 square feet of shelter out of doors, though the above picture doesn't show this very clearly. The building will be 25x65. This is a view from Main street, looking southwest. Fred M. Holcomb made the rendering for Mr. Armstrong. More is told about this in another column of this section.

Old Santy to Give Glen Ellyn Brand New Third Rail Station

JOHN ARCHIBALD ARMSTRONG.

Santa Claus is going to stuff one of the most attractive suburban railroad stations in the country down into the stockings of more than half of the commuting Glen Ellyn residents—those much promised optimists who've used the old frame shack of the Chicago, Aurora & Elgin railroad these many years.

Just to try out this bit of news and see if the reaction of a third rail commuter was what we thought it'd be, we gently imparted this news to a gray haired old man, one who started using the third rail soon after the Civil war. He broke down and sobbed: "I don't believe it. They told us right after Gettysburg that we'd get a new station and they've told us that every year since."

We'll admit we too were skeptical till John Archibald Armstrong, architect, showed us the sketches and told us work would start as soon as the plans were made—about the first of the year. It'll be ready for use four or five months later.

It's to cost $25,000 and will be of old English architecture, with peaked roof, random slate roof, Wisconsin limestone used in an irregular manner, with cream colored plaster elsewhere.

Vice President Faber of the Third rail, coöperated with the Glen Ellyn Plan commission to the extent of discarding another architect's plan for a station which looked like a cross between a freighthouse and a boiler factory and accepting the commission's suggestion that the much promised station harmonize with the new Masonic temple theater building, the new A. C. Hoy real estate building and oil station, all three of which have random slate roofs and old English style of architecture.

If by any chance President Fred Sargent glimpses this item, we suggest he take out the one dim mazda in each of the Northwestern station waiting rooms in Glen Ellyn and install some bright lights and also doll up the interior and exterior a bit.

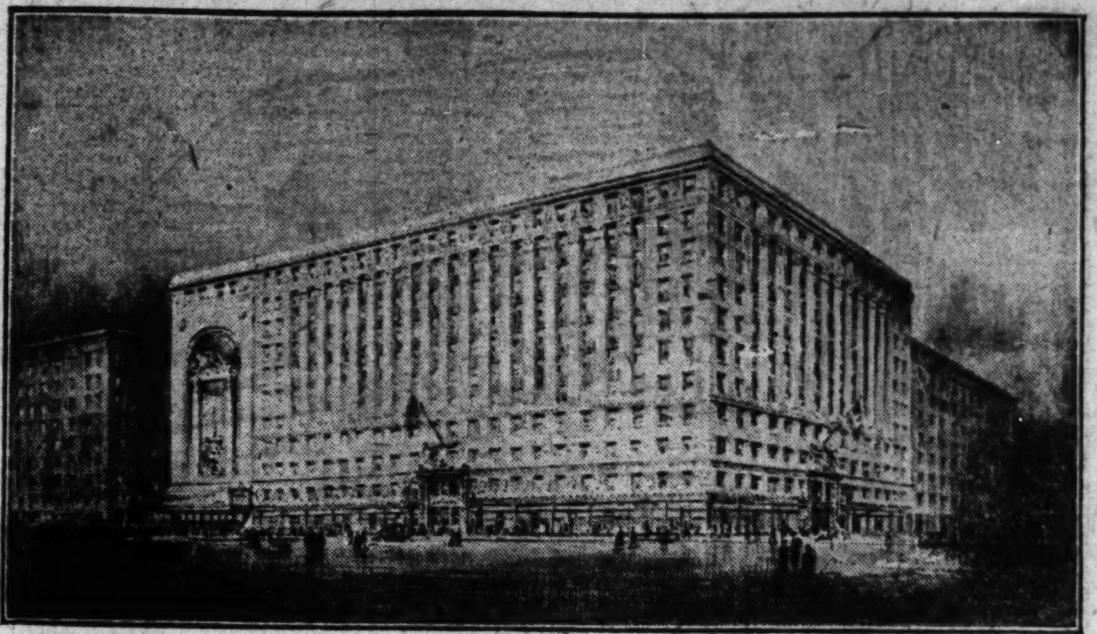
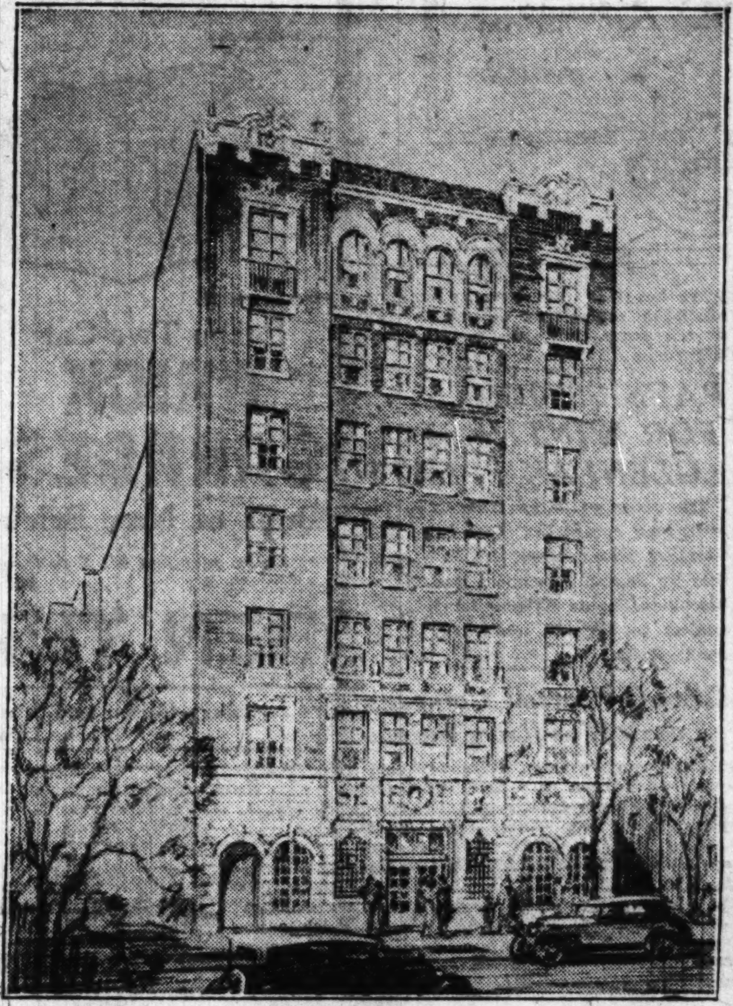
National Press Club Building at Washington, D. C.



Chicago architects, C. W. and George L. Rapp, designed the above National Press Club building, work on which will start soon in Washington, D. C. It will be the largest office building in the national capital and will be the national headquarters for the press of America and will have club quarters for the Washington correspondents of publications from all parts of the country. The building will contain a 3,400 seat theater.

Over 150 publishers, news services, trade associations, attorneys, etc., including most of the metropolitan newspapers of the country, have signed lease applications and have been allotted space. The cost is placed at $10,000,000. It will be at the southeast corner of the two principal business thoroughfares of the capital, 14th and F streets, N. W., directly opposite the New Willard hotel. P. W. Chapman & Co. of Chicago and New York have underwritten a bond issue.

Gary Place Apartments



The above seven story building is being erected at 620 Gary place by the Angelus Building corporation. Leight, Holzer & Co. have underwritten a $245,000 bond issue on the project.

New Owner Plans Building at Cicero and Barry Corner

The vacant southwest corner of Cicero and Barry avenues, 81x125, has been sold by Milton Lowenstern for a reported $35,000. Title for the buyer was taken by the Foreman Trust and Savings bank, trustee. Improvements are contemplated, according to Edward G. Blonder, attorney for the buyer. C. K. Swartz was attorney for the seller.

Sixty-one Flat Building for Drake-Franklin Blvd.

The Franklin Manor Building corporation has bought from John O. Gustafson the southeast corner of Franklin boulevard and Drake avenue, 133x168, for an indicated $40,000, and is erecting a sixty-one flat building, with two, three and four room suites. The Straus Brothers company has made a $190,000 loan on the project. The appraised valuation is $317,000.

MERGE DUNLAP HOUSE WITH NEW STEEL BUILDING

Publishers to Build at Dearborn-Oak.

Invasion of the near north side by business houses is more and more proving a peaceful penetration, without the use of the advance guard of wrecking companies. There seems to be a growing tendency to preserve many of the fine old residences of bygone days as parts of office buildings.

The latest example of this policy of conservation of worthwhile architectural antiques is at the northwest corner of Oak and Dearborn streets, where the publishing house of F. E. Compton & Co., publishers of "Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia," are erecting their new home.

On this corner stands the old Dunlap residence, built in 1885. It contains the high ceilings, attractive old staircases, trimmings of rare hand carved woods and many other architectural reminders of former days.

The old fashioned rooms are being turned into private offices for the executives of the company, while the general offices will occupy the four story building now being erected on the west end of the property.

John Archibald Armstrong's plans call for a building with foundations capable of carrying eight stories. It also is arranged so that later if found necessary the old Dunlap house can make way for an extension of the new building east to Dearborn street.

SEVEN STORY FLAT BUILDING FOR GARY PLACE

Angelus Apartments to Have 114 Rooms.

A seven story fireproof apartment building, to be known as the Angelus, is to be erected at 620-622 Gary place by the Angelus Building corporation.

It will have 114 rooms, arranged so that they can be combined as one room and kitchenette, two rooms, three rooms, and one room and bath apartments. All suites will be furnished.

Leight, Holzer & Co. have underwritten a bond issue on the project of $245,000, at 6½ per cent. The value of the land and building, it is estimated, will be approximately $400,000.

The building will have a large lobby on the main floor, and the plans call for both a passenger and freight elevator. Completion date has not yet been determined, but it is expected the Angelus will be ready for guests about May 1.

The 50x120 site was bought from Bessie and Benjamin Rusak for an indicated $24,800, subject to an incumbrance of $9,800.

WABASH AVENUE GARAGE IS SOLD FOR $336,500

The recently completed seven story garage at 606 South Wabash avenue, has been sold by the Porter estate to Myron H. Spades, Arnold W. Totman, and Cyril C. Spades, trustees of the Wabash-Harrison Garage trust, for an indicated $336,500.

London Guarantee Corner Store Is Rented to Cusack

The corner store of the London Guarantee building at last has been rented. This was the last vacant store in the building. The Cusack Home Utilities company, sales agency for electrical refrigeration devices, etc., will open a store there on Jan. 1.

DRAWN FROM THE ENGLISH IDEA OF A COTTAGE

Low Lying Feature Is One of Its Best.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A combination which is always a happy one has been achieved in today's house—that of the conventional with distinctive touches lifting it out of the ordinary, and that of the practical with decorative addenda contributing to its essential effectiveness.

Designed by Architect Van Gunten and Van Gunten, 26 E. Huron street, Chicago, it is in modern English cottage style, five rooms, with one bath, a sun parlor and a sleeping porch. Designed for a man and his wife, without children, the actual results of its homey atmosphere are interesting in the telling.

"We built it just for the two of us," the wife said, walking proudly from room to room. "We never had any children, but even without a family we finally grew so lonesome for a home and so tired of hotel rooms, that we bought the land, and had the house designed after desires we had been cherishing a long, long time.

"Then—it was funny—but after we were here about a year, we found we just couldn't get along without children. We had never felt the need of them in a hotel, but here in the open, with a big yard and everything to make them comfortable, we made up our minds they were the one thing lacking to make us really contented. So we adopted two little girls, and they have their nursery in the spare room next the kitchen, and sleep on the porch. And we are really living now, in every way, for the first time in our lives!"

Careful About Details.

One of the strongest points in favor of this house, which is of light gray stucco with the slightest suggestion of green, with a thatched roof sloping in severely simple lines, is the careful attention to details shown in both the perspective and the plans.

It is perhaps needless to say, and yet so important that one can hardly keep from dwelling on it, that it is the various small details of a house which can make or break it. Bad design in a roof can ruin the entire exterior. Or a badly planned dormer window, or a stilted, ungraceful porch, or a chimney without symmetry or form can effect a vicious transformation of what would otherwise be a good looking house into a commonplace or actually an ugly one.

Note the chimney directly in front, showing its entire length. Then there is the entrance with the gabled roof jutting out, and a curved iron railing stretching a hospitable welcome to those who would enter.

Too much importance cannot be placed on achieving an attractive doorway. One of its first features should be that it beckons you to come within and try it. A practice of obesrving doorways is a good one to cultivate against the time when you wish to choose one for yourself. You can't help having distinct impressions of the various doorways in the homes you know. Cherish those impressions. They will be of value some day.

Has South Front.

The house faces south, with the dining room having a south and east orientation, which is generally conceded the ideal one for that room.

This is a low lying house—an important decision to make, this one, of whether your house shall be high or low. A high house is usually less expensive, but almost never so satisfactory. Of course, if you are building in a depression, you must put up a higher house than otherwise, even if it is not quite so attractive.

It is interesting to note that the English and the French, from whom we are drawing so many of our domestic architectural ideas these days, have wholly different conceptions of home styles. Modern English houses are ordinarily low lying, rising out of the ground as if they had grown there, while the French houses are often high and rather stilted in appearance.

The interior walls of the main front rooms are panelled—small rectagonal panels, framed with a flat, narrow molding. This pattern is always good in a small house.

Fireplace and hearth are of good red bricks, crude and rough in appearance. The mantle is Colonial. Tiles are effective, of course, in a fireplace, Dutch, Spanish, or Persian in pattern, but they are more expensive than brick, and scarcely any more appealing.

Bay Windows Attractive.

In the sun parlor, bay windows on the polygonal plan have been brought into play, harmonizing particularly well with the English cottage type of home. Bay windows are frequently used in the designing of a sun porch. Difficult to do and do well, as can be seen often enough when they have been made to ruin an exterior. Another agreeable bay window design which might be mentioned here is the semi-circular bay which can hardly help producing a well constructed exterior for a small, informal house, and serve at the same time the two-fold purpose of the bay window: that of increasing the floor area, and contributing to the decorative value of the house.

In the floor plan the French doors between the living room and dining room should be noted. These, swinging wide, can produce the effect of a larger living room, extending along the entire front of the house.

The kitchen is small. Space has been economized in this room. It is a matter of taste whether or not it should be larger. If this were desired, it would be a simple matter to borrow from the bedroom adjoining.

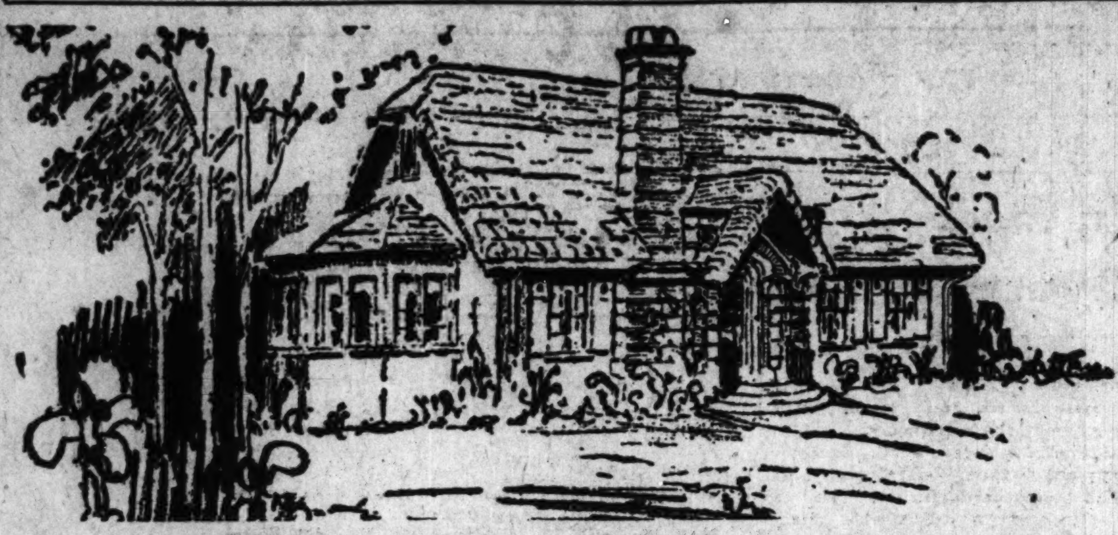
No economy has been shown in the supply of closets. There are two in the hall and one in each bedroom, which is an ample supply in a house of this size.

In figuring the cost of the house, a basement has been planned under only one-half of it. This means considerable saving, and, at the same time, sufficient room for storage and laundry purposes.

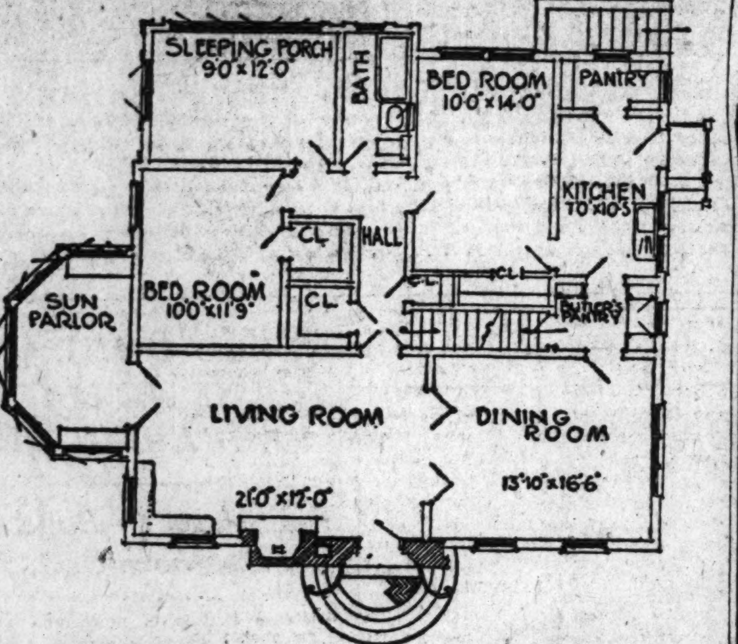
As it stands, the house could be built for about $10,000. The floor space is 36x34 feet. If a house on the same order with larger rooms were desired, the cost would be increased proportionately.

There are also possibilities in a low lying house of this sort for building additional rooms later on and keeping at the same time, the general contour and outline.

It Was Built Just for Two



Exclusive of the sun parlor and sleeping porch, this modern English cottage has five rooms and one bath. Observe the distinctive note in the gabled roof jutting out above the entrance way, and the chimney rising directly in front. With a basement under only one-half the house, the cost is estimated at approximately $10,000.



PAYS $350,000 FOR WINTHROP-GLENLAKE FLATS

The seventy-four apartments at the southwest corner of Winthrop and Glenlake avenues, lot 107x150, were sold by Joseph Rosenberg and Harry Zisook to Sophie Krieger for $350,000, subject to $250,000, according to the county records.

Drive-It-Yourself Company Leases Woodlawn Garage

The Saunders Drive-It-Yourself company of Kansas City has leased the 51x173 one story garage at 1121-25 East 63d street from John and Frank Hayes for five years at an annual rental of $9,000. According to McKey & Poague, who negotiated the lease, this will be the second station of this company in Chicago. It operates eighty-five stations in other cities.

CHICAGOANS AND BILOXIANS FORM GULF COAST FIRM

GEORGE S. FORBES.

Another group of Chicago men have formed a real estate organization to operate on the Mississippi gulf coast. It is called the Chicago Gulf Coast Realty company, and is composed of George S. Forbes of the Chicago Board of Trade as president; Louis Braun, packer, of Biloxi, vice president; Daniel S. Wentworth, attorney, secretary and treasurer. The directors are P. B. Carey, Board of Trade; Fred J. Forster of the Forster Music Publishing company; E. Lucien Sivet, M. D., and E. A. Teich, realtor.

The new concern will have offices in Biloxi and 309 South La Salle street, Chicago. It will probably market, among other projects, the 12,000 acres of Mr. Forbes and Mr. Forster, known as Beverly Hills, fifteen miles north of Gulfport.

The Growth of Per Capita Wealth in Florida

Prosperity Rises High in Florida

THERE is rich reward in Florida for the man who employs his talents industriously. Witness the fact above.

During thirty years per capita wealth increased slightly less than $200; but a new alertness to opportunity arose, and the climbing line of average wealth is inescapable in its meaning.

And Good Fortune must be lavish with the individual, to record such increase per capita. But this is only logical—Florida soil grows eighty varied crops and more crops a year on the same land than any other state; all the world buys from Florida's natural resources, every month in the year, and a "dull season" cannot exist; although primarily agricultural, Florida's factories produce more than $200,000,000 annually in manufactured goods and more than $12,000,000 worth of minerals is sent to outside markets each year.

Little wonder the line of prosperity rises so sharply—in Florida!

Know Florida better—judge by known standards her amazing progress and her prosperous destiny, remembering that the riches of the state forecast the welfare of the individual.

Sport Supreme and PROFITS with Security invite you at Valparaiso

There are really two Floridas

CORAL sunsets—turquois waters—emerald palms—opal skies—that's the jewel box which is Florida. All these and more is Valparaiso—for here the flatness of Florida rolls itself into undulating hills and valleys—the balsam pines of the northland meet with the palms of the South. Wooded hills and streams—verdant lawns—that's the other Florida—Valparaiso.

Here sport finds its background in nature—not in man-made artificialities. One hunts in the 250,000-acre government forest preserve—fishes in waters as clear as crystal—golfs on rolling grass carpeted fairways that lead through heavily wooded spots. Here for you and yours is a home spot—a play spot that nature has molded.

Florida Profits with Chicago Security

Now—amid all this beauty, you can buy actual waterfront lots at prices you will hardly believe are true.

On every one, the Chicago Title and Trust Company guarantees the title. Pine Crest Addition is the only subdivision in all Florida where titles are so guaranteed.

Valparaiso is not a promise—not a dream. It is here today—modern—complete. Streets are laid, sidewalks are in, homes and business buildings are built. The electric power plant is open. An abundance of pure water is available. The much talked-of "Inn" is now open for guests—for you.

300 Chicagoans Own Property Here

Prominent Chicagoans, men of stability and integrity own Pine Crest Addition. They have invested here where fortunes have been made and will be made again.

Investigate Valparaiso now. Learn the truth about this "different" Florida where you may share in the profits. We will gladly send you full information and let you be the sole judge of this splendid investment and home place. Send the coupon. Do it now. No obligation. Clip the coupon. Mail it now.

CAL USES RADIO WHEN HE THINKS IT'S DEMANDED

President Is Opposed to Direct Broadcast.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Although the voice of the President of the United States has been heard by millions of persons during the last year, it will be news to many listeners that he has spoken directly over the radio but a single time. Then only for five minutes. The occasion for this was the Women's World's fair in Chicago last April, and it serves to bring home the fact that Mr. Coolidge is evidently not a believer in direct broadcasting by a President.

The President appears to make a very definite distinction between having a scheduled address, such as his speech to the American Farm Bureau federation in Chicago last Monday, broadcast as against simply "talking over the radio." The farm speech was not to be a radio talk, but rather considered as a public address with a definite purpose extended to the people through the medium of radio.

Direct and Indirect Broadcasting.

Invitations to speak over the radio are declined by Mr. Coolidge, but this does not mean that he is indifferent to the use of the radio to carry his voice to the millions of people of the country. It would appear to mean that he thinks the broadcasting should be indirect and not direct.

Direct broadcasting as here used should be explained to the reader as an occasion where the President might talk directly to the radio audience from his desk or study at the White House, while indirect broadcasting is where the President, as he did recently, went to New York City to address the New York Chamber of Commerce, and where the broadcasting of his speech was incidental, although it reached 100 times as many people as were actually present at the dinner.

Cal Receptive to Radio.

It is possible the President feels that in direct broadcasting he is reaching

WGN to Bring Student Prince to You Friday

"The Student Prince" on the radio—from W-G-N—next Friday night! The entire operetta by Sigmund Romberg, adapted by Dorothy Donnelly from the famous play, "In Old Heidelburg," will be broadcast direct from the stage of the Great Northern theater, where it has played for almost a year.

ROY CROPPER.
[Moffett Studio.]

J. J. and Lee Shubert, the producers, have consented to the broadcast after months of debate. "The Student Prince" is now being played by eleven companies through the United States and Canada. The public has long been familiar with many of the beautiful selections from the operetta, such as "Deep in My Heart, Dear," "The Student's Serenade," "The Drinking Song," and "The Marching Song," and will now have the opportunity of hearing the principals and the sturdy male chorus of the Chicago company sing these melodies for the first time on the radio. Roy Cropper and Olga Cook are the principals.

Quin Ryan, who sat in a box of the theater and interpreted "The Mikado" when it was broadcast last winter by W-G-N, will handle the microphone again, explaining the stage action and describing the costumes and settings. He will go on the air at 7:45.

RADIO USED IN LONDON TO NAB CARELESS DRIVER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 12.—British police have been making effective use of radio recently in tracking petty offenders. Several nights ago an appeal was broadcast requesting any one who had witnessed a certain motor accident in London to communicate with the police. Many persons responded, and one happened to have taken the number of the car in question. As a consequence the motorist was traced, brought to court, and fined for dangerous driving.

U. OF CHICAGO PLANS LECTURES BY RADIO SOON

Faculty Members to Talk Over Air.

An attempt to give radio audiences a comprehensive view of the organization of the modern world, through lectures delivered by some of the most brilliant members of the University of Chicago faculty, will be launched shortly after the first of the year, according to an announcement from university authorities.

Fay-Cooper Cole, anthropologist; Ferdinand Schevill, noted historian; James Parker Hall, head of the university's law school, and James Hayden Tufts, vice president of the university and well known philosopher, are among those scheduled to speak. Lectures will be given once a week, definite dates to be announced later.

Prof. Dorn in Charge.

The radio talks in general will follow the outlines and methods of a similar course of lectures being given to a selected group of students at the Midway institution.

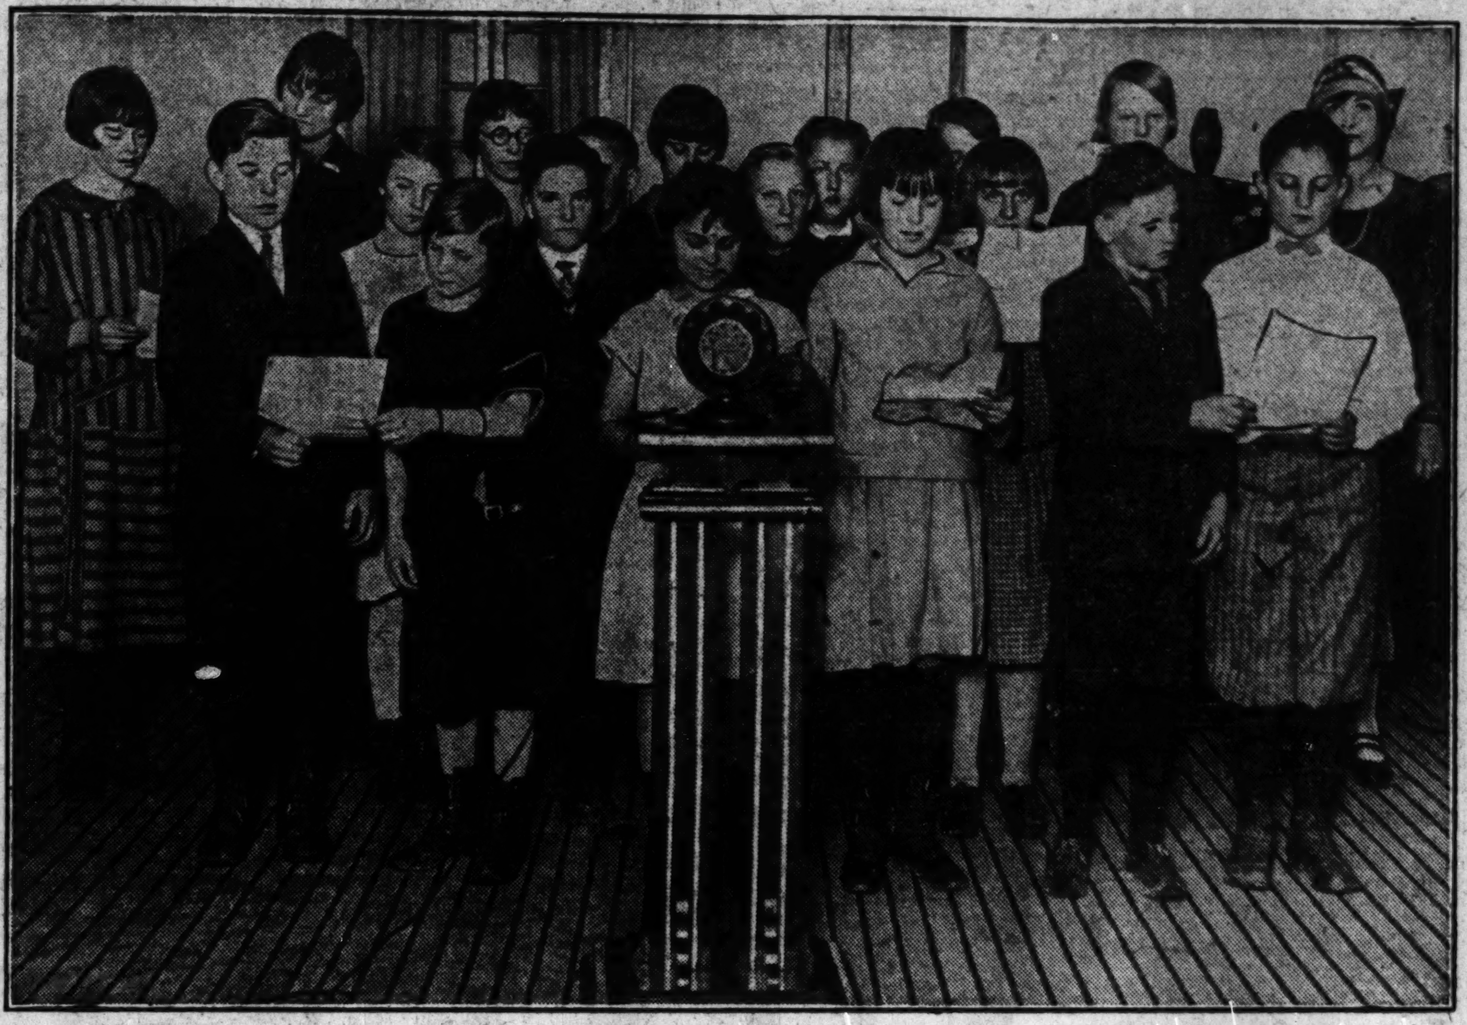
"The work represents a reaction against departmental, highly specialized methods of dealing with knowledge," said Prof. Walter L. Dorn, who is organizing the course. "We are trying to see the facts of social organization from the point of view of the ordinary citizen."

Acquaintance with a group of the university's most distinguished scholars is one of the advantages to be gained by the radio listener who tunes in on the speeches, according to Prof. Dorn.

Variety of Lectures.

Universities throughout the country are swinging toward this type of course, Prof. Dorn said, and the present series of lectures constitutes one of the most elaborate attempts to mobilize the resources of a great institution of learning for work on a specific problem. Sociology, anthropology, history, economics, religion, and philosophy will be brought into play in considering the complexities of society.

"SPEAKING PIECES" BY RADIO



A few years ago, especially in the rural schools, speaking pieces was the program on Friday afternoons. In the country schools of Cook county speaking pieces has been brought up to date and the radio is used to carry the program to the other schools. The above photo shows the pupils of Gross Point school in District 40 broadcasting.

RADIO COMPASS WILL BE ADDED TO RUM FLEET

New York, Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Radio compasses will be installed on some of the coast guard patrol boats at New London, Conn., and Staten Island, N. Y.

It is expected that the patrol boat radio compass will be a great aid in navigation these 75 footers, coast guard officials declare, enabling them to obtain bearings from two or more base radio stations and to locate each other in the fog. A radio compass involving the use of high frequencies is something new in radio circles and is the result of considerable experimentation and research work of the bureau of standards and the coast guard radio personnel in Washington.

"REGENERATIVE SETS TO GO," IS B. L. A. PURPOSE

The Broadcast Listeners' Association of America has launched a campaign to eliminate the interference and annoyance caused by regenerative receivers, a campaign which is being conducted along the association's plan of mutual coöperation. Set owners are asked to change their present regenerative sets into a type that will not reradiate. Responses have come from points east to Columbus, O.; south, St. Louis, Mo.; west, Davenport, Ia. Every member of the B. L. A. has been appointed a committee of one to use his influence with all his acquaintances who own regenerative sets and to convert them into a nonreradiating type.

HARNESS RADIO TO MEET NEEDS OF THE MASSES

Paper's Stations to Aid Humanity.

BY FRANK HINMAN.

Public service by radio on a scale never before attempted is the latest innovation put into effect by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station on the Drake hotel, in furtherance of its policy to make its stations not only the most interesting and entertaining, but the most helpful to the "invisible audience."

These broadcasts, which are to be a daytime feature, and which will in no way interfere with W-G-N's regular programs, will be known as Public Service Periods, and will cover a wide variety of subjects. It is planned to have these public service periods by radio augment the service now being given by THE TRIBUNE's public service bureau at 11 South Dearborn street.

Trib Helps 750,000.

Last year the Public Service bureau performed nearly three-quarters of a million acts of service for citizens of Chicago and the middle west. By enlisting the aid of radio in its service work THE TRIBUNE believes that many more thousands will be helped.

One of the features of the broadcasts will be one called the "Port o' Missing Men," in which descriptions of missing men, women, and children will be put on the air. Broadcasts of this nature will not only make it possible for the police of Chicago and surrounding towns to be on the lookout for the missing persons, but will notify friends and acquaintances of the disappearance. Radio has proved a great help in the locating of missing persons in other cities, especially London.

Talks for Business Men.

There will also be university lectures and talks of interest to business men. There will be hints on fashions and household suggestions for the women. During the summer months

America Places Zenith First
For QUALITY . . . In Radio

GRAND OPERA STARS, world-famous pianists and violinists, orchestras of international reputation, are on the air. The opportunities for radio enjoyment are becoming more and more marvelous every week.

Can you instantly select the station that will bring those programs in?

And—do they come through to you so clearly, so distinctly, and so faithfully that you seem to be in the very presence of the artists?

TONE QUALITY—that's the supreme test of a fine radio set! And it is quite as difficult to achieve in the building of a radio set as accuracy-to-the-very-second in a superlatively fine timepiece.

You can't make radio instruments to such exacting measure and sell them at Cheap-Street prices. —Any more than you can make concert grand pianos that win favor with musicians and sell them for a song.

Craftsmanship demands its price. Zenith pays that price—but what tremendous value it passes on to the music-lover who is really questing for true radio enjoyment!

To build the best in radio—that is Zenith's unswerving aim, its outstanding achievement.

To own the best in radio—that should be your deliberate ambition.

For the pleasure to be got from Zenith is too great—the disappointment with anything less fine is too keen and lasting—the difference in price in the long run is too insignificant—to justify even the fleeting thought that "Zenith is beyond your reach."

Whatever else you do—see Zenith—listen to Zenith—before you finally select your radio set. For somewhere in the Zenith line there's the instrument you want. You want it because you want the best—in beauty of design and matchless performance.

Ten models to choose from—priced from $100 to $2,000—each in its class an outstanding value. Call at the nearest Zenith Service Station—there's one in your neighborhood—and tell the Zenith dealer the style you prefer. Then ask him for a demonstration, in your home. No obligation.

Simply tell him where you live and the evening most convenient. Phone us for his name—quick service—and Satisfaction.

WILL FIX PRICE TO COMPOSERS IN SENATE BILL

Dill of Washington Prepares Measure.

SENATOR CLARENCE DILL.
[Und. & Und. Photo.]

It has been learned that United States Senator Dill, Democrat, from the state of Washington, author of last session's well known Dill bill, is preparing a bill which will probably stipulate the amount a broadcaster shall pay a composer or music copyright owner for broadcasting a composition over the radio. Senator Dill expects to introduce this bill into the senate at an early date.

The new Dill bill will be directly in line with a resolution adopted by the copyright relations committee of which Representative Wallace H. White Jr. of Maine was chairman at the recent Hoover conference, which declared that the only solution of the controversy between the broadcasters lies in the enactment of suitable legislation by congress.

Broadcasters Favor It.

The idea of legislation also conforms to the view of the National Association of Broadcasters, which believes the copyright fee for broadcasting musical compositions should be fixed by congress as was done in the case of phonograph records.

"Broadcasters originally opposed the idea of paying money for any license to play copyright music on the theory that the advantage to the copyright owner or publisher in having his music advertised was a fair and full payment for the use of the work. This honest opinion met violent opposition from a certain group of copyright owners." Paul B. Klugh, executive chairman of the Broadcasters' association said, discussing the situation.

"Tests were then made in various courts in order to ascertain what rights a copyright owner actually possessed with respect to broadcasting. Decisions have been rendered on both sides, with the final decision upholding the copyright owners.

"We then considered the most practicable method of paying owners of copyrights, and found that the present law already includes a feasible method used by the makers of phonograph records and player piano rolls. We therefore adopted the fundamental doctrine embodied in the phonograph clause, carefully abstaining from mentioning any price, because we are entirely content to rely upon the fairness of congress in arriving at a fair price. So that there will be no misunderstanding on this point, we are decidedly of the opinion that copyright owners should receive more than the mechanical statutory royalty of two cents for every time a copyright number is played."

Composers Will Protest.

The American Society of Composers, headed by Gene Buck, its president, and E. C. Mills, will unquestionably oppose this move, as it does not believe in price fixing by congress. While it is known that the composers will oppose the contemplated legislation nothing definite has been learned regarding the attitude of certain theatrical interests which constitute the newest element in the controversy. It is assumed if they take any action they will line up with the composers, although it is not felt their presence there will be especially welcomed.

At the Hoover conference William A. Brady of New York, who said he represented these theatrical interests, indicated an interest in the controversy, contending if a license fee were paid that theatrical producers holding musical rights should share in it also. This contention, if adhered to, offers further possibilities of enlivening the situation at Washington.

CONCERTS OF U. S. MARINE BAND TO BE FEATURED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—The United States Marine barracks, home of the U. S. Marine band, has been included in the land wire system of broadcasting station WRC, and concerts by the famous organization will be broadcast throughout the winter by the Washington station in conjunction with WJZ and WGY. The first of the winter's series of concerts by the marines was radioed Dec. 8, under the leadership of Capt. W. H. Santelmann, and the regular program of broadcasting has been arranged for Tuesday nights.

Capt. Santelmann, who a year ago was a little skeptical as to the good results obtained from broadcasting the band's music, has, since the completion of his annual tour through the west, become one of radio's firmest friends. During the tour, he said, the audiences were composed largely of radio fans who had heard the band over the air.

ADMIRAL COONTZ FINDS PACIFIC RADIO BETTER

Considerable improvement in radio communication in the Pacific during the last year is reported by Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, commander in chief of the United States fleet. The admiral especially points to a better handling of messages between San Diego, Honolulu, and Balboa, also to daylight arc communication between Honolulu and Samoa.

Admiral Coontz said it is now the usual thing to raise shore stations at maximum working distances, whereas two years ago it was only occasionally that this was possible when using continuous frequencies. He also commends the radio compass service.

Pie Plate Used as Aerial for Radio Set

A resident of Woodhaven, L. I., reporting reception of WGY's 50 kilowatt, super-power signals, stated that he used a pie plate as an aerial. The tin plate was placed under a telephone receiver and the plate was connected to a two tube set by wire.

TRIBUNE TO USE W-G-N IN PUBLIC SERVICE WORK

tours will be broadcast and advice given on travel accommodations. In other words, what THE TRIBUNE'S Public Service bureau is to the thousands who come or write to its office, the Public Service Periods of W-G-N will be to the "invisible audience" which will have access to them over the air.

There will be nothing routine about the broadcasts. W-G-N wants to give the listening public information on the subjects it is interested in and to this end radio fans may write or phone to the station asking for information, advice, or help. We would also be glad to receive suggestions from radio listeners on how we can improve the programs from the two TRIBUNE radio stations, W-G-N and WLIB. We value the opinion of the radio fan and wish to arrange our programs with preference to the majority.

Here Is the Schedule.

The Public Service Periods were inaugurated last week on the following schedule and will continue each day:

7 to 7:30 a. m. Setting-up exercises.

9 to 10:30 a. m. Digest of the day's news.

10:30 to 11 a. m. Forecast of events of the day. General discussion of timely topics.

11 to 11:30 a. m. Sally Joy Brown's help for the needy.

11:30 to noon. Discussion of fashions for both men and women.

12 to 12:40 p. m. Period of household hints in which recipes, beauty hints, home decorations and other items of interest to the housewife will be put on the air.

5:30 to 5:57 p. m. "Skeezix Time" with features of interest to children.

"THE TIRED HAND."

By way of giving Fort Worth a little competition, Dudley Shaw, KFJF, Oklahoma City, has adopted the sobriquet, "The Tired Hand."

WBCN ANNOUNCER CAME TO RADIO FROM NEWSPAPER

Zook Was Editor and Style Expert.

BY CHARLES WARNER.

WBCN ANNOUNCER

HARRY A. ZOOK JR.

If a man is an expert promoter of new styles in millinery, does that qualify him as a sporting editor? And when he becomes a sporting editor does that work train him for the profession of radio announcing?

Harry A. Zook Jr., announcer for WBCN, the radio station of the South Town Economist, made a success getting women all worked up over new creations in millinery, and, with the consummate self-assurance of a married man who needs a job, fooled an editor into appointing him sporting editor, although he admits he did not know whether football was played in a gym or ten acre lot.

It seems that Elkhart, Ind., the last town of any size you pass through getting back to Chicago from New York, had three boys in its high school a few years ago who later were to be heard from in radio studios. They were young Zook, Wilson Weatherby and Steve Trumbull.

There was work on the high school paper and the Elkhart Daily Review, school correspondence and all that, but Zook's real purpose in life was to be a cartoonist. Graduating in 1918 he passed a year in the navy. Then he came to Chicago to study art. He had to get work, though, and found a place with a millinery firm. Later they sent him to Kansas City, where he had experience in a large department store.

But he needed more money. Hearing that the Davenport Times was looking for a sporting editor, young Zook hunted up a list of the All-American football team of the previous year, committed the names to memory and went up to Davenport. He convinced the owner of the Times that what he didn't know about football, golf, baseball, horses, the prize ring, etc., was not known, that's all. He got the job and stayed there a good part of a year.

Then he came to Chicago and started hunting for work. There was none. All the papers were supplied with sporting editors, dramatic critics and column conductors. Zook heard his old schoolmate, Weatherby, had something to do with radio station KYW, however. So to Weatherby he went and learned that KYW was looking for a world crier.

Zook got the job and cried for KYW for some time till he heard that the South Town Economist was building a station. Between crying spells at KYW, Zook hunted up Messrs. Foster and McDonnell and was engaged as general utility man for WBCN, with the understanding that when he was not needed in the studio he was to do odd chores around the Economist news room.

It was not long, however, before all his time was required for the radio studio, and there he is now.

MOVIES EMPLOY RADIO TO BLAZE SCREEN TRAIL

Not blind to the publicity possibilities of broadcasting, the motion picture people are beginning to use radio as a trail blazer. On Christmas eve the story of "A Kiss for Cinderella" will be put on the air from WEAF and possibly additional eastern stations, just preceding the first showing of the film.

WAR SECRETARY PRAISES SIGNAL CORPS FOR WORK

Tells How It Blazed Way in Alaska.

In accepting his commission as secretary of war, Hon. Dwight F. Davis, St. Louis, paid tribute to the army's progress in the development of radio. Secretary Davis said:

"Lines of communication from the backbone of civilization. The signal corps of the army has a record of public service in this regard that is very definitely woven into the pattern of American achievement.

"Did you know that since 1900 the army signal corps has maintained in the frozen areas of Alaska a system of wire and radio communication that has provided the sole means of contact with the outside world? Supplementing the Alaskan interior communications, the signal corps has also laid and maintains over 4,500 miles of submarine cable.

"The signal corps has done pioneer work in bringing about many advances in communication incident to the development of military communication. Much of the recent advancement in radio and telegraphy is attributable to government activities and many of the foremost figures in radio enterprises today are former army officers and engineers who received their training in the service."

Australian Station Nearing Completion

The station being constructed at Brisbane, Australia, is nearing completion. The call number of the new station will be 4-QC, and the wave length will be 385 meters, with a five kilowatt power.

INSIDE THE LOUD SPEAKER

By Quin A. Ryan, W-G-N Announcer.

THIS morning, class, we are to ponder the matter of broadcasting a theatrical performance from the stage of the theater. The ventures in transmitting a theatrical production from the footlights through the eternal ether to the farm and fireside have been few.

As there are undoubtedly twice as many citizens owning radio sets today as there were one year ago and five times as many as two years ago, it is probable that multitudes of the listeners have never heard a play broadcast from a theater.

We can recall at the moment only a handful put on the air from Chicago—"Blossom Time," "White Cargo," "Applesauce," "Abie's Irish Rose," and De Wolf Hopper's performances of "The Mikado" and "H. M. S. Pinafore."

The first and the last two contained music, and plays with music, the radio directors and the radio audience have learned, are twice as entertaining on the air, if we may continue the arithmetic. It is as obvious as a tie-less collar that there is more to any drama than sound and voices and elocution. And on the radio the gestures, the facial expressions, and the "business" of the actors are lost.

An operetta or musical play can carry itself by its own musical bootstraps, even when the dialogue and the business is not wholly comprehended by the radio audience. And the music promotes a continuity and relief that will aid in holding a radio audience over a period of two and a half hours.

It has been the complaint of the theatrical producers that the broadcasting of a play socks the box office, and oodles of fol-de-rol and pointless blather have been emitted by the pro and con parties, and little has been proved. We might recount here some of the arguments—but it's too cold a morning.

The only experience this announcer has had was with "The Mikado" and "H. M. S. Pinafore," played by Hopper and his company last winter in Chicago. Business, in the after-holiday slump, had not been so good, and the managers turned a lenient ear to the supplications of the broadcaster. We tried something of an innovation in having the announcer seated in a box, with the microphone before him, to make himself the "eye" of the listeners, as he had done at football games.

The announcer attended the performance twice before the broadcasting, read and re-read the libretto, and on the final evening held the book before him in the box, to await exits and entrances and to recite the words of songs just before their singing. The intervals of applause and pantomime are so frequent in a musical play as to permit of many interjections from the announcer, and every movement of the actors and color of costume and setting was detailed to the radio audience.

As radio entertainment the enterprise was a walloping wow, as shown by the mail, and as box office stimulant the managers admitted that the attendance at "The Mikado," starting with the next day's matinée, jumped from some scant rows to filled houses. The same was true of the following week's item in the Hopper répertoire, "Pinafore"—meager attendance the first two nights and sell outs for the rest of the week. A check was kept, to determine what number of the increased audience had been prompted to attend through hearing the show on the radio, and the result was happily satisfactory to all hands. Half of the citizenry who wrote letters of commendation stated that they were going to "see" the performance they had so much enjoyed auricularly.

I CERTAINLY MUST SEE THAT SHOW

One factor that the arguers do not stress is that the nature of the production, in addition to its radio presentation, determines whether it is a hit with the listening public and the box office. Some plays would be radio duds; some would surrender their essence in the broadcasting and the folks would care naught about seeing the performance; others have meat enough in dialogue alone to provide a radio evening and to leave a desire for actual attendance thereafter; and still others, by their vivaciousness, melodies, and fun can make a whopping radio show and "sell" the audience on buying tickets, too.

The Actors' Equity, the thespians' trade union, has taken its own stand in the matter of theatrical broadcasting and demands that any actor reciting or singing on the radio any part of the performance in which he is then appearing be paid one-eighth of a week's salary—the equivalent of his salary for an extra performance. This ruling holds whether the actor is broadcasting from the theater or the radio studio. If an entire play is broadcast, then all the actors must be paid for an extra performance. And if a microphone is so much as placed in a theater during a performance, even though it does not function all evening, the actors shall be paid.

All of which sermon, boys and girls, is leading to the announcement of the broadcasting next Friday evening of the renowned "Student Prince" direct from the stage of the Great Northern theater. Here is an operetta that has everything: contagious melody; a plot adapted from the familiar play, "In Old Heidelburg"; a powerful body of male choristers; and comic and sentimental touches throughout. There are eleven companies now playing it over the country.

It has been in Chicago for almost a year. It has all the elements of a radio success.

Will the broadcasting stimulate attendance for the Chicago companies and the other ten, or will it harm it—or have no noticeable effect—after such long runs?

We sit waiting, our hand shielding our eyes against the sunset, and waiting for the signal wisps of smoke from the theater.

out to get the people to hear what he has to say, while in the indirect broadcasting he may feel that the people are reaching out to hear what he has to say.

There can be no question as to the President's receptive attitude toward this wonderful new science which brings his voice to more people in one evening than it was possible for all other presidents to address in a lifetime.

Nevertheless, President Coolidge can hardly be called a radio fan, any more than he could be called an automobile fan, because of the satisfactory way in which the automobile rapidly conveys him to different destinations in the performance of his duties.

Apparently President Coolidge looks on radio as simply another important means of carrying himself to the people, but he will not allow radio to assume an undue importance in his program.

LIBERTY STATION WLIB GIVES RADIO FANS $500 IN PRIZES

Radio station WLIB, the Liberty Magazine station, has awarded the five $100 cash prizes for the best letters on model radio programs to the following five persons:

Gordon C. Gillies, 531 Cedar street, Park Ridge, Ill.

Jack McLennan, 34 Harley avenue, Ottawa, Ont., Canada.

Edward L. Barry, 722 South Oak Park-av., Oak Park, Ill.

A. Dale Miles, 613 West Symmes street, Norman, Okla.

Hugh K. Christie, 813 South 6th avenue, Maywood, Ill.

The contest, announced over the air from station WLIB in October, elicited letters from every state in the United States and from many sections of Canada. Thousands of letters were received during the weeks that the contest ran and tabulations of the wishes of WLIB listeners as to the sort of programs they desired were kept during the progress of the reading of the letters by the prize committee.

The letters written by the five radio fans named above were selected by the committee as the most thorough and exhaustive in setting forth the ideal radio program. Many of the suggestions offered by the letters already have been adopted by station WLIB.

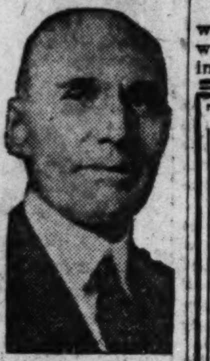
RADIO BOON TO FARMERS SHOWN IN U. S. REPORT

It Serves as Well as Amuses Them.

BY ROBERT HEINL.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—The way in which the American farmer has availed himself of radio is strikingly brought out in the annual report of Secretary of Agriculture Jardine. He points out that a survey made by county agricultural agents in 1923 indicated there were about 145,000 radio sets on farms throughout the country. In 1924 the estimated number had jumped to 365,000 and in 1925 to 553,000.



WILLIAM M. JARDINE

"The average number of sets on farms per county has increased from 51 in 1923 to 204 in 1925," Secretary Jardine continues. "This increase of 300 per cent is evidence that the farmer appreciates the broadcasting service provided for him.

"There has also been rapid growth in the number of radio receiving sets on farms in states at great distances from good broadcasting service. In Florida, for example, the increase in 1925 over the estimated number on farms in that state in the preceding year was 1,955 per cent. Idaho increased the number of its farm receiving sets 850 per cent in the year. Alabama reported an increase of 850 per cent, Arizona of 460 per cent, and Louisiana of 600 per cent. In Pennsylvania, on the other hand, the gain in 1925 over 1924 was only 5 per cent.

Save Price of Sets.

"Farmers generally have bought good radio sets. A questionnaire answered by 2,500 farmers in 1923 indicated the average price of their manufactured sets was $175. This sum will buy a better set today than it would two years ago. Yet farmers are not on that account reducing their investments in radio. Dealers in several parts of the country say that radio sets worth from $125 to $400 sell much more readily to farmers than those costing under $100.

"Farmers have discovered that they need good long distance sets to get the weather and market reports and entertainment they demand. Twenty-four agricultural colleges maintain radio broadcasting stations. The colleges are becoming enthusiastic users of radio. They coöperate with the department of agriculture in broadcasting its weather, crop, and market reports. Several hundred broadcasting stations regularly obtain information for broadcasting from the department. Many farmers have more than saved the price of their radio sets by profit gained by the use of market information issued by the department for broadcasting.

Weather Forecasts Available.

"At the close of the year there were 121 stations located in 40 different states broadcasting weather forecasts and information by the radiophone on regular schedules. About 95 per cent of all the powerful radiophone broadcasting stations in the United States are now coöperating and many of them broadcast forecasts for several states, and people in every section of the country are being served.

"The scope of the radiophone weather service may be estimated when it is known that, for instance, in the state of Iowa alone there are over 33,500 receiving sets on farms. It is estimated that the weather forecasts are available by radio to more than half a million farms in the United States."

Agricultural Stations.

An outstanding development has been the opening of broadcasting stations devoted primarily to agriculture, Henry C. Taylor, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, points out in his annual report.

"WLS at Chicago," Dr. Taylor declared, "has coöperated from its beginning with the bureau by presenting one of the most complete programs of market news ever attempted. In addition to daily broadcasts a series of special talks on marketing by bureau representatives has been used with excellent response from farmers.

"There has been a decided movement for various interests to coöperate in a given region and use a single station as the center of agricultural broadcasting. In New England station WBZ covers practically all of the New England states. In the northwest station WCCO, sponsored by a committee including representatives of all agricultural interests, presents a strong program for the northwestern states. In other sections a similar development is in progress.

State Colleges Aid.

"During the year the use of market reports by state college and university radio stations has been extended. Regular reports have been transmitted by university stations in Ohio, Indiana, Texas, and Iowa, and arrangements are being perfected to use the stations in Kansas and Oregon.

"A feature of radio broadcasting developed during the year is the consumer talks which are now distributed weekly in Philadelphia, New York, and Chicago. These consist of description of market conditions and information of supplies of fruits and vegetables which is of value to consumers in determining their purchases for current use and for canning."

Radio has been utilized also, and practically every broadcasting station of consequence in the country broadcasts information on live stock, meat, or wool. The leased telegraph system of the bureau has been utilized to the utmost.

2 Outstanding Advantages of the Pfanstiehl "Overtone" Receiver

1. Perfect reproduction of overtones, which make a supremely beautiful tone
2. Efficient One Dial control, which is really SINGLE

WHEN PFANSTIEHL perfected his overtone receiver last year he gave to radio a quality of tone it had never had before. He did so by securing a perfect reproduction of the overtones. The radio stream is completely controlled. None of it spills over or feeds back between circuits. The pattern of vibrations is thus kept intact and there is no blurring of the overtones. These are perfectly reproduced as transmitted.

A matchless tone results. There is nothing quite like it in long distance reception.

How Single Dial was perfected

The same mastery of the radio stream also made possible a highly efficient single dial control. The radio stream being perfectly even, there are no inequalities in the circuits themselves. They are electrically exactly alike. It is therefore possible to tune them alike, with a single dial. The tuning is perfect. No auxiliary adjusters are needed to complete it. This also is a PFANSTIEHL achievement.

Another PFANSTIEHL achievement is the triple unit condenser, without which no efficient single dial would be possible. It takes the place of hitching together three separate condensers of the ordinary type. The PFANSTIEHL condenser assembly is electrically three and mechanically one.

MODEL 10—Overtone single-dial 6-tube receiving set. Price $155 (less accessories)

Hence it is that the PFANSTIEHL single dial is highly efficient and absolutely dependable. It WORKS, and it works without any additional devices, seen or unseen, to help it. It is entirely SINGLE.

Acoustics by Brandes means better radio

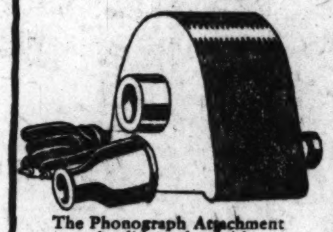
The Type H—a simple horn of graceful lines and antique green and black finish. Great in volume—true in tone. Adjustable by the turn of a thumbscrew.



The Phonograph Attachment—a splendid speaker with any good phonograph. Same unit as Type H horn. Adjustable, and furnished with a connection to fit all phonographs.

The Superior Matched Tone Headset is now, as always, ideal to tune in with—to listen undisturbed and undisturbing.

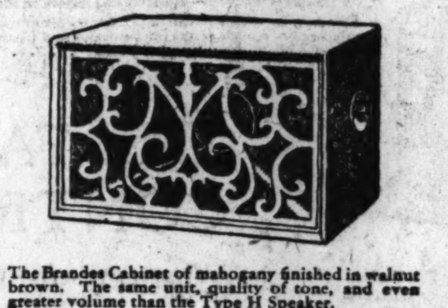
LET the voice of your set be a Brandes. Let your set sing its best and speak its clearest—through a Brandes.

Really hear the wonderful programs that are being broadcast. Get the full deep tones of a contralto voice, the clear silver song of a violin. And get them as they really are—full-toned, mellow, true.

Be sure your set is in its best voice—always—with Acoustics by Brandes.

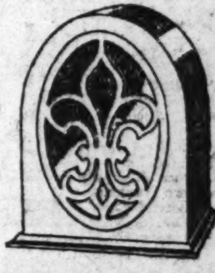
Test these speakers yourself

There's really only one way to buy a radio speaker. Hear as many as you choose. Test them thoroughly. You will find that the Brandes Speakers have more tones, fuller harmonies, wider range—and that they speak and sing with a very definite and satisfying reality.

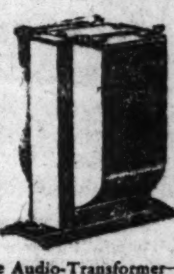


The Brandes Cabinet of mahogany finished in walnut brown. The same unit, quality of tone, and even greater volume than the Type H Speaker.

The Adjustable Table-Talker. Gooseneck horn for clearer, rounded tone. Finished in brown—felt padded base. Adjustable.



The Brandes Cone—a truly decorative bit of furniture that conceals a remarkable speaker.



The Audio-Transformer—amplifies at an unusually high ratio—1 to 5. Two steps of amplification may be used without transformer distortion.

For Mothers and Fathers Only

IF it's music you want your children to hear, let them hear the great operatic stars in their full beauty—only through a Day-Fan!

If it's the speech of great men you want your children to hear, let them hear the voice of the man himself—only through a Day-Fan!

If it's dance or song, story or orchestra, sports report or news of the day, let them get it with unrivaled ease and sureness—only through a Day-Fan!

Yes, indeed, mothers and fathers, there is a difference in radio receivers.

It is such a difference as you might expect, when you remember that for more than thirty-six years, the Day-Fan makers have been making electrical apparatus.

It is a difference that shows in general performance—but most of all in that most vital feature that makes Day-Fan the preferred instrument of musicians—tone quality.

Unless you have a Day-Fan, you may miss the deep and sonorous portions of the musical scale. Day-Fan is specially constructed to get a wider range of musical tones than other receivers. The difference is at once apparent—in speech, in song, in orchestral music.

Mothers and fathers, this Christmas you can open the door of the world for your children. You can give them good reasons for staying home o' nights. You can give them education, amusement, happiness. Don't put it off. Day-Fans are selling fast. Nothing less than a Day-Fan is good enough for your children.

Red Grange was to have featured this afternoon's program from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's station on the Drake hotel, as arrangements had been completed to broadcast his activities with the Chicago Bears in a pro football game at Cubs' park against the New York Giants. Red's injuries received in Pittsburgh Thursday probably will keep him from the contest, but W-G-N will broadcast the game just the same. The game starts at 2 o'clock, and W-G-N will take the air at 1:45 for preliminary announcements and a description of the scene.

Uncle Walt's reading of the eight pages of TRIBUNE comics at noon opens the W-G-N day. At 12:45 p. m. the broadcast of a complete performance from the Chicago theater begins with the overture, "First Hungarian Rhapsody," by Liszt, played by the Chicago Theater Symphony orchestra, directed by H. Leopold Spitalny. The piano cadenza during the overture is played by Otto Muencke. The complete program from the theater is as follows:

Overture, First Hungarian Rhapsody....Liszt
Chicago Theater Symphony Orchestra.
Music incidental to novelty movie.
My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice [Samson and Delilah] ....Saint-Saens
Myrtle Leonard, contralto.
Music incidental to weekly topical movies.
Organ solo, Liebestraum..........Liszt
Jesse Crawford, organist.
Balaban & Katz production, "Cinderella."

Because of the afternoon's football game, Edwin Stanley Seder's regular afternoon organ recital, broadcast direct from the Lyon & Healy concert hall, has been switched to occupy a portion of the evening hour of music between 9 and 10 o'clock, when the Drake concert ensemble is also to be heard. Mr. Seder's program follows:

Choral Prelude..........Brahms
Evensong ....Martin
Edwin Stanley Seder, organist.
Menuet Heroique..........Stewart
Andante Pastorale..........Blair
Mr. Seder.
By the Lake..........Nevin
Mr. Seder.
Allegro Maestoso [G major sonata]....Elgar
Mr. Seder.

The Drake concert ensemble is to offer the following four selections during the 9 to 10 hour:

Prelude to the Deluge..........Saint-Saens
Excerpts from The Nutcracker Suite..
..........Tschaikowsky
Scherzando ....Beethoven
Menuet ....Beethoven
Murmuring Breezes..........Jensen

WLIB PROGRAM

Of utmost importance to music lovers are two splendid hours of the day's schedule from WLIB, the Liberty weekly station. In chronological order they are [a] the hour between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon devoted to the concert of the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, and [b] the Atwater-Kent concert between 8:15 and 9:15 this evening.

The Chicago Philharmonic orchestra's concert last Sunday afternoon broadcast by WLIB created a mild sensation among listeners, and today's, to judge by the advance program, promises to be another event. Richard Czerwonky, just returned from a concert tour to the coast, will assume his post as regular conductor today. These concerts, which are under the artistic direction of Joseph Schwickerath, are given under the auspices of the Chicago Turngemeinde at the north side Turner hall, as they have been for the last sixty-three years, and they are the oldest orchestral concert series in Chicago.

Forty-two men compose the orchestra. Mr. Czerwonky, the director, was concert master of the Boston symphony, also concert master and assistant conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

The soloist of the day will be Anastasha Rabinoff, primma donna of the San Carlo Opera company, now playing in New Orleans.

The program is as follows:

March, Aida..........Verdi
Overture, Freischuetz..........Weber
Chicago Philharmonic orchestra.
Aria, Elsa's Dream from "Lohengrin"
..........Wagner
Anastasha Rabinoff.
Les Preludes..........Liszt
Overture, Mignon..........Thomas
Heartwounds [for strings only]..........Grieg
In Spring [for strings only]..........Grieg
Espana ....Chabrier
Overture, Tannhauser..........Wagner
Chicago Philharmonic orchestra.
Group of songs by American composers
Anastasha Rabinoff.
Overture, Solennelle [1812]....Tschaikowsky

This evening, between 8:15 and 9:15 o'clock, the second of the Atwater-Kent concerts to be broadcast by WLIB will be ready for listeners. The artists this evening are Hulda Lashanska, American lyric soprano, and Vicente Ballestier, Spanish baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, both artists of note. Each is to offer two groups of selections during the hour.

Nor is jazz forgotten during all of this classic offering. Starting at 5:30, Fred Hamm presents as usual his Sunday afternoon jazz concert, lasting until 6:30. Nimble tunes and prancing Charleston numbers will be on tap during this frenzied hour, when Fred and his gang are to have the assistance of the Langdon brothers, the Hawaiian guitar artists, and Charlie Correll and Freeman Gosden, the radio maniacs. A second Fred Hamm hour starts at 7 o'clock, continuing until the opening of the Atwater-Kent program at 8:15. The half hour between 6:30 and 7 is devoted to a miniature organ recital by Edward Benedict at the Kimball organ.

Bill Hay, past master of the announcer's art and famous the country over for his stirring "KFKX, Hastings, Neb.," is among the new announcers at WLIB, and he will handle the afternoon Chicago Philharmonic concert, as well as others of the day's broadcasting periods.

DETAILS OF TODAY'S WLIB PROGRAM.

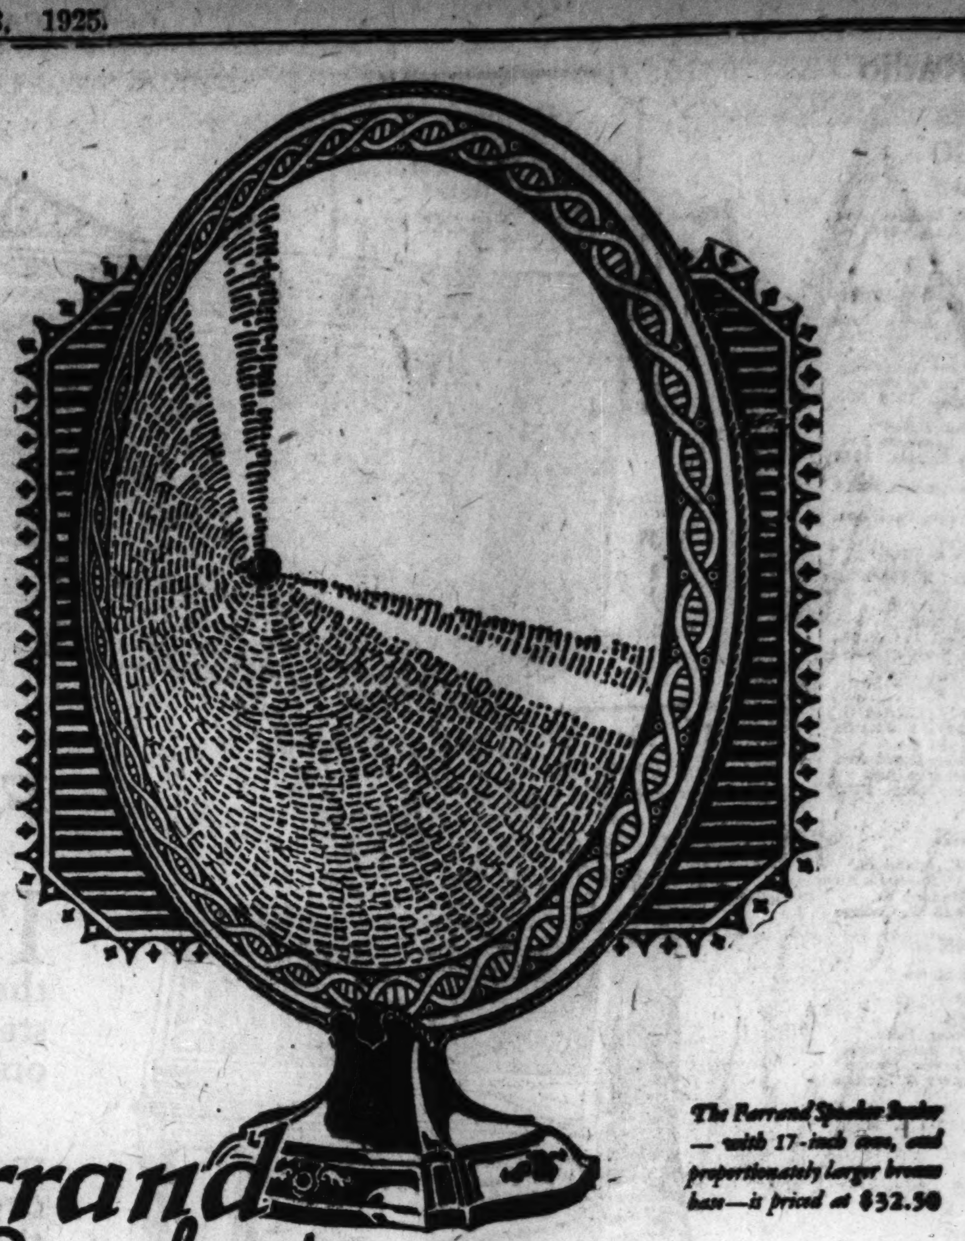
IOWA GIRL WINS LAURELS DELVING IN RADIO FIELD

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—Radio construction and operation is a field of endeavor that is usually left open to the scientifically inclined men of the world—members of the opposite sex are attracted to radio only as a means of securing entertaining concerts and musical programs. However that may be, there is at least one woman in this section of the country who is turning her attention to the scientific side of radio.

Miss Mae Asmussen of Sioux City, a student in Morningside college, is one of the first women in the state of Iowa to master the intricate mechanisms of a large radio broadcasting set and to become a proficient operator of transmitting equipment, as well as a capable assembler of receiving outfits.

Miss Asmussen is a sophomore in Morningside college, where she is one of the first women ever to major in the department of physics. Besides her technical courses in the physics department, she is taking two courses in radio. She spends much of her spare time in the "radio shack" of the college station, KMFR, helping with the work of operating the broadcasting equipment or experimenting with radio receiving sets.



The Farrand Speaker Senior—with 17-inch cone, and proportionately larger bronze base—is priced at $32.50

Farrand Speaker
JUNIOR MODEL $16.50

Think of it!—a genuine Farrand Speaker—radio's supreme reproducer—may now be obtained for as little as $16.50. For the price of an ordinary speaker, you now may possess the greatest of them all! Only a trifling cost now stands between you and matchless radio enjoyment.

Just as the advent of the Farrand Speaker revolutionized all speaker design and performance, the introduction of this new, smaller model—the Farrand Speaker Junior—sets a new standard in speaker value. Ask your radio dealer to demonstrate the Farrand Speaker Junior—at his store or your home.

De Forest believes in scrupulously honest advertising, and in avoiding extravagance in its claims. The purchase of a radio set is indeed of sufficient importance to warrant the most rigid inspection rather than reliance upon claims. We want you to know the superiority of sets embodying the new De Forest Balanced Circuit. See and hear our sets before buying.

Christmas Joy All Year!

A CHRISTMAS gift is doubly valuable when it bears the prestige of a great name. De Forest is the greatest name in radio. Persons with only a casual knowledge of the origin of radio are aware that De Forest created this modern scientific wonder by his invention of the vacuum tube.

Thus, if you contemplate the gift of a radio set—a gift for everlasting enjoyment and entertainment—give a De Forest Radiophone. The set illustrated—the F5-AW Radiophone—has no equal in value or in performance. Its beauty charms the eye; its tone and volume captivate the ear. And for sheer workmanship—simplicity in operation—engineering accuracy—distance and selectivity—it is without rival. Beside the word "radio" on your list—put down the name De Forest!

The Blind judge honestly!

RADIO sets for the blind—was the inspiration of a big New York newspaper last winter. And it raised a fund of $60,000 to buy radio receivers for worthy people shut out forever from light of day.

What set to choose—that was the problem.

Nine blind women, with only their sense of hearing to guide them, were asked to choose the one they liked best out of six leading makes—all unnamed. All nine women voted for the same set. It was Paragon.

* * * *

It was a simple two-tube receiver, this unanimous choice of both the blind and the seeing. A two-tube receiver that lived up to all the years of fine reputation Paragon has enjoyed. This year all that Paragon skill and excellence of the past—the Paragon purity of tone, trueness of reception, ease of tuning—are embodied in a new six-tube Paragon model.

This new Paragon Six was one of the sensations of the recent Radio Show. If you expect to invest in a radio set, don't fail to get acquainted with Paragon before you spend your money. See and hear it at one of the dealers listed below.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

To the woman who had no place for radio in her home

Hear it tonight at the home of a friend

Buy it tomorrow at your dealer's store

Hear it tomorrow night in your own home

YOU may be one of those who have hesitated to enjoy a radio because you were afraid it would upset your home.

You may have seen a cumbersome set in the home of a friend, insisting upon being seen as well as heard.

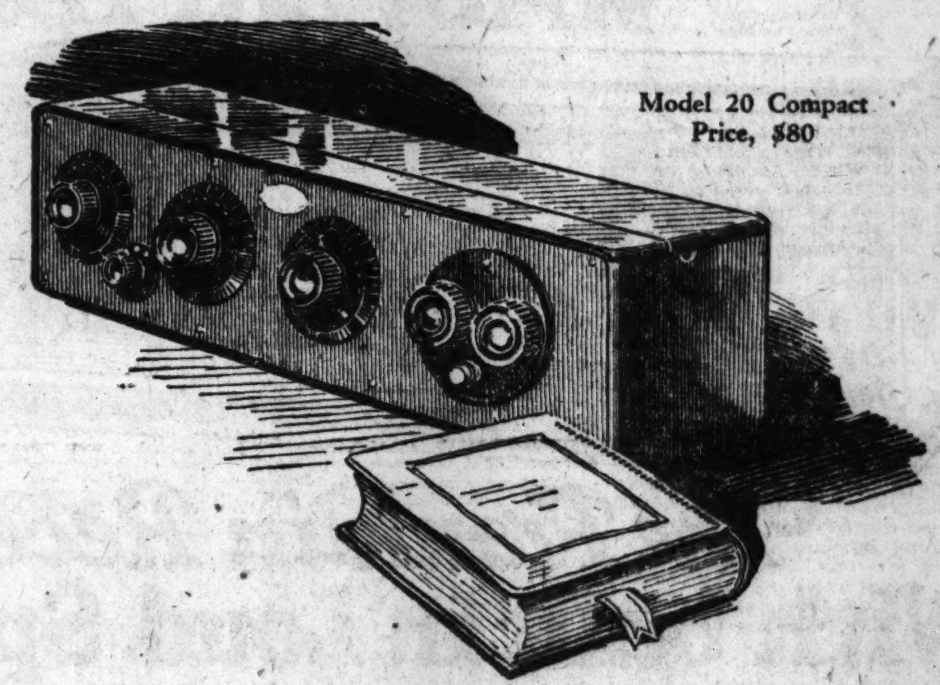
Well, here is the new compact Atwater Kent set which calls attention to itself only when it is heard.

It is so small that you can tuck it away almost anywhere—on a small table, in a bookcase among your decorations, with a vase of flowers, at your elbow with your magazines or books—anywhere.

Yet it is a full-power set. It does anything a larger set will do. All the standard parts are there—five tubes and all—just re-arranged to save space.

It's no longer than a man's fore-arm. Your hand can span it from front to back or from top to bottom. A very small child could carry it.

Go to a shop where radio is sold today. Ask to see the Model 20 Compact. Imagine it placed in some convenient spot in your home. Your friends will congratulate you as soon as they see it there.



Model 20 Compact
Price, $80

FLEET PRACTICE TO SHOW RADIO COMPASS' VALUE

Hope to Raise Standard of Service.

Advices are to the effect that the naval radio compass service afloat falls considerably below the standard of service set by stations ashore. It is thought that improvement can be effected through proper training of the personnel and more constant use of apparatus. The coming winter maneuvers of the United States fleet are expected to give ample opportunity for much practice in the operation of these compasses.

Radio compasses on merchant vessels are in numerous instances reported as highly efficient and many ships use them regularly for navigation purposes.

Value Is Proved.

Two unusual instances reported from Juan de Fuca straits in Pacific waters, between the United States and Canada, give additional proof regarding the value of the radio compass.

The first was told in a letter from the master of the S. S. Glanmorganshire, which read:

"Ship navigated in Juan de Fuca straits on radio compass bearing only. All bearings were faultless. Where three synchronous bearings were obtained the cut was most precise. Ship navigated into Admiralty inlet in dense fog. Radio compass bearings faultless, the cut in each case being remarkably precise."

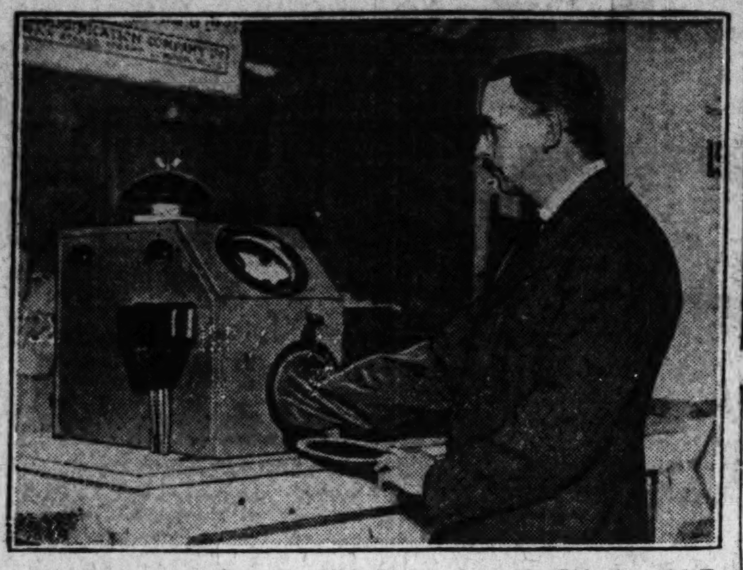
The second was where the American naval radio compass station at Tatoosh, in the same waters, made a commendable effort to prevent the grounding of the Japanese steamer, Iyo Maru:

Jap Vessel Saved.

The Iyo Maru was entering the straits from the northwest and, after the seventh radio bearing furnished to her, the operator at Tatoosh from his plotting discovered that the ship was in grave danger of grounding on the north shore of the straits. He promptly sent a service message to the captain of the Iyo Maru telling him that he was dangerously close to the shore and suggested that he back clear.

In reply to this message the Iyo Maru informed Tatoosh that it had just stopped her engines. Immediately afterwards the Japanese steamer grounded and sent out an S. O. S. The Iyo Maru, however, fortunately floated off an hour later with no apparent damage.

WATERPROOF RADIO



The picture shows a set exhibited recently at the Shipping and Engineering exhibition in London, specially designed for use in lifeboats in an emergency. Seas breaking over the boat cannot affect the set.

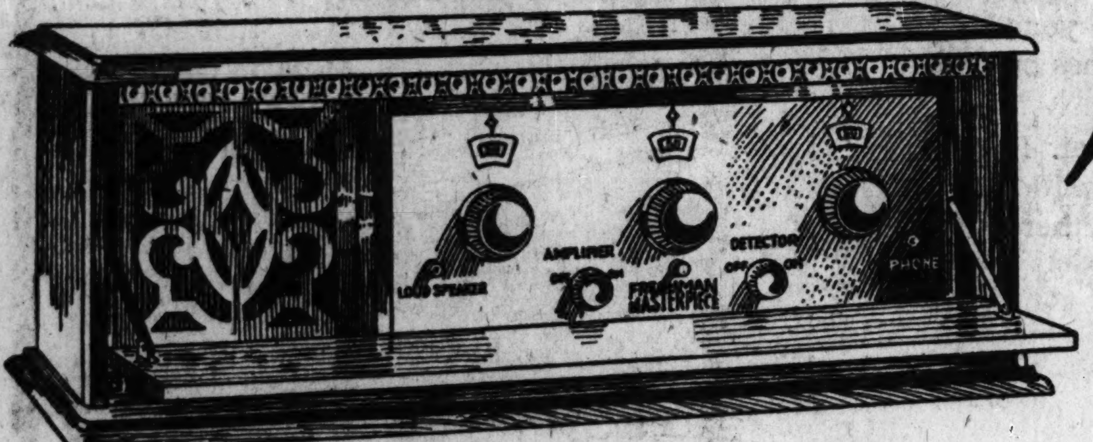
BRITISH STAY UP NIGHTS TO GET U. S. SIGNALS

LONDON, Dec. 12.—British listeners are staying up half the night trying to pull in our new 50 k. w. superpower station at Schenectady and Boundbrook, N. J. Inasmuch as there is five hours difference between eastern standard time in America and Greenwich time here, the English listeners are obliged to tune in as late as 1 a. m., even if the United States superpower experiments start as early as 8 p. m.

The World's Greatest Radio Receiving Set!

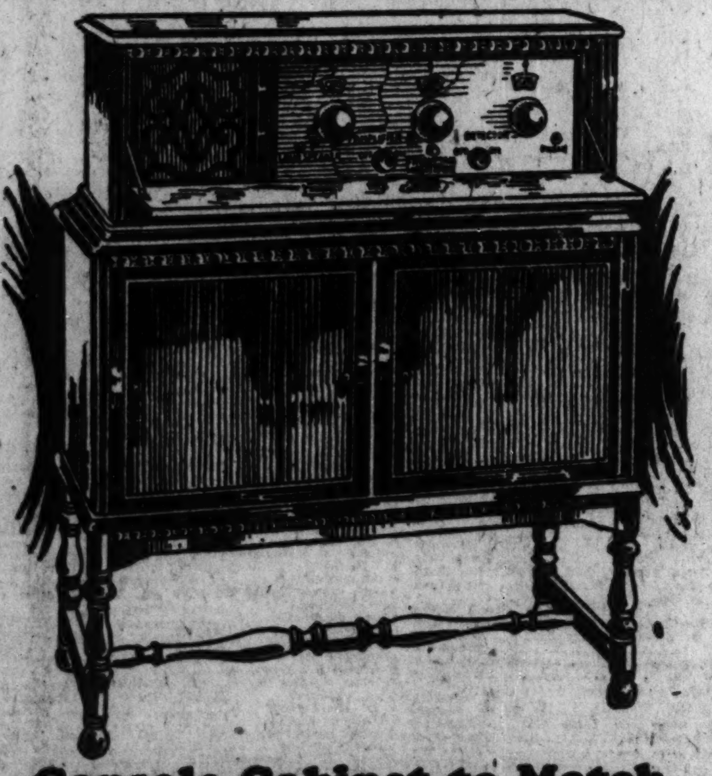
New and Improved FRESHMAN MASTERPIECE



$75

The Franklin Receiver

With built in Loud Speaker of Great Volume and Superb Tone



Console Cabinet to Match

Ruggedly built, heavy, five-ply genuine mahogany, the design of the cabinet is identical to the pattern of the receiving set. The doors to the compartments open from the front, affording ample room for all batteries, battery chargers, eliminators and every accessory that could possibly be used in connection with a radio set. This useful and attractive console cabinet is priced at only Forty Dollars.

The Freshman Masterpiece five tube radio receiver is known all over the world as the "WONDER SET." It's ease of operation, it's distance getting ability and mellow tone have spread happiness and education in hundreds of thousands of homes in every part of the globe.

People who could easily afford to spend three and four times the cost of a Masterpiece for a radio receiver, have signified, in no uncertain terms, their decided preference for one of these "WONDER SETS." To satisfy this insistent demand we were induced to encase them in cabinets of rare beauty—fine enough for the most exquisite home.

The Franklin Model, illustrated above, is the pride of the Freshman line. This receiving set, with built-in loud speaker, is encased in a heavy five-ply genuine mahogany cabinet. The front cover opens in desk-like fashion, a most convenient and attractive arrangement. As a result you have the WORLD'S GREATEST RADIO RECEIVER, with built-in loud speaker, in a charming piece of furniture all for only Seventy-Five Dollars.

The Balkite Trickle Charger

provides "A" current from the light socket— $10

This charger may be connected to any 6 volt radio "A" battery of 30 ampere hour capacity or more and left permanently on charge. Used in this manner it converts your "A" battery into a permanent "A" power unit that operates from the light socket and automatically furnishes full current to the "A" circuit at all times.

With any smaller battery [4 volt or small 6 volt] this charger may be used as an intermittent charger of the usual type, or as a trickle charger if a resistance is added to cut down the charging rate to the needs of the set.

When used as a trickle charger, as an added convenience, some owners add a switch which cuts out the charger during operation. Switches of this type also turn on Balkite "B" when the set is turned on, thus providing an entirely automatic current supply for both circuits.

The Balkite Trickle Charger is 5½ in. long, 2¾ in. wide, 5 in. high. It may be put in the usual dry cell compartment. Charging rate .4 to .5 amperes. Current consumption 1/10¢ per hour. Operates from 110-120 AC 60 cycle current. Special model for 50 cycles.

Noiseless—No bulbs—Permanent

Like all other Balkite Radio Power Units the Balkite Trickle Charger is entirely noiseless in operation, and is a permanent piece of equipment, with no bulbs or moving parts, and nothing to replace, break or get out of order. Balkite Radio Power Units provide uniform constant current for both "A" and "B" circuits. Whatever type of set you own Balkite Radio Power Units will serve it.

Balkite Battery Charger For charging Radio "A" 6-volt batteries. This popular charger is entirely noiseless and can be used while the set is in operation. If the battery should be low, you merely turn on the charger and operate the set. Charging rate 2.5 amperes. Price $19.50

Balkite "B" Replaces "B" batteries entirely and supplies uniform plate current from the light socket. Keeps the "B" circuit always operating at full efficiency, for with its use your "B" current supply is never low but always exactly what is required. Has no bulbs, nothing to replace or recharge. Operates either storage battery or dry cell tubes. A new model specially designed for sets of 6 tubes or less. Fits in your present dry cell compartment. Price $35

Balkite "B" II The same popular model as offered last year, when it was the outstanding development of the season. Same as Balkite "B" above, except it will fit any set, including sets of 8 tubes or more. Current capacity 40 milliamperes at 90 volts. Price $55

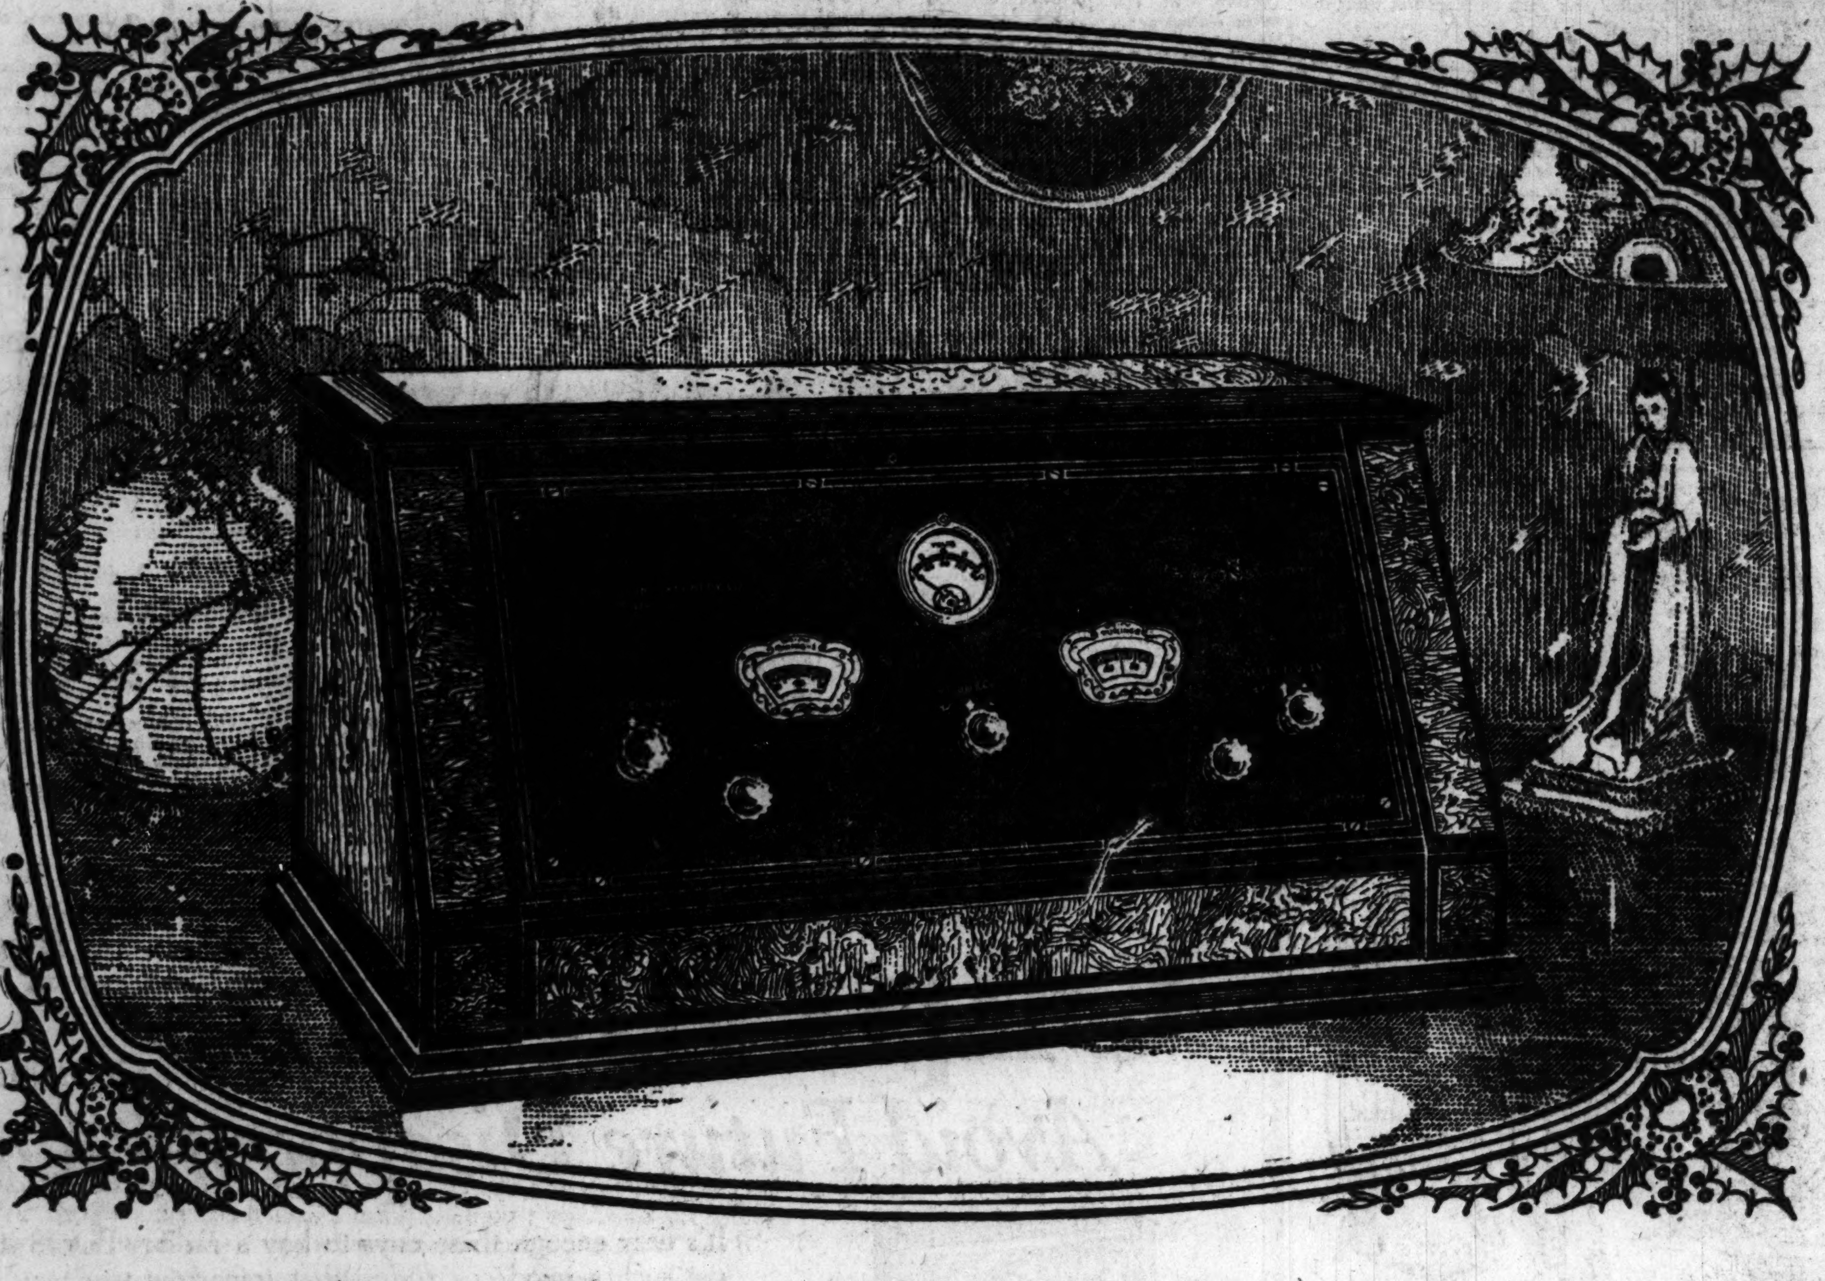
The Royalty of Radio

KENNEDY



The Royalty of Gifts!

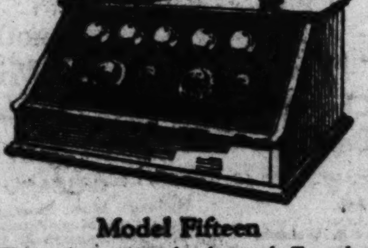
Model Thirty . . . The Royalty of Radio . . . the Royalty of Gifts! Bringing its full measure of holiday enjoyment—daily renewing the spirit of remembrance—extending Christmas throughout the year.

When you give the Model Thirty you give every worth while refinement in radio. It is built on exactly the same fundamental principles that have made the Kennedy Fifteen nationally famous. The cabinet follows new lines—the appearance of the panel has been enhanced—and this, together with the addition of certain improvements, has made the Model Thirty truly the acme of Kennedy radio perfection.

The cabinet ensemble is so exquisite that the new Thirty is a delight even when silent. Its tone sounds purer still than that of the Fifteen—more brilliant, more natural, more lifelike. Tuning has been made much more flexible. It possesses real ability to cut through powerful local broadcasting stations. Its volume can be more gradually and smoothly controlled.

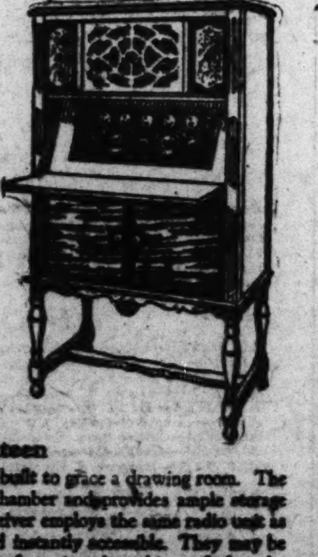
Gold-finished sub-panel dial faces, framed in oxidized-silver finished escutcheons, take the place of exposed dials. Tubes are concealed, but quickly aceessible from the back. A double-range voltmeter has been added—this permits reading both "A" and "B" battery voltages and indicates whether or not tubes are turned off.

All battery, ground and aerial wires may be instantly connected or disconnected by a single plug. Uses any antenna—inside or outdoor—and is wired to accommodate new style tubes, including special output amplifiers. Adapted to use with the new current-supply devices that plug into your home lighting socket or with any standard "A" or "B" batteries. Price $145.00, without accessories.



Model Fifteen

This is the receiver that has made Kennedy history. It is the foundation on which the new Model Thirty was built. Its tone stamps it immediately as a Kennedy—it has only two dials—is extremely selective—volume can be gradually controlled. Operates on any antenna—inside or outdoor. Price $110.00 without accessories.



The Royal Sixteen

A cabinet desk-type receiver—beautifully toned—built to grace a drawing room. The cabinet includes a built-in reproducer and tone chamber and provides ample storage space for batteries and other accessories. This receiver employs the same radio unit as is used in the Model Fifteen. Tubes are visible and instantly accessible. They may be rearranged or adjusted without the inconvenience of moving the cabinet. It has the same characteristics throughout as the Model Fifteen. Price $295.00 without accessories.

Ask Your Dealer to Demonstrate This Royalty of Gifts.

The proof of Kennedy quality is in the hearing. You are the final judge. See your local dealer while he still has a good selection of Kennedy receivers to choose from—he will gladly demonstrate that Kennedy is the Royalty of Gifts. No obligation. . . . See him today—make this a real Royal Christmas.

BRITISH PUBLIC FOR GOVERNMENT RADIO CONTROL

Want It Taken Out of Monopoly's Hands.

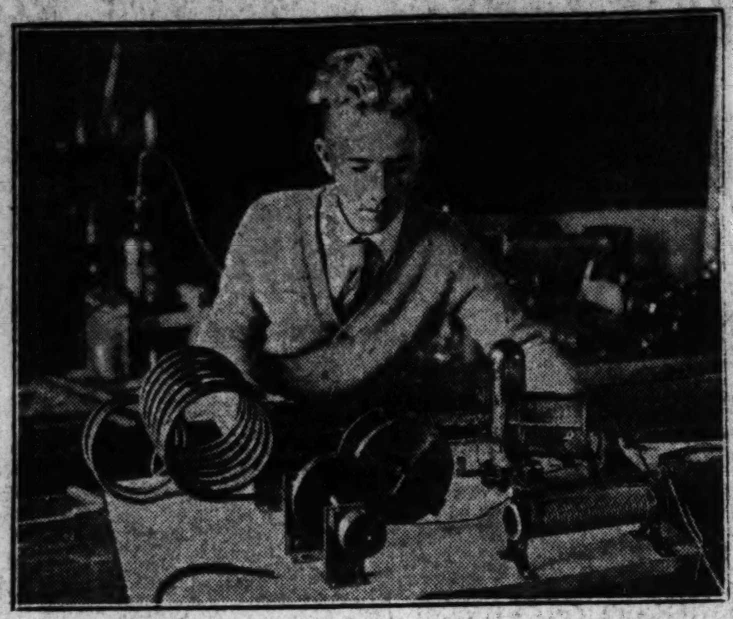
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Agitation for direct governmental control and operation of radio broadcasting in England through a radio subdepartment in the postoffice, instead of through the semipublic British Broadcasting company, which holds the monopoly here now, is again being pressed as the time approaches when the government will have to decide what it wishes to do about extending the B. B. C.'s license.

Although the British Broadcasting company's grant still has nearly a year to run, the question of its renewal has already become an issue sufficiently important to justify the government in appointing a committee to look into the matter. The committee, which has already commenced its sittings, plans to sound out the radio public, now numbering more than a million and a half listeners, and will give serious attention to the demand raised by certain groups here that radio become as genuinely a state undertaking as the telephone, telegraph, or the mail.

Opponents of the British Broadcasting company declare that the radio public is entitled to a more direct control of broadcasting than is possible under the present arrangement. The British Broadcasting company, they declare, is made up largely of representatives of the radio appliance manufacturing interests and government officials, and is too remote from the people

CONFIDENTIAL RADIO



RADIO stations may become nearly as confidential as telephone lines if a projected invention by Winfield W. Salisbury is successful. Salisbury, student of physics at the University of Iowa, has just oscillated the shortest known amateur waves, very sharp and admitting of accurate measurement. By calculating the length of these waves to determine the band at which they would strike and concentrating them in a narrow shaft by the use of a reflector, he expects to direct them to any desired spot of a few miles radius. Salisbury is here shown with his sending apparatus.

ENGLISH CLAIM METHOD TO CAN RADIO PROGRAM

Possible to Store It Away for Future.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The British radio public is becoming intrigued by reports of a new invention, called the "telegraphone," which has recently survived a number of tests here, and which may soon be placed at their disposal.

The "telegraphone" is an instrument to "bottle" or "can" radio programs, store them away, and later reproduce them at a time when the radio public can listen more conveniently. The instrument is said to combine the principles of the gramophone with those of radio. It has produced particularly satisfactory results in reproducing speeches.

A microphone is placed before the speaker in the usual way and the electrically amplified vibrations are recorded on a wax cylinder, where they may be "stored" for any length of time, and later released into another dial for broadcasting. The machine is the result of years of experiment, and is said to reproduce the human voice with fidelity.

DR. ROBERT B. TAYLOR WILL BE SPEAKER AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

R. BRUCE TAYLOR. [K. & P. Photo.]

Dr. Robert Bruce Taylor, noted Scotch preacher and educator, who created a favorable impression last spring when he spoke before the Sunday Evening club, will be the speaker again tonight before that organization in Orchestra hall. His subject will be "On Growing Old."

Clifford W. Barnes will continue the informal Bible talks in the series, "Some Old Letters," at the seven o'clock service, at which the Imperial Male quartet will give a group of songs. The organ recital at 7:40, by Stanley Martin, will include "Toccata," by Fletcher; "Chant de Bonheur," by Lemare, and Guilmant's "Adagio" and "Allegro" from the Third Sonata. The choir of 100 under the direction of Edgar Nelson will sing "And the Glory of the Lord," from the Messiah, and "He Watching Over Israel."

ENGLAND TO TRY BROADCASTING OF U. S. PROGRAM

Test Arranged for Evening of Dec. 15.

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 12.—[Special.]—WGY of Schenectady will participate in an experiment in international rebroadcasting Tuesday evening, Dec. 15, at which time all the stations of the British Broadcasting company in the British isles will attempt to pick up the 41.88 meter waves of the General Electric company station. The experiment will last for a half hour running from 8:45 to 9:15 p. m. This program is arranged at the request of Capt. P. P. Eckerly, chief engineer of the British Broadcasting company.

Orchestra Music Offered.

The Waldorf-Astoria orchestra has volunteered to provide the music for this occasion, and it is expected that the New York orchestra will become as well known to English listeners as the famous Savoy orchestra became to American listeners when WGY and WJZ rebroadcast the program of the London hotel group of musicians several months ago. WJZ of New York is coöperating in the experiment and will provide the pickup. The program will be carried to the Schenectady station by wire lines.

21 Stations in System.

The British Broadcasting company now has twenty-one stations in its system, which serves an estimated population of 23,000,000, most of whom are said to be within crystal set range of some one of the twenty-one stations. Nine of these stations are called main stations of 1½ to 3 kilowatts power, and eleven are comparatively low powered relay stations. It is expected that the short wave signals of WGY will be rebroadcast by the entire system of stations.

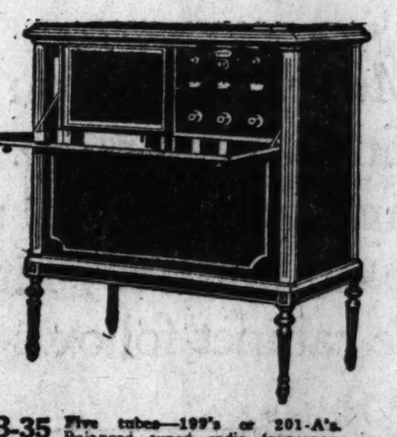
C-30 Seven tubes—199's or 201-A's. Balanced tuned radio frequency. Genuine mahogany cabinet. Two micrometer tuning controls. Space for batteries. Self contained loop. Federal enclosed speaker. Without accessories...................... $200

It's easy enough these days to buy a radio. But IS it easy to get such a good one today that tomorrow you won't wish it were better?

That's the way it usually goes! But not when you get a Federal Ortho-sonic. For no other radio has the Ortho-sonic tone. And no other tone has the clearness, the purity, the true-to-lifeness of Ortho-sonic. Developed by Federal telephony experts, it is rivaled only by reality.

Combined with this tone is all the selectivity, all the power, all the volume, range, operative ease and distinctive beauty of appearance which you'd naturally expect to find in a set so vastly superior.



B-35 Five tubes—199's or 201-A's. Balanced tuned radio frequency. Beautiful cabinet of selected mahogany, finished in rich two-tone effect. Enclosed speaker. Ample space for batteries. Without accessories.... $250

A Year Ahead in Design

One Look and You See It's Different— One Trial and You KNOW It's Better

Choosing the right radio set may seem quite a problem—but it is a very simple matter after all. The safe way to do is to try several sets in your own home, and pick the one that pleases you best.

We firmly believe that the Kellogg Wave Master will be your unqualified choice after you have heard it compared with other good sets. But we are very well content to rest on YOUR decision. Though you may not be a music critic, you cannot help liking its rich, pure natural tone better than anything you have ever heard before.

You will be delighted by its utter simplicity of tuning. Naturally it is very much easier to select your stations with a single dial than to have two or three dials which have to be set just so.

By this marvelous NEW system of inductance tuning with ONE dial, you will be able to pick distant stations with surprising ease. And when you get them, you can sit back and really enjoy the programs. Many sets get distance. But few get music from great distance that is worth while listening to.

The Kellogg Wave Master is really different from other 5-tube sets. You can see it at a glance—and you realize it more and more as you listen to the results it brings. Choose the Wave Master this Christmas and you will feel next Christmas that you have made an investment in radio pleasure that is a permanent investment.

See or telephone you nearest Authorized Kellogg Dealer. Look up his name in the list below. Tell him that you are willing to have him make a Wave Master demonstration in your home. He will make all arrangements without any obligation on your part to buy. Do it NOW. Do not wait until the last minute if you wish to be sure of Christmas delivery.

We do not ask you to accept our estimate of the Kellogg Wave Master. But we do suggest for your own good that you hear the Wave Master in your own home before you buy your Christmas set. If you would like us to send you complete illustrated descriptive matter, ask for folder No. 14-L.

Do Not Judge WAVE MASTER Tone with Ordinary Speakers—

Insist on a demonstration with the

Kellogg Symphony Reproducer

$25

The best of sets cannot give you good music, if reproduced through a mediocre speaker. We want you to hear the Wave Master at its best. So, we urge you to ask for a demonstration with the Kellogg Symphony Reproducer.

It is only reasonable that Kellogg—telephone experts for 28 years—should manufacture a really superior reproducer. It may cost a few dollars more but it is well worth it. Remember, the enjoyment you derive from your entire radio investment is finally determined by the musical qualities of your speaker.

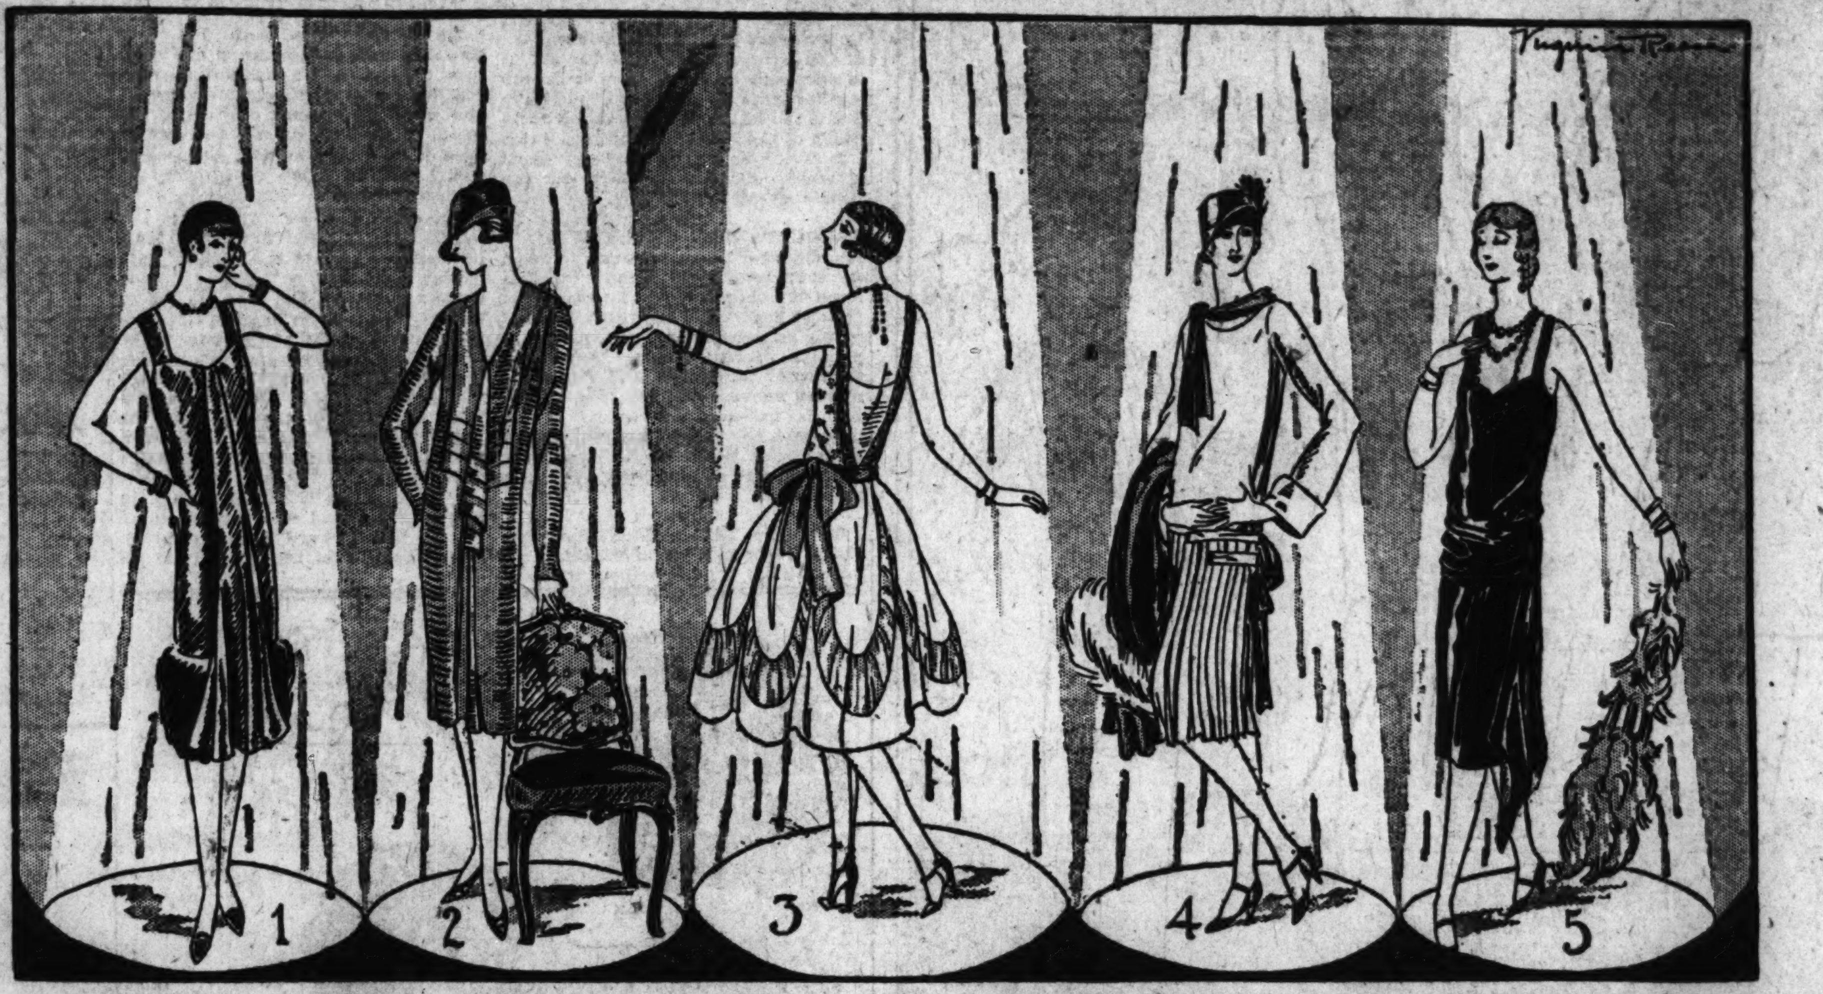
Dressing by Starlight; Let Stage Costumes Be Your Guide

by Corinne Lowe



Adapted from the gown worn by Miss Helen Morrison in Hamlet—as given in modern dress—is the ombre velvet shading from yellow to bronze which is banded in cocoa dyed fur, and does a new trick in the flare shown at the extreme left. Yes, of course, she's wearing "The Green Hat"—is Miss Katherine Cornell! But also a delightfully smart little frock of pale yellow crepe with an original version of the jabot and a front godet—second from the left. In the center, inspiration for a dance frock may be found in the orchid pink chiffon trimmed with looping circular ruffles and crystal ornamentation worn by Miss Gertrude Lawrence in "Charlot's Revue."

Fourth, Miss Ina Claire again puts her trust in Chanel—here represented in an exceedingly smart creation of beige crepe set off by touches of red brown velvet. Last, the ever appealing draped velvet finds expression in the black model worn by Miss Antoinette Perry in "Caught." The side drapery is lined with gold cloth.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—From "The Glass Slipper" to "The Green Hat," the stage of this winter plunges us into "The Vortex" of Fashion, and if you would know just how "These Charming People" are arraying themselves, you won't—sartorially speaking—be "Outside Looking In." Say "Laff That Off" or "Is Zat So" as much as you please, but you would indeed be "A Poor Nut" if you did not realize that "The Joker" has been taken out of "Gay Paree" and that the clothes worn by today's stars are as practical and usable as "Apple Sauce."

It was Bernard Shaw who objected in his usual caustic fashion to that little note on the theater program, "Costumed by So and So." He doesn't find this thing of an actress having her clothes set down before her by some great designer as being consistent with the spirit of art. Well, of course, Mr. Shaw is a mere man and, his own costumes being restricted to the range of two homely cylinders and some kind of jacket, he has no idea of how wearing a process it must be to be torn between a flare and a straight line, to try to decide whether violet or blue is in accord with your disposition. He doesn't realize that by passing the responsibility of clothes to experts the actress herself might be left more free to express her genius—if she happens to have this commodity.

Of course, some of our actresses descend to the mere rôle of clothes horses. Yet this is true with less and less frequency. It is more usual today to find a star dominating her clothes than the other way around. One of our most illuminating examples of the costume being less than the artiste is provided by Miss Katherine Cornell. Now, Miss Cornell might be costumed by Patou or Vionnet or anybody else, but that would never be the first thing that we notice. No, whether she be wearing the dear, frilly 1890 furbelows of Candida or the sophisticated modes demanded by Iris March, I myself always find it hard to carry away anything save the impression that her attire suited her exactly. I don't remember explicitly what her jabot did or whether her sleeves were up to any new tricks. I just recall I wouldn't for worlds have seen her in anything else. Could anything express better the secret of being successfully gowned?

Second from the left we show Miss Cornell in the delightful gown which she wears with the titular green hat—and a wonderful vivid shade of green it is! The frock is of pale yellow crêpe and, of course, the combination of this tint with the emerald hat is wonderfully charming. The frock is a Vionnet model and, with its V neck and fitted sleeves, provides us a perfect textbook on this lingering passion, simplicity. The godet down the front and the jabot arrangement of the bodice are all that dispute the severity of the straight line.

With this frock Miss Cornell wears a beige woolen coat with pointed appliques of matching fur, and the addition of the beige to the pale yellow of the gown and the vivid green of the hat rounds out the tonal harmony perfectly, especially if we take into consideration that final detail—the opera pumps of lizard skin matching the frock.

Now, although this play of "The Green Hat" was put on months ago, the frock here is in perfect accord with some of our latest thoughts concerning the flare. Make it unobtrusive and make it smart—this is the dictum of some of the leading designers as expressed in their mid-season modes.

Another actress who wears her clothes without letting them wear her is Ina Claire. By many people Miss Claire is considered the best dressed woman on our stage. Yet this fact is purely incidental to her career, one which has brought her steadily upward from a beautiful musical comedy star to a real comedienne. Not that she has discarded her beauty in favor of the uplift toward the ether of art! Far from it. The slim figure, the delightful suite of features, the Saxon blue eyes—all these are here to do justice to the beautiful and—usually very wearable—modes that she selects.

Now, Miss Claire is fond of Chanel, and second from the right we show her as she appears in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," her new vehicle, in a Chanel creation. Regard the lines of this gown, and admit that we have come a long way from the time when stage clothes were merely circus clothes, when nobody in the parquet could ever reach across the footlights for a single sartorial idea. For there's not a soul among us who couldn't walk straight off with that model secure in the promise that all her neighbors would say, "Doesn't she dress simply?"

Here it is. Just one of those "little frocks," as the French call them, which are the backbone of our wardrobe, which we need whether we are going to stay for a northern winter or flit to a southern summer. It's a one piece creation of beige crêpe, and the skirt is plaited all around. Yes, to be sure, there are individual touches or it wouldn't be Chanel. We locate them here in the bands of self-material and of uneven width crossing the one side, and in those bows of red brown velvet that are implicated with the bands. Also in that graceful scarf of the same red brown velvet. Nor are the sleeves with the big turn-back cuffs deserving of inattention. In fact, everything about this model makes it ideal for the average woman. It is the universal goal—simplicity with a few unusual touches.

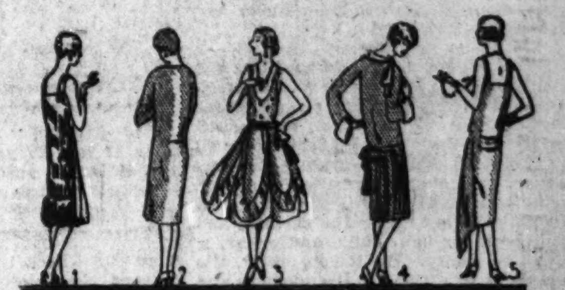
Hamlet, as given in modern dress, has finally decided "not to be." Just as we sketched one of its costumes the classic went off. It certainly must have been because there was something wrong about Mr. Shakespeare's play, for the costumes were above criticism. At the extreme left we show the frock worn by Miss Helen Morrison, who took the part of Hamlet's mother. She was, after all, quite a modern spirit, that mother of Hamlet, and why shouldn't she express herself in an ombre velvet evening gown shading from deep yellow to bronze tints? And why shouldn't she avail herself of the full privileges of the molded bodice?

This gown is, like Miss Cornell's represented costume, in perfect accord with several tendencies of the winter. For, although the bodice is fitted, it presents such effect more in terms of the sheath than in those of the full skirt. Yes, there is a flare, but it is an artful one, introduced in the trickiest way I have seen. A fold of the material extends from a point of narrowness at the neck line to fan shaped width at the hem. There is a decided flare in this panel, in fact, where it meets the deep border of cocoa colored fur. In the back of the original there was a deep V. decolletage. In adapting this model you can do several things. You can retain the deep V; you can moderate it; you can make it oval or do it square in the manner shown.

At all events, this frock is full of the craft of many of the newest evening modes. We want to have the credit of adopting something new, but at the same time our real affections are hopelessly entangled with the straight line. So we just make some mere little gesture of a flare and call it an evening.

Among the season's new evening models we find so many with trains or draperies at the side occurring as the one supreme effort to impart novelty to a worn idea. Draped frocks of simplest effects—those draped lines which are almost universally becoming—are often found in connection with these side appendages. Thus in the gown of black velvet worn by Miss Antoinette Perry in "Caught," we find a draping that contributes the fashionable girded effect of the hips allied with a side drapery—this one lined in gold tissue. This is an exceedingly wearable model—one which preserves old loyalties without forfeiting any claim to be considered strictly up to date.

Of course, no evening toilette of today can stand without the jewels, fan, and other accessories. A note of brilliancy is supplied to this particular black velvet by the enormous trailing fan of orange ostrich feathers repeating the golden lining of the side drapery.



OTHER VIEWS OF TODAY'S MODELS.

Now, as to the young girl in search of a new dance frock—and what young girl is not always a prey to this emotion—what better guidance could she get than that provided by Miss Gertrude Lawrence in the new "Charlot Revue?" You find this model in the center—an airy thing of orchid pink chiffon trimmed with circular flounces of chiffon brought up in loops around the entire skirt. Motifs of crystal beads ornament the corsage where bands of crystal beads do some subsidiary work. A sash of ribbon in deeper tint occurs at the normal waist line.

How to Use the Patterns

CREPE satin in a becoming color would make up beautifully by pattern No. 2465. The long waisted upper part with the three piece circular skirt attached will be especially becoming to any woman who wants to look more slender; and it will be equally becoming to the really slender figure. The waist is cut in two pieces, front and back; and buttons down the front of the waist through an applied band. The neck is finished at the natural neck line with a rather deep, round collar. The long, close fitting sleeves are finished at the wrists with deep, turned back cuffs, quite in keeping with the collar.

The circular skirt is cut in three pieces, and measures at the bottom, for size 36, about 2⅝ yards. The skirt is finished in the front with an attached band, matching that on the waist. After waist and skirt have been joined, hang the dress up for several days, and then measure the length carefully and even it off. If you want to be really sure it is through stretching, hang it up again for a couple of days, and measure the length again.

It will depend upon the material used as to how the bottom shall be finished. If you are using any one of the soft woolens, it will be pretty to finish with a fitted facing—stitching it to the dress in a wrong side seam at the bottom and hemming it invisibly, the same as you would do with an ordinary hem. If you are using crêpe, satin, or any of the dressier materials it will be pretty to bind the bottom.

Satin crêpe would be especially pretty for this dress—using the satin side for the applied bands, bottom binding, and for the cuffs and collar. Where the skirt and waist join there could be a piping of satin. If you like detachable collar and cuffs, the sleeve edges may be faced, and the neck finished with a binding of the satin side of the crêpe; then collar and cuffs made of one of the lovely tucked nets, finished with a narrow insertion and edging. Set these into narrow bands and baste them in place. Roshanara crêpe—silk and wool—would make a nice dress by this design. It would be warm and dressy looking besides.

Pattern No. 2337 is an excellent one for rompers. It is roomy and comfortable, as every garment should be for small children. Of course, wash materials are best; and probably six will not be too many to make up at one time. Gingham, percale, chambray, or broadcloth will be nice; and if a plain color is used for the garment and a check for belt, cuffs, and collar, it will be pretty. Or, if you prefer, use a check or stripe for the rompers and trim with a plain color.

These rompers are cut in one piece in the front, and in the back in two pieces. The lower part is cut rather full, gathered into a band, and finished with buttonholes to button to the back of the waist. Perforations on the pattern show where the band is to be stitched on; and then buttons are sewed on. These should be sewed on so the thread forms a shank. They will button more easily and not be so apt to tear the cloth.

Pattern No. 2560 is a smart design for a dress; and will be pretty made with one or two materials or colors. Back and front are each in one piece, the front being slashed down from the front at the neck, the edges bound, and finished for closing. The dress is slashed up from the bottom on the lines of perforations, and pieces attached form inset plaits. These can be cut from a contrasting color or the dress material.

Be careful to follow exactly the directions given on the pattern for putting these sections in. The front of the dress is gathered on the shoulders, the back extending over the shoulders, giving the effect of a shallow front yoke. The belt doesn't show across the back, but comes out of bound slashes just to the front of the under arm seams. Long sleeves gathered to wristbands, and a round collar finishing the high neck complete this pretty dress.

BEAUTY ANSWERS by Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

TESSIE: IT IS QUITE UNFAIR to blame the bob for your falling hair. If you wear a small, tight hat and it is necessary that you keep it on the greater part of the time, you may blame the hat, as it restricts the circulation of the blood in the scalp, which affects the health of the hair. Send stamped, addressed envelope for my booklet on care of the hair.

VIOLET: TRY THIS EXERCISE for removing that thickening between the shoulder blades: Stand erect, feet close together, fingers interlaced at back of head; bend the trunk forward as far as possible and back as far as possible without strain. Exhale on downward movement and inhale on upward movement. Do this slowly. Another excellent exercise is: Lie on your back on the floor and without the aid of your hands try to raise your head and chin as far forward on chest as possible.

MAYME: THE FOLLOWING EXERCISE is a good one for reducing the bust: Stand with feet about eighteen inches apart. Arms straight out from the shoulders, stomach in, chest out. Begin to make circles with hands and arms. You will feel a pull on the muscles of the chest. For additional exercises, send stamped, addressed envelope.

J. T. W.: YOU MAY USE THE dental floss to remove particles which lodge between the teeth, but care should be used in inserting it not to injure the gums. A toothbrush with bristles of different lengths is preferable for the innermost crevices of the teeth. A medium or soft toothbrush, used with rotary motion, and vigorously, will do much to protect the gums and teeth.

MRS. G.: A TIGHT SCALP MAY be corrected by massage. If the scalp is drawn tightly over the skull it tends to constrict the blood vessels, and so lessens the supply of blood to the scalp and causes atrophy of the roots of the hair. Massage the scalp with the fingertips. Also, brush the hair every morning and night. Brushing stimulates the roots of the hair and the scalp. In order to have thick hair, the scalp should be thick and pliable and move freely. I have instructions on "Care of the Hair" and scalp, in printed form, and will send them to you if you forward a stamped, addressed envelope, repeating your request.

Stylish "Bobs"

Easy to Keep Thick, Wavy and Lustrous

Girls! Try this! When combing and brushing your hair just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can dress your hair immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy, an abundance of gleamy, wavy hair, sparkling with life, incomparably soft, fresh, youthful.

Besides beautifying the hair, a 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" from any drug or toilet counter will do wonders, particularly if the hair is dry, thin, brittle, faded or streaked with gray from constant curling and waving which burn the color, lustre and very life from any woman's hair.

"Danderine" acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, stopping falling hair and helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

LEATHER GOODS ARE ANY MAN'S FANCY.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions, the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

By A. T. Gallico.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.] — There seems to be a certain affinity between men and leather goods. Something made out of leather, or something to aid or abet a man in his smoking, is sure to make a most popular Christmas gift.

When you go gift hunting, you will find a bewildering assortment of articles that have something or other to do with man's famous habit. And one of your main worries will be to give him something that will be useful, not merely ornamental. For, after all, when you present a man with some complicated affair to keep cigars moist and which is so difficult to operate that it is easier to smoke them dry, he will be more or less inclined to think of the boxes of cigars that the money might have bought.

A word of advice in buying cigars: The best thing to do is to find out what he smokes, and get those—and not too many. Cigars, if not kept in the right temperature, deteriorate. If you cannot find out his favorite brand, don't buy them haphazardly. Go to a reputable tobacconist and consult a salesman. His advice probably will be sound.

A simple but effective humidor is always acceptable to a pipe or cigar smoker. And you will find that a cigaret smoker is always glad to experiment with a foreign brand, particularly if it is an expensive one. And for that matter, his favorite brand with his initials on it might give him a thrill. Patent lighters are great when they light. A man likes to take something out of his pocket that looks like a cross between a fieldpiece and a lawnmower, and with a few deft passes have it burst into a creditable flame. He hates, however, to put the act on for the mob and have nothing happen.

Richly grained leather wallets for cigars are acceptable. Unique designs in cigaret cases never fail to make a hit. As for ash trays, no man ever has enough. It is a peculiar quality of an ash tray that it is always just out of reach. If a man has enough of them, one is likely to be around when he has need of it. You will find plenty of variety in ash trays, from chaste and neat designs in brass and copper to standing figures of birds and animals, as well as a dignified English butler who begs you to deposit your ashes with him.

Neat match cases are not to be sneezed at, and many a man's heart can be gladdened by the gift of a fine pipe. And here again it is advisable to take the salesman into your confidence. You will find an almost unlimited selection of pipes of the best wood. And, incidentally, here is a word of warning. If the man for whom you buy the pipe is a small chap with a small face, don't get him a huge chimney, and vice versa. There's a lot of sense in buying a pipe to fit the face.

To return now to those gifts made of leather, any one of which will make a happy Christmas happier for the male, there are, of course, wallets procurable at almost any price, ranging from plain dressed leather to the most expensive grains; but you will probably find that as long as it has that new leathery smell, it will make a hit.

If you are acquainted with the waist measure of the man for whom you are buying, a leather belt with plain, fancy or monogram buckle may solve the problem for you. You can secure belts in rich browns, if you think he would prefer that color to black, in dressed or undressed leather. The lighter tan belts are more for sports wear, but the cordovan colors will go well with dark brown suits. You will find real pigskin belts on the market.

Leather cigar cases will find a welcome, leather collar boxes have their places in a man's closet; gloves have already been touched upon; but if your friend, brother, fiancé, or husband happens to drive an automobile in the winter, he would hardly be angry at you if you purchased him a pair of warm yet flexible driving gloves.

To wind up with our leather goods gifts, there are handbags and suitcases ranging anywhere from brief cases with the initials of the recipient in gold or silver letters, to kit bags of pigskin, dress suit cases, traveling bags and handbags.

In looking over the suitcase market, you will find plenty of combination affairs meant for men who spend much time traveling. In fact, you can hardly go into a luggage or leather goods shop without seeing something which you know will hit the fancy of a man.

Real Love Letters

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possession you would like to enter the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

DREAMS COME TRUE.

DARLING: I am so sorry that you rebuke yourself even faintly, when no slightest fault is yours. If there was a tiny hurt, the light in your eyes as you talked to me tonight repaid me a thousandfold.

Every day I am more deeply in love with you; every day I learn some new wonder of you. I never dreamed there existed—much less that I should encounter—such gentle, complete understanding. I talk with you seriously, and you understand. I play with you, and you understand. You ask nothing, and give everything. It is all still a little incredible to me that I have come face to face with happiness.

I want you, dear. I have never talked or written like this before. You have overcome a lifelong reticence. Even now I should like to say more. I should like to tell you I adore you, but I don't quite know how.

I love you, dearest, I want to tell the whole world and you, over and over again. I love you.

PERRY.

Chicago Sunday Tribune THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER — Woman's Features

DECEMBER 13, 1925.

KEEPING YOUNG

Mrs. Samuel Insull Claims Imagination, Mentality, Are More Vital Than Mere Physical Beauty.

by Antoinette Donnelly

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—How many women could abandon a stage career for twenty some odd years, live the life of a society woman, and make as triumphant a pictorial return as did Mrs. Samuel Insull, wife of one of Chicago's wealthiest men?

More women could do it today, it is true, than were such a return staged after a 25 years' absence two decades ago, because women age more youthfully than they used to, as we all know.

In Gloria Swanson's last picture, "The Coast of Folly," deserved criticism attended the physical interpretation of a mother, presumably in her forties. She appeared as a doddering old female. In reality, the mother of grown children today gets around almost as nimbly, if she is a regular modern, as her debutante daughter. She knows as many of the tango steps, possibly some of the Charleston capers, and disports herself quite as blithely as the younger one.

If one were looking for the perfect example of how young a mother may be, we should unhesitatingly introduce Mrs. Insull, wealthy member of Chicago society and recently returned to professional life after an absence of several decades to essay the role of Lady Teazle in a revival of the old Sheridan comedy, "The School for Scandal."

Gladys Wallis Returns.

Many in Chicago society had forgotten and a few vaguely remembered that Gladys Wallis had been a successful young actress when she left the stage to become Mrs. Samul Insull. Her return, which incidentally marked a record breaking feat in the history of Chicago philanthropy, was inspired by a desire to help amass funds for the benefit of St. Luke's hospital building fund. Mrs. Insull's appeal to the eye, both in the Chicago production and later on Broadway, was the subject of enthusiastic comment by every reviewer of drama.

On the trail always for first hand hints on how to keep young and beautiful, we called on Mrs. Insull at the Ritz-Carlton with the usual list of queries mentally tabulated as to how one keeps her figure, a youthful neckline, complexion, etc.

We found in Mrs. Insull not a dispenser of dietary advice nor a giver of platitudinous rules about personal hygiene and physical upkeep. Her days of what might seem to one less financially well established as being full of leisurely and self-indulgent promise have not been given over to endless hours and patience going through the long drill beauty demands of its acolytes. In other words, she is not a woman who makes a fetish of beauty. Yet she has it.

Youth's Secret Revealed.

MRS. SAMUEL INSULL.
[White Studio Photo.]

Mrs. Insull prescribes as the secret of youth constant mental exercise and development. We suspect the problem of having to combine physical and mental exercise is not one with which Mrs. Insull has had to wrestle. There are women in whose regime strict physical exercise is as necessary as mental. But she is one of the tiny Dresden doll type of woman, a description which pleases her not at all. One of the handicaps of being small, she protests, is that people catalogue you as a pretty little doll, which isn't kind when the mind is constantly struggling and building itself far and away out of the doll class. Nevertheless, she is one of those exquisitely petite individuals whom we personally envy because the problem of fat and age seems to escape them by some power of divine ordination.

A dynamic personality, a keen mind illuminating a pair of long fringed dark brown eyes, dark hair, beautiful pearly teeth, a figure barely more than five feet, weighing 97 pounds, and you have a picture of this clever woman who staged a radiant pictorial comeback in the revival of the Sheridan comedy.

Speaking of diminutive women, Mrs. Insull says: "Women of my size should never attempt the blatantly extreme in dress. They should affect benevolent neutrality in colors and pattern. If one has a handicap [which Mrs. Insull insists her five foot stature is] you have to overcome it. All people who amount to anything have to overcome handicaps. If you cannot overcome it physically you have to overcome it with your head.

"Women age because they let their minds atrophy. A recent experience will illustrate. A friend of former years, whom I had not seen for some time, and I had a reunion. We were worlds apart I found after a short time together.

"She had remained pratically stationary, in so far as her mental activities were concerned. This thing shocked her and that thing shocked her. They were not shocking things—simply progress in the world of events. She just didn't keep abreast of things. Rather than exert herself she found it easier to condemn. And as is invariably the case, she was old physically and mentally.

Active Mind, Active Body.

"I firmly believe the eternal springs of youth are in the mind. The sluggish, undeveloped mind and the sluggish, slow moving body are companions as an almost invariable rule. If the mentality works, the organic demands are met. If your mentality is active your body will be. The mind, being active, will take into consideration food requirements, and overeating will be eliminated from the daily course. The alert mind is alive to all the other requirements of sane living, and it will direct the practice of them. The mind controls the physical state entirely.

"Your mentality colors your life in its every phase. Your appreciations, enthusiasms, emotions are not directed by your hands and your feet but by the brain. Consequently the mind is the thing to cultivate and to be kept constantly exercised.

"Beauty isn't outline of feature. It is the emotion that colors the individual that makes her beautiful. I know women who might be considered homely were they without the vitality of mind and the warmth of emotion that transforms them into outstandingly attractive beings. You know them. We all know them. Duse was beautiful after the beauty of flesh was gone. The spirit was there until the end. Pavlowa does not dance with her feet and her body alone. She dances with her mind. Physical beauty will not carry one to the pinnacle. It is imagination, capacity, mentality that does that.

"Naturally one with mentality would look as well as she could. She would not neglect her face, her hair, her body. But there are women who let their minds atrophy in the pursuit of physical and dress perfection. It is a futile spending of time, for in the long run it is not the way to preserve the spirit of youth. A certain type of society woman there is who goes to every couturier to see every model and who spends endless hours fighting with this system and that to improve the contour of face and form. It is necessary to be pictorial, but all one's thoughts should not be dedicated to being it. Clothes are an accessory to the fact—not the fact. One's mind should dominate clothes, not clothes dominate the mind."

Each Age Has Beauty.

Mrs. Insull is no advocate of face lifting and such modern methods of staying the hand of time.

"At 40," she says, "there is a certain outline, stamped in the course of nature, that cannot be interfered with. No one is deceived by the synthetic beauty but the synthetic beauty herself. Every stage has its development. Youth has tremendous beauty. When the bloom of youth is gone, there is the ripe fruition of years and experience to take its place.

"I believe in meeting exigencies as well as possible, but not in trying to achieve the impossible, which I think a woman is doing when she puts her all in the battle for youth which must be lost in the end."

Mrs. Insull says she has never been a self-indulgent person, in the sense of food and a leisurely mode of life. In her day's program she has pretty consistently stuck to her 15 or 20 minute exercise period. She believes in body massage as an aid to elimination, but facials have never beguiled her time or interest.

For 20 years she has been true to one perfume, a delicate, elusive scent, the ingredients of which she rightfully maintains to be her own personal secret.

Professional women, in Mrs. Insull's opinion, have advantage over nonprofessional in the art of keeping young. They have a concrete objective upon which the mental energy is constantly trained. They're enmeshed in the progress of life, touching the pulse of it.

Applause, administered privately or publicly, she believes a wonderful ingredient in the formula for youth retention. In no small measure, it contributes to the eternal youthfulness of the actress.

If your mentality is inactive your body will be, too.

STEERING THE MATRIMONIAL SHIP

by Doris Blake

"Modern Marriage," by Paul Popenoe, Shows Rocks to Be Avoided and Charts the Way to Calm Seas.

TO prevent marriage from turning out wrong, what is needed? More romance, more understanding, more freedom, more courtesy, more respect for personality, more opportunity for living?

Paul Popenoe, author of "Modern Marriage" [Macmillan], believes these are the things of which happy marriages are made.

More romance, he believes, is within the husband's province more than the wife's. It is largely dependent on the husband, since he must take the initiative. He will find his wife willing to meet him more than half way. Part of this romance falls within the scope of the physical relation in marriage, but it is also largely made up of little things that can be done from day to day, the author thinks.

"Most women like the unexpected, the surprising," he reminds husbands. "They dislike the cut and dried, the stereotyped. If a husband makes up his mind in advance that his marriage is at least as important as his business, and that he will give it as much thought and attention, he will find no difficulty in discovering innumerable ways to keep life interesting."

Plea for Understanding.

He urges the man to acquire more understanding. "A man would not start out to drive a motor car from New York to Los Angeles," says Popenoe, "if he knew nothing about the machinery. A wife is an incomparably more delicate mechanism than an automobile, but the average man feels no hesitation about starting on a life journey with her without having the vaguest idea of how she functions. He must learn to know her as thoroughly as possible—mind, body, and spirit. Such knowledge may prevent a wreck; in any event, it will add immensely to his enjoyment of marriage, as well as to his wife's.

"It is the petty tyrannies of married life that makes it so frequently exasperating," the author introduces his plea for more freedom. "Each partner ought to have as much freedom of thought and action as possible, so long as the interests of the other are not involved. It is easy to overdo this, but it is much more frequently underdone."

A divorced Hollywood couple met frequently after their separation, on friendly terms. They outdid themselves in trying to be courteous to each other. The wife confided to a friend if her husband had been half that courteous during their marriage there wouldn't have been a divorce. The husband made the identical observation to an intimate of his.

So when Mr. Popenoe suggests that "if people would make it an invariable rule to be as courteous as if they were strangers, most of the friction in matrimony would disappear" he knows whereof he speaks. After they have been married a while husband and wife, the author observes, forget to be polite to each other. From forgetfulness, we add, the treatment leads to cuts and hurts that are brooded over long after the happening.

It may come as a surprise to the men to learn from one of their sex, the author of "Modern Marriage," that man has no rights whatever in marriage. He acquires plenty of duties, plenty of privileges, but no rights whatever. He has no business to demand everything. It is his business to so conduct himself that every privilege he desires will be gladly granted, even before it is asked.

More opportunity for living is pleaded for. "Marriage should mean for both man and woman a life warmer and more colorful, richer and more joyous, than anything they ever experienced before. Sometimes, however, the wife cherishes the idea that she is much discriminated against and to be pitied; that her husband goes out into the world every day, meets interesting people and does interesting things, while she is condemned to stay at home, shut in and cut off from a large part of civilization.

"Occasionally this is true, but as often the exact reverse is the truth. the husband spends the entire day in routine and drudgery, while the wife either has most of her time free to seek her own amusement and development, or, if there are children, she at least has work incomparably more interesting and worth while than that of the husband, in educating them."

The idea that they are to be deprived of a fair share in the world's activities is resented by intelligent and well educated girls more than anything else in marriage, Popenoe thinks. Even though the idea is based largly on imagination, he suggsts the husband take the necessary steps to correct it.

Outside Interests Are Vital.

"It is, of course, idle for the average woman to suppose she can have a career and a home at the same time, but, the husband should insist that she make use of every legitimate opportunity to enjoy the things she likes. Whether it be art or politics, sports or fashion, shows or welfare work that she is interested in, he should make every effort to see she has a chance to participate.

A change in point of view of the wife is recommended for the greater happiness of the union. Popenoe recommends wives taking a more scientific attitude toward the care of children, and particularly toward cookery in order to extract more pleasure from the duties. If this is done, she can get more pleasure out of her work than her husband ever can out of posting columns of figures, or trying to sell real estate all day.

With proper organization and simplification of the housework, Popenoe argues, the wife should soon realize she has much the best of it, and that domestic slavery, when it is not merely a battle cry of feminist agitators, is purely voluntary servitude from which any one can escape who cares to do so. If it is slavery at all, it is slavery to one's self rather than to any outer force.

Far from Help.

While holding down a claim years ago, the children and I alone in a shack on the vast prairie, I was awakened one night by a noise at the window. I lay wide eyed listening, but the fumbling continued, and I was sure some one was trying to get in.

I finally mustered up sufficient courage to throw a shoe against the wall, when a voice shouted, "Hey, in there, where do Hanson's live?" It was the doctor, and I was indeed a relieved homesteader. F. W.

Unsuspecting.

My aunt visited me and just before retiring, about 1 o'clock in the morning, she put all her valuable jewelry in one of her traveling bags and left it in the dining room.

My husband was traveling at the time, so we two women were alone in the apartment.

Just before daybreak I heard some one passing my door. Thinking it was my aunt walking quietly so as not to disturb me, I said in the sweetest tone, "Light the light so you can see."

This was followed by a stumbling noise and commotion. When I got up to investigate I found one bag had been ransacked and the burglar no doubt was going to get the one in the dining room, but my accommodating suggestion frightened him away. The rear door was wide open and he had fled. L. C. K.

CHRISTMAS BREADS AND THE LIKE.

THE stollen, the schnecken, the fresh sweet rusks (soft), the nut or fruited bun, the coffee cake with currants and nuts, the almond breads, and even our early American "election cake," and a delicious fruit bread made in Paducah, Ky., and pronounced ne plus ultra, or uttermost by Irvin Cobb, whether called bread or cake are equal to one-piece meals both in what they do to the appetite and what they furnish in calories. In fact, they are used in just that way in some parts of the world—an afternoon meal.

In Sweden regularly, in some parts of Germany, and probably in Denmark, the social event of an afternoon is the eating of some of these breads made of sweetened doughs, with coffee. The Swedish rusk is quite well known among us, and we have heard of nothing else much but of Danish pastries of late. Sweden in particular seems like Scotland, to be an Ultima Thule on breads, as in geography Scotland has its five kinds of bread or "cakes" for breakfast, and here is what a Swedish woman wrote of her home food habits two years ago:

"Julhogen is the 'seven sevens,' which consists of seven kinds of bread and coffee cake, seven pastries, seven kinds of soft cookies, seven kinds of crisp cookies, seven types of meringues and seven tarts. These are the sweets!"

Seven Swedish Sorts.

Another writer—this year—in telling what the Swedish idea of a square meal is, gives an unbelievable list of foods and one of the items is "seven sorts of bread." Which facts support the idea that "bread is the staff of life," and play up to a hobby of my own—my own coloring of a great fact—that the food grains are of all foods the most fundamental and needed, in fair and just proportions, every single day. It is as easy to find out what the proportion is as to find out how many dollars a day will support us under any given set of conditions.

In the cold countries this food is more needed than in hot, and people who understand how to feed themselves will partake of this food daily, though not in excess, for then it becomes a risk, as almost every other food so taken can be.

"Kranzchen" Is Famous.

There is also the German "kranzchen," or a cream-filled cake, the Gotha kranzchen being the most famous of them all, and sold all over Germany, or widely. I once went to that charming city of Gotha for no other reason than to see the spot where this cake originated and get the recipe. I bought it of the baker for the resident duke of that region. This baker was entitled to call himself "Herzolich Sachsischen Hoflieferant," the latter word being used everywhere in Germany in 1912 for those persons who catered in any way to royal personages.

The cake part of this recipe (Masse zum nacken) contains one pound of sugar and ten eggs well beaten to a froth. Into this are stirred a pound of flour and a pound of butter. It is flavored with some vanilla, about an ounce of powdered bitter almonds, and the grated skin of a lemon, then baked in a big wreath form, with a funnel of uniform size from top to bottom as that of our sponge cake (the Turk's head) forms are not. The form is well buttered.

The "Kranze Cream," according to the great baker's recipe, contained: Eight egg yolks, one-half pound of sugar, three ounces of flour, one vanilla bean, seven-eighths of a quart of milk, cooked together to make a cream. Let this cool and stir into it a little at a time one pound of the finest sweet cream butter which has been stirred to a cream, beating it until it is white.

Here you get that rich butter icing and filling that so many people would like to make.

Kranz or Wreath Form for Bread.

There are other and perhaps better ways of getting a circular loaf of bread than by using a form or circular baking tin. The Christmas stollen of Germany, or that which I had in Berlin at a Christmas period before the war, had been baked on a sheet after being made into a wreath shape.

Wisconsin Stollen or Stolla.

A variation of a recipe taken from one of the Wisconsin cook books and tested out—one labeled "stollen," while another book had "stolla"—was this: One yeast cake, one pint of milk, six cups of flour, one-fourth pound sweet butter, one-fourth pound of lard, one egg, one-half cup of sugar, two teaspoons salt, one-half of a lemon rind grated and the juice of the half lemon, one-half pound seedless raisins, one-eighth pound almonds—the fruits and nuts to be chopped, but better cut up rather coarsely with scissors and knife. The recipe also called for citron—home-made preserved citron melon would be fine in it, but there is a sulphurlike flavor to commercial citron sometimes which spoils anything containing it, for some people—for me surely.

We set a sponge, using the milk, yeast, and three cups of flour. When this had risen to double the butter and lard creamed and then blended with the sugar and egg was added with the flour, and finally the raisins, cut up and floured, and the nuts and lemon added, the whole kneaded and made up into forms and baked. It might have been iced with a water icing to perfect it.

On Baking Sweet Doughs.

Any sweet dough can be put up as buns, loaves, wreaths, and so forth, but it is risky to try to bake large and small forms together. A hot temperature briefly applied will work for small bits of the dough, but because of the amount of fat in these breads the least bit of scorching is not permissible. There is then an aroma that counteracts the delicious spiciness the bread should have, and this is a sign of unwholesomeness. The oven may be 400 degrees at the start to stop the growth of the yeast, but lowered right away to 350 degrees.

Raggedy Buns and Breads.

A sweet dough with fruit makes rather ugly looking buns and loaves unless kneaded like dough for any plain bread until it is smooth and elastic. Otherwise the surface and any edges of cut out buns and biscuits will be ragged. The breads are much prettier if the surface is of the right sort, smooth, not too hard. If they have not been kneaded smooth they can be patted smooth with a spoon wet in cold water or washed over with sugar and milk, but if there is a raggedness in the very nature of the dough, because it has not been worked in the right way, the surfaces and edges will be uneven. Even an unkneaded dough can be so worked as to give smooth buns rather than ragged ones.

Raisin and Nut Bread.

The following recipe was printed in this cook book just a little while ago, or reprinted, and is now given again to show that our sweet American breads with fruit are just like those used the world over, whether called Danish pastry or German stollen: Two cups of milk, scalded and cooled; one cake of yeast, six cups of flour, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup butter, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one-half cup of walnut meats, one cup of raisins, and one-half cup of some candied fruit. Candied grapefruit will do, or even candied apple, but candied citron melon is superior.

Dissolve yeast in scalded and cooled milk. Cream the butter, work the sugar into it, add the beaten egg, combine with milk and yeast and one cup of flour. Beat it until it is a smooth batter, cover closely and set in a warm place to rise. When the mixture has become light and spongy, mix in the fruit and nuts, which have been floured with a little of the flour, stirring them well into the batter adding the salt and enough flour to make a dough which can be kneaded—some being saved for the kneading, or even a cup more can be used for a denser crumbed bread.

There is no reason at all why this should not be baked in the wreath form, and probably there is a much slighter variation between this and the stollen recipe than between the recipes for two different stollen recipes that we could find.

Bun Doughs.

Either the raisin bread dough or that for stollen can be used for buns. Currants and powdered orange peel, instead of raisins, are excellent substitutes for raisins and nuts when the purpose of the sweet dough is bun making. When a small portion of dough is used, or that with one cup of liquid only and one egg, either three or four cups of flour may be used. There is no hard and fast line on the flour because of the difference in the skill of the operator, or perhaps the ideals when two of equal skill work to this end.

Fruited Brown Bread.

Boston brown bread with candied apple is truly festive and dainty, and especially so when baked in a kranz or what we are more likely to call a border mold. The opening made by the tube of the mold offers a reason for decorating this, when it is presented to anybody at Christmas time, with holly or something of the sort—using waxed paper between it and the bread, but well hidden.

Make the bread of one cup corn meal, one cup rye flour, one cup Graham flour, two cups sour milk, one-half cup molasses, two level teaspoons soda, one and a half teaspoons salt. Sift corn meal and rye flour together. Beat the sour milk and molasses together thoroughly with an egg beater. Add the Graham flour to it first and then the other ingredients. If the soda is added last it can be stirred and dissolved in the cup in which the sour milk and molasses have been measured, a bit being held back for that purpose.

The mixing must be thorough. Add fruit and bake in a closely sealed brown bread tin for about an hour, according to size of molds. In two molds of ordinary brown bread the baking should be for about an hour and a quarter in a moderate oven.

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, or bronchial asthma.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Solves One Important Gift Problem

CHRISTMAS time, gift time, all hearts are opened to the generous spirit of the season. Thoughtful givers appreciate the value of permanence in the gifts of their selection and when Mother, Sister or Wife enters the problem a happy solution is found in LIFETIME.

The life-long promise of LIFETIME service suggests beautiful and useful utensils for Holiday remembrance. Such gifts recall a real appreciation long after the spirit of the day has passed.

The LIFETIME family of Utensils will be prominent in every family gathering, where those who preside over the range know their dependable value and year after year necessity.

And LIFETIME will again be present, when Christmas packages are opened, in sets and in individual pieces, in thousands of happy homes.

Utensils for Every Kitchen Purpose

The difference between good Aluminum and cheap Aluminum is not a question of the purity of the metal. It is a matter of strength and service, of wear and weight.

Good Aluminum serves for a lifetime. Cheap Aluminum may last only a day, or a week, or a month.

LIFETIME Ware is fashioned from pure, extra heavy sheet Aluminum. Every piece is made strong enough to stand many times the hard wear it would ordinarily get in a lifetime of service.

The Double Boiler
Price $1.45

Few kitchens are without a Double Boiler. It is in the front rank of necessary utensils.

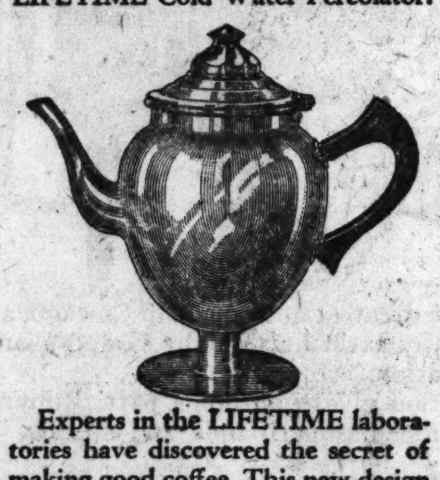
This sturdy piece is an important member of the LIFETIME family. The large base holds plenty of water and will not boil dry quickly.

The top insert is gauged to fit snug, yet never sticks. The folded, hollow handles are always cool, just as you would have them.

It is an all-round satisfactory utensil, an acknowledged necessity to perfect cookery.

The Cold Water Percolator
Price $3.75

At last, unvarying enjoyment of good coffee, new zest and taste, with the LIFETIME Cold Water Percolator.



Experts in the LIFETIME laboratories have discovered the secret of making good coffee. This new-design Percolator makes it available to everyone.

Note the beauty of line and finish. All parts are quickly cleanable. The removable, rubberoid-finish handle, and removable crystal dome make it possible to sterilize often, insuring a lifetime of service. Best of all, it takes less coffee to make the best coffee, proving a real year after year economy.

Tea Kettle and Inset
Price $2.90

The LIFETIME tea kettle, with inset, is a splendid example of seamless Aluminum stamping.

This style kettle has a one-piece welded spout and a flat steel bale with notched ears. No part of it will bend out of shape with ordinary hard use.

The convenient inset is deep, double boiler type, with hollow handle. The close-setting cover fits both kettle and inset, making an ideal combination utensil.

Automatic (Waterless) Pressure Cooker
Price $4.75

In the new improved LIFETIME Automatic Pressure Cooker are embodied a number of patented features which make it a very simple and most satisfactory utensil to use.

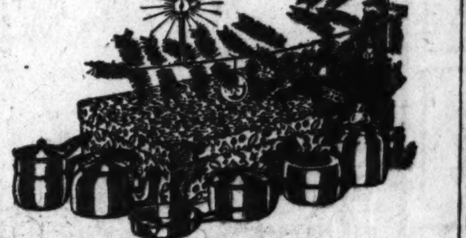
Roasts, Fowl, Vegetables are prepared in the LIFETIME Cooker with all the natural vapors retained, and all delicious flavor preserved.

Its use requires only one-third the gas necessary for ordinary baking or roasting and after the food is placed in the Cooker it requires no further attention.

Mother's Set Has Been Made in Miniature to Make Little Girls Happy
Price $4.95

This year LIFETIME has provided a practical toy that brings pride as well as pleasure, that settles upon the hearts of youngsters some of the privileges that will be theirs in later years.

Now they can "cook" and "bake," "mix" and "prepare" the dishes they have so often watched Mother make, the while their little imaginations have taken them into the kitchen of their dreams.



P. S.—The LIFETIME Set for children is made of extra hard cross-rolled sheets, which means that when every other toy is broken and lost and forgotten, this Set will be good as new, a permanent pleasure.

In the rounds of daily use, marked in memory by many festive Holidays, these utensils will serve their every purpose without a sign of wear—with their value unimpaired.

Near you is a store where only good merchandise is sold. There you will find LIFETIME Aluminum Ware. Buy utensils of permanent worth—solve one important gift problem.

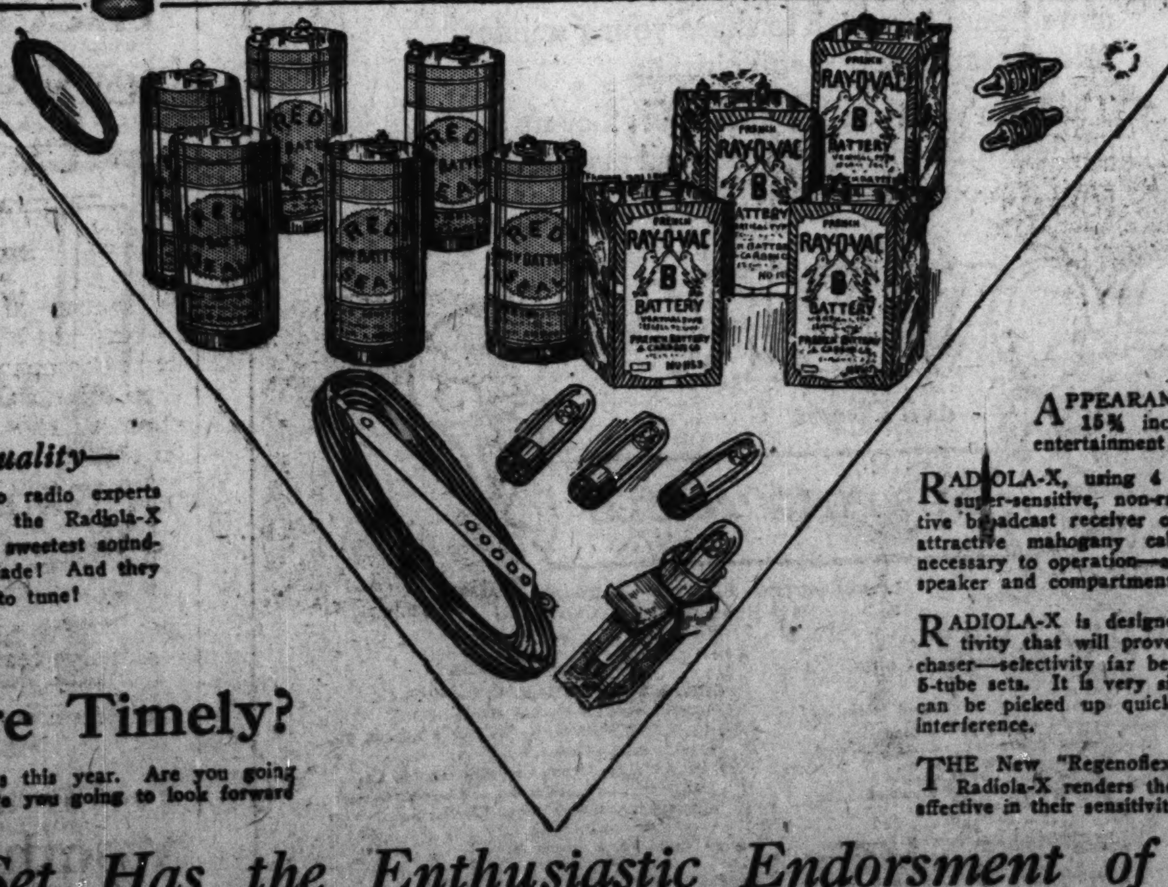
A Loud Speaker of the Highest Tone-Quality Is Built in the Beautiful Mahogany Cabinet



The Immensity of This Sale Will Astound You

CHICAGO has had big radio events before this; some of the best of them we've held here! But without fear of contradiction, we can state that this selling represents a dramatic climax in radio value-giving . . . an event without parallel . . . a sale that towers over all others!

The Radiola-X Sells Itself on Three Important Counts

Efficiency—

The Radiola-X is efficient. It has been constructed along scientific lines, according to sound electrical principles.

Selectivity—

Radiola-X sets possess a rare degree of sensitivity combined with a good quality of selectivity, enabling one to tune easily from station to station.

Tone Quality—

According to radio experts and testers, the Radiola-X sets are the sweetest sounding radios made! And they are so easy to tune!

Could Any Offering Be More Timely?

A long winter lies ahead. Broadcasting stations are planning all kinds of surprises this year. Are you going to allow all your long winter evenings to become tiresome and uninteresting, or are you going to look forward to enjoying them?

ASK anyone who knows radio—they'll tell you that RCA (Radio Corporation of America) is one of the foremost as well as one of the most responsible manufacturers of Radio apparatus, and they control most of the basic patents on radio equipment.

DESCRIPTION

APPEARANCE: The beautiful mahogany cabinet is 19¾ inches high, 21½ inches wide and 15¾ inches deep. It adds a touch of distinction to any room and is a limitless source of entertainment and pleasure.

RADIOLA-X, using 4 Radiotron WD-11's, is a super-sensitive, non-radiating and highly selective broadcast receiver of the antenna type. The attractive mahogany cabinet contains everything necessary to operation—a built-in new type of loud speaker and compartments for the batteries.

RADIOLA-X is designed for a degree of selectivity that will prove a revelation to the purchaser—selectivity far beyond that of the ordinary 5-tube sets. It is very simple to operate. Stations can be picked up quickly without radiating and interference.

THE New "Regenoflex" circuit utilized in the Radiola-X renders the 4 WD-11 Radiotrons as affective in their sensitivity as the usual 5-tube sets.

THE Radiola-X brings in signals with clarity and an absence of "background noise."

TUNING the Radiola-X is a very simple matter—there are only two knobs to manipulate—no instructions are necessary.

ALL batteries and loud speaker are in one cabinet. Excepting the antenna and ground, no external connections remain to be made.

A VOLUME control permits any desired volume of reproduction without "detuning."

RADIOLA-X is furnished with a lock switch so that it may be rendered inoperative to unauthorized persons if so desired.

The Radiola-X Receiving Set Has the Enthusiastic Endorsment of Thousands of Radio Fans

Gingham Attractive for Children's Rooms.

JUST because they are children does not mean they should have no voice in the arrangement and selection of colors in their own rooms. More and more we are beginning to realize the importance of selfexpression in child life with its noteworthy effect in later years. Nearly every child has some favorite color. Why not let this desire be satisfied in the decorations of the child's room?

One little girl I know calls everything she most dearly loves pink. It's always "my pink nightie" or "my pink pussy." However, in actual colors she invariably selects a clear, sunlight yellow. "Pretty pink yellow," she'll say in ecstasy whenever she sees anything in that shade. She truly loves her own little bedroom. The walls are calcimined clear yellow with ivory woodwork. On the floor is a thick black wool chenille rug. All of the furniture is enameled ivory with childish bunches of black eyed Susans, bluebells and red poppies painted in little medallions. There are ivory voile glass curtains. Over draperies and the bed cover are made of bright yellow percale with tiny dots of green and are edged with green rickrack braid.

Another little girl's room has light green walls and French gray woodwork. The furniture is enameled gray, matching the woodwork, with trims of coral color and black. There are braided gray and coral rugs on the black floor. At the windows ruffled white marquisette curtains hang beneath coral rep draperies. There is a boxed cover of the same rep, edged with narrow light green and black upholsterers' fringe on the bed.

In a small boy's room all of the woodwork is painted peacock blue. Around the wall parades a nursery frieze of circus figures placed at just the right height so that little necks need not be craned to get a good look at it. The wall space above the frieze is calcimined a deep buff and is finished below with black oilcloth attached to the wall by means of narrow strips of wood molding. This serves as a blackboard whereon the growing artist may develop his skill in copying the clown and animals of the frieze with colored chalk. What fun the boy and all of his young friends have too, playing circus and doing all of the harmless stunts pictured for them on the wall! On the plain brass bed there is a cover of bright plaid wool. Window curtains are of light buff colored voile with lambrequins in gaily colored cretonne. Bureau, desk, chairs, and toy boxes are painted delft blue.

One of the loveliest children's rooms I have ever seen has built-in cupboards and benches all around the room. Some of the cupboard space is arranged for wardrobes, some for books and the rest for the safe-keeping of all the precious toys. There are twin beds, with a little table between and a chair at each side, a delightful child sized tea table with four little chairs to match, and a pair of little rocking chairs. All of the woodwork is old ivory. The furniture is a pale leaf green. At the windows are ivory net glass curtains with striped leaf green and ivory draperies sprinkled with tiny roses. The same is used for bed covers. In the wall spaces above the built-in benches decorative panels are painted in soft pastel colors showing woodland scenes, with delicate dainty fairies dancing in and out, way off into the distance, beckoning the little ones to follow them in their dreams—such sweet dreams.

Gingham is a most serviceable material for draperies and bed covers in children's rooms. It is so easily laundered, so durable, and inexpensive and comes in such a great variety of colors. In the children's room illustrated today the window curtains and bed covers on the twin four post beds are of blue and white plaid gingham, bound with bands of plain pink. The little chair is upholstered in old blue sateen piped in pink. There is deep mulberry carpeting on the floor. All of the furniture is brown mahogany. Fascinating Mother Goose pictures in narrow white enamel frames form the wall decoration.

A girl in her early teens is proud of the fact that she selected all of the colors and decorations for her bedroom and that mother trusted her taste enough to let her do it! The wall paper she chose is white, with little pink roses all over it. For the twin beds she decided on rose colored rep covers, boxed to fit and edged with ecru and black braid. There are day time covers for the pillows, of flowered chintz. Around the old fashioned dressing table is a flounce of this same chintz with a top cover, under plate glass, of the rose rep. An armchair and a rocker are upholstered in chintz. Rose colored voile curtains at the windows spread a warm glow over the whole room. At night the lights are softened by shades of plaited chintz. A sweet girlish room. No wonder mother trusts her taste.

She'll Say
She Likes Her Hoover Best

You've firmly decided one thing about your wife's gift this year.

It must be something to give her pleasure—pride of ownership—joy in the possessing.

You may be a little surprised, but completely gratified, when you see her expression as The Hoover comes out of its ribbons and wrappings. Back of that joy is something you can't understand. Your wife does—thoroughly!

Countless extra hours for the little diversions of a life worth living . . . drudge-weary hands relieved of most of the many soul-destroying tasks of householdry . . . time for reading . . . more hours in which to shape young minds into charming and useful citizens.

That you've given her the most efficient of all electric cleaners plays no small part in the gratification you'll experience.

The HOOVER
It BEATS . . . as it Sweeps as it Cleans

ANSWERS TO WHAT'S WRONG HERE

1. When visiting do not suggest the entertainment you would enjoy. Allow your hostess to provide it.—H. G.

2. Do not try fancy steps with a dancing partner who dances with you infrequently.—B. F.

3. Do not pry into the private affairs of others by asking their friends questions about them.—Mrs. C.

4. Do not mark passages in books that do not belong to you.—R. G.

5. Express gratitude for good wishes. —M. J.

6. Never eat and run.—R. H.

7. Do not read aloud to others who are reading. They may enjoy their own selections.—K. C.

8. When visiting do not handle ornaments. This advice is for grownups as well as children.—H. H.

THE TRIBUNE will pay $1 for What's Wrong Here suggestions. Is your pet etiquette irritation seeing another eat parsley that belongs to the management, hearing father say, "Buddy, meet-i-wife!" or watching sister's Wednesday-and-Sunday smooth down the patent leather hair with the palm of his hand? The Gift She Dreams Of

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with in-built gasoline motor

BENEATH the Christmas tree stands your MAYTAG! As beautiful to look at—as glisteningly clean as the clothes that come so whitely-washed from its satin-smooth, cast-aluminum tub.

Just chair-space size—compact enough to snugly fit into any corner—yet with twice the washing capacity—twice the speed of other washers.

Custom-bilt, to your size—easily raised or lowered, through leg adjustment, to suit your height and the height of the tubs.

Lift the hinged lid of the self-cleaning, heat-retaining tub. It's all clothes-space—all washing room.

Then wash with it—see how much faster and easier the MAYTAG washes—how clean it washes. How handgently it washes the finest silks and laces. How thoroughly it washes the heavy, bulky things—even greasy, grimy work-clothes and play-clothes.

Phone for a demonstration. Wash with the MAYTAG in your own home—without obligation or expense.

THE MAYTAG COMPANY, Newton, Iowa

9 Outstanding Maytag Features

1—Washes faster. The Gyrafoam Principle creates a more highly energized, turbulent and continuously effective water action. No idle water.

2—Washes cleaner. The Gyrafoam Principle mixes the soap evenly throughout the water, and forces the super-cleansing, soapier washing solution through the meshes of the clothes. No idle suds.

3—Largest hourly capacity in the world—50 lbs. ordinary family wash per hour. Tub holds 21 gallons—4 gallons more than ordinary washers.

4—Most compact washer made—takes floor space only 25 inches square.

5—Cast aluminum tub—can't warp, rust, rot, swell, split nor corrode.

6—Easily adjusted to your height, and height of tubs.

7—Clothes can be put in or taken out while washer is running.

8—Tub cleans itself in thirty seconds.

9—Metal swinging wringer. Low. Swings into 7 positions. Adjusts itself automatically for handkerchiefs or blankets. Automatic drainboard. Instant tension-release. All parts enclosed.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

DRAPED LINE IS TODAY'S DECIDING ONE.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—Are American women changing French styles? Most of the world has the comfortable conviction that Paris controls the feminine dress of the civilized world. There seems, however, to be a difference of opinion. Right here in Paris, where modes are made, they are saying the inspiration of modern styles comes from the young side of the Atlantic. The Paris press is all het up about it.

For instance, M. Marcel Pillon of the Echo de Paris cries out that the Parisienne is adopting American sports, bobbed hair, and, worst of all, our form fitting clothes. We might admit the bobbed hair. We certainly would plead guilty to the sports, but in the matter of clothes the American woman generally accedes to the superiority of the French creators. M. Pillon calls it the "new freedom," and blames it all on the American girl.

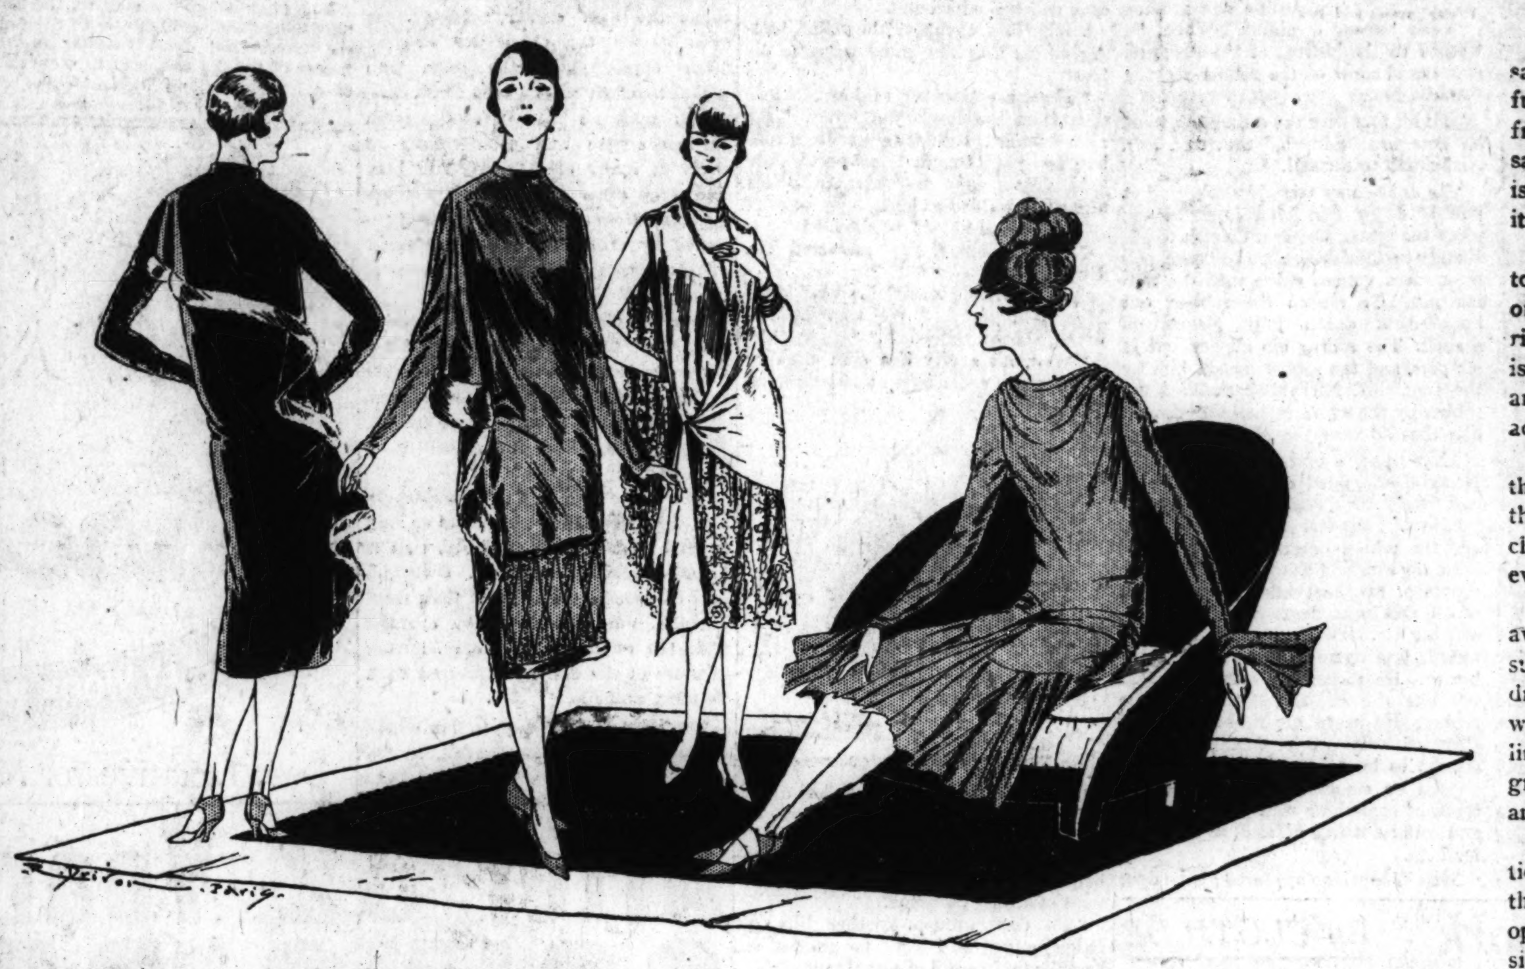
What about the garconne mode? Even the skeptical expert has to admit that it was the American athletic girl who inspired this particular style. It was adopted pretty generally by the Parisienne, whose hips at least are of the old fashioned feminine variety, and for that reason it was more distinctive when worn by the slim American girl. There is a difference.

American buyers tell me they are invariably obliged to discard what they term "purely French" creations, which, they say, do not "go" in America. It is the opinion of the disinterested fashion chronicler that American women influence French styles only in a sweeping and general kind of way. French creators study the American figure and astutely create clothes that suit it best.

M. Poiret comes back from America enthusiastically proclaiming the American girl as "Greek." Jean Patou speaks glowingly of her long, graceful limbs and free, athletic air. The result, after about three seasons is a return of a modernized Greek drapery. But the important fact that these Paris alarmists fail to absorb is that this is all put through a Parisiennizing process before it can become a style. The Parisienne may envy the American woman her freedom, may emulate her stride, but, when it comes down to a question of clothes, she will have none of a style that has not first been alchemized by Paris couturiers.

American women are the same. They go to Paris to get something different. If that somethings happens, by the forethought of Paris couturiers, to have been adapted to American tastes and figures, tant mieux.

A particularly significant case in point is the revival of the draped gown. I believe the apostles of the needle had the American woman in mind when they started draping and that the result is a happy one for the American figure. But I also think that had this come from any less expert source than Paris couturiers it would never have gained its present important vogue among Parisiennes and Americans alike.



Draped back and side flounce trim black velvet dress with bands of red fox. | Veronese green satin, black and gold embroidery and sable fur combined. | White velvet and embroidered lace achieve a dinner frock. | Patou drapes the bodice of his newest frock.

Our first model is an excellent example. Here is the draped line promoted by a Paris couturier, and worn by a French-American comtesse. It may have been made with the long limbed American girl in mind—it suits her perfectly—but its subtle drapery is pure French, and inspired by no less a source than Callot.

This particular model I saw at the Cercle Interallie, at tea, and developed in the new velvet, which is a combination of chiffon with a velvet surface, it seems to me to be international in its fashion message. Most any woman under fifty kilos weight would be improved by its gently undulating line from the left shoulder to the right side hemline. With its simple draped front and long tight sleeves, it is the kind of dress that might be worn by a tall and slender woman of any nationality. It seems, if its origin is American, to be rather a matter for congratulation than for condemnation.

You could say the same thing for our second offering, which comes from the same illustrious source. For the woman who is beginning to get heavy around the shoulders and bust, it is especially effective, and it does nice, slenderizing things to the hips at the same time. This drapery is even effective for the well known bean pole woman. That is its magic, which is a quality peculiarly Parisian in spirit and in manifestation.

This model is developed in this case from veronese green crepe satin, with sleeves that are graciously ample above the elbow, this fullness being designed to cover defects of the arm that is too fat from armpit to elbow, and also the arm that is a mere pair of necessary bones with a little flesh on top to camouflage them. If the line is lengthened by the cascade of satin drapery, edged with sable fur, it is also intended to add grace acceptable to any type of figure.

The small standing collar of self material is a distinctly Parisian touch, and the embroidery that forms the wide band at the bottom of the skirt is so unobtrusive that you are only conscious of an added richness, without any particular arrest of the long line. The pattern is developed in lines of green, gold, and black chain stitchery, elegant and with such quiet simplicity as to be a touch that is only a shadowy addition to the general chic and classic beauty.

The general classification of this model is straight line. It is the addition of the side drapery and the particular construction of the sleeves that changes it. These features give it the spirit of a classic flowing of line that is gaining force as a factor in Paris style every day.

Our third figure shows the draped dress for evening, getting away a little bit from the princesse line about which we have heard such a lot. The bodice and slip are white velvet, and the bodice is draped, surplice fashion, giving a deep V neckline and a graduated waistline that are an effective combination. Whether this set of lines is French or American in inspiration doesn't seem to matter a great deal, since they are so obviously elegant and with the requisite amount of chic.

A full skirt of white lace and a half cape back are given an additional flare by the encrustation of gold and silver thread embroidery that picks out the pattern of the lace and gives a general addition of opulence. There are two long sash ends of white velvet at the right side front, to carry the line from shoulder to hem in one beautiful sweep.

Lastly we show a Jean Patou model, a modern version of the draped dress, created by Mlle. Therese Dorny, in red mousseline, with an unusual draped bodice, and a skirt made full with circular insets that are gathered also for good measure. The neckline is almost pure Greek, and I wonder that the modern Paris alarmist does not arraign the ladies of the golden age for unduly influencing the Paris couturiers in its creation. The sleeves are twentieth century, with a cuff that is solely Patou, and the sash might be laid on to Cleopatra, if one's historical knowledge were sufficiently extensive.

The costume entier is a typical Parisian frock, with a certain freedom and drapery that give occasion for the warning of the French newspaper correspondents. Whether inspired by the Parisienne or American, the draped gown is a factor to be reckoned with in forecasting coming styles.

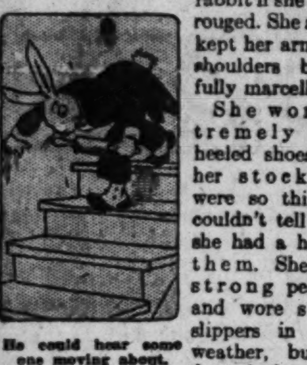
Mr. Nickeldick Calls on Miss Woppelgop - - - - By William Donahey

MISS WOPPELGOP was almost too stylish. She wore as few clothes as any young lady in Puckerbush. She had pretty paws, and her ears were bobbed. She would have been an extremely pretty rabbit if she hadn't rouged. She always kept her arms and shoulders beautifully marcelled.



He could hear some one moving about.

She wore extremely high heeled shoes, and her stockings were so thin she couldn't tell when she had a hole in them. She used strong perfume and wore satin slippers in rainy weather, but all these faults didn't keep Mr. Nickeldick away.

In spite of all her ways, Miss Woppelgop was an interesting person. She was bright and witty and she made delightful fudge. Mr. Nickeldick had a mighty big sweet tooth, so he made it a point to drop in quite often at the Woppelgop home.

"How would you like a itsy bitsy bite of fudge?" giggled Miss Woppelgop one evening when Mr. Nickeldick called.

"I'd like a itsy bigsy bite," answered Mr. Nickeldick, blushing deeply around the roots of his whiskers.

"Well, come on," cried Miss Woppelgop, and she led Mr. Nickeldick out into the kitchen. She tied an apron around his waist, and they set to work making the fudge. Presently they heard a strange noise. It sounded as though some one was moving about in the cellar. They strained their ears towards the cellar door.

Hank Giggin, the thieving mink with the wooden leg, had been seen about the neighborhood a few days before. They both trembled in their aprons.

The marcel in Miss Woppelgop's back unwaved. Mr. Nickeldick lost his taste for fudge, and his tail felt cold.

"What shall we do?" whispered Miss Woppelgop. "Papa has gone off to lodge, and mama is away."

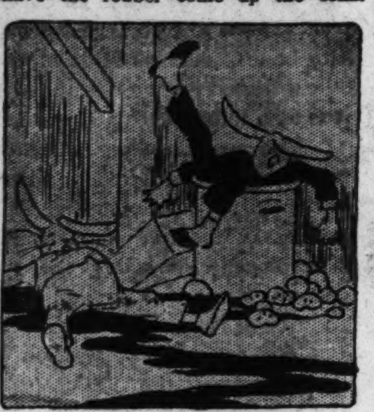
"Have no fear, have no fear," answered Mr. Nickeldick in a trembling voice. "I am here to protect you."

"Hadn't you better go down and see who is in the cellar?" asked Miss Woppelgop.

"I—I—I—I'd r—r—rather have them come up here and see me," answered Mr. Nickeldick, twitching his tail to get it warm.

"You're not afraid, are you?" whispered Miss Woppelgop.

"Why, of course, not. How perfectly ridiculous," answered Mr. Nickeldick with a sickly smile. "I simply thought it would be much neater and cleaner to have the robber come up the cellar stairs than to go poking around for him down in the dark cellar. I might bump into things down cellar, and if I waited at the head of the stairs I could simply hit him on the head with a potato masher when he opened the door."

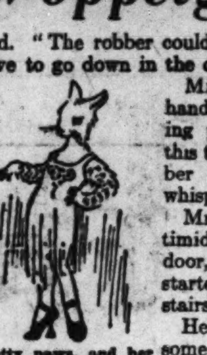


In a crock of sauerkraut.

"He may not come upstairs," said Miss Woppelgop. "He might just be stealing things in the cellar. I will give you a candle, and you can go down and get him easily."

Mr. Nickeldick turned gray around his whiskers. He swallowed a couple of times before he could speak.

"It wouldn't do to take a light," he said. "The robber could see me. I'll have to go down in the dark."



Pretty paws, and her ears bobbed.

Miss Woppelgop handed him a rolling pin. "Take this to hit the robber with," she whispered.

Mr. Nickeldick timidly opened the door, and slowly started down the stairs.

He could hear some one moving about. When he tiptoed to the bottom of the stairs he saw the shadow of the robber moving towards him.

"I'll hit him with the rolling pin when he gets near enough," muttered Mr. Nickeldick to himself.

The cellar was terribly dark, and it was hard for Mr. Nickeldick to tell when the robber was near enough to hit. Finally he thought it time to strike, and he made a vicious swipe with the rolling pin. He missed the robber, but knocked a dozen jelly glasses off a shelf. The rolling pin slipped out of his paw, and the robber caught him by the ears. Mr. Nickeldick grabbed the robber by the whiskers, and they fought like that all over the place.

They upset a barrel of vinegar, Mr. Nickeldick stepped into a pan of milk, and finally they tumbled into a bin of potatoes. They lost hold of each other, and the robber began to throw things.

He hit Mr. Nickeldick in the eye with a potato. Mr. Nickeldick threw a crock of dill pickles at the robber. Something soft hit Mr. Nickeldick in the face—his mouth was open—it tasted like apple butter. He picked up something that felt like a brick, and threw it at the robber. He heard the robber fall, and then all was quiet. Mr. Nickeldick started to back out of the cellar. He slipped on something, and fell into a crock of something wet. He stuck fast and could not free himself, so he called for help.

Miss Woppelgop appeared at the door with a lighted candle, and hurried down the stairs. What a sight the cellar was. Things were upset in all directions.

Mr. Nickeldick was sitting up to his armpits in a crock of sauerkraut.

The robber was lying in a pool of molasses, and Miss Woppelgop let out a fearful scream when she saw him.

"O, papa!" she cried, and threw herself right into the molasses with him. Mr. Nickeldick looked and saw that the supposed robber was none other than Mr. Woppelgop.

Presently Mr. Woppelgop opened his eyes and looked around.

"Where's the robber?" he yelled, tossing off his daughter and leaping to his feet.

"There is no robber," said Mr. Nickeldick from the sauerkraut crock. "It's all a mistake. I mistook you for a robber, and you thought I was one."

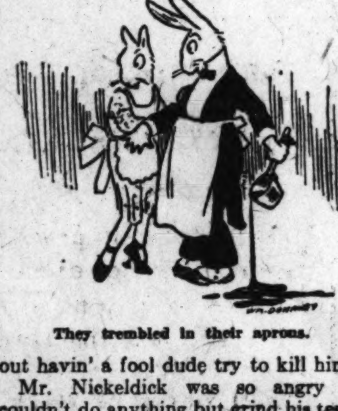
Mr. Woppelgop gave Mr. Nickeldick a nasty, dark brown look.

"Get out of here!" he shouted.

"I can't. I'm stuck," answered Mr. Nickeldick.

"Its a terrible mistake, papa," cried Miss Woppelgop. "We thought you were a robber."

"Well, it's a pity if a man can't go into his own cellar to get an apple without havin' a fool dude try to kill him."

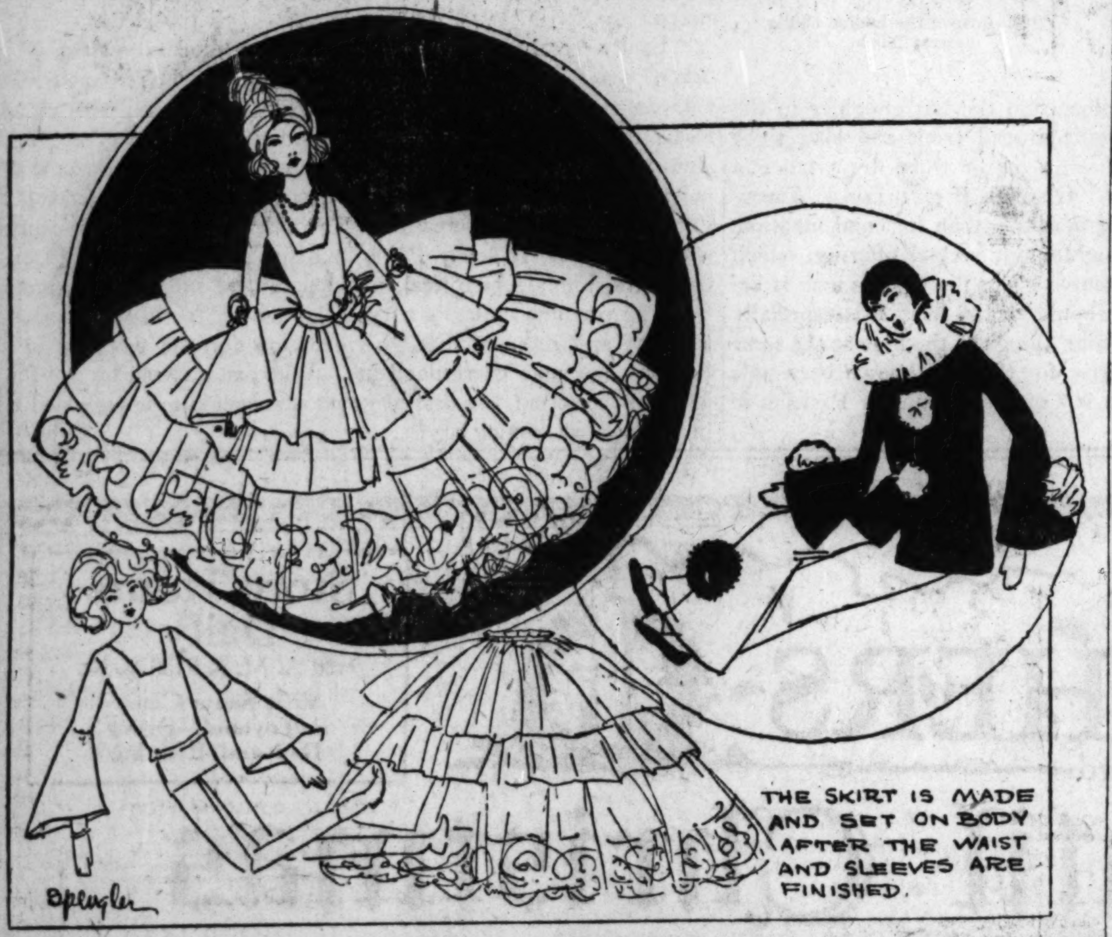


They trembled in their aprons.

Mr. Nickeldick was so angry he couldn't do anything but grind his teeth and wiggle his ears. Miss Woppelgop helped him out of the crock, and he went stamping off home.

"I'll never touch another bite of fudge as long as I live," he growled as he pulled a handful of sauerkraut out of his pants pocket.

Practical and Fancy Needlework By CLOTILDE



Spengler
THE SKIRT IS MADE AND SET ON BODY AFTER THE WAIST AND SLEEVES ARE FINISHED.

DRESSING FRENCH DOLLS.

HAVE you dressed one of those popular French dolls for yourself or as a gift to some friend? One could hardly call them pretty with their length of arms and legs—but when cleverly dressed they are attractive. The stores everywhere show a great variety of them beautifully dressed, either as men or women, but of course it is possible to purchase the undressed doll.

A good deal of ingenuity is shown in the variety of faces and the hair varies as greatly. Some have hair made of yarn, while some have real hair so it should be possible to suit every taste.

Most of us, I fancy, have pieces of lovely silks satins and other materials such as georgette or chiffon, and among these there should be pieces large enough to make a lovely costume.

First of all, the waist should be made. This may be of the skirt material or of something contrasting. But choose lovely gay colors, and use striking combinations. This waist should be a tight fitting, long waisted bodice, and can be made and put on the doll—fastening it securely. Then make whatever lingerie you deem necessary and the lovely long and wide skirt. This may be gathered or circular, and elaborately ruffled or otherwise trimmed.

When finished, she will look lovely reclining gracefully on a pillow or anywhere you choose to place her.

There are shown good looking men dressed in satin clothes, or in some picturesque masquerade costume.

The baby was trying desperately to walk, and after overbalancing a few times managed to take several steps off the blanket.

To Laurie, who was playing nearby with his dog, the mother called, "Please place the baby on to the blanket for me, dearie."

Just then I happened to come across the lawn.

"Why, can your baby sister walk so soon?" I asked.

Laurie replied briefly, "Nop, not yet, she's only practisin." W. F. B.

ISN'T IT ODD?

By William Atherton Du Puy.

ISN'T it odd that the bat's eyes and ears can be sealed up and that it can be turned loose in a room and it will fly about as well as if none of its senses had been interfered with?

It will fly down toward the end of the room, and, being blindfolded, one would naturally expect it to bump into the wall, but it does not. A blindfolded human being would certainly not know when to turn.

But the bat wheels just in time, flies across the room, down the other side, turns the next corner properly. It even avoids the chandelier or any other object about the room into which it might be expected to crash.

You may go farther and stretch strings across this room—many of them at many elevations. You may now drop other strings with weights attached from the ceiling. The blindfolded bat will fly among this maze of strings and never touch one of them.

Now you may go farther with the experiment. Turn a swift flying bluebottle fly loose in this room. The bat is fond of bluebottle flies. It eats them. Still blindfolded, it will pursue this fly around among these strings, will overhaul and capture it.

The bat is able to do these remarkable things because it has lived so long in dark places, such as caves, that it has developed a sixth sense. Owls and cats can see better at night than most animals, but they do so by opening wide the pupils of their eyes, letting in more of the dim light present than do most animals.

The bat is accustomed to live where there may be no light at all, so big pupils would not serve. It has lived in inclosed places of unbroken silences. There it has come to sense air waves and the air pressure by means of its sixth sense.

When the blindfolded bat approaches the wall at the end of your room the delicate outspread membrane of its wings feels the pressure of the air that they beat against it. The faces of bats have queer formations of skin, saucerlike ruffles and convolutions, developed to sense air waves. Some of them have tufts of skin standing up at the tip of the nose, in front of the ears. They detect air waves.

The chandelier, the strings, the buzzing wings of the bluebottle fly all start air waves that these peculiar instruments of the bat can detect. Hence its ability to get along without eyes.

Last Days of the Great Sale
The end is now in sight. Within a short time every last article will be sold and your last chance to buy fine furniture and rugs at half price will be gone. So don't delay longer. If you don't do another thing next week, make it a point to attend this great sale. It will be a long time before you'll have another chance like this. And don't forget, early buyers get the first pick and choice of our remaining stock. Come early and avoid disappointment, for in many cases only a single article of a kind remains. After thirty-two years we have found it necessary to discontinue our furniture and rug department to make room for our fast growing Building Material divisions.

DRINK MORE TEA
by
Sir Charles Higham

I BELIEVE that Tea—either hot or iced—is an ideal drink for American people. It has a stimulating effect yet it cannot harm the health of even the kiddies in the slightest degree. My own little girl of ten years of age has had at least four cups of India Tea per day since she was six. She is full of energy, rosy cheeked and has never had a serious illness.

Tea, if properly made, is a most refreshing drink. It cheers you up; it creates new energy. Try a cup in the afternoon and see what a splendid effect it has on your spirits. It is a great digestive. In England the domestic servants drink from six to ten cups of tea each day. Manual workers like to drink tea. Office clerks and stenographers drink tea every afternoon. It helps to keep them happy and energetic. India Tea is cheap too! One pound will make 250 cups of strong tea if you make it right. This is the correct way:-

Be sure you use India Tea or a blend containing India Tea, and make it in the correct way—as it is served in England. Use an earthenware teapot. Put into it one teaspoonful of India Tea for each cup of tea required. Be sure the water is poured into the teapot the moment it boils. Allow to stand for 5 minutes to infuse. Put a little milk or cream into each cup before serving the tea. It greatly improves the flavour. Then add sugar to taste.

Your retailer or store can supply you with India Tea or blends containing India Tea. He has no difficulty in getting it as practically every wholesale distributor of tea in this district supplies India Tea.

Be sure you use INDIA TEA or a blend containing India Tea

"I DO" EYE OPENERS

What do you know about your husband or wife that you didn't know before you were married? What did marriage teach you about your mate? We'll pay $1 for each "I Do" Eye Opener that is printed. Address I Do Eye Openers, The Tribune, Chicago.

Poor Loser.

I dread it when we sit down to a card game. He is neither a good winner nor a good loser. All is well as long as he is winning, and he overwhelms us with his jubilations. But if he is losing, he is savage and sneers and scoffs at every move that is made. He asks his partner what ever possessed her to make such an idiotic play and gives advice generally around the table until the game is a martyrdom instead of a pleasant pastime.

M. R. L.

Changed His Mind.

In the days of our courtship my husband often remarked that a man should never meddle with any detail of home management, that the home should be the undisputed domain of the wife.

So often did I hear this that I never doubted he was sincere. But if he was, he must have changed his mind, for within two weeks of our wedding day he was dictating about everything.

If I do anything without his knowledge I am criticized unmercifully, and I haven't found out yet whether it is better to submit to his dictation or do as I want to and take his fault-finding.

E. K.

Things Have Changed.

During our courting days my best girl cooked and served some of the smackin best dishes I ever ate. Every night, after returning from the movies or elsewhere, she would bring out the chafing dish and proceed to exhibit her culinary art. And real art it was!

Now, how I love to look back on those days of delicious home cooking! We are married, and everything we eat, with the exception of corn flakes and shredded wheat biscuit, she drags from the delicatessen shop!

J. C.

Rests on Sunday.

Marriage taught me that the old saying is true, "You never know a man until you live with him." Before we were married he spent every Sunday at our house. We had a great deal of company.

He helped mother and me with the dinner and, of course, always wiped the dishes.

But what a change! Now I get Sunday dinner and wash dishes alone. He reads or sleeps. When we were first married I asked him why he didn't help me with the dishes. His look of disgust froze me.

He said when a man worked hard all week he ought to be able to rest Sundays in his own house. As far as I am concerned, he can rest in peace. I doubt if he knows we have a kitchen.

M. P.

Discovered.

I did not know my husband could cook till long after our marriage. Then one holiday, when I happened to be away on a visit and he was at home, he baked some white bread and an apple pie. Both were good, and he then told me quite casually that some time in the past he had "batched it" for a while and had done considerable cooking.

E. R. S.

"Separate Checks."

I married my generous hearted lover, and kept on with my work as stenographer. One evening, a month or so after our marriage, we went to the restaurant for dinner, and when the waiter made out the check, friend husband said, "Separate checks, please;" whereupon he handed me mine and kept his. Needless to say, I paid it!

M. A. C.

Changing a Tire.

Before we were married my sweetheart seemed the most bland and placid person one might ever hope to meet, so it was quite a shock when about two weeks afterward I heard some one indulging in a violent spell of profanity and discovered it was my own dear husband, changing a tire.

A Child's Laxative that Regulates for Weeks

Does the laxative you now give your baby or child promote regularity for weeks and often for months—or must you "purge" and "physic" the little one every little while to keep the system clean, fresh and sweet?

Even a cross, feverish, sick baby or child will love the taste of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and one dose will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even if the child was heretofore chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is neces-

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself the difference between this pleasant, harmless, regulating laxative and the ordinary griping, nauseating "physic."

Domestic Efficiency Bureau
Our home making efficiency [illegible] will help those who haven't all the ready cash to buy at our always plainly marked prices.

(A Business Editorial)

ARE YOU NERVOUS?

The Christmas season will soon be here, shoppers will be admonished to do their buying early, and a few words thereon may be opportune.

The stress and the tenseness that nearly all business men and women have labored under has led to a considerable let-down physically. The "live wires" in almost every organization have been especially active during the last year. This activity has been reflected in nearly every family.

As a matter of fact, with all in Chicago, it should be stated clearly that cheerfulness should be the outstanding feature.

Why not think about it? Slow down a bit. If possible lead a more simple life. If one has an automobile, hold oneself or the chauffeur in check. Be content to arrive a few minutes later. Walk more slowly. If one uses public transportation, wait for the next car or bus rather than rush. Within the limits of your opportunities, live, walk, or ride in the open air as much as possible. Eat sparingly. In shopping, the idea of avoiding the rush is so good as to be elementary.

Human activities have become too swift. The idea of living for today, letting tomorrow care for itself, is overdone. For a while at least, the old saying might well be put into practice:

"It will make no difference in a hundred years."

A Friend in Need

By Sally Joy Brown.

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

SHARING CHRISTMAS JOYS.

I WONDER, girls and boys, how many of you are thinking of Christmas this morning? Most of you, I'm sure. You're planning your gifts for every member of the family and wondering what you'll find when Christmas morning comes! And what fun it is!

But, while you're going to have new toys, new skates, perhaps, books, and perhaps new clothes, wouldn't it be nice to give to some other girl or boy who can't have a Christmas unless you help?

Right now their mothers are trying to tell them not to mind if they don't get anything Christmas—and they're trying not to!

But it's hard, when they see and hear about Christmas all around, and know they can't share in the happiness that most girls and boys will have.

Wouldn't it be splendid to have a wonderful surprise for them when they wake up Christmas morning?

You can do it easily—in the same way that many girls and boys I know are going to do. You have lots of things, I'm sure, that you've outgrown—playthings, a velocipede, or perhaps a sled. Maybe you have some clothing, an overcoat, suit or shoes, dresses or shoes, you've outgrown. Wouldn't these things make a wonderful Christmas surprise for some poor girl or boy—and wouldn't you like to be the one to give it to them? Why not think it over right now—find out what you can spare—and tell me what you can contribute. Then I'll arrange to have you give them where they will make a wonderful Christmas surprise—and when Christmas morning comes, you'll have the happiness of knowing that, with all your fun, some other girl or boy is happy, too, because of you.

Let's start today, and make it the best Christmas ever—for these other little girls and boys, and happiness for ourselves.

Player Rolls to Give.

"I have a number of music rolls for a 66 note player piano which I would be glad to give to any one who can use them, and is able to call for them. S. J. F."

If you have wearied of your own collection of records, and would like to have these, we shall be happy to put you in communication with the donor.

Out of Shoes.

"My husband is working only one or two days a week. We have eight children—boys 8 and 2, and girls 12, 9, 11, 7, 4, and 1, and are having a real struggle to get along. I wonder if some one among your readers have shoes for girls, sizes 1½ or 13? I hate to ask for help, but two of my little girls have been out of school because I cannot afford to buy shoes, but factory work does not pay well, and we have so many bills that must be met. G. F."

Have you a little girl who has more shoes than she needs, or a discarded pair, to send to his mother in need?

Request for Shoes.

"I want to thank you for remembering us with the nice basket at Thanksgiving time. It was a real treat to us. I wonder if I may ask for a pair of shoes for my little boy James. He is 10 years old, and wears size 1 shoes. His soles are so thin that I am afraid he will take cold. I am not making enough to save anything for shoes right now, and will truly appreciate it if you will come to my assistance once more. E. B."

If you have a good heavy pair of shoes for this youngster, we shall be glad to give you his full name and address.

Books to Give.

"I have a number of books which will make decidedly worth while additions to the library of the right person. They include a four volume set of 'Noctes Ambrosconae,' by MacKenzie; Macaulay's 'Lays of Ancient Rome,' several of Ruskin's works, Goethe's 'Faust,' history textbooks, and geographies, as well as some mathematics books. If you can put me in touch with persons really glad to receive these books I shall be grateful to you. "Mrs. P."

An offer like this is sure to find an open shelf waiting in some's one's library.

Offers Radios to Boys.

"I have three radio sets, partly constructed, which I wish to pass on to boys between 14 and 16 years, who are interested in building sets. One of the sets is a four tube, and the other two are five tube. I know they will bring pleasure and valuable experience to some of your high school age friends. A. H. L."

Such an offer does not come every day, so if you are interested, boys—and we don't see how you could possibly help being interested—make written application at once.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

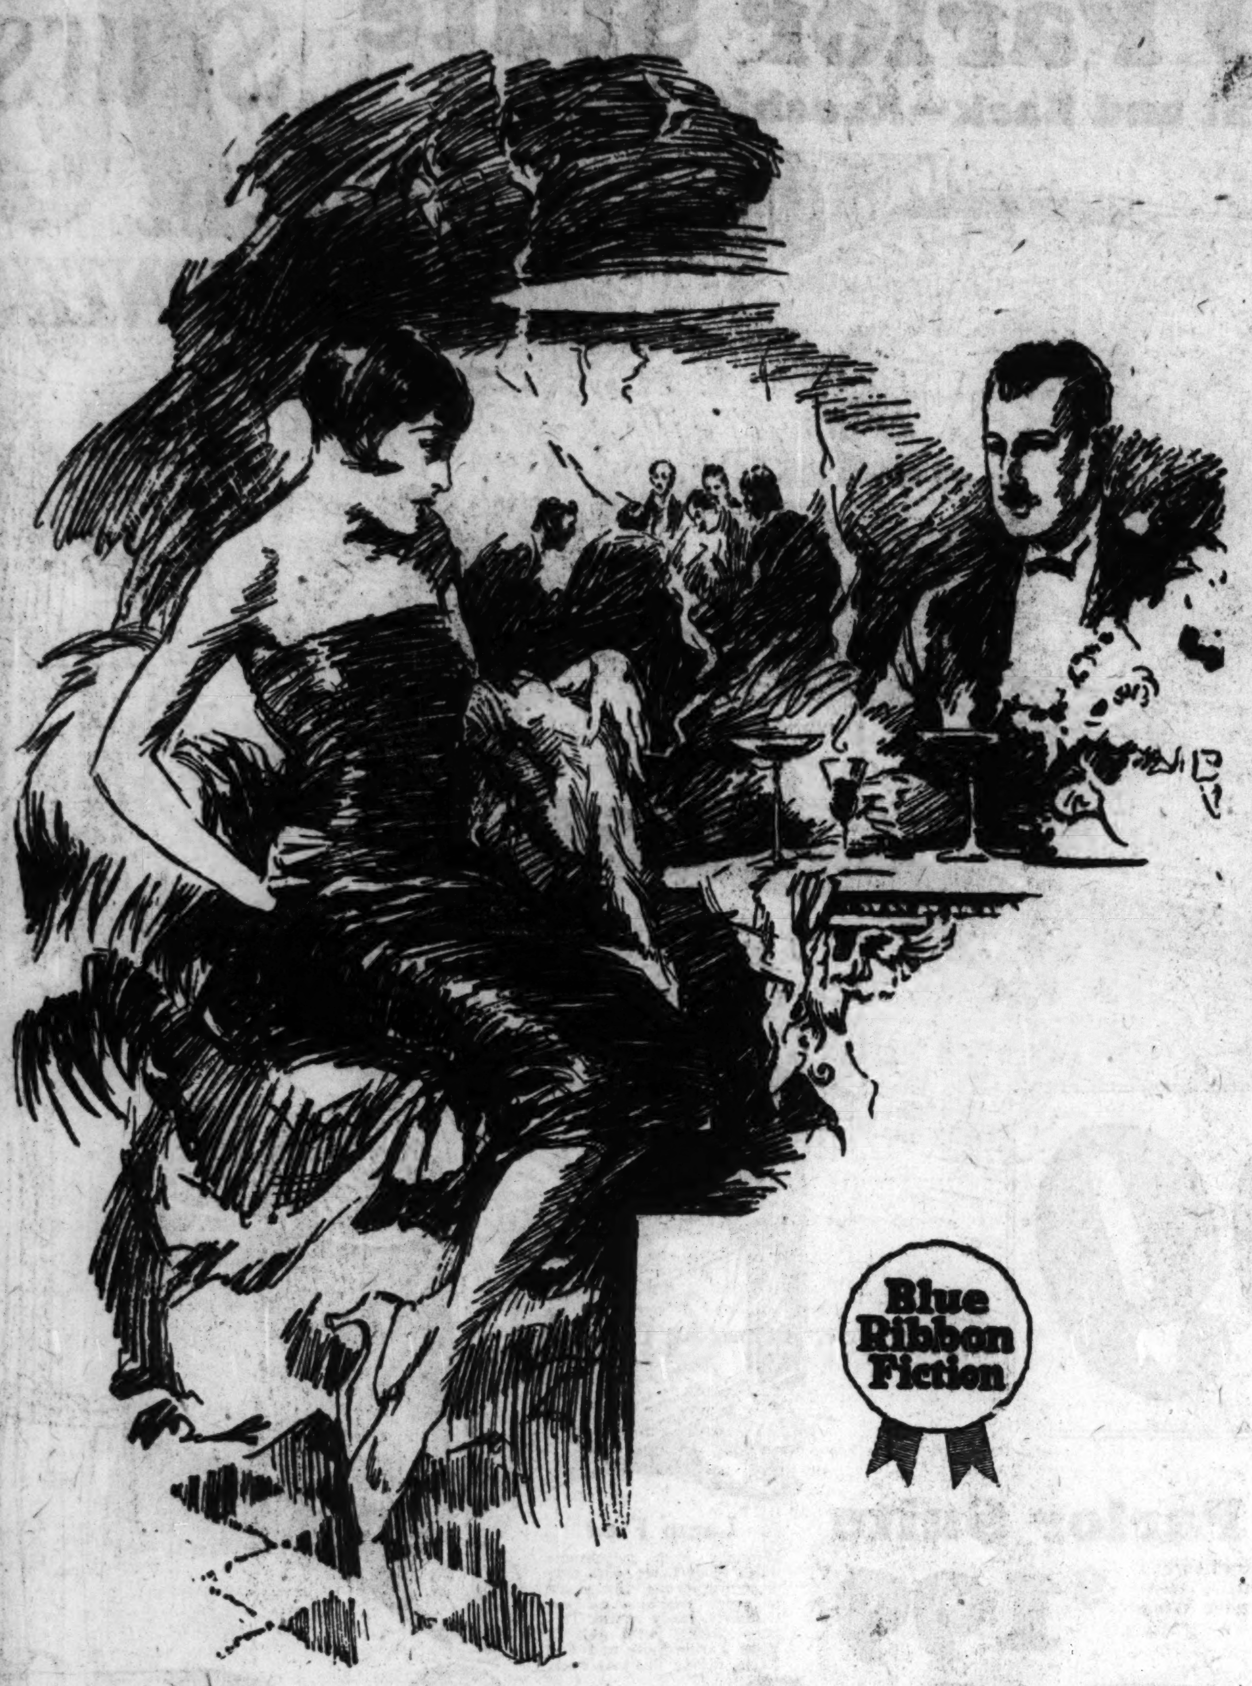
Monte Carlo

By E. Phillips Oppenheim



HERE is the sort of story everyone likes to read. The cleverly-fashioned plot tells of the gay adventures of a lovely young English girl who, by a stroke of good fortune, gets the opportunity to enjoy a two months' vacation at Monte Carlo. In order to be eligible for the trip, she gets her fiance to pose as her brother and together they set forth as the guests of Sir Hargrave Wendever, wealthy Englishman.

Sir Hargrave, told by his physician that he has but six months to live, gives the beautiful Violet Martin and her fiance everything they desire. Their experiences on the Riviera are graphically described by the sweeping pen of Oppenheim who brings the story to a close with an unusual twist that is sure to delight his readers.

E. Phillips Oppenheim has a tremendous following in this country and in Europe. The Tribune has published several of his novels but this is the first of his stories to run as a daily serial.

You will like this new adventure story. It has a clever plot and is very well written. You'll find yourself fascinated from the first installment to the last. Don't fail to begin reading this new Blue Ribbon daily serial starting in tomorrow's issue of

The Chicago Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

INSTALLMENT I.

SIR HARGRAVE WENDEVER, baronet, country gentleman, and for a brief space of time a noted figure in financial circles, lounged against the mantlepiece in the waiting room of a famous Harley street physician on a wet January morning, amusing himself with an old copy of Punch. He was a tall man, inclined to thinness, with a long, lean face bronzed complexion, and gray-blue eyes. The hair around his ears was graying a little; otherwise he scarcely looked his thirty-nine years.

He was alone in the room—a somewhat alien figure in the somber environment, for he had all the appearance of perfect health, and it was obvious that he shared none of the nervous anticipations which so many of Sir James Horridge's patients experienced in that atmosphere of waiting. Nevertheless, it was with an air of content, as though relieved of a brief period of boredom, that he responded to the butler's summons and passed into the consulting room. The physician—a thick set, hard jawed man, with keen eyes and heavy bushy eyebrows—looked up at his entrance, nodded, and pointed to a chair.

"Sit down, Sir Hargrave," he invited. "What can I do for you? You don't look as though there were much wrong with you."

"As a matter of fact, I don't think there is," Wendever replied, making himself comfortable in the patient's chair. "I took a toss a fortnight ago hunting, chose the wrong place in a thick hedge, and came down rather heavily on my left side. I've had a queer spell or two since, and Dudley—our local man—thought I'd better see you."

The physician nodded and stretched out for his stethoscope.

It was about half an hour later when Hargrave Wendever passed through the portals of the house in Harley street and hesitated upon the steps. Then he strolled down the street—the same street, the same houses on either side, the same heavy, gray atmosphere and slight drizzle of rain. Yet he seemed suddenly to be far removed from it all, to have stepped into some foreign land, to be surrounded with objects familiar enough in themselves but belonging to some other part of some one else's life. The sort of shock which he had just received might possibly have happened to any one else, might have been discovered in the pages of fiction, might have flashed across the mind for a moment, conceived by the workings of a freakish imagination, but that it should have happened to him, a strong, well living man in the prime of life, was incomprehensible. He walked mechanically along the broad pavement, and mechanically raised his stick as he came across a wandering taxicab.

Leaning back in the corner he tried to think. His mind, however, for the moment refused to go forward or to dwell upon that brief period of drama from which he had just emerged. It fixed itself obstinately upon those few breathless moments which had immediately preceded his accident. He recalled the throbbing excitement of the run, the inspiring sensation of a fine horse moving under him, the sudden realization that he was a little detached from the rest of the field. The fence ahead was unfamilar, thicker than he cared about, and that stunted oak tree just in his line. Which side should he take it? He made up his mind and afterwards never hesitated, jammed his hat a little farther down upon his head, and went for it without doubt or fear.

Then came the sudden vision of that unexpected widening of the ditch, almost a pithole, on the other side—the crash, and darkness. Yes, it had been a bad fall, but he had suffered worse. He had recovered consciousness within a few minutes, had almost decided to dine with friends that night, but had been dissuaded. And now—what was it the doctor had said of him—of no other man—of him, Hargrave Wendever? The thing was incredible!

That night Hargrave Wendever gave a dinner party to three men, all, as it chanced, old school fellows, at his flat in Berkeley square. On his right sat Philip Gorse, a clergyman of the most modern type, a miracle worker, who a few years previously had taken over a great barnlike church in the heart of London with an occasional congregation of a few score, which he now filled to overflowing three times on Sundays and twice a week. He had two great gifts—earnestness and eloquence—and he was possessed of a nervous, almost passionate hatred of all sorts of humbug. He was a fair, rather delicate looking man, clean shaven with a lined face, a sensitive mouth, and clear gray eyes. He wore ordinary dinner clothes, cut in the most correct fashion, and his tempered enjoyment of his host's hospitality left nothing to be desired.

On the latter's other side sat Lord Edward Pellingham, a young man who had played at diplomacy and dabbled in politics, but was best known in his world by reason of a delightful disposition and a philosophy which entailed a placid acceptance of the good things which fall to the lot of even the fourth son of a duke with an adequate allowance.

The concluding member of the party was John Marston—pink and white and prosperous, with flaxen hair brushed close to his head, a partner in the firm of stock brokers which Hargrave's great-grandfather had founded and in which, for a short time, Hargrave himself had been a partner.

They had been speaking of Philip Gorse's amazing success, and during a pause in the conversation, Hargrave asked him a question.

"Tell me, Philip," he inquired, "did you ever try to account for the amazing hold you seem to have acquired over those astonishing congregations of yours? Of course, we all know you have the gift of speech—we realized that at Oxford—but there must be something more than that in it. Sheer eloquence only appeals to people who have imagination themselves, but they tell me your congregations are drawn chiefly from the most difficult of all classes—small shopkeepers and clerks, and girls who work for their living in the city."

"I don't think it's a matter of eloquence at all," Phillip Gorse declared thoughtfully. "There are other men preaching today to whom I couldn't hold a candle. I don't think it's even earnestness alone. Earnestness, perhaps, coupled with sympathy. You see," he went on, peeling a peach, "I am all the time trying to live in thought with my people. The series of sermons I am just finishing is a series which I call 'Life's Day by Day Problems.'"

"Pretty difficult to tackle some of them," Lord Edward, who had never been called upon to face a problem in his life, sighed.

"And the smaller they are the more perplexing sometimes," Marston observed.

"A man's financial difficulties, for instance," Gorse continued, "the difficulty of making both ends meet and putting a bit on one side on the average salary. That's a subject they can all understand. Trouble with the wife—a little fed up with too much housekeeping and too little pleasure, perhaps. That's another. Discipline of children who are growing up and have ideas of their own. You've no notion how many perfectly everyday problems there are with which a man in moderate circumstances can find himself confronted during the week."

There was a little murmur of appreciation. Hargrave's lips parted for a moment in what seemed to be a smile—a smile, however, which still contained more than a trace of bitterness.

"I will present you with a problem which occurred to me today," he said. "You three represent entirely different points of view. You shall each give me your ideas. Supposing that for some reason or other a man like any one of us four, prosperous, healthy, in good odor with the world, are suddenly faced with the termination of his career, in say six or eight months' time, how should you, supposing you were that man, spend the interval?"

Movies Music
H. L. Mencken

Johann Strauss

By H. L. Mencken.

THE centenary of Johann Strauss the Younger, which fell on Oct. 25, seems to have passed almost unnoticed in the republic. In Berlin and in Vienna it was celebrated with imposing ceremonies, and all the German radio stations put "Wein, Weib und Gesang" and "Rosen aus dem Süden" on the air. Why wasn't it done in the United States? Was the pestilence of jazz to blame—or the scarcity of sound beer? I incline to answer No. 2. Any music is difficult on well water, but the waltz is a sheer impossibility. "Mann Lebt Nur Einmal" would be as dreadful in a dry town as a Sousa march at a hanging.

For the essence of a Viennese waltz, and especially of a Strauss waltz, is merriment, good humor, happiness, Gemütlichkeit. It reflects brilliantly the spirits of a people who are eternally gay, war or no war. Sad music, to be sure, has been written in Vienna—but chiefly by foreigners: Haydn, who was a Croat; Beethoven, whose pap had been a sour Rhine wine; Brahms, who came from the bleak Baltic coast. I come up on Schubert—but all rules go to pot when he appears. As for Strauss, he was a 100 per cent Viennese, and could no more be sad than he could be indignant. The waltz wandered into the minor keys in Paris, in the hands of the Alsatian Jew, Waldteufel. At home old Johann kept it in golden major, and so did young Johann after him.

The two, taking it from Schubert and the folk, lifted it to imperial splendor. No other dance form, not even the minuet, has ever brought forth more gaudy and lovely music. And none other has preserved so perfectly the divine beeriness of the peasant dance. The best of the Strauss waltzes were written for the most stilted and ceremonious court in Europe. But in every one of them, great and little, there remains the beery, expansive flavor of the village green. Even the stately "Kaiser" waltz, with its preliminary heel clicks and saber rattling, is soon swinging jocosely to the measures of the rustic Springtanz.

It is a curious, melancholy, and gruesome fact that Johann Strauss II. was brought up to the banking business. His father planned that he should be what, in our time is called a bond salesman. What asses fathers are! This one was himself a great master of the waltz, and yet he believed he could save all three of his sons from its lascivious allurements. Young Johann was dedicated to investment banking, Josef to architecture, and Eduard, the baby, to the law. The old man died on Sept. 25, 1849. On Sept. 26 all three were writing waltzes.

Johann was the best of the trio. In fact, he was the best composer who ever wrote waltzes for dancing, and one of the really first rate musicians of his time. He took the waltz as his father left it, and gradually built it up into a form almost symphonic. He developed the introduction, which had been little more than an opening fanfare, into a complex and beautiful thing, and he elaborated the coda until it began to demand every resource of the composer's art, including even counterpoint. And into the waltz itself he threw such superb melodic riches, so vast a rhythmic inventiveness, and so adept a mastery of instrumentation that the effect was often downright overwhelming.

The Strauss waltzes, indeed, have not been sufficiently studied. That other Strauss, Richard, knows what is in them, you may be sure, for the first act of "Der Rosenkavalier" proves it, but the musical pedants and pedagogues have kept aloof. What they miss! Consider, for example, the astonishing skill with which Johann manages his progression of keys—the inevitable air which he always gets into his choice. And the immense ingenuity with which he gets variety into his bass—so monotonous in Waldteufel, and even in Lanner and Gung'l. And the endless resourcefulness which marks his orchestration—never formal and obvious for an instant, but always with some new quirk in it, some fresh and charming beauty. And his codas—how simple they are, and yet how ravishing!

Johann certainly did not blush unseen. He was an important figure at the Austrian court, and when he passed necks were craned as if at an ambassador. He traveled widely and was received with honor everywhere. His waltzes swept the world. His operettas, following them, offered formidable rivalry to the pieces of Gilbert and Sullivan. He was plastered with orders like an Otto Kahn. He took in, in his time, a great deal of money and left his wives well provided for.

More, he had the respect and a little of the envy of all his musical contemporaries. Wagner delighted in his waltzes and so did Brahms. Brahms once gave the score of one of them to a fair admirer with the inscription, "Leider nicht von Johannes Brahms"—Unfortunately not by Johannes Brahms. Coming from so reserved a man, it was a compliment indeed; nor was it mere politeness, for Brahms had written plenty of waltzes himself, and knew that it was not so easy as it looked. The lesser fish followed the whales. There was never any clash of debate over Strauss. It was unanimously agreed that he was first rate. His field was not wide, but within that field he was the unchallenged master.

He became, in the end, the dean of a sort of college of waltz writers, centering at Vienna. The waltz, as he had brought it up to perfection, became the standard ballroom dance of the civilized world, and, though it had to meet rivals constantly, it held its own for two generations, and even now, despite the murrain of jazz, it threatens to come back once more. Disciples of great skill began to appear in the Straussian wake—Ziehrer, with the beautiful "Weiner Blut," Lincke with "Ach, Frühling, Wie Bist Du So Schön," and many another. But old Johann never lost his primacy. Down to the day of his death in 1899 he was primus inter pares. Vienna wept oceans of beery tears into his grave. A great Viennese—perhaps the ultimate flower of old Vienna—was gone.

Strauss wrote nearly 400 waltzes, with not a bad one among them. He wrote, too, a multitude of galops, polkas, schottisches, mazurkas, and other such dances of his time. The "Pizzicato Polka," when I was a boy, was banged out on every piano in Christendom. He also wrote ballets, marches, and even a couple of tone poems for orchestra. But next to his waltzes his most important compositions were his operettas. The jazz bilge has engulfed them, but pleasantly they remain in memory: "Die Fledermaus," "The Gypsy Baron," "The Merry War," "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief." They began in 1871 and ran on until 1899, a whole generation.

Into these operettas the man threw all of his genius, and so they remain unrivaled to this day. For example, "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief." All that remains of it now is the waltz, "Roses from the South"—and what a waltz!—but it is really a work of immense merit—dramatic, full of humor, and stuffed to the brim with enchanting tunes. And so with "Die Fledermaus," which also survives mainly as a waltz: the incomparable "Du und Du." And so, again, with "The Gypsy Baron." It was the father of "The Merry Widow"—a mother, I fear, of an inferior house. Lehar, Leo Fall, Oscar Straus—they were all the pupils of old Johann. And Sullivan, too, learned something from him. And Victor Herbert learned a great deal more.

Now he is dead a hundred years. But surely not forgotten, despite shadows over the moon here and there. The man who makes lovely tunes has the laugh on Father Time. Oblivion never quite fetches him. He goes out of fashion now and then, but he always returns. There was a time when even Bach seemed to be forgotten. What a joke! Bach will last as long as human beings are born with ears; in the end, perhaps, he will be all that the world remembers of the eighteenth century. And Strauss, I suspect, will keep on bobbing up in the memory of the race so long as men have legs and can leap in 3-4 time—at all events, so long as there is good malt liquor anywhere on earth. Prohibition, inconceivable, may eventually kill him; in a dry universe he would be contra bonos mores.

GOOD morning!

The one and only Theda Bara is back! Virtuous—but still vamping. One refers to her rôle, of course.

Remember the days when you first knew Theda? The days when the only information the most persistent of us could worm from her press agents was that she was born in Egypt, loved snakes, studied occultism, used scent mined from the tomb of an empress, and was under contract with her producers not to appear in public without wearing seven veils? And how, in answer to queries regarding her marital status—married or single—sultry word drifted back from the offices of these same producers that she had been often a sweetheart but never a bride? Kings, said they, had hurled the crown jewels at her feet and committed hari-kari in many languages when she refused to accept them; soldiers had won wars endeavoring to die for her sake, and as for the tired business man—oo la la and O, mamma—but NO man had ever led her to the altar.

THEDA BARA
in the title rôle of
"Unchastened Woman."

Entered the dawn of a new day. Somebody found an honest man who came right out and blurted the news that Miss Bara had given her first wriggle in Cincinnati. Almost immediately after she became the bride of Charles Brabin, director—and almost immediately after THAT came the shattering announcement that Mrs. Brabin would henceforth devote herself to the joys and duties of the hearthside.

She kept her word. For many moons we have inquired, "WHAT has become of Theda Bara?"; and echo has answered, "WHAT?"

* *

Time Has Taken No Toll.

And now she's back—same old Theda! Just exactly the same old Theda, as far as I can see. The years have not given—nor have they taken away. Yesterday, today, and, I reckon, forever—the same old Theda.

Only—instead of slyly stealing some other woman's husband from her arms with velvet paw she devotes her attentions to recouping her own particular Mr. Knollys from the determined siren clutches of his corresponding secretary. We could be real cute and clever and spell the corresponding with one "r" if we wanted to, but we don't want to.

"The Unchastened Woman" is from the old play by Louis K. Anstacher—the same, I think, in which Emily Stevens appeared on the stage.

Miss Bara is seen as Mrs. Hubert Knollys. Mr. Knollys is a rich New York business man with a blonde secretary who cuddles.

When you meet Mrs. Knollys she is picturesquely propped up in bed telling the smiling family doctor how happy, O, how vurr', VURR' happy she is over the news he has just given her. He departs, and she spends a few ecstatic moments enthusing to herself, pinning a picture of "Mother and Child" to the head of the bed and lifting prayerful eyes to heaven.

She leaps to her feet then and, donning a fetching negligee, tiptoes downstairs to tell Mr. Knollys the joyful tidings. But, ah, what sight greets her anguished eyes!

Mr. Knollys is busy with his secretary, and their busyness has nothing to do with business.

Mrs. Knollys totters, but does not fall. She gazes tragically for a moment at what she sees, then falters up the stairs again. Her bed reached, a quivering hand tears down the picture stuck there. She tumbles in—and when Mr. Knollys appears to kiss her good night she is, to all appearances, sleeping. (You know she's not, though.)

Whereupon the Plot Begins to Thicken.

During the silent watches she makes up her mind what to do.

She will get even with Mr. Knollys.

Next morning she telephones her Aunt Susan, who, subtitle tells you, has "the manners of a lady and the soul of a servant," and tells auntie to get ready to sail that afternoon for Europe.

"Yes, dear," agrees auntie, patricianally, and servile-ly gets busy.

Mr. Knollys sends his secretary home with the tickets, he being too busy to bring them himself. Mrs. Knollys presents the young lady with a simple little "almost new" gown. Secretary doesn't understand. Mrs. Knollys doesn't mean she shall. Deep Mrs. Knollys!

She goes abroad with Aunt Susan—and over there much is accomplished. A son and heir is born to the house of Knollys, and Mrs. Knollys becomes the "toast of Venice."

Striking scenes are here flashed, showing Mrs. Knollys on balconies, smiling mysteriously and tossing flowers and kisses to the male population of Europe gathered in gondolas and stretching imploring arms for her favors.

So it is in Europe.

In New York, Mr. Knollys is becoming bored. The cuddly blonde has proved insipid, and he has much time on his hands that he hasn't an idea what to do with. So he sits around in golf knickers looking ennuied—(Is that a good word? I think not)—and eagerly scans a London scandal sheet to see if there may be something in it to whet his declining interest in life.

There is. It is about Mrs. Knollys being such a toast, and there is quite enough information of various kinds to make any husband sit up. Not a word, though, about the son and heir. No, Mrs. Knollys is, as we have told you before, a deep woman.

Detectives and What Not.

She comes home. Who do you suppose is a customs inspector? The cuddly blonde—employed no more by Mr. Knollys. And does the blonde make the wife shell out her bags and off her clothes? She does. But does she find anything? She doesn't. And, O, the miaows that fly back and forth as the inspection is under way!

Sneaking babe and nurse in the back way, Mrs. Knollys appears before her husband and is cool and mysterious and smokes a cigaret in a long holder.

Not so much later the swains from Europe begin to flutter over and toast her some more. One is an architect who lives right in New York. While being perfectly virtuous, Mrs. Knollys almost wrecks THAT happy home.

Mr. Knollys, not knowing in the least what it's all about, goes gnashing his teeth through several reels, believing the worst. And the architect's dowdy wife and the cuddly blonde conspire to lay Mrs. Knollys low.

One night with detectives and what not—and Mr. Knollys, whom they have persuaded to enter into their scheme—they burst upon the privacy of Mrs. Knollys, who, in negligee, refuses to let them into one room of her suite.

"Leave us!" commands the husband, sternly. "I WILL SETTLE THIS."

They leave.

"THERE IS A MAN IN THAT ROOM!" shouts Mr. Knollys to Mrs. Knollys.

"There is," says Mrs. Knollys. She moves from the door. He bursts in, and THERE——

Is Hubert Knollys Jr., standing right up on his two little

Plea to Mr. Stock for Something New

By Edward Moore.

"SIR: May not a veteran concertgoer, on his own behalf and that of others in the same musical boat, enlist sympathy and ask for a few words of advice?

"The case, briefly put, is this: We are tired of Mr. Stock's programs, and find the concerts dull and stale. As a conductor, Mr. Stock is in every way admirable. He is scholarly, vigorous, vital, and efficient. He never fails to deliver the goods, and is at home in every kind of music. But his programs lack variety. He overlooks hundreds of interesting and meritorious compositions, and gives the same sort of stuff over and over again. After twenty-five years of faithful attendance and much pleasure, the thrills are few and far between. What is one to do? Give up the season tickets?

SAMUEL DUSHKIN,
soloist with Chicago
Symphony orchestra.
[Kesslere Photo.]

"Some have done this, but with regret and misgivings. Would it be possible for Mr. Stock to give a special series of concerts for the benefit of the veterans? Would not such a series attract many lovers of music not in the veteran class? Imagine a series advertised as free from all hackneyed, overfamiliar, threadbare compositions and devoted to novelties and revivals of long neglected music!

"Mr. Stock is so energetic, democratic, and indefatigable that this suggestion, offered in good faith, may appeal to him.

MUSIC LOVER."

The music department is decidedly of the opinion that if it had offered these remarks on its own motion, it would have been promptly in receipt of numerous letters pointing out in clear terms, with much carrying power, that this is destructive criticism. Only one thing could be more destructive: to comment in terms not quite lavish enough on the performance of some artist who had friends in the audience.

However, since "Music Lover," who is not an anonymous correspondent, feels something is wrong with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, it might be a good plan to clarify the issues by pointing out just what it is that Mr. Stock is doing.

In the thirty-four and a fraction seasons that the orchestra has been in operation in Chicago, it has presented something like 350 composers and something like 1,500 of their works to the public.

Naturally only a small section of the 1,500 can be played in any one season. Last year, if my count is correct, there were sixty-five composers and 126 compositions on the twenty-eight programs of the subscription series. Twenty of these were novelties, bearing by-lines, signifying first performance in Chicago, first performance in the United States, or first performance anywhere.

This last statement gives something of a key to the situation, and indicates that it is not quite as desperate as "Music Lover's" letter would indicate. I doubt whether any major orchestra in the United States played twenty novelties last season—of course, this does not apply to newly organized orchestras, where everything played is a novelty to their respective communities.

Mr. Stock is as indefatigable as "Music Lover" states, and indefatigable in looking for new music. Most of his spare time during the working season, and a good part of his summer vacations, he devotes to reading scores. Once this season I chanced to be present after a Friday afternoon concert when several persons came in to congratulate him on a particularly brilliant performance of the César Franck Symphony.

And his comment was, "Yes, that is a fine composition, but it does not get us anywhere. I want something new."

It would seem that the trouble is not with Mr. Stock as much as it is with composers. They are not turning out good works fast enough. For, while Mr. Stock looks at new compositions as fast as they come his way, he applies his own test to them. They must indicate some degree of merit.

As to the revivals of long neglected works, of which "Music Lover" speaks, the music department desires to counter with the suggestion that "Music Lover" submit a list of the pieces he would like to hear. One thing, however, should be borne in mind. It is that there is always the chance of music which once caused pleasure and thrills not doing so now. After a few seasons of music have flowed from under Mr. Stock's baton, a revival might even sound thin, faded in color, dated, flat, stale, and unprofitable.

And then again, it may not. There is always the chance.

Symphony Concerts This Week.

Wherefore this would seem to be about as good a time as any to turn to what Mr. Stock intends to do this week. Five concerts are planned for Orchestra hall.

The first of these will be the second concert of the new Tuesday afternoon series, when there will be presented a program devoted entirely to French composers. It includes the Military March from Saint-Saëns' "Algerienne" Suite, Chausson's Symphony, the Dukas Scherzo, "L'Apprenti Sorcier," the Prelude to Debussy's "L'Apres-Midi d'un Fauns," and selections from Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust."

On Wednesday evening the orchestra will be heard in one of its series of "pops." The program includes the Overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" by Glinka, Tschaikowsky's Symphony No. 5, "Bizet's Suite, "L'Arlesienne" No. 2 (with harp and flute obbligatos by Messrs. Tramonti and Quensel), Godard's "Canconetta," Chaminade's "The Sedan Chair," and three Slavonic Dances, Opus 46, by Dvorak.

On Thursday afternoon will be given the second program of Series B of the children's concerts. The works to be played and explained by Mr. Stock are: The Overture to D'Albert's "The Improvisator," the Andante and Menuetto from Mozart's Symphony in E Flat Major, Saint-Saëns' "The Spinning Wheel of Omphale," and Chabrier's "Spanish Rhapsody." The song will be "America the Beautiful."

On Friday afternoon and Saturday evening the regular weekly subscription concerts will be given. These will enlist the services of Samuel Dushkin, violinist, as soloist. Mr. Dushkin, a native of Russian Poland, now claiming America as his home, made his American debut last winter and on Jan. 1 was heard in a recital at Orchestra hall. He will be heard in the Boccherini Concerto for Violin and Ravel's "Tzigane" for violin and orchestra. The orchestral numbers which Mr. Stock has placed upon the program are: Tambourin from Gretry's "Cephale et Procris," Beethoven's Symphony No. 6, Castaldi's Symphonic Poem, "Marsyas," and Sibelius' Tone Poem, "Finlandia." The violin solos and the Castaldi piece are new at these concerts.

Arrival of Mary Garden.

Looking ahead at the week of opera, there is word of the season's first appearance of Mary Garden, which usually classifies as good news; also of the season's last appearance of Luella Melius, which does not.

Miss Garden is billed for two appearances this week, "Werther" on Tuesday night, and "Carmen" on Saturday afternoon.

Miss Melius, former Chicagoan, has had a success that needed neither definition nor apology in the two performances she has given here. In "Rigoletto" and "Traviata" she displayed the velvety voice which is the ideal tone quality for American ears and a perfection of control, evenness, and purity that gave new delight to coloratura singing. Her third and final appearance will be as Rosina in "The Barber of Seville" on Wednesday night, wherein she will be associated with Charles Hackett, Giacomo Rimini, Vittorio Trevisan, and Virgilio Lazzari; in other words, the same first class cast that sang it on a former occasion this season.

Most of the time that Miss Garden does not put in on other performances will be devoted to the preparation of the coming "Resurrection," Franco Alfano's opera which is

JANE COWL COMES OUT OF CLASSICS

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Since Jane Cowl went in for the classics she has not played many of those more common but more interesting rôles with with which her first fame was associated. None at all that has excited her friends to the old time demonstrations.

But she is back this week with a fine Jane Cowl part—that of a handsome but unlucky lady in love who is emboldened to tell the world and her husband's relatives what she thinks of them when they press her too far.

JANE COWL,
in Noel Coward's play,
"Easy Virtue."

The play is called "Easy Virtue," which is an easy title for so many plays I wonder it has not been used before. Noel Coward wrote it a year or more ago—probably before he wrote "The Vortex"; though if it had not been for "The Vortex" it is altogether likely he would have had some trouble selling it.

But it is good, sound drama so long as it has a binding sympathy to hold it together. Cowl supplies the sympathy. She is Larita, a divorcee, cruising the Riviera and behaving herself when she meets young John Whittaker and takes a fancy to him. He is a nice lad, but shallow. Centuries younger than Larita in worldly wisdom and probably several years younger in fact.

When he takes Larita home she meets those conditions familiar to the introduction of flashing ladies whose pasts have been slightly piped with red in English country homes. John's family treats her with a cold tolerance and hints ever so politely that she has snared their darling when he was not looking.

She makes some friends, but not many, and in three months she knows the game is finished. Or should be. By that time the Whittakers have learned of certain previously concealed episodes mixed up with her divorce, and turn on her.

They might have known what would happen to them. Her defense is emotionally restrained but perfect. She lashes them until they bleed with indignation but are helpless to answer.

Then she dresses herself in her flashiest gown and all her jewels for a sort of swan song appearance at a party they give. After which she passes on and leaves John to his first love, a neighbor girl who can give him a good match at tennis.

There were six or eight calls for Miss Cowl after her best scene. The support is practically all English and all but perfect. It includes Mabel Terry and Halliwell Hobbs.

Tyler Brings In "The School for Scandal."

Some excitement was stirred up Sunday night when George Tyler brought his troupe of "School for Scandal" players from the road and gave a one night invitation performance at the Knickerbocker theater.

He did this, said George, because he wanted his friends to see the production and also because he could not afford to pay the 60 day rentals the theaters are demanding.

But I suspect the most compelling urge was one of vanity. Mr. Tyler is proud of his troupe. Also he has found a new actress he is eager the world should know and he wanted Broadway's indorsement of her. Her name is May Collins. She has had some experience in pictures, but she was practically unknown to the theater until she played the small part of Julia in "The Rivals" with Mrs. Fiske last season.

She is a pretty girl, well composed and of good address. The fact that she is a mile or two or three from being a great Lady Teazle at this stage of her development is not to be counted against her. She has youth and the opportunity, and they are, as you may have heard, of vast help.

It was the veterans of the cast who pleased the party audience most. Which was reasonable. They gave much the best performances. O. P. Heggie is the Sir Peter of this revival, a spare Sir Peter, and given not at all to the familiar blustering. Just a nice, dignified, befuddled papa married to a potential hoyden.

Henrietta Crosman, who will carry the blessings of many of us young fellows to her days of retirement with her, is the Mrs. Candour, and you can pretty well imagine what happens to the society actress, Julia Hoyt, trying to play opposite her as Mrs. Sneerwell.

Ben Field is the roaring old Oliver, and very hearty at it, and Jefferson De Angelis adds a touch to Moses Sheridan never thought of, but one that tickles today's crowd. There are two or three young players that do themselves credit. Neil Martin, who was playing Adolescence a season or so ago, puts Backbite decidedly in line with the principals; Young Anthony Kemble-Cooper, the youngest of his old actor family, is an amusing Trip, and Mary Hone, who was a pretty amateur not long ago, is also actress enough to give Maria considerable character.

The audience was distinguished and dressy; also largely professional. Ethel Barrymore and Walter Hampden had a box. So did Laurette Taylor. And the floor was sprinkled with enough Lady Teazles, past and future, to inspire a book. Rose Coghlan was among them, and she goes merrily back to the Wallack days when, she admits, acting was acting.

Owen Davis Is a Poor Prophet.

Owen Davis knows a good play when he writes one, or thinks he does, but ever so often he finds out that there are a lot of people who disagree with him. I remember meeting him one day when he was all enthusiasm for a lumber country melodrama he had just finished.

"If this isn't a good piece, then I can't write one," said Owen. "At least it's the best I ever did."

I think that one lasted three weeks and was brutally ripped apart by the reviewers.

Last season when he brought "The Nervous Wreck" to the Harris offices, it being his first out and out farce, he was red and apologetic, but, from the road experiences, hopeful. Harris, however, was panicky and decided to take his name off the program for fear his reputation would be hurt by the play's failure. "The Nervous Wreck," as you know, ran a year.

This fall Davis was working on two of the four or five plays he wrote last year, helping to get them ready for New York. The first, "Easy Come, Easy Go," written for Kruger, he rather sniffed at. It was, he said, all right of its kind, but——

The other, also a farce called "Beware of Widows," he liked a lot. Liked its invention, its humors, its story, its characters. And when Madge Kennedy was hired to play it he was sure that here, at least, was a hit.

Well, "Easy Come, Easy Go" jumped into an immediate popularity with Kruger, and is still going well. And "Beware of Widows" just barely got by as a flimsy bit of fluff made fashionable by the lovable Madge. Which probably goes to prove something or other.

But there is no doubt about the Kennedy charm. She is the darling of the comediennes of her class. As the widow of this farce, she is pursuing a lost love who is sure he wants nothing more to do with her. Once she had jilted him, and once with him is enough.

But Madge is not at all of that mind. She jilted him because he had flirted with another girl and refused to explain. And she got married herself just to show him. But as soon as she was widowed she came back in search for him.

Twice before she had found him engaged and had broken up those matches. Now she hunts him out on a houseboat and, when all else fails, manages to have the boat set adrift with only herself and her desired mate left on board.

There are comedy scenes that go well. In one of them Madge approaches within a lisp or two of her tipsy scene in "Fair and Warmer." Another time, during the wreck, she

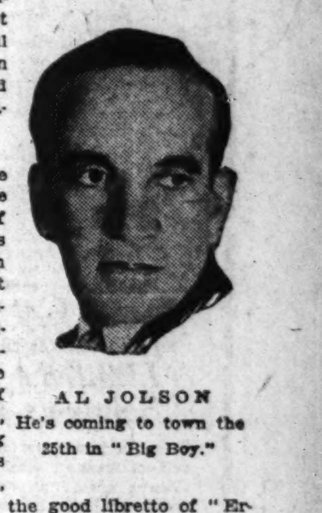
This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

THIS column, when it shall have been uttered to its foot, will be the sort of thing a fellow lays together when, not having anything much to write about, he urges himself into the belief that nobody cares to read anything much about the drama until after shopping's finished. . . . So, let's to it!

The play-reporter for the Washington Post avers that "Salvage," produced by Mr. Belasco, goes farther into the matter of forthright and salty language than any other play yet shown in the Capital. It's all about tough sailors; and it is in this that the producer has started Miss Geneviève Tobin on her career as one of his protégées.



AL JOLSON
He's coming to town the 25th in "Big Boy."

"Cherry-Blossoms" is the title of a new operetta; and with the announcement comes a gasp of wonder from the New-York Times that the theater has succeeded in surviving all these years without an operetta named "Cherry-Blossoms." It is strange; and I'm willing to lay a small wager that somebody has used or has tried to use the title. . . . The author of the "book" is Edward A. Paulton, who has been writing and helping to write plays since he and his father, the late Harry Paulton, turned "Frédéric Lemaitre" into the good libretto of "Erminie."

"Solid Ivory," another attempt to stage baseball, is among the junk down in New-York. . . . Nobody has written a successful piece about the game; and I doubt that anybody ever will. I said something in kind once before in THE TRIBUNE, and was reproved in letters calling my attention to a work named "The Umpire"; but that, an old La Salle piece, wasn't about baseball, and was about a character in baseball. Charles H. Hoyt failed when he tried to stage baseball in "A Runaway Colt," wherein the late Adrian Anson was the principal actor. George M. Cohan, a cleverer man than Hoyt, failed when he tried it in "Fifty Miles from Boston." Ring Lardner started to write a play about baseball back in 1912, and has been writing it ever since, although once he was so nearly certain that he had written it that the late Bert Williams was bulletined to star in it. . . .

And, if I were asked for a reason why baseball-plays don't come off, it would be that there is more of dramatic excitement in any game of baseball than there could possibly be in any play; even a bad game has an element of suspense not to be captured by any drama that has been planned and rehearsed. . . . Of course, dramatic excitement is not necessarily æsthetic excitement; and I'm not submitting that there is anything æsthetic in a game of baseball.

Good Stuff!

> . . . I think the modernizers of Shaksperean performance misconceive the nature of the theater. They have, perhaps, been misled by the theories of relativity. They have followed Signor Pirandello too far down the path of dramatic speculation. It is legitimate to examine all the processes of theatrical illusion, and even to consider them metaphysically, as they are considered in "Six Persons in Search of an Author." If a new light can be shed upon "Hamlet" by removing the tragedy from its traditional and often-tawdry setting, well and good. But let us remember that an absolute conception of character is established in every true actor's performance, and an absolute poetic conception is set up by every true utterance of a speech. These are final values; and to question their finality is to abandon our standards of taste. . . .
> Still, we should be grateful to the modernists for their experiment. It is well to be convinced by proof positive that changing times and fashions cannot alter the permanence of words in the theater. Dramatic poetry must remain dramatic poetry, whatever befall. It cannot be turned into slang at a producer's bidding. There is but one way of speaking it—the way of passion and understanding; not a score of ways depending on the movement of the centuries. The historian of our own dramatic age may record (not without irony) that the last effort of naturalism was an attempt to make Shakspere naturalistic. It has palpably failed; and in the failure we have an inverted proof that naturalism is passing away.—Ashley Dukes in the Theater Arts Monthly for December.

Miscellany.

Miss Barrymore and Mr. Hampden are preparing to perform in "The Merchant of Venice": their revival of "Hamlet" in New-York was taken off last night, after a fair run. . . . Added to the long list of the season's failures there are "Applesauce," "Paid," "Just Beyond," and, after being taken from the Village and put into competition with the Broadway shows, "Outside Looking In." "Laff That Off!" also is listed among the failures; but its projectors are still trying to make a go of it. . . . "Applesauce," one of Chicago's inexplicable successes, is to be toured: the others are now at the bottom of the Hudson.

When Mr. Mencken writes about music, he gives to me a kick that I never know when he writes about other things. The reason is, doubtless, that he knows what he's writing about when he writes about music. He writes about it today, on the other side of the page—about the music of the Strauss who was greatest of all the men of that name who have composed, whether their name ends in one s or two. What Mr. Mencken says about Richard Strauss is perfectly true: you can prove it the next time "Der Rosenkavalier" is sung in Congress Street. It was in one of Strauss' operettas I first heard the most famous and most popular of his waltzes, "The Blue Danube": the operetta was called "Indigo"; and I don't know if the waltz was part of the score or simply interpolated. . . . Now-and-then, somebody writes in to ask Mr. Moore or to ask me why, in what is said to be a renaissance of operetta, the managers don't revive the Strauss pieces. I doubt if they would revive successfully unless equipped with new libretti: the plays to which Strauss wrote were all right for the taste and the sentiment of his day; but the best of them would seem thin and juvenile now. That is, in English.

Lew Fields is to try it again without tunes and girls and such: he is making ready in something named "Money-Business," by Oscar M. Carter. . . . Mr. Belasco is so far gone in preparation of "My Lulu Belle" for Miss Ulric that he announces that Henry Hull will have the principal man's part.

A bulletin from the office of Charles Frohman explains that it has instituted in New-York the Gallery Club, whose members are young women residing in the Martha Washington Hotel, the Vassar Club, the Y. W. C. A., Allerton House, or a like establishment: with their respectability and their decorum thus indicated, they may obtain for Frohman attractions seats in the gallery at half-price. . . . And, turning to the ads in the New-York papers, I note that the Frohman attractions current are "Easy Virtue" and "Naughty Cinderella." Mr. Mantle tells today about "Easy Virtue"; and "Naughty Cinderella" is from the French by Avery Hopwood.

To the Theatre-Going Public of Chicago:

The SELWYN THEATRE is dark this week. It will remain dark until Christmas night. The whole concentration at the SELWYN THEATRE, starting tomorrow, will be directed toward caring for MAIL ORDERS for the engagement of Edgar Selwyn's play, "DANCING MOTHERS." The ticket sale will not open until Monday, Dec. 21, at 9 A. M. Indications are that it will be the biggest Christmas to New Year's week in the history of Chicago theatres. The reason for this is that there will be an over-abundant array of worthy attractions to pick from, one of which will be "DANCING MOTHERS." The SELWYN THEATRE believes in boosting a good show even if it is playing at another theatre because thereby OUR CITY OF CHICAGO is boosted theatrically. You've read much lately about theatre patrons being disappointed about getting good seats. If those who would complain when such a hit as "DANCING MOTHERS" approaches the Chicago engagement, will adhere to this MAIL ORDER campaign, it is a certainty that everybody will be happy. For instance, Mr. Gus S. Ullman, care of Bloomenthal & Frost, 549 South Wells street, is going to be happy. He is going to be surprised to see his name in this advertisement. The point is that here is a theatre patron who writes in with a mail order for New Year's Eve. In his mail Tuesday morning Mr. Ullman will receive the six tickets he asked for and they will be in Row A, center.

There are many other similar cases such as Mr. Ullman's, whose name was picked at random to explain the situation.

How to Get Good Seats for the 6 Big Performances During the First Week of the Limited 4 Weeks' Engagement of Edgar Selwyn's Play, "Dancing Mothers."

Chaplin's at Work on Circus Movie

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Charlie Chaplin is again focusing Hollywood's interest for several separate reasons, all of them enlivening to those who admire the floppy footed one.

Reason one is that he is making a new picture dealing with circus life. The circus tents on Charlie's lots loom high above the studio walls to the intense absorption of youngsters in the neighborhood of Sunset and Labrea, where the studio is. The youngsters can't understand why their mothers won't take them to the circus, for certainly to the onlooker all the appurtenances of the sawdust ring are there.

Charlie himself may be discovered inside the studio in gymnasium shoes and track suit, hard at work practicing tight rope walking. The rope is twenty feet up, and if he is feeling jovial Charlie will show you a number of steps and balances. An occasional loss of balance will bring the comedian down twenty feet, but his good humor stands it these days, for, enter reason number two, Charlie is again looking forward to being a parent.

Joseph M. Schenck, who holds the managerial strings of United Artists and accordingly is Charlie's partner, was dining with Chaplin in a Boulevard cafe this week and Charlie, as is his wont, became enthusiastic and gesticulatory over his plans for his new picture.

Charlie promised Schenck, "I'll finish it in two months."

Schenck with his business instinct answered, "But you've outlined a good year's work."

Charlie insisted that he'd be done in six months, whereupon the pair laid a wager of $5,000 to that effect. Now if Charlie wins the wager Schenck still is much money ahead, for he will have economized many times that $5,000.

Tricks of Comedy.

Another comedian busy these winter days of sunshine and 70 degree weather is Charlie Chase, on the Hal Roach lot. Discovered Friday he was sitting in a bathtub full of water bathing "Buddy," the bulldog, who didn't seem to be enjoying it any more than Chase was, for Charlie's best swimming style was hampered by the butler's suit he was wearing.

Responding to invitation, Charlie came out of the tub and carefully wringing out his coat tails sat down in a canvas chair. Buddy the pup grabbed the bath towel and rolled over and over rapidly on it, achieving a perfect turkish rub.

Leo McCarey and Chase started to reminisce concerning the days when Chase was a director for a certain comedy company of which two of the chief executives were thinking and unthinking jesters named Abe and Julius.

On one occasion Julius was instituting a drastic reduction of studio expenses. The Chase company was making a trick comedy which involved the use of a good deal of wire.

Wires are often used in pictures to move objects and gain effects, being completely invisible in the picture.

Every morning Julius' property man would take two rolls of wire from the storeroom to be used for the gags that day and every evening Julius would see the "rushes" (the pictures shot that day).

After three weeks Julius could contain himself no longer and maneuvering the property man into a corner said, "Listen, I ain't saying you're stealing. But every day for three weeks two rolls of wire and not one picture do I see vit' one foot of wire in it."

Grandeur à la De Mille.

Cecil B. De Mille is knee deep in the midst of grandeur, making Konrad Bercovici's story, "The Volga Boatman," showing the splendor and squalor of pre-war Russia. On one set showing a castle were several enormous Russian stoves fifteen feet in diameter and towering twenty-five feet high, shaped roughly like cones.

They are elaborately built of ornamental tile, with decorated doors, and are surmounted by gorgeous pieces of porcelain. They resemble some Chinese or Hindu shrine more than what we know as stoves, thus carrying out the Muscovite idea of "nothing ornamental that is not useful; nothing useful that is not ornamental."

The enormous size of the stoves is to give a heating surface as large as possible.

Another set which shows a peasant home is equally interesting. In this the large stove is of brick, surrounded by shelves and surmounted by a large flat space on which the people sleep in severe weather. The floor is of dirt and the rough cupboards decorated in primitive flower paintings which charm by their bold coloring.

Mr. De Mille himself turned from his directorial duties long enough to count "rich man, poor man" on the buttons of one of the girls on the set and warned her to be careful when the rhyme predicted a thief for her future mate. De Mille himself has a pet superstition about the number thirteen. His last five pictures have been begun on the 13th of the month. His own birthday and that of his mother are on the 13th.

Grauman Guest of Honor.

Thursday night will go into the annals of Hollywood as a red letter occasion, for the Wampas held a large dinner at the Biltmore hotel in honor of Sid Grauman, at which all Hollywood's male notables, numbering around 500, were present.

Grauman is owner of the Egyptian theater, but, more than that, is one of Hollywood's colorful characters, wearing his bushy hair in a long, gracefully parted mop. He was seated between two striped barber poles which kept revolving and shedding their tricolored rays all evening on the scene of festivity. Large barber shears formed the favors, and all members of the Wampas wore grass wigs to honor Mr. Grauman's famous male bob.

Two of Hollywood's favorite toastmasters alternated with their witticisms—Maj. Rupert Hughes and Fred [illegible]. Donald Ogden Stewart, Lew Cody, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Jesse Lasky, Cecil De Mille, Marcus Loew, Charlie Chaplin, Fred Beetson, Joe Jackson, Wedgewood Noel of the Actors' Equity, William Beaudine, Edwards Davis, and others lampooned, cracked, and scintillated through the evening. Skits, songs, and poems done especially for the occasion alternately jolted and boosted the guest of honor.

Lillian Gish's new story to follow "La Bohème" has been decided upon; Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter." Those who liked Miss Gish in "Way Down East" will see many similar high moments of pathos and emotion.

STILL WITH MR. ZIEGFELD

MISS EDNA LEEDOM

SHE was here a year ago in the seventeenth Ziegfeld Follies, whereto she was a wise and amusing contributor of two cynical, cold, and witty monologues. . . . Miss Leedom is to return next Sunday night in the eighteenth Ziegfeld Follies; and, if therein she be as good as she was last year, she will provide a definite reason for regarding the eighteenth as a good show.

New Playbills in Chicago

"An Heir-at-Large" in the Kenneth Sawyer Goodman Memorial Theater.—A dramatization by Mrs. Aldis of the romance by Mr. McCutcheon which was published serially in THE TRIBUNE. Information from the theater (where the play is to be acted by the "professional wing" of the institution) is that the staging will be, in its pictorial aspect, a black-and-white experiment "in the spirit of the cartoon." . . . Opening Thursday night.

"Just Married" in the Château Theater.—The farce by Miss Anne Nichols and Miss Adelaide Mathews which had a run in the La Salle in 1922 and has recently been in revival in the Central: to be acted by the resident company of the Château. . . . Opening tomorrow night.

NEXT SUNDAY NIGHT:

The Ziegfeld Follies in the Illinois.—Eighteenth issue of an annual first staged in 1907. This issue was staged in New-York in the Summer of last year; and it has been through two or three extra "editions" since first made known there. W. C. Fields, Miss Edna Leedom, Miss Ray Dooley, Johnnie Dooley, and many another will be in it.

Miss Bertha Kalich in "Magda" in the Princess.—Sudermann's play, which had high vogue in the late 'Nineties, in revival by the well-known Yiddish actress,—who, however, is again using the English language. Claude King has the important rôle of Magda's stern father. . . . The theater is closed this week.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 25:

"Dancing Mothers" in the Selwyn.—A piece about wayward children and a selfish husband by Edward Goulding and Edgar Selwyn that ran through last season in New-York. The management as yet provides no information as to the cast. . . . The theater is closed until the 25th.

Al Jolson in "Big Boy" in the Apollo.—The popular singing-actor in a piece said to be different in nearly all ways from the conveyances in which he has hitherto visited Chicago.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 27:

Fiske O'Hara in "Jack o' Hearts" in the Central.—Return of a performer who has his following in a revival of one of his old vehicles.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 3:

"Hello, Lola!" in the La Salle.—The song-and-dance version of the play based on Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen."

"Nobody's Wife" in the Playhouse.—A farce by Mark Swan, with James Spottswood and Miss Elizabeth Risdon.

MONDAY, JANUARY 11:

George Arliss in "Old English" in the Adelphi.—The well-liked English actor in a piece by John Galsworthy in which he is reported to be immensely successful in other cities.

MONDAY, JANUARY 18:

"The School for Scandal" in the Blackstone.—Sheridan's comedy as revived by George C. Tyler, with Miss Henrietta Crosman, Jefferson de Angelis, Miss May Collins, Miss Julia Hoyt, and O. P. Heggie.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 1:

"The Harem" in the Blackstone.—A comic piece from the Hungarian of Vadja with William Courtney.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 2:

"The Miracle" in the Auditorium.—Mr. Gest's production by Max Reinhardt of the famous pantomime.

News-Notes of the Stage

These are the new plays bulletined for the week in the New-York theaters:

"Lysistrata," by Aristophanes, with the Moscow Art Theater Musical Studio, making its first appearance in America.

"Merchants of Glory," from the French of Marcel Pagnol and Paul Nivoix, with Lee Baker, Miss Helen Westley, and Miss Betty Linley. . . . This is a venture by the Theater Guild.

"Open House," by Samuel Ruskin Goulding, with Miss Helen MacKellar, Ramsey Wallace, and Bela Lugosi. . . . Mr. Lugosi is an Hungarian who acted in Chicago last year in "The Werewolf."

"So, That's That!" by Joseph Byron Totten, with Charles Gilpin, the Negro actor seen here some years ago in the title-part of "The Emperor Jones."

"Chivalry," by William Hurlbut, with Miss Violet Heming, Edmund Breese, Miss Grace Valentine, Miss Frances Neilson, and Miss Doris Rankin.

"The Dybbuk," from the Yiddish of S. Ansky, with Albert Carroll, Ian MacLaren, and Miss Mary Ellis. . . . The play has been acted in Yiddish in New-York. . . . Miss Ellis is the former singer of the Metropolitan Opera who originated the title-part of "Rose-Marie," and dropped out of the cast last season with the explanation that her doctor had instructed her to rest for at least a year. Mr. Carroll is a young actor who has shown immense cleverness as a mimic in the second and third issues of the Grand-Street Follies.

"The Wise-Crackers," by Gilbert Seldes, with a little-theater group in interpretation. . . . Mr. Seldes is a sort of a drama-critic whose stuff appears in the periodicals.

And classifying as a novelty from the viewpoint of the reviewers is a revival this week of "The Taming of the Shrew," with Miss Estelle Winwood, Rollo Peters, Miss Ann Harding, Horace Graham, and Ernest Cossart.

London's play-censor has been fussing about "The Lullaby," in which Miss Florence Reed acted here without encouragement early last year. However, the play is on over there, and seems to be a flivver. . . . Miss Margaret Bannerman has Miss Reed's part.

Theda Bara Leaves Home for the Films

By Mae Tinee.

legs in his own little crib, gurgling, I think, "Da da!"

Well, I guess that settles Mr. Knollys' hash! I guess Mrs. Knollys hasn't done such a bad job of putting "the other woman" and her husband just where she wants them! Deep, deep Mrs. Knollys!

That's the story. There's more in the picture than I would ever have time or room to tell about.

Regarding action, photography, direction, and all the rest, my typewriter is closed. I will NOT be unkind to Theda Bara's "come back" picture.

See you tomorrow!

VOICE OF THE FAN

Right to the Point.

Dear Miss Tinée: I don't read all of your writeups, for I'm not interested in some films, but of those I have read some have been good, some bad, and some—well, I'm sure you weren't sincere, but I never hated one more than your writeup about "Little Annie Rooney."

Perhaps the closeups didn't show the face of a child, but I can't understand how you can think that detracts from the picture. Who expects to see the face of a child on a woman over thirty? And no one sees Mary's films without realizing this and looking for it. And even if the audience expected the face of a twelve year old they couldn't have been half so disillusioned as I have been by most actors and actresses.

I didn't see your writeup on "So Big," but if you thought Colleen Moore as good as some others did you probably gave her a nice writeup. Yet her acting was disgusting, overdone, and as far from being true to life as possible. It was the most hideous, poorly acted film I had seen in years. Then when a real actress—for Mary and her husband are two of the half dozen real actors on the screen—comes along you give her a writeup like that!

When I read it I couldn't help wondering if you knew real acting when you saw it. The only thing I could admire about it was your courage, for it must take courage to write that kind of a review on one of filmdom's most popular stars.

SIXTEEN.

[Editor's note: Ah, courage—DOT'S vot I got! See—I print your letter!]

As Per Request.

Dear Mae Tinée: By the good luck of having saved the review of a picture, I have just seen a wonderful movie, "Soul Fire." I think it is one of the best pictures I have ever seen It was such a good, clean picture. Of course, all Barthelmess' pictures are, but the story was different and the acting, scenery, and directing all helped to make it so.

Richard Barthelmess did not act his part, he lived it, and the whole supporting cast was fine. The woman who took the part of Princess Rhea was splendid, and Bessie Love deserves special mention. She is so sweet and fragile and she took her part just splendidly.

But to make this picture so fine it took careful directing, and Mr. Robertson did a fine job.

I guess this is enough for my first letter, and I do hope you'll print it, as I've never had one printed before.

KENNY.

[Editor's note—Printed as per request. Gwine write some mo'?]

In Plain Words.

Dear Critic: You said a short time ago that you had never seen much in Mae Murray—and you were right—but you said that in "The Merry Widow," you were obliged to change your opinion and you are wrong!

On this I went to see this rotten play and the attempt on the part of two roué princes to assault—a rough spoken, thin to emaciation, strong slinging street drab. What do you see to advocate in such an assault—by a man in his shirt sleeves and loose trousers?

This is a rotten exhibition of a rotten nobility in a rotten country! No actress—or screen exhibitor—of any remote, distant, long forgotten decency would act either the dancer or the prince.

You owe an apology to the whole human race.

H. H.

[Editor's note: It has been said that to the pure all things are rotten, and, also, that one usually finds what one is looking for.]

Gargle Aspirin for Tonsilitis or Sore Throat

A harmless and effective gargle is to dissolve two "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in four tablespoonfuls of water, and gargle throat thoroughly. Repeat in two hours if necessary. Just try this.

Be sure you use only the genuine Bayer Aspirin, marked with the Bayer Cross, which can be had in tin boxes of twelve tablets for few cents.

Plea to Mr. Stock for Something New

By Edward Moore.

based on the Tolstoi novel of the same name. It has never been given in this country, though having the record of performances at Turin, Milan's La Scala, Brussels, Paris, Berlin, Madrid, and a dozen other European cities.

Alfano, Neapolitan by birth, and the director of the Liceo Musicale Rossini at Bologna, is a famous man in Italy at present, chiefly because he was the unanimous choice of every one concerned to complete the score of Puccini's "Turandot," left unfinished by that composer's death.

Miss Garden, after hearing his opera at Nice last summer, insisted upon singing in it. After expressing herself in ecstatic terms concerning the work, she wrote of the composer himself:

"He is very simple, sincere, and, therefore, very big! He has never had a real chance until now—and to think it is coming to him through the Chicago Civic opera is giving me great joy—perhaps the greatest joy I have had in many years.

"His 'Resurrection' is gorgeous—the music is too wonderful, and we will make it a success! The story of 'Resurrection' is superb and so well known in America that it will have an especial appeal. You would be surprised to know the number of opera houses throughout the world that are bidding for the work since the managements have learned that the Chicago company has secured it."

So every one is happy except, perhaps, Alfano himself. I met him in Milan last summer, and he expressed himself at some length about how much more satisfied he would have been if the Chicago company had taken one of his other works—"Sakuntala," for example. He said, among other things, that "Resurrection" was his first opera, written a long time ago, and while he would hardly think of it as one of the follies of youth, he was certain he had learned much and written much better music since then.

Sometimes the choice of an operatic repertoire has interesting sidelights.

Where Authorities Disagree.

George Gershwin played his new piano concerto with Walter Damrosch's New York Symphony orchestra the other night, and seems to have created about as wide a critical diversity as it is possible for one man to do with one piece. Here are the deadly parallels. Samuel Chotzinoff, in the World, says this:

"The truth is that George Gershwin is a genius—perhaps the only one of all the younger men who are trying with might and main to express the modern spirit. You may cite his deficiencies as evidenced by his latest work—they are obvious. He is not a master of form; he is audaciously irresponsible and writes down, apparently, whatever he feels indiscriminately. He lacks depth, and it seems that because of his lifelong environment he never will be able to rid himself of jazz, no matter how he sublimates it.

"But all his shortcomings are nothing in the face of the one thing he alone of all those writing the music of today possesses. He alone actually expresses us. He is the present, with all its audacity, impertinence, its feverish delight in its motion, its lapses into rhythmically exotic melancholy. He writes without the smallest hint of self-consciousness and with unabashed delight in the stridency, the gaucheries, the joy and excitement of life as it is lived right here and now. But that is not all, since every jazz band in every night club in America does just this.

"And here is where his genius comes in, for George Gershwin is an instinctive artist who has that talent for the right manipulation of the crude material he starts out with that a lifelong study of form and harmony and counterpoint and fugue never can give to one who is not born with it."

While Lawrence Gilman in the Herald-Tribune obliges with this:

"We wanted to hear a young American composer talking confidently, bravely, irrepressively of himself. Instead we heard a facile and anxiously conformist youth talking the stale platitudes of the symphonic concert hall—retailing exhausted clichés which were none too fresh when Rachmaninoff used them; remembering Tchaikovsky; remembering, discreetly, Stravinsky; not scrupling to relapse upon harmonic banalities, offering us the common coin of sentimental melody; using the old jazz meters in the familiar ways; and scoring all this for an orchestra singularly blatant, thick, and inexpressive."

Mr. Gershwin will relieve some feverish curiosity if he will bring his concerto to Chicago.

Mostly About Music.

Nathan Ascher, president of the Ascher Brothers' chain of movie theaters, rises to inquire why it would not be a good plan to commemorate the names of some of the opera people who are alive and doing good work in Chicago today. He answers his own question by saying it would, and that the Hackett, after Charles of that name, will be opened shortly. Then will come the Polacco, the Mason, and the Raisa, and there are hints of Johnson and the Atwell.

Florida seems to be handling music on about the same basis as it does its real estate values. Coral Gables is to take over Paul Whiteman and his orchestra for five weeks, beginning Feb. 18, and that engagement will run into an important sum of money, as music events go. Miami has contracted to take the Chicago Civic Opera company for a season of nine days on its spring tour and to build a theater for it. If for any reason the theater should not be finished, they will pay the opera company its guaranty anyway, and that runs into another important sum.

The first public performance of Felix Borowski's "Overture to a Pantomime" will be given by Eric De Lamarter's symphony orchestra as one of the novelties on the holiday program of the Chicago Allied Arts on Dec. 27 and 29 at the Studebaker. Other musical numbers will include the "Valse Triste," by Sibelius, and the "Serenade and Waltz," by d'Indy.

For the ballet offerings, the fantastic pantomime, "Mandragora," or "The Magic Remedy," with Ruth Page, premiere danseuse, as Columbine, and Adolph Bolm as Harlequin, will be repeated, together with the grotesque "Bal des Marionettes," with music by Erik Satie. The Bolm Ballet Intime will present for the first time this season the "Litle Circus," with an elaborate decor by Nicholas Remisoff, and the "Sniegorutchka" carnival as originally staged for the Chicago Civic opera.

"Pierrot Lunaire," Arnold Schoenberg's song cycle for small orchestra and mezzo-soprano, will be given its premiere at the third and final programs at the Kenneth Sawyer Goodman theater on Jan. 3, 5, and 6. The solo work has been assigned to Mina Hager, while Frederick Stock as guest conductor will direct the orchestra.

GOOD-BY, AMELITA

AMELITA GALLI-CURCI.
[Strauss-Peyton Photo.]

After she is done singing her songs and her coloratura arias with flute obligatos at Orchestra hall this afternoon, she is going away from here, and it will be another season before she comes back. So this is your last chance to hear the most famous of them all.

dresses herself up in funny coats and is a picture.

But mostly she is struggling against one of those forced stories that doesn't click. The adventure does not take grip of its audience because its unreality is more obvious than its absurdities. In the cast are Alan Edwards, Beatrice Miles, and Donald McDonald.

Drama of Souls Entitled "Me."

There is a curious play at the Princess called "Me." I did not see it until last week. It is a psychological drama, in which one man acquires the soul of another and proceeds to take a presumably dead man's place in the world.

The night I was there the manager asked the audience to remain after the play and express an opinion of it. The audience did. But when I left it was still groping rather blindly for any understanding of what the author, a Shubert press man named Henry Myers, had in mind.

The story is of one Donald Hood who, knowing he has tuberculosis, suddenly leaves the girl he is engaged to marry while she is singing for him, and disappears in the woods, intending to stay here until he is cured.

The girl's mind goes blank at the parting, and her physician-father is convinced the only way she can be restored to health is to have her lover return and rebuild her romance to the point of its breaking.

For seven years Hood stays in the woods. The day they find him a tramp calls. He is evidently an educated man with a grudge against the world's treatment of him. From a hiding place he hears the story and also hears of the father's plan to bring his demented daughter to the cabin to enlist her lover's aid in restoring her reason.

The tramp thereupon kills Hood, strips him of his clothes, prays that he may also acquire his personality, and proceeds not only to cure the girl but convince the father that he is indeed Donald Hood, and that the change noted is simply the normal physical change seven years and restored health would bring about. The audience wanted to know, for one thing, how God could so far forgive a murderer as to listen to his prayers and permit the accepted change of souls. But the author, who answered questions, insisted he was not sure the tramp was the murderer. He thought it quite possible that, although the tramp had crushed the weaker body of Hood, it was really Hood's soul that had vanquished the other and taken possession of his stronger frame. An untenable theory, from almost any angle, but interesting.

Myers, his first year out of Columbia, wrote a play called "The First Fifty Years," which was in three acts, but contained only two characters. Claire Eames and Tom Powers played them. Gerald Cornell, Jerome Lawler, and Fred Tiden are principally engaged in this one.

Opera Schedule for Seventh Week

This afternoon—"Die Walkuere," by Wagner, with Cyrena Van Gordon, Olga Forrai, Augusta Lenska, Forrest Lamont, Alexander Kipnis, Edouard Cotreuil; conductor, Giorgio Polacco.

Monday—"The Masked Ball," by Verdi, with Rosa Raisa, Lenska, Clara Shear, Charles Marshall, Robert Steel; conductor, Polacco.

Tuesday—"Werther," by Massenet, with Mary Garden, Helen Freund, Fernand Ansseau, Kipnis, Cotreuil; conductor, Polacco.

Wednesday—"The Barber of Seville," by Rossini, with Luella Melius, Maria Claessens, Charles Hackett, Giacomo Rimini, Virgilio Lazzari, Vittorio Trevisan; conductor, Roberto Moranzoni.

Thursday—"Andrea Chenier," by Giordano, with Claudia Muzio, Irene Pavloska, Lenska, Marshall, Cesare Formichi; conductor, Polacco.

Saturday afternoon—"Carmen," by Bizet, with Garden, Elizabeth Kerr, Ansseau, Baklanoff; conductor, Gabriel Grovlez.

Saturday night—"Lucia di Lammermoor," by Donizetti, with Toti Dal Monte, Antonio Cortis, Richard Bonelli, Lazzari; conductor, Frank St. Leger.

Young Pianist Honored

Rosalind Kaplan, one of Chicago's youngest pianists, received and accepted a telegraphic invitation from Ossip Gabrilowitsch last week to go to Detroit and appear as soloist with that city's symphony orchestra. She is probably the most youthful soloist that Mr. Gabrilowitsch has urged to play with his orchestra.

Can you buy the equal of Howard Tone?
There was a day when "Oh! Listen to New York!" gave the big thrill in radio. Very soon, stations multiplied in number and the proud owner was he who could "get through" the unwanted to hear the wanted station.
The Howard still leads in these essentials of radio reception. But its excellence in another respect has educated the public to new demands. Tone quality is now the subject everywhere.
Not how loud—but how clear, how pure—is the intelligent radio tone ideal. Better artists, better music, make faithful reproduction desired above all things. And thus the Howard ideal of many years has become the standard for all.
You may rightfully expect the Howard to convince your sense of hearing that you are actually in the concert hall, the theatre, the studio. Yes, and with less "static" than you frequently get from those seated near you.
It will prove a revelation to you to turn the dials of this superb instrument and hear one after the other—a mighty organ, a violin's phonetics, a church choir, a symphony orchestra—all with equal clarity, unquestioned faithfulness.
And that is the basis on which we suggest you select your radio companion for the years to come. Whether your purse suggests the 5-tube at $150, or 6-tube at $200, in modest walnut cases—or any style up to our $1250 Chinese lacquer cabinets—the Howard performance is as surely yours. Can you buy its equal? Hear a Howard—and know.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published, $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned. Address Best Jokes Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

"Bring Them On!"

A knight of the road told the proprietor of a restaurant he would kill every rat in the place in exchange for a good meal. The boss had been troubled a good deal by rats and readily agreed.

After the tramp had fully gorged himself he turned to the proprietor and said: "Bring me a stout club."

This was quickly done.

"Now," said the tramp, "bring on your rats!" W. S.

Answering in Kind.

A boy left the farm and got a job in the city. He wrote a letter to his brother who elected to stick to the farm, telling of the joys of city life, in which he said: "Thursday we autoed out to the country club, where we golfed until dark. Then we motored to the beach for the week-end."

The brother on the farm wrote back: "Yesterday we buggied to town and baseballed all the afternoon. Today we muled out to the cornfield and geehawed until sundown. After we had suppered we piped for a while. After that we staircased up to our room and bedsteaded until the clock fived." E. K.

Intruders.

A drill instructor was berating a raw Irish recruit for his awkwardness. "Now, Murphy, you'll spoil the line with those feet! Draw them back instantly, man, and get them in line!"

Murphy's dignity was hurt.

"Please, sergint, they're not mine," he replied, "they're Dennis Hogan's in the rear rank!" A. B.

Determined.

"Do you think the accused would steal a chicken?" the lawyer asked Mose on cross examination?

"Nossuh. Ah wouldn't say ez he would," answered Mose, wriggling uneasily on the chair. "But Ah knows dis—when dat man gits hongry fo' chicken, dat man's jes nacher'ly boun' to have chicken." M. L. M.

Mardi Gras BY BOAT!

No trip, anywhere, combines so many interesting, delightful and unique features as this annual steamer cruise to and from the wonderful Mardi Gras Festival at New Orleans.

Cruise in luxury and absolute safety aboard the giant new steel steamer "CINCINNATI," (the most modern craft on western rivers) on the same picturesque and historic waters that the early pioneers navigated with so much danger and hardship. Travel from the land of Winter to the land of Summer.

The steamer is your floating hotel on the three to four days' stay at New Orleans during the Mardi Gras revels.

No worry about hotel reservations or baggage—nothing but genuine pleasure. Meals are the best in cookery's kingdom. Social hostess. Orchestra. Entertainment of all sorts. A novel and delightful house party.

The Majestic "CINCINNATI" leaves Cincinnati, Ohio, February 7th. Round trip rates, including all expenses, $155.00 and up.

Prompt reservations are strongly suggested, as it probably will be impossible to accommodate all who wish to go on this wonderful vacation trip. Ask for our beautiful illustrated booklet, giving full particulars. No charge or obligation.

San Antonio

—has lured the travelers of the ages!

CENTURIES ago courageous padres, arrogant Spanish dons, courtly chevaliers of France and later, pioneers of the westward-pushing America, followed the Indian trails to San Antonio—all lured by its balmy climate and its beautiful setting!

Today a modern city sits in the lovely valley which has beckoned travelers of the ages—a sturdy city of the present, clothed in the glamour of its romantic past.

Sunny San Antonio—a glorious place to play, to work, to really live! Come down! Play over green fairways the whole winter long. See the flashing contests of army polo teams. Enjoy baseball, tennis and every known sport—outdoors. Speed over paved highways which ribbon hills and dales in every direction. Canter down bridle paths along a rushing river's bank.

Live this winter! Follow the trail of the pioneers. Learn the lure of this magic land first-hand.

THE MORRISON TOWER

Many Floors Now in Service

HIGH into the tower extend the occupied floors of the Morrison's new 46-story section, establishing on a grand scale the hotel's time-honored practice of renting rooms for $3 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 in any other hotel of foremost prestige. Large revenues from subleased stores make these economies possible. All the Morrison's rooms have bath, circulating ice water, and Servidor, which gives special protection to guests with its grille feature. All patrons enjoy garage privileges.

The Morrison now has 1,944 outside rooms, each with bath. They will eventually be increased to 3,400—the largest hotel on earth.

The Morrison is the home of the Terrace Garden, famous for tastefully prepared meals, lively entertainment and perfect dance music. The artists appearing throughout the week beginning Monday, Dec. 14, will be:

The Lure of the Tropics

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, has a touch of it—with days of sparkling sunshine for bathing, and golf, and tennis; with languorous nights when a moon drips beams of gold across the rippling waters, and a breeze as soft as the breath of many mermaids drifts in from sea.

And Sports! Trout, red fish and the fighting tarpon—duck, quail and wild game—motor-boats, sailing craft, sporty golf courses and fast tennis courts await your skill and pleasure. No wonder that the list of visitors to this garden spot grows monthly.

Manufacturers, too, are moving to Corpus Christi, for operating costs are low, and it is easily accessible by road, rail and water transportation. The climate is healthful and equable the year 'round, with an average annual temperature of 71 degrees, and an average annual rainfall of 27 inches. A pleasant place to work and to live!

Why not come to Corpus Christi for the winter, and discover its charms and advantages for yourself? You can motor or come by rail. Round trip fares are low. Hotel accommodations are ample—and reasonable. For descriptive information and illustrative literature, write today to the Chamber of Commerce, Corpus Christi, Texas.

See Florida at low cost this Christmas

COME ON THIS ALL PULLMAN SPECIAL HOLIDAY TRAIN TO HOLLYWOOD-by-the-Sea

OF COURSE you are interested in Florida. Every well-posted man and woman is talking about it—reading about it—wondering what they will really find and see in this miracle state, which has attracted world-wide attention.

Now—this Christmas—you can "see for yourself." Thousands of others have made this trip, which you are about to make—and learned the wonderful truth at first hand.

This is your opportunity to turn winter back to summer for ten marvelous days, or stay longer if you desire—it is your opportunity to see, first hand, what so many thousands are wondering about. It is your opportunity to live right on the shore of the ocean—to travel up and down the East Coast—to feel the healthful rays of the Florida sun giving you a midwinter tan—to have your part in the gayety, the social whirl, the romance which everyone longs to enjoy.

Here are the astounding facts about this holiday special trip:

1 You are absolutely sure of first-class room and meals and entertainment by this plan—and you know what it costs before you leave home.

2 You will see all the points of interest on the famous southeast coast of Florida — Palm Beach, Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Coconut Grove and other points on the Florida highways and waterways—without a cent of extra cost to you.

3 Your time is your own—you are free to go and come as you please—but the hospitality of Hollywood-by-the-Sea provides entertainment for those who wish it.

4 You can go and return during the holiday season—enjoy ten days of wonderful sights—ten days of royal enjoyment—golf, ocean bathing, motor trips—for less than half what it would cost you to duplicate this trip traveling unattached, even if you could be sure of accommodations by such a plan.

5 You can get unlimited extension of your return trip ticket if desired.

6 You can get one-way transportation, Pullman berth, six days guaranteed accommodations and entertainment in Hollywood, for only $100.

7 Even if you are planning to drive to Florida in your own car, see us about accommodations. This is the most important matter to arrange before starting for Florida today.

Here are the Reasons for this Remarkable Offer

Hollywood-by-the-Sea is keeping pace with the tremendous growth of its popularity as an all-year resort city. It is now an incorporated city of 10,000 people—a well planned city of beautiful homes and apartments—a city of monumental hotels—a city with a $15,000,000 harbor under construction—a city with schools, business buildings and churches to accommodate the thousands who make this their occasional home or their permanent home.

You will find that Hollywood-by-the-Sea has unequalled recreational advantages in its new $250,000 bathing casino—its golf and country club—its miles of ocean front Board Walk. It is only necessary for people to know the marvel of Hollywood to assure the continued growth and prosperity of this city, as a home city and as a playground for all the world.

All these are the reasons that special arrangements have been made with the Pennsylvania Railroad, the L. & N., and the Florida East Coast—to bring special, de luxe trains of travelers and pleasure seekers to see for themselves the growth which this new city has made in four short years.

Compare this trip with any other arrangement you could make—compare it in opportunity—compare it in comfort and convenience—compare it in cost. $150 pays for everything—train fare and Pullman berth round trip, room and meals, motor trips, boat trips, golf, bathing and other entertainment—everything, in fact, but dining-car meals. No wonder there has been such a tremendous demand for reservations on this special Christmas all-Pullman train. To be sure of accommodations, you should write or wire at once. Or phone Franklin 1026 or 1027. Office hours: 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. including Saturday.

Trains leave December 24th and 25th
Both return January 3rd

Reservations also accepted for December 15th and January 6th, 13th, 20th, and 27th Trains.

$150. pays for everything except dining car meals. It includes railway fare and Pullman berth round trip, first-class room and meals, motor tours, free use of the beaches and golf course—all for $150.

NOTE: Return dates will be extended if desired. Or for $100 you can secure one-way train fare and berth and six days room and meals in Hollywood.

From the Crowded Resorts To The Joyous Comforts of Sunny San Antonio

MISSION SAN JUAN de CAPISTRANO

"The Winter Playground of America"

Things to See and Do

The Alamo
The historic mission-fort, where Davy Crockett and his little band of Texans held out against overwhelming odds and perished to the last man in defense of Texas Liberty.

The Missions
Built 225 years ago by the Spanish padres. Mission San Jose is the finest example of Spanish architecture in the Western Hemisphere.

Fort Sam Houston
By far the largest army post in the country. Infantry, Cavalry and Artillery all represented in an amazing array.

Brackenridge Park
Second to none in beauty, improvements and facilities for outdoor sports — golf — horseback riding — polo — tennis — picnics and other recreation.

Mexican Quarter
Quaint and interesting by day—see the native costume dances at night, to the tune of strumming guitars.

San Fernando Cathedral
In the heart of the city, adjoining a modern office building — a strange contrast of the Old World and the New.

Play Golf
On the finest and sportiest courses in the South—nominal greens fees and ample competition of the keenest sort. Texas Open Golf Championship, attracting national stars, played over Brackenridge Park municipal course.

Ride Horseback
16 miles of bridle path in Brackenridge Park — suitable mounts available at reasonable rates.

Hunt and Fish
Medina Lake—30 miles away by perfect road—is the paradise of the hunter and black bass fisherman. Paved roads to Gulf Coast points, where water fowl winter, and tarpon and deep sea bass abound.

Motor
More miles of paved road in Bexar County (San Antonio) than any county in U. S. Paved roads to Corpus Christi, Laredo, Brownsville, Del Rio and Eagle Pass, all on Mexican border.

SAN ANTONIO has come to be recognized as the most delightful of all Southern resorts. Here, where flowers bloom the year 'round, you can escape the rigors of the Northern winter—and pass your time, out in the open, in the invigorating air and mellow sunshine . . . doing the things you like to do.

The spirit of true Southern hospitality touches you the moment you board the KATY for San Antonio—and follows you through the happy days you spend there. There's room for all at reasonable rates . . . in fine hotels . . . furnished apartments and private homes.

Nearby, at Medina Lake . . . there's bass fishing and hunting for large and small game. Learn more about San Antonio . . . the coupon below brings full information.

Go via the Texas Line

The principal highway to San Antonio lies through St. Louis or Kansas City and the Katy. Three fine, fast trains—the Limited, TEXAS SPECIAL and Katy Flyer offer choice of suitable hours for departure and arrival. The Magnetic Centre of the South

SO much better now than ever . . . new activities . . . plans consummated for a greater future. And its climate—ah, so mild! Two-thirds of the year's daylight hours belong to the sunshine.

HISTORY repeats itself in landmarks and monuments . . . The country's finest golf club. Sherman's headquarters. Oldest theatre in active use. America's first orphanage.

FINE hotels . . . in them the traditional Dixie hospitality . . . and, withal, the royal thrill of sport. Miles of splendid motor roads. Pools of fighting fish. Tempting bags for the hunter. Development of a 700-acre Park, including four additional golf courses, one of which will soon be open for play.

IN all the South, to-day's greatest investment opportunities are at Savannah. A chain of bridges, crossing the Savannah River, have just been completed, saving 210 miles on the North to South trip via Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va.

Railroads grant stopover privileges on all round-trip Florida tickets. Passenger steamship service.

TO FLORIDA

The JOY of LIFE,

You need Florida —its Golden East Coast

You need wide beaches with sunshine on them.

You need air—languorous air of the tropics that goes down deep in your lungs.

You need sleep that smooths away every kink in your nerves—and stays eight hours!

You need golf thru long hours of carefree delight . . . where the green fairway stretches away before you into the splendor of a tropic sunset. Florida golf!

You need to get that body of yours into salt water.

You need to lie on a silver beach and half close your eyes in the sunshine; the swell and pulse of a long surf, growling in . . . .

You need scenes you never saw before—colors, sounds, thrills—a life as exciting and changeful as a voyage of discovery.

Through Pullman trains and through sleepers from important cities to all East Coast Resorts, including Key West via Overseas Extension for Havana, Cuba

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Winterbotham of 40 East Huron street are to give a dinner and dance on Thursday evening to introduce to society their daughter, Miss Rue Winterbotham. The dinner is to be at the Arts club, after which the young people will go down stairs to dance at Grayling's.

Mrs. Jacob Bauer and Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick are among the prominent women who are working for the success of the Arts ball at the Congress hotel on Friday evening. Mrs. Chadwick is co-chairman with John F. Jelke Jr. of the ticket selling committee, and Mrs. Baur is chairman of the patrons committee, and is doing a number of odd jobs in connection with the preparations.

ssembly Ball Peak of Season

By Mme. X.

THE winter goes jingling merrily on its way with balls and opera and horse shows to give it quality and distinction. And here is istmas only twelve days away!

The first assembly ball of the season, ich was given at the Blackstone Friday evening, is as smart and tinctive a social gathering as can found on the winter's calendar, ring in this the fame of the Phila- phia assemblies, which are general- conceded to be the apex of Ameri- social life.

First Affair in 1903.

The Chicago assemblies were found- in 1903 by a company seated about s. Joseph G. Coleman's dinner ta- . The idea originated with the pres- Mrs. Arnold Klebs. It was eagerly en up by other guests, including s. Stanley Field and Mrs. Walter ith. A board of governors was ated, composed of men who stand h on Chicago's civic and social lists. Hobart Chatfield Chatfield-Taylor the first chairman, holding this for ten years.

Arthur Meeker succeeded him, and for twelve years been arbiter of se gay balls.

The original idea was to have a nce exclusively for young married uples. The same young married uples as started it belong to it now, cept for one or two who have opped out in the twenty-two years of existence. To the original group ve been added other arriving young uples. No debutantes are allowed at ese balls.

The first dance was given in the yer of Orchestra hall.

It must be a healthy office, that of ember of the board of governors of the assemblies, as in the twenty-two years none has died, a record hard to beat in any other board of governors.

Confirming Our Statement.

There is an old story that on one casion, when the London Times had roneously reported the death of a n, it refused to retract the state- nt, saying that it was against its le to admit that error was ever to found in its columns, and that the ly reparation it would make was to y that the man reported dead had en miraculously resuscitated.

A similar stand is taken by a dis- guished local contemporary of the W. G. N., which stated last Sunday that Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, on account of the sudden death of her brother, John Borie, had given up the Russian abaret dinner at her house on Dec. 18 and was going abroad. Refusal to retract brings to this column of six p.'s the earnest request that we reaffirm our correct statement of last Sunday that this fête to raise money for Thomas Whittemore's fund for Russian refugee students is going on as scheduled and promises to be the most picturesque and brilliant affair given here in a private house in many a moon.

From all sides clever young Russians are springing forward with offers to help in the entertainment. Remisoff, the famous scenic artist, is making over the house into a gorgeous Slavonic background for the affair. The essence of Russia, its semi-barbaric pulsating music, poetry, color, and dance, are promised those who attend this festival.

Laverys Neglect Chicago.

The news comes pretty straight from New York that Sir John and Lady Lavery are not—with an emphasis on the not—coming to Chicago. The guess of the sapient is that they would have come had there been a conspicuous gallery free to house the collection of pictures which Sir John brought to this country. Report sayeth naught as to his success in disposing of his canvases in New York. He had one or two portrait commissions there which was the especial bait that lured him and his beautiful wife across the ocean in this rather tempestuous season.

We Adaptable Americans.

Although she was born and brought up in Chicago, Lady Lavery is said to have no tugging at the heart strings when she hears the name of this western metropolis. She belongs utterly and entirely to the land of her adoption, in this manifesting that curious quality not uncommon among her country women, but almost unknown among women of other nationalities.

No matter how long an Englishwoman or a Frenchwoman lives in an alien land, no matter how delightful the conditions of this life abroad may be, it is always exile, and the chance to return to the land of her birth gives each of them a thrill unequaled by any of life's other adventures.

This cannot be said of all American women. Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of them can be found living in Europe today, self-exiled from the land of their birth, even looking back on it with a measure of condescension, though appreciating its usefulness as a source of income.

At times it seems as if the adaptability of the American woman were almost her most striking quality. If she marry a Britisher, she becomes more English than the English. If she be happily wedded to a Frenchman, she is more Gallic than any Frenchwoman.

As the Romans.

I saw in Rome American wives of Italians who, as far as their points of view went, were not to be distinguished from the Italian women among whom they lived. But it is especially in England and among the English that American women become merged and blended until they lose all semblance of their nationality.

Their eyes no longer see this spacious and wonderful land. Their ears no longer hear its call. The Stars and Stripes no longer cause a heart-throb. The great country that is to us an inspiration, a miracle, is to them but a purse from which to draw money.

Perhaps we should not look on the word "adaptable" with the slight tendency to contempt which occasionally prompts its use. It is the great explanation of our rise from the primeval ooze. Probably, in the beginning of things, the majority of the protean animalculæ left behind in the primordial mess by some more enterprising amœbæ were derisive and scornful and muttered or hissed:

"See how adaptable they are!"

Well, if the Laverys disappoint their Chicago friends by sailing back to England without a look-in on the Windy city, we can console ourselves with the fact that the Roy McWilliamses are in our midst and launched on the full tide of Chicago hospitality, which means an arduous sojourn for this popular and delightful couple. They arrived last Wednesday and are at the Lake Shore Drive hotel.

With Deep Gratitude.

This p. p. p. p. p. p. takes this opportunity to thank the many kind friends who have been good enough to write their sympathy at its temporary topple. If a more personal answer is not forthcoming at the moment it is because of a continuing disability to accomplish more than this weekly stunt.

I am glad today is Sunday, for a certain quiet will prevail in the territory immediately adjacent to the X family home. The cold riveting of the rapidly rising vertebrae of the Illinois Women's Athletic club, a little to the south of us, the bang, bang, bang of five sets of pile drivers within two blocks of us, the shrill whistle and loud exhaust of two big steam excavating machines within a stone's throw do not contribute to the peace and calm of convalescence.

Most of the excess building, of which the Chicago Association of Commerce spoke with so much pride last week, seems to be concentrated between Chicago avenue and Oak street, Rush street and the lake.

MISS FLORINE LASKER.
[Mishkin Photo.]

The Lake City Woman's club, of which Mrs. C. I. McKee is president, will give a card party on Wednesday at 10 o'clock at Hartman's auditorium for the benefit of several charities.

Mrs. E. J. Buffington, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the Southern Woman's Educational alliance, is assisting in sponsoring two performances of "Charm," a current theatrical attraction, on Wednesday afternoon and evening at the Playhouse. The funds procured will go toward increasing the educational opportunities of southern young women.

Miss Florine Lasker of New York will speak at a meeting during a two day conference to be held tomorrow and Tuesday by the National Council of Jewish women. Miss Lasker is chairman on immigrant aid and education for the national organization.

Jewish Women Meet to Aid Immigrants

THE National Council of Jewish Women will hold a two day conference on immigrant education and citizenship tomorrow and Tuesday. The Chicago section's regular meeting tomorrow will have Miss Florine Lasker, national chairman of immigrant aid and education, and Miss Cecilia Razovsky, national secretary of immigrant aid, as speakers.

On Tuesday Miss Jane Addams, Morgan Hogge of the Chicago board of education, Miss Frances Wetmore, supervisor of Americanization, and Philip Seaman of the Jewish People's institute will speak in the morning. In the afternoon Miss Lasker and Miss Razovsky will lead in round table discussions. Kentucky, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois sections will be represented.

Meetings on Tuesday will be held at the Woman's City club, 360 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. I. J. Reis is president of the Chicago section; Mrs. Harry Berkman, chairman; Miss Helene Schott, vice chairman.

The National Council of Jewish Women was founded in Chicago in 1893 by Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, as a result of the Congress of Religion. There are 50,000 members in the United States. The Chicago section of 3,000 members is interested in immigrant aid and education, Sabbath schools, legislation, study classes, and a summer camp for mothers and children at Wauconda, Ill. They take part in all civic and communal affairs. The officers for this year are: President, Mrs. I. J. Reis; first vice president, Mrs. Gerson B. Levy; second vice president, Mrs. Harry Berkman; third vice president, Mrs. E. A. Fischkin; treasurer, Mrs. Charles H. Hefter; recording secretary, Mrs. A. Levy; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. F. Grauer.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

Mayor William E. Dever will be among the speakers at the Chicago Woman's club on Wednesday at 2 o'clock, when the subject of street and highway safety will be under consideration. Other speakers of the afternoon are Sidney J. Williams, director, public safety commission, National Safety council; Morgan A. Collins, chief of police; Mrs. William S. Hefferan of the board of education; Elmer T. Stevens, chairman, street traffic committee, Chicago Association of Commerce; Coroner Oscar Wolff, and Mrs. Harold F. White, the club's chairman on traffic regulation. Canon Dimnet of Paris, France, will be the guest of honor at the French Salon luncheon tomorrow at 12:30. A program will follow in recital hall at 2 o'clock. The art and literature department will hold a business meeting on Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock, and the three French classes will meet at the usual hours on that day. Llewellyn Jones will conduct the English study class on Thursday at 10:30 o'clock and will instruct the class on how to criticize a manuscript, using class themes as examples. Luncheon will follow the meeting. The current events class will meet on Friday at 10:30 o'clock.

A luncheon meeting of the civil service committee of the Woman's City club will be held on Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock. The business group will have a social meeting in the evening. A luncheon meeting of the ward chairmen will be held on Wednesday at 12:15 o'clock. The education committee will meet on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss Amelia Sears will speak on Friday evening before the young women's auxiliary. The auxiliary will visit the Crippled Children's home on Saturday afternoon.

The Chicago Woman's Aid is co-operating with the National Council of Jewish Women in a joint luncheon meeting tomorrow at 12 o'clock. Miss Florine Lasker and Miss Cecilia Razovsky will speak on "Immigrant Aid as an International Problem." Mrs. Alfred Hamburgher is chairman of the meeting. On Tuesday at 2 o'clock in Kimball hall Mrs. Mortimer Singer has arranged a drama day. Prominent actors and actresses from current theatrical attractions will be guests of the club. Holbrook Blinn, Arthur Byron, Louise Closser Hale, and Louis Wolheim will speak. On Wednesday Mrs. George Plummer will have her final lesson in her course of parliamentary procedure. This course has proved so popular, it is to be repeated starting in January, with Mrs. Joseph Mayer as leader.

A round table meeting of the I Will club will be held on Tuesday afternoon.

The law enforcement committee of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, of which Mrs. Harrison Cade is chairman, invites all club presidents and law enforcement chairmen to be present at a conference tomorrow at 10 o'clock at 127 North Dearborn street. The Rev. Elmer Lynn Williams will speak.

A Christmas card party for the benefit of ex-service men, sponsored by the first district, I. F. W. C., will be held on Saturday at Hartman's auditorium.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

"I CAN'T imagine what's come over Mrs. Danby since I've been gone," said the member who had been abroad for a year, to the president. "When I left—I was on the board then, you know—she was one of the most bothersome problems we had. She was always criticizing or protesting or misinterpreting our motives and actions, and here she is a member of the board and a zealous worker. Why, when I was talking to her a little while ago she told me the club was one of the biggest pleasures she had in life. How did you do it?"

"I guess it's all due to Mrs. Raff," answered the president. "She kept telling us that we should give Mrs. Danby something to do that would show her the difficulty of pleasing all the members of a club."

"A person who has never tried to do things wouldn't understand about that."

"Mrs. Danby had made herself so unpopular that no chairman wanted her on a committee," continued the president, "but Mrs. Raff was so insistent that we solved the problem by appointing Mrs. Raff chairman of the bulletin. I really think the only reason she accepted it was to give Mrs. Danby a chance, which she did."

"Good for Mrs. Raff," commented the traveled member. One dissatisfied member, if she be a trouble maker, can split a club in two. Putting her to work is the only chance there is to change her attitude. Then what?"

"Mrs. Danby worked her head off, and her fault finding stopped immediately. If she heard any one complain, she'd promptly tell her it was much easier to criticize than to do things. After a few months Mrs. Raff resigned, and Mrs. Danby was chosen chariman, which put her on the board. She is now one of our most valuable members."

A KIMBALL PIANO

THE gift of music for your home adds to the happiness of this holiday season, and for many years to come.

A KIMBALL Piano is the right choice!

For the KIMBALL has been the supreme offering for two and three generations in the same family. Its arrival is the crowning event of the holiday, and brings unending delight through all the days that follow.

You have a choice of several sizes among KIMBALL grands—a tone that will charm, and a visible beauty that enriches—or, if you prefer an upright, player or phonograph, the selection is extremely broad. The KIMBALL Reproducing Piano is a superb gift, through which the playing of famous pianists "comes to life" in a manner almost miraculous.

Other suggestions are Welte-Mignon Reproducing Rolls, Columbia Records, Player Rolls, etc. KIMBALL prices are impressively moderate, all governed by the KIMBALL "One-Price" Policy.

NEWS OF NEW YORK SOCIETY

Climbers "Borrow" Smart Club Cards

By Grace Robinson.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Extraordinary are the measures daily employed by ambitious ones to "get into society." The most astonishing ruse that has come to light in recent months is the practice, just discovered, of presenting "borrowed" club cards for admittance to organizations to which the holder does not belong.

Several members of smart uptown supper clubs have learned that unknown persons have paraded into their favorite retreat bearing their membership cards and carrying off the evening with more assurance and poise than the original holder of the paste board.

Embassy club members have been the particular sufferers from this bold trick. The Embassy is one of the best known of New York's expensive after-the-theater institutions. The guest list there of an evening reads like a page torn from the social register, with a generous sprinkling of "Who's Who in the Theater."

A number of members who lost or temporary mislaid their prized admittance cards were astonished to learn later that they had been present at the Embassy, when they had believed on the authority of all their senses and the testimony of their friends that they had been elsewhere on the evening in question.

A few occurrences of this kind led to an investigation and a more careful check on the throngs pouring in at the luncheon, dinner and supper hours. The interlopers presenting the false passports were detected.

Now the Embassy is issuing new cards to its members—cards which require the signature of the persons for whom they are issued. In case of doubt it is an easy matter to request the entrant to write his name at the door and compare the result with the club's roster of signatures.

It is not likely that the boldest butter-and-egger will risk the possibility of going to prison for forgery—not to mention the immediate public humiliation which such an exposure would cause.

If the demand for admittance to smart and expensive society continues clubs will be forced to paste the photograph of a member on his card, with a description of his stature and coloring—after the manner of commutation tickets and automobile drivers' licenses.

Drurys Settle Down.

There is much talk in New York about the beautiful and historic house which Mabel Gerry, it is said, plans to occupy when she finally settles down in London with her still new husband.

Mabel Gerry, daughter of the staggeringly rich Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry, recently married an Englishman of distinction—F. S. E. Drury. She was far beyond the age when the majority of women make this heroic new start in life. The more catty females at her wedding whispered that she would never see the half century mark again.

Syon house, on the outskirts of London, is the edifice in which Mr. and Mrs. Drury will set up their household gods.

It is a magnificent place—quite beyond the pretensions, not to mention the bank accounts, of the average rich American.

The upkeep would frighten many who make a highly presentable showing in New York's Park avenue sets.

The place belongs to the duke of Northumberland. For some time it has stood boarded up and forlorn, a mute appeal to persons with social ambitions. The house overlooks the Thames and is situated in Brantford, a suburb of the metropolis.

This ancient residence started out in life by being a monastery. That was more than five hundred years ago—in 1415, to be exact.

Henry V. founded the religious colony which used the aged building. Henry VIII. closed the place for some typical Henry VIII. reason. What it was may be inferred from the fact that a protracted period of gossip preceded the abolition of the organization.

Having basked in the glamor of notoriety, the house was turned over to the first duke of Northumberland, and it has remained in that family ever since.

Royalty once nestled a weary head in the more or less soft cushions of the bed chambers. King Charles, the merry monarch, was a guest there, as well as Queen Anne and William IV.

The house was partly rebuilt in recent years, but still retains the feudal aspect which is its great charm. There are still the turrets and the parapets—grim reminders of the stern days of English life and now almost amusing by contrast with the civilized peaceful town in which the house stands.

The building is quadrangular and three stories high. The entrance hall is paved with black and white marble, and many valuable pictures hang in the austere and important looking rooms.

When Mrs. Drury goes there it is likely that a lot of exclusive London will make a beaten trail to the door, for she is almost as important socially there as she is here, the Prince of Wales having attended many of her parties when she was still only Mabel Gerry.

Deb Party of Season.

In the mad rush of debutante affairs one party stands out for beauty and originality and—cost! It is that function which attended the coming out of Ruth Fahnestock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Fahnestock.

The party was held at that favorable place for a coming out dance—the Ritz-Carlton hotel. The decorations were unusual, composed partly of laurel leaves, the tips of which were painted gold, and were arranged in festoons on the great stairway leading to the ballroom.

Mammoth clusters of chrysanthemums were used in various parts of the room, augmented, of course, by other flowers less showy.

The debutante of the evening, Miss Fahnestock, clung to the pretty and old fashioned custom of white for her gown. She was chiefly clad in outstanding white tulle, and she carried a huge bouquet when she marched into the ballroom at the head of the regiment of young people in the procession.

It was one of the most gorgeous parties in years, in the opinion of those who go to many debutante functions every season.

Some one remarked that the young men guests presented a great contrast to the scene at the party for Mrs. Fahnestock's niece, Margaret, now Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes Jr., a decade ago. On that occasion every male present wore the impeccable tail coat, white gloves, and the rest of the haberdashery that goes with full evening dress.

But at Ruth Fahnestock's dance the popular dinner coats were the rule, and there was hardly an exception to that rule.

In or Out.

New York debutantes now know definitely whether they are in or out of the gilded group known as smart society. The acid test of every season has come and gone—the first of the junior assemblies which divide all young social aspirants into the groups of those who have arrived and those who never will.

The opening dance was held at the Ritz-Carlton hotel. The attendance was large and brilliant, and many gay dinners at fashionable Pierre's in Park avenue preceded the dancing.

Time was when this seasonal selection of the important debs was done under the guise of the junior cotillions. These were held under the guidance of Mrs. Arthur Murray Dodge. In time they became the most exclusive functions in New York arranged for debutantes.

Cotillions gradually lost favor. The elaborate dancing figures and the costly favors passed into the limbo of two hour dinners and diamond tiaras.

The dances became the junior assemblies.

Many a young girl and many an ambitious mother loses sleep for weeks before the final lists are made up for these dances.

The parents, not the debs, are invited, and they are invited to subscribe. A committee of women, who know their society as a telephone operator knows her switchboard, passes on the applications. To say that the blue pencil is used freely is putting it mildly.

If the exalted committee women were open to bribery, each could live for a year on the price of inclusion of one young girl in the important function.

Each lucky girl receives the privilege of three admissions—one for herself and two for men whom she invites.

No Terrors for These.

Mrs. Dodge has long since been succeeded at the head of the governing group by Mrs. Richard C. Colt. Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, a daughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, is a member, as are Mrs. Herbert Lee Pratt of Standard Oil wealth; Mrs. Robert L. Stevens, Mrs. Walter Phelps Bliss, and Mrs. James Gore King, whose husband is descended of an old colonial family that has always prided itself on being important in the social world. Mrs. Dodge's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Marshall J. Dodge, is also a member.

Among the young women who "made" the junior assemblies this year—the remaining dances of the series will be held later in the winter—are Violet Tangeman, Elizabeth Woodward, Marian Wickes, and Genevieve Fox, not to mention scores of others.

These four girls are of particular interest among the many who are making their elaborately staged entrance to society.

Violet Tangeman is the daughter of Mrs. Cornelius H. Tangeman, who is generally acknowledged to be Newport's most beautiful woman.

There was a time—one brief season—when Mrs. Robert Goelet, former wife of Robert Goelet, rather forced Mrs. Tangeman into the background. Mrs. Goelet, formerly Mme. Riabouchinsky, and now, I believe, the wife of an important foreigner, boasted dark beauty of a sort seldom seen even among the beautiful Italian women.

Artists raved about her. Townspeople in Newport lurked at street corners hoping to get a glimpse of her. She was the sensation of the season among those who adored the unusual, the unique. She was too "foreign looking," in the opinion of those who stood by their old love, Mrs. Tangeman, however. The latter is the statuesque American type, similar to the girls of an earlier day immortalized by Charles Dana Gibson.

And since the rare Italian left these shores with a prayer that she need never return Mrs. Tangeman has resumed her old place of chief Newport beauty.

Owing to her mother's prominence, Violet has already seen much gayety in the Rhode Island spa, where she has passed her summers since early childhood.

Elizabeth Woodward is another young woman for whom the blue penciling preceding the junior assembly had no terrors. She is one of two daughters, the other being Edith.

Mrs. Woodward, whose graying hair now makes a frame for a clear, dark skin, has long been in the front ranks at Newport, and her deb offspring of this season is highly pleasing in the eyes of the young and eligible men as well as the lorgnetted dowagers.

To men who never yet have expressed all they meant in a Christmas gift

Louis XVI Period Model
Fischer-Ampico Grand

Someone, in every family in the world, deserves such a Christmas gift as we suggest here. Somewhere are men who, happily, are in position—this Christmas—to make such a superlative gift. Of such men there may be 5,000, in Chicago—or 10,000. This is definite information for them.

It's a question of imagination—for these men, of daring in thought, to consider and act; of still remembering the sentiment that has never yet been adequately expressed.

The most wonderful gift that can be made is one that beautifies the home . . . at the same time bringing a living pleasure.

A piano she will love

For $10,000—or $1,000—terms as you desire, you can secure here a piano that will mean to her all you wish to express.

Such a piano will bring the beautiful style of a noteworthy historic period or of the best in modern designing, to enhance the beauty of the most magnificently furnished room. It will bring the great music masters—playing your favorite classic or popular airs—just as they play in person . . . a piano that can also be played by the individual . . . a tone that truly expresses the divinity of music.

Any piano you choose from this list represents the utmost the price paid for it can secure. Period models referred to embrace Louis XV, Louis XVI, William and Mary, Italian Renaissance, Hepplewhite, Sheraton, Georgian, Early American (or Colonial).

Fischer Grands (for hand playing only) Modern	$ 985 to $1,075

—and other makes of high grade grands as low as $675

The investment, you may say, does not seem expedient right now. But your old instrument becomes part of the initial payment—and the balance is most conveniently extended.

It is really a question of whether one is to wait still another year—for this Christmas gift of a lifetime—for this pleasure of giving that is worth more than money—to at last express all that you really mean.

We Have Planned to Lead In Radio Selling in Chicago

To this end we have decided to extend the privilege of deferred payment account to those who wish to purchase radio sets on this plan. This will indeed be welcome news to thousands who have wished to take advantage of Hillman's low prices. Because of the big response which we expect on this announcement we have opened our radio department on the street floor with a direct entrance off the street. A department we may truly be proud of—and one that will fill a long-felt want in Chicago.

—Enormously Enlarged.
Splendidly located on the street floor—State and Washington Streets, North Entrance.

In order to fittingly usher in a double event of this kind, we have determined to give Chicago the greatest radio value ever offered.

JUST HOW WE ARE ABLE TO DO IT

We went to the manufacturer, laid our cards on the table, and asked his co-operation. We told him:

—we are opening a great new department.
—we want all Chicago to know it.
—we believe that the best way to let them know is to give them something they can't forget.
—we want you to help—and he did.

This Manufacturer Is Giving You Most of His Profit and we are giving you most of our profit. This is why you are getting this complete outfit for $69.97.

This Is a New Five-Tube Storage Battery Set. It Is Up-to-Date In Every Respect

NOT AN OBSOLETE MODEL

One of the finest 5-tube sets that has appeared on the market this year. You can tell the moment you look at it that this is no ordinary radio set—the beautiful hardwood cabinet with overlay panels of genuine mahogany and the shielded black metal panel front, handsomely engraved and emblazoned in copper—is unusual in itself. The moment you feel the velvety fine precision tuning of the dials you know that here is as fine a 5-tube set as money can buy.

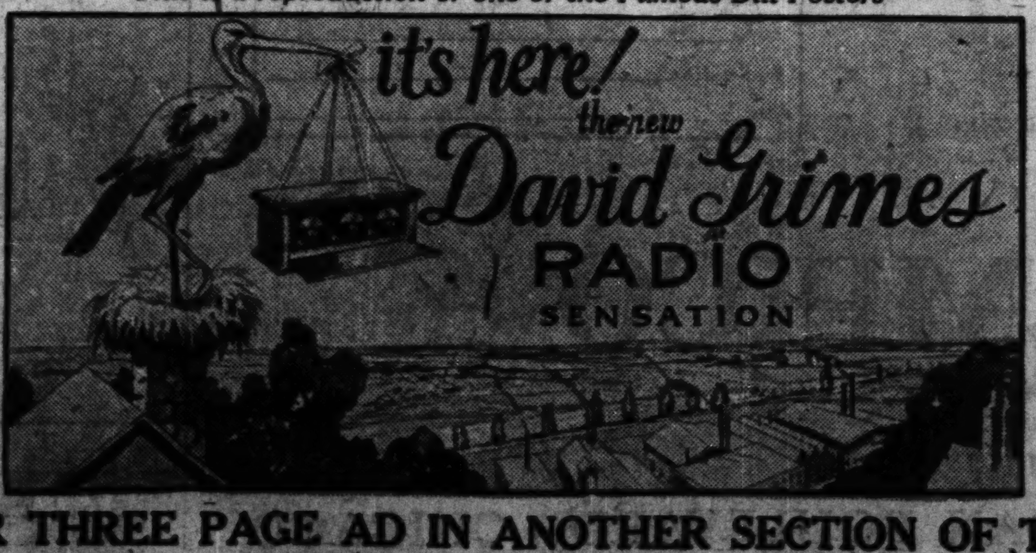
You May Buy This Set on Liberal Terms as Low as $2.00 Weekly With a small down deposit

You Have Seen This Set Advertised on Posters and Billboards All Over the Country

In Chicago alone they were advertised on 122 signboards on the most prominent streets. You will remember the signs reading: "David Grimes' Radio—a Contribution to Civilization." Also, among other signs, the one reading: "It's Here! The new David Grimes' Radio Sensation." This the well-known sign showing a stork presenting the wonderful Grimes set to a waiting world. The David Grimes Radio Corporation has a reputation for thoroughly testing each set before it leaves the factory, and they are one of the largest companies in the radio manufacturing field. We consider ourselves fortunate indeed to be able to offer their high-grade set at such remarkable saving.

This Amazing Sale Offers Only a Limited Number of These Marvelous Radio Sets at This Low Price

This is a reproduction of one of the Famous Bill Posters



Of course we could not get this manufacturer to give us an unlimited supply, as he is sacrificing his profit for this eventful selling; and charging it to advertising—for advertising it will be—for every person that buys one will be its best sales person and ardent enthusiast—so come early if you want one. This set has a record for receiving distant stations, those far away come in distinctly and clear as a bell—and while we cannot guarantee that in your particular location you will receive distance, we do know that this set will if it can be done at all, and if we install your set.

There will be a small charge for the antenna equipment and installation. Let us do this for you because high-quality workmanship is imperative. The installation charge includes a high-type antenna outfit.

·ART AND ARTISTS·

One Man Exhibits at Art Institute

By Inez Cunningham.

THIS is a time of termination and openings in the Chicago art world, aside from the fine collection of early Chinese art at the Arts club of which I will be glad to report more after the lecture by Charles Fabens Kelly this afternoon.

The current exhibition at the Art institute closes today to make way for a group of rather important one man shows by the following artists: Paintings by Randall Davey, De Witt and Douglass Parshall, William S. Horton, Roy Brown, G. A. Fjaestad, and Romaine Brooks; sculpture, by Alfonso Ianelli. These shows will occupy the galleries in the east wing on the second floor.

The Art institute gratefully announces that twenty paintings which, by the terms of the will of the late Charles L. Hutchinson, were to have belonged to Mrs. Hutchinson during her lifetime have been generously given by her to the Art institute's permanent exhibit. They are examples of the French, British, Dutch, and Flemish schools.

Nicholas Renisoff, stage designer, who made beautiful settings for the "Chauve Souris" and the productions of the Allied Arts, has been engaged to teach stage designing in the drama school of the Goodman theater.

The children of Chicago are to be considered by the school of the Goodman theater, where plays will be staged for their special benefit. The first of these will be Lady Gregory's "The Golden Apple," which will be played at the series of special matinées beginning on Saturday.

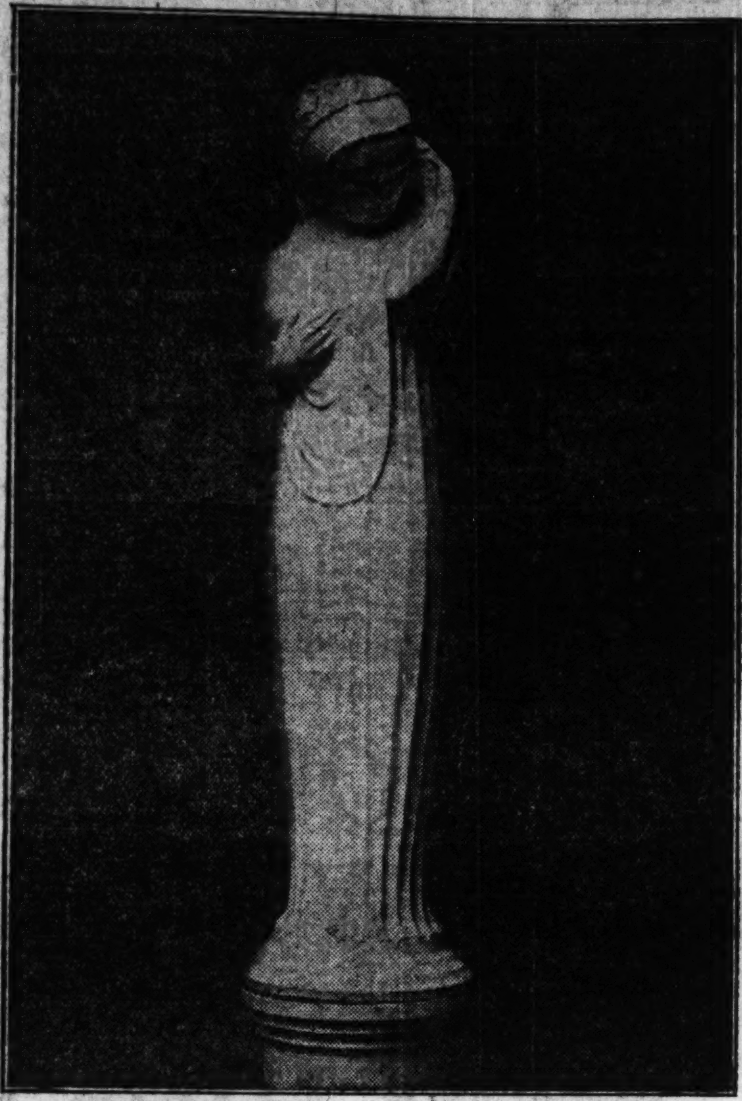
Further purchases made from the thirty-eighth annual exhibition of American painting and sculpture are the two paintings by Marshall Smith, bronzes by Edward Berge, and "Sewing," by Arvid Nyholm. The latter was bought by an eastern lover of art who has established a home for convalescent artists in New York state, where the picture will hang.

Friday night also terminated the Pallet and Chisel club annual exhibition of small paintings by members with an auction sale which was well attended.

Several letters inquiring about this show came too late to be answered to the satisfaction of the writers, but I will take this occasion to explain the procedure of the club so that any one interested will know about it next year.

Each member donates a small painting on which he puts a valuation. These paintings are put on exhibition in the clubrooms, and any one interested may bid on them, beginning at one-fifth of the asked value. For instance, when a painting is valued at $100, the first bidder offers $20. His name is put down in a book and a small red star put on the canvas. The second bidder offers $40, and another red star is put on the canvas.

The night of the auction the bidding on the picture begins at the amount indicated by the number of bids. Half the proceeds of the picture thus sold goes to the artist and the other half to the club. It is much the same idea as that of the Salamagundi club Thum Box show, held in New York annually and which closes this year on Dec. 19.



"Youth" is by Alfonso Ianelli, who will have a one man show at the Art institute, beginning Dec. 22.

Some of the men who had pictures in the Pallet and Chisel club show are Chicago artists who are well known here as well as other places—such men as James Topping, Harry L. Engle, Glen Sheffer and A. G. Rider, who has painted a great deal in Spain. Philip Sawyer gave a beautiful water color to be entirely for the benefit of the club.

Friday, Dec. 18, will be the date of the Arts ball, which will be held in the gold room of the Congress hotel, by the Association of Arts and Industries for the benefit of an industrial art school to be endowed in connection with the Chicago Art institute. A great deal of work is being done to make the ball a memorable occasion and to establish it as an annual event in Chicago. No time or expense is being spared to make the pageant as beautiful and impressive as possible. There will be ten groups:

"The Beggars Are Coming," in charge of Earl H. Reed and Miss Janet Fairbank.

"The Magic Light," in charge of H. K. Holsman and the South Side Art association.

"A scene from a Ball for La Fayette," in charge of Miss Sarene Otis.

A Gaugain Group, in charge of R. Faierweather Eabcock.

A ballet group, under Pavley and Oukransky.

A Toile de Jouy group, under Lionel Robertson.

A Boul Mich group, Alfonso Ianelli.

French pastry group, by National Academy of Art, under Herbert Rott.

"La Cadeau des Roses," by Ralph Moni, school of design.

The pageant will be followed by a beauty contest at which a Chicago Venus will be selected. The judges will be McClelland Barclay, Alvin Polack, Benjamin Marshall, Pauline Palmer, Andrew Rebori, and John Norton. Thomas Wood Stevens of the Goodman theater is also on a number of committees.

From the Art center, 65 East 56th street, New York, comes an interesting account of a sculpture contest in white soap at which $800 was awarded in prizes by a well known soap manufacturer. One of the prizes went to an Evanston girl, Alice White Paterson, for her "Mother and Child." The sculptures were sent from every part of the United States, eighty-three pieces having been received from the public schools of Kalamazoo, Mich., alone. There were about seven hundred pieces in all, and Dr. Gustave Straubenmuller, associate superintendent of the New York board of education, writes that he will do what he can to have white soap adopted as an artistic medium in the New York schools. As the vaudevillian would remark, he will at least be doing a cleanly act. Having once seen several small sculptures in white soap, one cannot help admitting it closely resembles marble, and is an easy medium for beginners.

THE CHEEKIEST PERSON I EVER MET

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscence of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Fixing It Himself.

The cheekiest person I ever knew was a man who used to bring his punctured tubes into our tire and tube repair shop, then borrow our tools, and fix the tube, right there, himself.

Passing Them On.

My sister and I had entertained at our home for our sister, who was a bride of the month, and had used orange crepe paper to decorate. The next day our neighbor came in and said, "O, your decorations are beautiful! May I use them for the party I am giving tomorrow night? I don't like to spend any money on decorations, but like to have the house look nice, so I'm sure you will let me take yours."

Needless to say, we let her take the paper, and the cheekiest part of all was that she never offered to return it, but let another friend use it.

Greedy.

The cheekiest person I ever met is a man who owns two drug stores. Every time he comes to our office, and he makes it a habit to come at least once a day, he will go and take a cigar from my employer's desk.

Insult to Injury.

The cheekiest person I ever knew was the girl who sent me a telegram breaking our engagement—and sent it collect!

From THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

EDITED BY Professor J. ARTHUR THOMSON

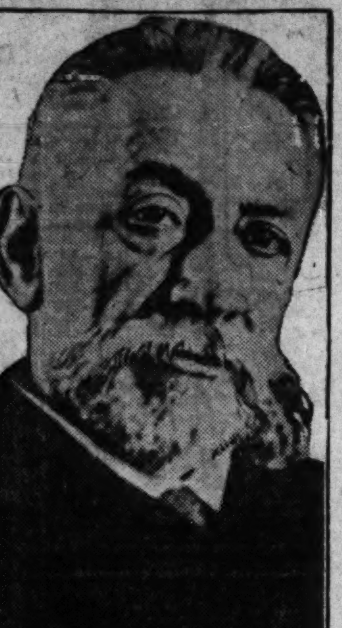
THE MAKING OF THE SEA.



HIS SERENE HIGHNESS ALBERT, PRINCE OF MONACO (B. 1848).—A veteran oceanographer, who has conducted many marine expeditions, the results of which have been published in a monumental series of monographs. He has founded an oceanographical institute in Paris and a magnificent museum and laboratory at Monaco. He has made great contributions to the science of the sea.
[Photo: Copyright: Daily Mail.]

THERE was a time in the earth's history when there was no sea. The surface of the young earth was too hot to allow the accumulation of water in basins. More than that, there were no basins, for the surface of the young earth must have been at any one place as flat as a pancake. If the young earth was uniformly spherical [apparently flat at any point], there could be no separate seas. If the young earth had on its surface a high temperature, there could be no sea; the water would evaporate. But there is another factor, which requires more explanation than this outline admits of, that the growing earth was originally too small to hold even a gaseous envelope [the atmosphere], still less an aqueous envelope [the hydrosphere].

As the earth gradually grew in diameter it acquired an atmosphere—differing from that of today in having but little oxygen. For the oxygen of our air is mostly due to the activity of green plants. As the earth reached its limit of growth and began to cool and shrink, a rocky shell [or lithosphere] was formed, seething and swaying at first, but gradually gaining stability. The probability is that as the result of surface boilings lighter materials rose higher to form continents, while heavier materials sunk lower to form ocean beds. It is probable that overweighting of vast areas resulted in the formation of ocean basins, which have become steadily larger as the quantity of water on the earth has increased.

Over limited areas the floor of the sea has sometimes been raised into dry land, and a large part of a continent has sometimes sunk down and formed the floor of a sea, but the trend of opinion among geologists seems to be in favor of the view that the present position of the great masses of land and water have remained on the whole the same since continents and ocean basins were first established. But this is a much discussed question. It should also be noticed that some suppose that there was a universal ocean over the earth before there was any dry land.

To the natural question, Where did all the water come from? geology answers, "From the earth itself." When we visit hot springs or watch the clouds of steam rising from volcanoes, we probably get more than a hint of how the water of the sea began. It is supposed that from a quarter to a half of the present day volume of the seas was in existence before the Cambrian period. The rest has been added since—expressed from the earth itself. There is, of course, an endless circulation of water, on which the economy of nature largely depends. The mist rises from the sea and clouds are formed which condense into rain or snow on the cold mountains or in cool strata in the air. The rain falls, the springs are fed, the streamlets become rivers, and these return to the parent sea. And it is the sun that keeps this water going round; for without the sun we could not have either rain or rivers.

Why Is the Sea Salt?

On an average there are 3½ pounds of salty material to every 100 pounds of sea water; and the great bulk of this has been dissolved out by the rain from the rocks of the dry land. In a real sense the continents are always flowing into the sea. When there is an elevation of part of the floor of the sea, to form the chalk cliffs of Dover or the like, we may speak of a restitution of material from the sea to the dry land; and a better illustration of recoupment going on now may be found in the formation of a coral island on the shoulders of a submarine volcano, to which reference has been previously made. All the coral rock, which is gradually elevated and in part piled up above the sea level, consists of carbonate of lime which coral polyps and ancillary animals have extracted from the soluble lime salts of the sea water. But all that the sea has restored to the dry land is little compared with what it has filched or with what the fresh waters have surrendered.

There are dissolved salts and other solids in the water of rivers and lakes, just as there are in the sea, but those in the latter are nearly 200 times as abundant as those in the former, so we speak of fresh water and salt water. More than three-fourths of the salts in the sea consists of common salt [sodium chloride], which forms 77.7 per cent. Magnesium chloride forms 10.8 per cent, and the same percentage is made up of the sulphates of magnesium, calcium, and potassium. That leaves only 0.7 per cent for calcium carbonate, magnesium carbonate, magnesium bromide, and traces of other salts. There are so many marine animals with heavy shells of carbonate of lime—think of oysters and periwinkles alone—that one is surprised to find so little of this salt [0.3] in solution in the sea. The explanation is that the carbonate of lime used in shell making is largely formed, as the result of some process of chemical change in the tissues of the animals, from the fairly abundant calcium sulphate [3.6 per cent]. There is a far smaller proportion of silica in sea water than in river water, and the explanation must be that the silica gets locked up in the siliceous skeletons of flinty sponges and of the beautiful microscopic plants called diatoms which float near the surface.

In 100 lb. of average sea water there are 3½ lbs. of salts, and this is the "average salinity." But different parts of the surface of the sea differ markedly in salinity, for it will increase where evaporation is great [as in the Red sea]; it will decrease where the rainfall is heavy; it will decrease where there is little wind and much precipitation. In a general way, the salinity corresponds with the climate.

An interesting fact in regard to the salts of the sea is their correspondence with the salts in the blood of land animals! If the percentages of sodium, magnesium, calcium, potassium, and chlorine in sea water be compared with the percentages in blood serum, the figures are respectively 30.5 and 39; 3.79 and 0.4; 1.2 and 1.0; 1.11 and 2.7; 55.27 and 45.0. There are striking resemblances especially in the proportion of potassium and calcium to sodium. So it has been suggested by Macallum and Quinton that in Cambrian times an equilibrium was established between the living matter of marine animals and the composition of the surrounding water.

To use Sir William Bayliss' words: "When vertebrates with a closed circulatory system took to the land, they took with them a blood of the same composition, as regards salt, as the sea water which they left behind." And as to the differences which the percentages we have quoted also reveal, these may be interpreted in terms of the changes in the composition of the sea since the close of the Cambrian period. The composition of our blood is a telltale relic.

Depth of the Sea.

The total surface of the globe occupies about 197,000,000 square miles, and about 71 per cent of that [namely 140 millions] belongs to oceans, seas, and lakes. The great mirror of the sea seems very uniform to the landsman's eye, but it is really very heterogeneous. For there are shallows and depths, and apart from the floor the surface has its ups and downs. This is due to a variety of causes, but notably to the gravitational pull of the continents, which implies a heaping up of the waters round the shores. The surface of the Mid-Indian ocean is thus lowered by the Himalayas.

Thousands of soundings have been taken all over the navigable globe, and we know that the average depth of the sea is about 2½ miles. Only 16 per cent of the ocean floor lies between the shore line, and 1,000 fathoms, more than half the entire floor, is covered by depths between 2,000 and 3,000 fathoms. Sir John Murray gave the name "deeps" to holes and basins, troughs and trenches, with a depth of over 3,000 fathoms. Thus there is the "Challenger Deep" (5,269 fathoms) in the northwest Pacific, and the "Swire Deep" (5,348 fathoms) off Mindanao. Of this tremendous abyss—400 feet more than six miles—Sir John Murray wrote: "If the highest known mountain (Mount Everest in the Himalayas, 29,002 feet) could be placed in this area of the Pacific, its summit would be covered by the waters of the ocean to a depth of 3,087 feet." From the bottom of the "Swire Deep" to the top of Mount Everest would be a vertical distance of 61,091 feet, or over 11½ miles. This is surely the limit in the irregularity of the earth's crust.

Heat rays are lost at about 250 fathoms, and even in the tropics the upper stratum of warmish water is comparatively thin. The great bulk of the water in the ocean is relatively cold. There is an automatic regulation at the surface, for when the temperature rises there is increased evaporation which checks the rapidity of the rise; and if the temperature is lowered a blanket of water vapor forms over the surface which checks the rapidity of the fall. From one place to another there is great diversity of temperature, but at any given place there is, apart from the surface stratum, great constancy of temperature year in and year out.

Embarrassing Moments

Fooled.

One day, after an afternoon out, I returned to find Mrs. D.'s calling card in the mail box. I was surprised, because I barely knew her, and had not anticipated we would ever become intimate acquaintances. I returned the call, however, and had an uncomfortable feeling all the time that Mrs. D. was equally surprised at my calling on her.

I mentioned the fact to my husband that night, adding, "But I certainly found her card in my mail box."

Then our little girl, who was overhearing the conversation, suddenly became interested. "I found that card on the street, mother, on my way home from school. And I just stuck it in the mail box to fool you and make you think that you had had callers."

Now to imagine how I felt, just put yourself in my place. I won't need to tell you that that was real embarrassment. C. S. A.

Tardy Discovery.

A short while ago while working for a telegraph company, I was transferred to a new district.

One evening, having but little to do, I was "talking" to a girl friend in a neighboring city over the instrument in Morse code when a good looking man came in to send a wire.

While he was engaged in writing his message I raved to my friend of his good looks describing his hair, eyes, etc.

Imagine my feelings when I discovered by his signature he was the general manager—himself a good operator! D. Z.

Not Her Husband.

One evening my husband and I started for a small movie near us. I found I had an errand to do and told him to go in and sit near the back and I would find a seat near him, as I would only be gone a moment.

I slipped into a seat, as I thought, directly back of him and reached over and put my fingers down the back of his neck. You can imagine my horror when the man gave a grunt and turned around to see who could have done such a thing. I fled, not even waiting to see the show. F. S.

Poetry Did It.

I knew a minister who contended his wife proposed to him. It happened in this way: During their courtship it was a fad to write one's favorite lines at the top of each sheet of stationery.

One day this girl wrote her favorite lines at the top of her sheets of letter paper, and another day, in great haste, she wrote a letter to the preacher. When he unfolded the letter he read these lines:

"Grow old along with me,
The best is yet to be." L. P.

VITAMIN-STARVED?

Millions of children and grown persons are malnourished or, in other words, they are vitamin-starved.

These lack the power to throw off the cold, cough or other infection that takes hold easily or to withstand the sudden weakness.

What is needed perhaps more than anything else is vitamin-tested, emulsified, invigorating cod-liver oil to recreate strength.

Scott's Emulsion is the pleasant and efficient way to assure the weakened body the richness of health-giving vitamins which cod-liver oil supplies in needed abundance.

When you or your child take cod-liver oil, you require it not only pure and rich in vitamins but also in a form easy to take and nothing quite equals Scott's Emulsion.

Come to Pensacola

PEOPLE searching for a Florida home where land values are established on a sound investment rather than a speculative basis—

People seeking the picturesque charm lent by seashore, lake, wooded stream and rolling country-side, midst a wealth of natural resources—These people come to Pensacola.

Where People Live

For Pensacola is the commercial, industrial and residential metropolis of West Florida—the resort for two centuries of Southern people who know.

Pensacola—with an average altitude of 100 feet—swept by cooling Gulf breezes—a climate of perpetual springtime—a city bounded on three sides by the waters of the finest land locked harbor in the world.

And back of the exquisite shore line—a region of unusually diversified agriculture—all fruits, vegetables and general crops—home of the Satsuma orange—rich soils—no swamps—five feet of rainfall—a 300-day growing season. West Florida feeds the state.

Come to Pensacola. You will find here the joy of living—good schools—pure water—paved streets—low taxes—essential industries—orchards and farms—permanent homes—stability.

HELLO, BOYS! Be sure you get a NEW ERECTOR for CHRISTMAS

It's the greatest toy in the world
1,000 TOYS IN ONE

WHEN you boys have an Erector set you can make trains, draw-bridges, steam shovels, concrete mixers, diggers, lighthouses, engines, motors, dynamos, railroad signals. The powerful Erector electric motor makes them whiz and spin just like real ones.

Your greatest thrill on Christmas morning

OH, BOY! There is a lot of fun coming to you when you get your Erector. The box is jammed full of fun. When you lift the lid and see all the wonderful parts, your hands will itch to start building models right away. You'll be playing with Erector a year from now, too. Tell Dad now that an Erector will make you happier than any other present.

Why Erector Is the World's Greatest Toy

1—Erector contains more parts, builds more models than any other toy.
2—Erector square girders—an exclusive Erector feature.
3—Erector powerful electric motor—twelve big special exclusive features. (In No. 4 set and up.)
4—New Erector Boiler—an exclusive feature (in all sets from the Super-Erector No. 7 up).
5—New Steam Shovel—(In the Super-Erector No. 7 and up).
6—New Erector Dredge Bucket—(In No. 8 and up).
7—Curved Erector Girder—an exclusive Erector feature. (In all sets.)
8—Giant Fly Wheel—an exclusive Erector feature. (In No. 10 set).
9—The New Erector contains the greatest assortment of gears—ten in all—from die-cast, beveled gears, solid brass gears, to the big 50 tooth steel gears.
10—Erector is made from structural steel, plated, enameled and electrically baked.
11—Designed by engineers, used by engineers and endorsed by engineers.
12—The mechanical engineering features of Erector are correct. It is the only perfect method of reproducing engineering feats.
13—It is perfectly interchangeable, owing to the minute details of standardization.

ERECTOR SETS

No. 1 contains 104 parts. Builds 278 models	$1.00
No. 3 contains 169 parts. Builds 381 models	$3.00

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

St. Anselm Church Dedicated Today

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

ST. ANSELM'S Catholic church, costing $350,000, at 61st street and South Michigan avenue, will be dedicated today by his eminence Cardinal Mundelein. The Rev. M. S. Gilmartin is the pastor. Pontifical high mass will be sung by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Byrne of Galveston, Tex. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. James D. O'Neill, D. D., of Highland Park.

Yesterday morning at 8 o'clock Bishop Edward F. Hoban, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, consecrated the three Carrara marble altars. The church is built of Toronto brick and blue Bedford stone. Its seating capacity is 1,300. The marble altars and the art windows were made in Munich, Germany.

Many priests will assist in the ceremony, including: The Rt. Rev. Mgr. P. W. Dunne, arch-priest to his eminence; the Rt. Rev. Mgr. P. J. McDonnell, the Rt. Rev. Mgr. J. F. Ryan, the Very Rev. Mgr. B. J. Sheil, the Very Rev. J. J. Code, the Very Rev. Mgr. Frank O'Brien, the Very Rev. Mgr. E. Fox, the Rev. B. C. Heeney, the Rev. Maurice A. Downey, the Rev. James J. Horsburgh, and the Rev. W. Quinlisk. Bishop Hoban will administer the right of confirmation at the evening service at 7:30.

The First Methodist Episcopal church of Naperville, Ill., a church dating back to 1832 and having during its history a succession of sixty pastors, will dedicate its new $90,000 building today. The Rev. Benjamin Will, pastor for four years, will be in general charge. Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of the Chicago area will preach in the morning and dedicate the church. He will be assisted by Dr. William J. Davidson, president of Illinois Wesleyan university. Dr. Horace G. Smith, district superintendent, will preach in the afternoon, and Dr. E. F. Tittle, pastor of the First church of Evanston, will preach in the evening.

The material is oak bark brick with a red tile roof and exposed timbers in the gable. The style is a combination of Gothic and old English. The Rev. Charles W. Thornton and Mrs. Thornton have given a memorial organ, which will be dedicated on Tuesday evening. Dr. Dan B. Brummitt will speak on Wednesday evening, and on Thursday evening there will be a homecoming banquet.

Congregationalists will hold a state convocation at Knox college, Decatur, Ill., beginning at 4:30 on Monday afternoon, Dec. 28, and closing the following Wednesday evening. Prof. D. C. MacIntosh of Yale divinity school will give four lectures; Prof. R. C. Brooks of Pomona college, Cal., and Dr. H. H. Walker of Chicago will give other lectures. Dr. Ozora S. Davis of Chicago will open the convocation with devotional exercises.

THE REV. W. A. SIMMS.
[Walinger Photo.]

The Rev. W. A. Simms is rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, 4427 Drexel boulevard, who will preach today the anniversary sermon of the church founded sixty years ago. The present church is the result of a consolidation of the former St. Alban's and the Church of the Transfiguration with the original St. Mark's. The name St. Mark's was retained because of its long historical associations. The founder of the church was the Rev. E. B. Tuttle, who was the chaplain of Camp Douglas, where confederate prisoners were confined during the civil war. The first chapel was one for the soldiers erected by gifts from them. The bell, which is now among the relics in the Chicago Historical society building, was cast from coin given by the soldiers. The Rev. William White Wilson, a previous rector, was accidentally killed by a street car in 1912.

The Rev. Joseph Reiner, S. J., dean of the college of arts and sciences of Loyola university, will give a course of lectures during Advent in St. Ignatius Catholic church. This evening his subject will be "The Church and Prohibition" and next Sunday evening, "The Church and International Peace."

◆

Dr. David Hugh Jones, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Evanston, Ill., will occupy the pulpit this evening at the Englewood Presbyterian church, Yale avenue and 64th street, under the auspices of the men's association.

The Chicago Lutheran Sunday School Teachers' institute will hold commencement exercises this evening at 7:45 o'clock in Bethany church, Thorndale and Magnolia avenues, the Rev. Karl G. Schierf, pastor. About 150 teachers will receive diplomas.

"American Flyer"
ELECTRIC and MECHANICAL RAILROADS

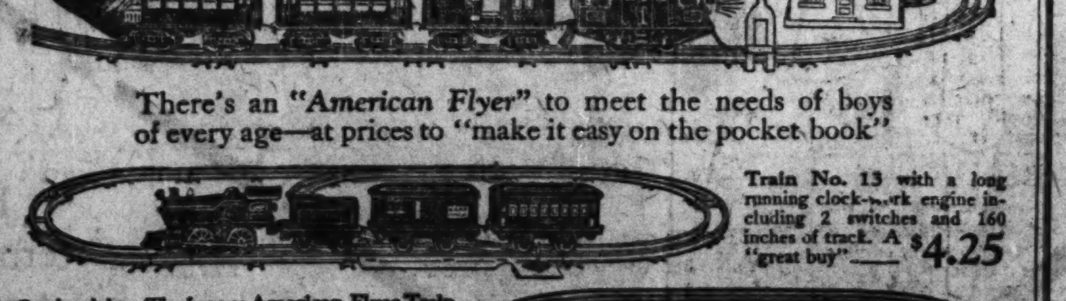
The "ALL AMERICAN" —the NEW WIDE GAUGE Electric "FEATURE" Train of the "American Flyer" Line

Here's the most interesting Big Wide Gauge Train ever designed. Ask to see it at the Toy Stores and Electric Shops—you will really be surprised at the wonderful "FEATURES" of the "ALL AMERICAN."

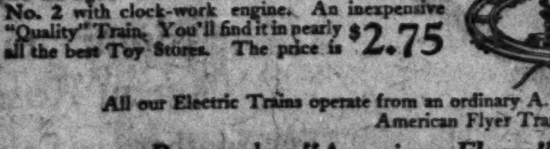
It's quite a sight to see this Big Train reverse automatically, notice that the Headlights also reverse automatically with the train. Watch how the automatic couplers hook up cars and engine with no help from the operator. Then as the Train tears down the track see how the Mail Bag Catcher grabs the sack of mail and throws it into the Mail Car. With its flashing headlights, brilliantly lighted Pullmans and the flood light on the platform of the Observation Car you'll say the "All American" is "some train." Most of the "features" are patented and found only on

"American Flyer" ELECTRIC AND MECHANICAL Trains

Train No. 1221 illustrated below is one of the American Flyer Electrics featured in the Saturday Evening Post and the big national magazines for boys. It has the automatic mail bag catcher, electric headlight and lots of other "features." You'll find it in most stores. The price is ——— $12.25

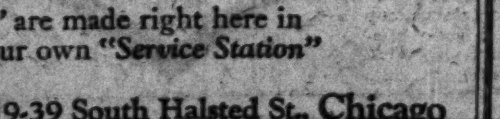


There's an "American Flyer" to meet the needs of boys of every age—at prices to "make it easy on the pocket book"



Train No. 13 with a long running clock-work engine including 2 switches and 160 inches of track. A "great buy" ——— $4.25

On the right—The famous American Flyer Train No. 2 with clock-work engine. An inexpensive "Quality" Train. You'll find it in nearly all the best Toy Stores. The price is $2.75



All our Electric Trains operate from an ordinary A. C. Electric Socket in connection with an American Flyer Transformer.

Remember "American Flyers" are made right here in Chicago, where we maintain our own "Service Station"

Executives and Managers.

SITUATION WTD—I COULD SIT BEHIND the mahogany, look wise and draw my salary—but I wouldn't be happy. Could give a good service, too, if I had an assistant who would bring me in all the facts from the field—but, as I said, I wouldn't be happy because I want to see and hear for myself. Any real sales executive knows that this makes all the difference in the world. So about twice a month I grab my hat and a clean collar and get out into the field and sell and talk and listen. I get—first hand—the viewpoint of the buyer and the consumer. Sometimes I go incog as I want to get the adverse stuff, kicks, etc., if any—the simple things that the average sales manager wouldn't see; and if he did, would think insignificant. I develop new sales talks in person while actually selling—boil them down into the most interesting, briefest and most powerful form—then write them down and pass to the salesmen. I can put new life, enthusiasm and fight into a sales force. This appeals only to concerns who appreciate—and will reward—a man of unusual ability and exp. Address C G 251, Tribune.

AMBITIOUS MEN WANTED.

Salary—Bonus—Commission

We require more men to help us handle our ever increasing volume of business. We can break all sales records if we get the right men right away. That's why we will hire men inexperienced in selling, give them the best training in this business, and a permanent, well paying position.

Many of our highest paid men earned as little as $30 a week before coming to work for us. Now they own good cars and are enjoying big incomes every week. A. A. M., who earned only $4,000 a year before we hired him, earned more than $25,000 last year, his second year with us.

You can do the same if you are intelligent willing to work, and 21 years or older.

LEADS FURNISHED.

This means a permanent position, a steady high income, and an opportunity to rise to an executive position with the largest firm of its kind in Chicago, as all our managers are chosen from the sales force.

Never before has such an excellent money making opportunity been offered to workers. It may never come again. We need MEN—NOW!

ATTENTION, EXPERIENCED AND INEXPERIENCED SALESMEN.

A few earnest men who want to make a permanent connection will be enrolled in our organization in the next few days. We do not often advertise for help, and these positions will be filled at once. Those who take them will not be looking for jobs again for a long time, probably never again, for once a man is inducted into this organization, he receives our backing to the limit and is given every conceivable aid in putting himself into that class who pay substantial income taxes every year.

AN INVITATION

is herewith extended to attend our regular Wednesday evening meetings at 8 o'clock. At these meetings you can gain an excellent idea as to our purpose and method of operating.

IF YOU NEED MONEY

don't wait until Wednesday. Come in at once, and if you are the sort we want we will put you to work. Additional compensation in other forms will assure you all the money you need.

ATTENTION!

Every Salesman in America!
HEAR MY STORY!
SEE MY EXHIBITS!
MAKE ME PROVE THIS!

NOTE:

This ad is written for the benefit of men who are tired and disgusted with their present rate of income—for men who for one reason or another want to get off the road—want to get away from the too slow, hard work and drudgery of their present positions for the hundreds of salesmen working around Chicago and making about half as much as they feel they are entitled to—for men who are available on short notice—for men who have eyes to see and ears to hear, and for men not afraid to follow their convictions. Hear the rest of this story. Then use your own judgment.

I am organizing Chicago's largest sales force. This organization will sell Florida lots, sell them right off the plat—right here in Chicago. Maybe you think that is hard to do, but wait till a little later and find out how and why we do it and learn about the machinery we have in operation which makes it easy for you to sell off the plat in Chicago. I will spend a fortune to make this organization big and put this sales force over the top. I will help every man to make a big income if he has it in him. I will surround every man with the means and methods that will put him in contact with prospects and help him close the deals; I will help you double your income in 2 weeks if you will do what I say and follow my way of doing business. The reason I can do it is just this. Read on!

The man behind the gun is a multi-millionaire. He is spending $7,000,000 in the best location on the east coast of Florida, between Palm Beach and Miami. He is the developer and the man responsible for one of Florida's greatest residential achievements. He owns millions of dollars' worth of property which will soon be one of the world's most famous real estate developments. Associated with him are 540 other Chicagoans. He offers the most remarkable opportunity of any organization in America for men to join him in the sale of his property, located in a city which is being built to order on a grander scale than any famous resort of the old world. The man who joins this organization is in a position to make a fortune if he has the gumption to follow through. Now get this date fixed in your mind.

I am going to show you Florida in motion pictures Tuesday evening, 8 o'clock, Dec. 15. I am going to give you an opportunity to see aerial views of Miami, Palm Beach, and that wonderful East Coast of Florida. I am going to give you an opportunity to see the sports, bathing beaches, and palaces that line the coast of Florida. And I am going to show you what this big Chicagoan has already accomplished in Florida. You can see it all with your own eyes. And, further, I am going to tell you of our plans and policies, how we get business, where we get it, and why you can make more money than you ever dreamed of making in a sales position. All this will be done at the meeting.

YOU ARE INVITED. BE THERE FOR YOUR OWN SAKE OR FOR YOUR FAMILY'S SAKE TUESDAY EVENING, 8 O'CLOCK, DECEMBER 15, AUDITORIUM, 11TH FLOOR, 116 S. MICHIGAN-AV. COME EARLY. THERE WILL BE A CROWD. GET A COMFORTABLE SEAT. ABSOLUTELY NO OBLIGATION.

BE THERE!

ATTENTION,

SALES PEOPLE.

Whether or not you are successful, let me tell you that three years ago I had no knowledge of the real estate business. I started in the ranks as a salesman with very little money in my pockets. In the short space of three years I find myself director of sales of the fastest growing subdivision organization in the City of Chicago and now I have a very substantial bank balance. Others may offer you various inducements to secure your services, but I want to explain how my record, as having produced men and women who are recognized in the selling of real estate in the City of Chicago, is ultra successful. I can do the same for you if you will but grant me an interview. Highest possible remuneration for the sale of the choicest property available, priced to "Meet and Beat All Competition." I have absolutely solved the question of your success. Come in at once. I will tell you more about it. All interviews strictly confidential.

HOLLYWOOD.

Good men with clean records have with us an opportunity for permanent employment on a commission basis.

The development record of Hollywood, Florida, in four years is unmatched, both as to extent and permanency.

Our $3,000,000 Beach Hotel is but one of five large hotels that will be in operation by January. We have the finest railroad station south of Jacksonville; schools, churches, golf club, $250,000 bathing casino; a thriving business center, beautiful homes and apartments, miles of ocean front, board walk, and the 15 million dollar harbor [now under construction]. These are only a part of the development to date.

If you are willing to apply yourself and not afraid of hard work, you do not need previous sales experience, as our plans are complete and quickly learned. Our special sales instructions are an education in themselves. We show you how to make good.

Even if you have never sold before come in any time between 9 a. m. and 9 p. m. and talk it over with our agent, Mr. Bacon, at 108 W. Madison-st. Phones Franklin 1026-1027.

I HAVE ON MY DESK NOW BEFORE ME 209 MORE INQUIRIES FOR OUR PROPOSITION THAT SHOULD BE COVERED TONIGHT.

It is now 4 p. m. Every salesman has been busy since 9 o'clock this morning and will be until 9 o'clock tonight. This is but a small part of what our problem will be when our big campaign starts in January. I am promoting 4 of our present executives to bigger jobs. We are doubling our organization. There will be openings for at least 10 new executives and 50 salesmen. Don't worry about the earnings. If you are ambitious and have the ability you can forget your present job and your bank account will grow by leaps and bounds. It will be worth your while to spend an hour talking this over.

Illinois and Indiana, January 1st; well known manufacturer bathing suits, bath robes, and sweaters. Established trade in the territory; good commission, with expenses advanced. Mention age, experience, and references. Address M C 440, Tribune.

TO SINCERE SALESMEN:

Aren't you tired of the highly speculative, the potential future profits and values dependent upon things which may or may not happen and which require high pressure—real estate, stocks, bonds, insurance, etc.? Wouldn't you like to sell a conservative proposition where there is no speculation and where there is an immediate monthly and high return to the purchaser?

We have just that unusual thing—a proposition available to any one having $150 or over, paying immediately each month, 18% per year and up to unheard of rates, embracing a which eliminates all speculation and sales resistance—a SURETY BOND of the largest bonding company in the world direct to purchaser, completely guaranteeing the investment. Stands most rigid investigation; managed and backed by Chicago business men of highest standing. Our men are making from $250 to over $1,000 per week. Be sure to investigate. A new selling organization. Join now and get in the front rank. See F. M. MILLER, R. 543, 332 S. Michigan-av.

TO THE BEST REAL ESTATE ORGANIZATION IN CHGO.

It is not necessary that you go to Florida to participate in the remarkable development at its height in that state. Tuesday, Dec. 15, I will offer to a live selling organization an unsurpassed opportunity to handle the Chicago territory, for a high class ocean front development, in Florida. No investment required. Simply proof of ability and a live sales organization, with an established office and equipment.

This is a proposition of sufficient import to interest the best organization in the city. Will consider applications from other principal cities in the state. Address C 187, Tribune.

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR HOSIERY SALESMAN.
(Not House to House.)

One of the leading and fastest growing hosiery mills in this country, making a complete nationally advertised line for men, women, and children, wants an outstanding representative to work Illinois territory, selling to retailers only. They have a substantial business already established in this territory, but know it can be greatly increased by a salesman of vision, energy, and ability to co-operate with an unusual program of expansion. Interested only in a man of proven character and ability. Address A I 11, Tribune.

YOU ARE THE MAN WE ARE LOOKING FOR.

You are full of ambition, have plenty of ability, not afraid to work, but up to date you have not satisfied your own desire, and that of your friends, in the way of financial returns. We know what you need—a good experienced business guide to show you how you can get the maximum amount of money in the application of your ability. We know that we can guide you to greater returns.

We have taken other normal men who had not found the proper channel to apply their energy and ability, and shown them the way to become great financial and business successes.

It is certainly worth a few minutes of your time to receive the benefit of the analysis of men of experience in active business careers in pointing out to you the way to become a bigger success—a bigger financial producer. We all need more money. We assume that you are in the same position.

The average man does not read advertisements purely from curiosity, but is prompted by a desire to find an opportunity to better his financial returns—that opportunity is staring you in the face now. Make up your mind to come into our office and let us show you HOW to make enough money to be financially independent.

You are also invited to attend our Night School of Instruction in Salesmanship, held Monday Evening, Dec. 14th, 8 P. M., 11th floor, 116 S. Michigan-av.

This school has a special appeal to the man who is at present engaged during the day and is desiring of making a great deal of extra money with a few spare hours at night time. This school was instituted for the benefit of the part time worker, the man full of ambition and desire for the better things of life.

Miscellaneous.

MEN WITHOUT SALES EXPERIENCE.

We have engaged Professor Delbert Ullrick, specialist in character reading to personally analyze each man who answers this advertisement to definitely determine if he is naturally qualified to handle a city sales position.

Square pegs cannot be fitted to round holes, but many a man is handicapping himself by sticking to an inside job without a salary of $40 to $50 per week.

Some of these salaried men are natural salesmen, but do not know it. If they had confidence in themselves and positively knew that they were salesmen they would take selling positions.

The salesman is the man who can make the big money—$5,000 or more a year is easily earned by the good salesman.

Come in Monday after 10 a. m. and let Professor Ullrick definitely tell you if you are qualified to sell. If Professor Ullrick recommends you, we will offer you a regular city sales position in our organization with every co-operation to help you succeed.

to increase your earnings materially is offered by one of Florida's strictly high class corporations; all or part time can be devoted to our work. It is not selling real estate. An interview will convince you. Phone W. E. ANDERSON, Wabash 2646, Monday, after 9 a. m., for appointment.

ATTENTION, LADIES.

Do you want to become successful? If so, I have solved your problem and have paved the way for your financial success. In the past three years I have developed in excess of one hundred ladies who were inexperienced in sales work, to the point that most of my ladies have reached an income in excess of $1,000 per month. This may seem impossible to you, but I have living evidence right in my organization today and you may meet these people when you call on me for confidential information. This is the opportunity of a lifetime and I want you to see me at once.

DO NOT PASS ME BY.

THE BRYSON

One of Chicago's Fine Hotels.
LAKE PARK-AV., NEAR 50TH-ST.

THE BRYSON was formally opened Sept. 17, 1925. It has already created a record in attractive guests of discrimination and refinement.

Many timeworn conventions of hotel life have been set aside in favor of hospitality and comfort. The quiet elegance and the unusual details of service make THE BRYSON unique among hotels.

The rooms are spacious and overlook Lake Michigan. Furnishings of quality invite relaxation and rest. The best transportation in Chicago is available. Ten minutes to the loop on Illinois Central express trains. Surface cars and busses nearby.

There is an excellent dining room in the hotel. Club breakfasts are served at moderate prices. Luncheon fifty cents, evening dinner one dollar.

A limited number of single rooms, suites and a few kitchenettes are yet available. The rates are very attractive.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Florida.

FLORIDA

Is the Land of Opportunity, Sunshine, Comfort, Plenty, Winter and Summer.

Listen and Profit

I own outright a number of choice Florida properties located along the beautiful Florida East Coast, principally in the Palm Beach section and south.

As a very young lad, I came to Chicago in 1893, from Philadelphia. Thirty years ago I visited, with my father, as a tourist, in Florida, and again in 1910, also several times since, but only as a tourist, and since that time until a year ago, I absolutely forgot that Florida was on the map. But last January, 1925, I concluded to commercialize my foresight, and I went to Florida to look the state over, and I have been there practically ever since, visiting Chicago and other northern points occasionally.

After riding thousands of miles throughout the State of Florida, familiarizing myself with the property values and the commercial possibilities, etc., of each location, I began to purchase outright with my own funds a number of choice Florida properties, REALIZING "WONDERFUL PROFITS," establishing my offices in Florida, and am now opening a Chicago office, where any one interested in Florida may interview me and learn the truth regarding Florida.

I will personally be in Chicago only a limited time on this trip. Therefore, if you wish to interview me, I suggest quick action, addressing me, D 326, Tribune.

Studebaker's PRE-XMAS SALE

BREAKS ALL RECORDS IN VALUE-GIVING

100 excellent values to select from. All models, 25 makes, all types.

SPECIAL XMAS PURCHASE PLAN.

Come in today—now—see the values for yourself and learn the details of the special purchase plan which is being offered in conjunction with the Pre-Xmas sale.

Nash Sedan, 1926.

Driven 571 miles, just enough to be broken in properly. This advanced 5 passenger sedan is virtually new, but must be sold as a used car. It was traded in to us for a larger car and is perfect in every respect. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, new extra tire, large stop light, 2 Underwriters inspected bumpers, balloon tires, rear view mirror, automatic wind shield wiper, and motometer. Guaranteed. The Pre-Xmas sale price is $1,445.

Overland Sedan, 1925.

The serial number of this car is 21011, which is just one number from being a 1926 model. We are forced to sell this car at 1925 price, which is really attractive. Has disc wheels and 5 practically new cord tires. Equipped with aluminum step plates, heater, Boyce motometer, circle wind shield spotlight, latest one piece wind shield, and stop light. Guaranteed. For the Pre-Xmas sale the price is $950.

Davis Sedan, 1925.

This Sport de Luxe Sedan is like new in every way. There is not a mar or blemish on the fenders or body. It is equipped with a large heater, trunk, 5 disc wheels [one on side of car], rear vision mirror, automatic w. s. wiper, step plates, circle wind shield spotlight, dome light, and attractive double bar bumpers. The tires show practically no wear. Its heavy velour upholstery is like new. This is a good looking car and is in the best of mechanical condition. Guaranteed. Reduced from $975 to $845 for the Pre-Xmas sale.

Moon Roadster, 1925.

Sport with rumble seat. A beautiful olive green with black running-gear. There is not a mar or scratch on the body or fenders. The tires are like new. It is a clean job, inside and out. And equipped with 2 bumpers, extra tire, and large stop light. In finest mechanical condition. For the man who wants a sporty car this is a value very seldom seen. Guaranteed. $850.

Dodge, Rex Top.

A late 1923 touring like new with a brand new Rex Top. Here is one of the cleanest used cars you will ever see, and is equipped with every imaginable extra: nickel plated drum headlights, parking lights, running board lanterns, revolving windshield spotlight, step plates, large motometer, 2 bumpers, extra tire, sun visor, rear visor mirror, automatic w. s. w., etc. The tires are almost new. And the price is only $525.

Oldsmobile Touring.

Has its original finish and tires which are like new. There is not a mar or scratch on either the body or fenders. Driven only 3,000 miles. Brand new side curtains. Perfect mechanical condition. Equipped with 2 bumpers, unusual stop light, extra tire, automatic w. s. wiper, and unusual spotlight. This is a certified car. Was $495. Now $395.

Essex Coach, Like New.

Late model 6 cylinder; refinished standard Essex blue and overhauled. Driven only 3,600 miles and can't be told from new. Equipped with every imaginable extra. Was $595. Pre-Xmas sale $435.

Hudson Coupe, Super Six.

Three passenger coupe; in exceptionally good mechanical condition. Has its original finish, which also is very fine. This is a value you very seldom see. Reduced from $300 to $145 for quick sale.

Hupmobile Roadster.

Refinished a beautiful Comanche brown; this car will appeal to the most discriminating. It is a late 1923 model and it was originally marked at $545. Pre-Xmas sale, $425.

Ford Coupe, 1925.

This coupe shows very little signs of use and was originally marked at $450. For the Pre-Xmas sale the price is $365. It has special wheel lock, 2 bumpers, and other extra equipment.

Ford Sedan, 1925.

This car is like new in every way. You would ordinarily pay $550 for a car in this condition. For our special sale the price is only $445.

Haynes Coupe.

Original finish; new tires; in good mechanical condition. This coupe has four new tires and is reduced from $300 to $175. You will be surprised to see such a clean car at such a low price.

Durant Club Coupe.

Late model, with its original finish, which is that of a new car. It has been rebuilt, and has its original tires, which are in splendid condition. Was $600. Now $475.

Stephens, Winter Sides.

This late 1923 Stephens with winter sides has been refinished a beautiful battleship gray, with red running gear, and is a dandy car throughout. Reduced from $375 to $285.

Studebaker, Winter Sides.

Light 6 with winter sides, which makes it as snug and warm as a closed car. Its original finish is almost like new and was formerly marked at $575. Pre-Xmas special. $445.

Moon '23 6-40 Touring.

6 cylinder Continental motor; Spanish grain upholstery; original finish like new; new tires; disc wheels; Gabriel snubbers. This is a wonderful bargain at $450. Was $575.

Buick Touring.

Late '23; refinished and has new car appearance. It also runs like a new car. Has good tires and many extras. It is now marked at $345.

Studebaker Brougham.

Late model Big 6 with a special lacquer job of West Point blue. Completely overhauled and is certified. Upholstery, fenders, body, etc., like new. Reduced from $1,185 to $950.

Reo Touring.

Original finish in wonderful condition. This car will give thousands of miles of care free service, and in order to move it at once the price is only $125. Was $225.

Willys-Knight Roadster.

With glass sides. This is a dandy job. Has oversized tires, and its original finish is almost like new. Mechanically perfect. Reduced from $625 to $525.

Jordan Touring.

Late '23 with its original finish, which is in splendid condition. Has practically new tires and is fully equipped. It is exceptionally clean inside and out. See this car at $625.

Dodge Coupe.

Late model; reduced from $600 to $450. Tires and original finish like new. This car will appeal to the most discriminating. Has many extras and has been gone over in our shop.

Dodge Touring.

Late '23 for only $295. Has special barrel headlights and is in wonderful condition throughout. Has disc wheels and practically new tires. It is needless to say that this is a rare bargain.

JORDAN

RICKENBACKER 1923 SEDAN, 5 PASS. Has been in the hands of only one owner and evidences the finest care throughout. Tires show but little wear; upholstery like new; original finish excellent. Mechanically it could not be improved upon. Has disc wheels, snubbers, 2 bumpers, visor, mirror, stoplight, step plates, floor heater and other extras. We consider this an exceptional value at $700.

1925 FORD TUDOR SEDAN. Original finish and upholstery like new. 100% mechanically. Has shock absorbers, speedometer, windshield spotlight, large wheel and lock, visor, mirror, squeegee, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $350.

1925 JORDAN SEDAN, 5 PASS., 6 CYL. This very late car refinished in a beautiful shade of Crane-Simplex and given our rigid mechanical inspection. Original balloon tires show practically no signs of use. Has 4 wheel brakes, trunk, 2 bumpers, springs wrapped, snubbers, automatic windshield cleaner and spotlight, mirror, motometer and bars, step plates, etc. New car service and guarantee. $1,500.

1925 JORDAN GREAT LINE 8 BROUGHAM, 4 DOOR. Delivered a short time ago at a cost of more than $3,200 and traded for a Jordan of larger seating capacity. It is the equal of new in every respect and next purchaser is assured of new car service and satisfaction. Guaranteed. Beautiful maroon finish, upholstery like new, nickeled radiator and lamps, 5 almost new balloon tires, $40 spotlight, bumpers, motometer, 4 wheel hydraulic brakes, etc. You can save about $1,000 at our price of $2,250.

Pre-Inventory Demonstrator Sale

We have four demonstrators in both 6 and 8 cylinder models; all closed cars which we are offering at a very attractive price. These cars have very little mileage and received the best of care, carry a new car guarantee, and are really better than new cars as they have been very carefully broken in. Now is your opportunity to buy a real Christmas Gift for the family at much less than you would ordinarily pay for this kind of car.

We will not have these cars long at the price we have placed on them, so act quickly.

Rolls-Royce OFFERINGS

PIERCE-ARROW ROADSTER. This smart, speedy roadster, Series 33, easily shows the wonderful care and attention afforded it. In appearance it cannot be distinguished from a new car. The mechanical condition is as perfect as it is possible to be. Every detail, both inside and out show absolutely no signs of wear. This is a very unusual offering and a wonderful opportunity for some one to secure one of these roadsters. To those interested, we advise an immediate inspection and trial demonstration, at which time you will readily appreciate its wonderful riding qualities and appearance. A very unusual value at $2,000.

CRANE SIMPLEX TOURING. It is seldom that we have the opportunity of offering this type of car at such a remarkably low price, and we are of the opinion that the first caller to inspect it will see its unmatched value. This car was recently turned into us by a prominent Chicagoan who has made his final choice of a ROLLS-ROYCE. It is beautifully finished in Crane Gray Duco without mar or blemish, and presents every appearance of new. The cord tires, mechanism, and, in fact, every accessory and detail easily shows the excellent care it has received. An early call and inspection is suggested to those interested, as it has been priced for immediate clearance at only $1,500.

Diverting Pageant and an using Sample of the Wiles of lorida's Practicing Bootleggers ome to Three Pleasure Seekers Stranded on a Sand Bar

O LOOK at the wonderful yellow water!" I heard Mary Roche exclaim.

She was at the wheel of what the bureau navigation described as "the American gas w Goldfish"; Mrs. Roche was in the cockpit ep, I suspect, in a wicker chair; Oscar was in the ley, forward, peeling potatoes; I was in the engine m, just below Mary Roche, contemplating our sporting pet, and wondering if she would stop cking if I hit her a crack with a wrench—for some ines respond only to brutal treatment. We were of us in a tortuous Florida waterway, somewhere the general vicinity of Cape Crocus. As I said——

"O, look at the wonderful yellow water!" I heard ry Roche exclaim.

I bobbed up through the engine room hatch. Experience has taught me to be suspicious of Mary Roche's den enthusiasms. I did not look at the wonderful low water. I caught a glimpse of a telltale wave ling to starboard from our stern. I felt, more than actually saw, our bow rise like an elevator, and ched ineffectively for the wheel.

"Port!" I shouted to Mary Roche.

"What?" she asked, looking over the starboard rail.

"Port!" I howled, scrambling up companionway. "Turn the wheel port—to the left!"

"O, turn the wheel," Mary Roche marked—and we struck, on sand tunately, but hard, up and on, and er, plowing our way in at eight ts.

"You and your wonderful yellow ter," I told Mary Roche. "Don't you know a shoal en you see one? Put her in neutral."

"Put what in neutral? O, I know, pull back this d"

"Put your foot on the clutch."

Oscar's tawny dome appeared through the galley tch like a moon.

"What for you do that?" he inquired sourly. "I ost cut my thumb."

From the cockpit Mrs. Roche addressed me.

"Are we there, John? O—I thought you'd brought up to a dock, we bumped so hard."

Mary Roche laughed. She always laughed whenever y allusion was made to the time I bumped the dock New Smyrna.

"No, we're not there," I informed Mrs. Roche. "We're here. Your daughter has just piled us up on a shoal. We may be here forever."

"Dear me," Mrs. Roche observed, and went back, I suspect, to sleep. She is the most imperturbable woman I have ever known.

"Don't be absurd," Mary Roche insisted. "Just because I happened to be at the wheel—you'd have done the same thing probably. You were aground ten times in one hour yesterday up at the inlet. If we can't back off, we'll wait until the tide floats us."

Now I read a review of a book somewhere in which the reviewer said that no man, and he a college graduate, would ever have called his lady love a poor fish. Well, I am a college graduate, and I have been in love with Mary Roche for years, but that is precisely what I called her.

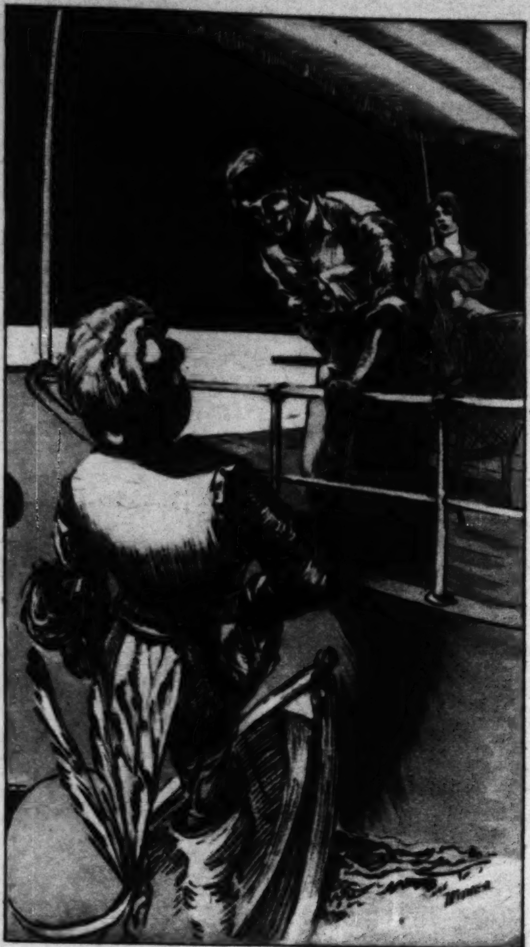
"Why, you poor fish," I said to her. "What do you mean, tide? There isn't any tide here."

"That's funny," she objected. "There's a moon!"

A thoroughly typical Mary Roche remark.

It was because of such a remark that we were in Florida at the time, instead of in the icy wilderness of New York. The only outward and visible sign of any inward and spiritual grace which I may possess in Mary Roche's eyes is the fact that she occasionally calls me up on the telephone at unexpected hours of the day and summons me to meet her in fortuitous places—as often as not a certain book shop near the public library—from which we drift up the avenue in state of mild argument concerning my various shortcomings, while she looks at the shop windows and the passersby look at her.

And no wonder, for Mary Roche is extremely easy to look at. I often find myself looking at her for whole minutes at a time without hearing a word that she is saying. The first time I ever saw her I nearly was run over by a taxicab I was so busy looking at her. She has auburn hair and extraordinary eyes the color of one of the stones in the heavenly Jerusalem—I forget which one—and a fine big mouth and chin. When she is having a good time, she hums to herself as she goes swinging along, and at the theater when something startles her she says "O, my Lord!" in a loud voice you can hear all over the house. I am informed she is extremely efficient; all I know is she is inconceivably adorable and I spend most of my time telling her so, but to no apparent purpose.



"Do you mind telling me what you think you're doing?"

Around the Bend

by MEADE MINNIGERODE

Blue Ribbon Fiction

WELL, one afternoon in February she called me up, and in an evil hour we went to the Motor Boat show. I say in an evil hour, because it is almost impossible to go to the Motor Boat show without buying something. Marine hardware is practically irresistible, and after you have purchased a navy compass, and a fog signal, and a couple of ship's lanterns, and have loitered over a cute little brass cannon and a complete set of international code signals, you are more or less obliged, if you do not possess one already, to buy a boat to go with them. They lure you aboard anyway, the salesmen, and fill your eyes full of white paint, and brass work, and palm trees, and your ears full of "one man control," "floating home," and "it's June now in Miami," until you stick out your chest and formulate sentences in your mind in which the words "my boat" stamp themselves irrevocably upon your vanity.

But at that I should probably not have bought a boat that afternoon if it had not been for a remark of Mary Roche's. She was all for having me buy one, of course. She is always thinking up occupations for me, or suggesting that I take a trip to Guam, or go to Geneva and work for the league of nations, or spend a year in a fishing village on Chesapeake bay and write an historical novel about Maryland.

"It would do you a world of good," she assured me. "You never stir out of your apartment here in New York, you don't see enough of life. Why don't you buy a boat—the man says any boob can run one."

"My dear girl," I objected, "I'd look sweet in a boat, now wouldn't I? I don't know the first thing about them, and I loathe machinery. I'd have a sw time."

"You could take Oscar along. He's a Swede, and all Swedes are sailors, aren't they?"

"Oscar's a butler," I reminded her, "and an excellent cook, not an engineer. And besides, I've no desire to go away from New York."

"O, pooh!" she exclaimed. "You make me tired. You—you're the kind of person who makes tea with a tea ball. You have the soul of a goldfish."

Soul of a goldfish! I glanced at the salesman who was pretending not to be listening.

"Guaranteed delivery in New York any time you say," he remarked. "Or we'll put her aboard the steamer for you and send her to Savannah or any place you please. Our motto is service."

"Look here," I asked Mary Roche. "If I buy a boat, will you come on a cruise with your mother?"

"On a cruise? Wh-where?"

"O, anywhere—Florida, Nassau, Havana——"

"With just you and Oscar?"

"Yes, with just me and Oscar—any boob can run one, you know—come on, I dare you. I'll match my soul against yours any day!"

"O, is that so!" Mary Roche flared at me. "All right, I'll go."

"How about your mother?"

"Don't you worry about mother," she advised me. "You can't crawl out of it that way."

That decided me. The salesman, whose motto was service, already had a contract under my nose.

"What name?" he inquired. "For your boat, I mean."

For your boat—they certainly have a painless way of extracting several thousand dollars from you, those salesmen.

"The name will be Goldfish," I told him.

"And a very good name, too," he agreed.

"I don't like it at all," Mary Roche announced.

"Well, now, that's too bad" I laughed at her. "I was hoping you'd be godmother. I'll call her the Tea Ball if you say so."

"O, don't be simple!"

I took a parting look at my Goldfish—and a sweet little boat she seemed all of a sudden, in her trim white and varnish, with her galley and forecastle for Oscar, and her main cabin, and the one in the stern for my guests, and all her other fixings—and then we went away from the Motor Boat show to go and tell Mrs. Roche. She took it quite characteristically.

"My dear John Morton!" she remarked. "What an extraordinary idea. I suppose we shall be able to play Mah Jongg in the cockpen?"

"Pit," I suggested. "Cockpit."

"O, yes, cockpit."

Oscar, too, was quite unmoved when I informed him of his new status.

"Ay tank we have fun," he observed cryptically.

AND now here we were on a Florida sand bar, having all the fun in the world, since getting a fifty foot power boat off a shoal comes technically under the head of pleasure. I waved Mary Roche off the bridge, and put the engine in reverse, more as a necessary formality than from any real expectation of being able to back off. For several minutes we churned up a whirlpool of muddy water astern while Mary Roche gazed hopefully at the shore.

"I think we're moving," she kept assuring me.

"Like a stationary pump," I told her, and called to Oscar.

We got the stern anchor into the dinghy, and he rowed it out and dropped it over. Then we rowed back, and we hauled. We hauled until we were blue in the face. When we got tired of hauling we went up in the bows and pushed with the poles. Then we hauled some more. We did not move an inch.

"Ay tank we bane stuck for fair," Oscar decided.

I stretched out on one of the cockpit cushions and lit a cigaret. Oscar went back to his potatoes. Nothing was said for a while.

"I'm sorry," Mary Roche remarked finally. "Is—is there anything we can do?"

"For the present, nothing," I informed her. "Tomorrow morning, when my spinal column has uncoiled itself, we'll take everything out of the boat and see if we can get her off that way. We can spend the night here just as well as not—we're as safe as the ark on Ararat."

"I—I'm sorry," Mary Roche repeated.

"Your apology is accepted," I conceded. "How about a game of Mah Jongg before dinner?"

Mrs. Roche woke up at once. Somehow, I suspect that Mrs. Roche does not particularly enjoy cruising. However, we got out the table and rolled the dice for East Wind. We play a denatured variety of the game—we have no wall, but simply leave all the tiles face down in the middle of the table and draw them at random like dominoes. It saves a great deal of time. I was just about to pung a Green Dragon when Mary Roche, who was facing the stern, pushed back her chair and jumped up.

And Old Ed was quite a fellow, brown and wrinkled, with twinkling eyes.

"O my Lord!" she cried. "What's that?"

I do not remember now just what it was that I expected to see when I turned around, but what I actually saw was infinitely more surprising than anything I could possibly have imagined. A long canoeish sort of craft was approaching us from around the bend, propelled with paddles by eight Seminole Indians in feathered regalia. In the bows stood a personage dressed in hip boots, a breast plate, and a plumed helmet—I say in hip boots, a breast plate, and a plumed helmet—holding a banner in one hand and a sword in the other. He glittered considerably in the waning sunlight, which lit up his ruffed tunic and his mustachioed countenance. And yet he did not look as incongruous as you might think in that setting of Florida jungle and palms. Still, in 1924, you would hardly have expected to be accosted by a Spanish conquistador with a crew of savages—not before Oscar had passed around the evening cocktails at all events.

"Suffering fish!" Mrs. Roche exclaimed. "Do you see what I see?"

No one else said anything. We simply stood there in the cockpit and watched this apparition from another age as it came gliding up on us. It was the conquistador who broke the silence.

"Howdy, folks," he remarked. "Want any help?"

It was rather disappointing. I think I had been preparing to address him in such vestiges of college Spanish as I still retained; I had certainly accepted him as a fact, anachronistic, but fascinating. Almost anything can happen in the Florida jungle. I felt kind of cheated. I went to the rail and looked him up and down, while his "Seminoles" grinned amiably up at me.

"Do you mind telling me," I asked him, "what you think you're doing?"

"Which?"

"Those clothes—you claiming Florida for Ferdinand and Isabella? Movies, I suppose?"

"O, these duds!" he laughed. "We've been rehearsing the pageant, yes, sir; the pageant over to Crocus. You passed there a ways back around the bend."

"O—a pageant, hey? Well, well—come aboard, won't you, and tell us all about it."

He clambered over the side, leaving his banner and sword, his helmet, wig, and mustachios behind him in the canoe, and introduced himself.

"My name is Brown, I'm sheriff of Crocus county. Pleased to meet you folks—nice little boat you have here. One of my boys saw you was in trouble, that's how I happened to come along."

And then he told us about the pageant "over to Crocus." It was a comfortable little town on the west bank, a fruit shipping railroad station, and its particular local pride was an old Spanish fort on the point, a square, loopholed, venerable structure which we had noticed on the way by, a good deal like the one at Matanzas inlet.

In fifteen hundred and something, it seemed, a certain Captain Hernandez de Gama had come sailing up the waterway from the south, around the bend, and had landed on the point, built his fort, and established the foundations of a settlement out of which in time had grown the town of Crocus. There had been some hobnobbing with the Indians, a landing of supplies, some planting of banners in the Florida sand, and then De Gama had sailed away again, down the waterway, around the bend, with an escort of Seminole canoes.

And now, three hundred and fifty years later, Crocus proposed to commemorate these picturesque events by reproducing them as faithfully as possible in a pageant, and Mr. Brown had been prevailed upon to play the part of De Gama.

"Yes, sir, I didn't want to do it, but they all says sheriff, they says, you've got to be the Spanish guy—there ain't any one to do it but you, 'cause the postmaster he's set on playing the Seminole chief, so I agreed. You folks had ought to lay over a day and see the show—day after tomorrow—it's going to be real swell."

I WAS rather inclined to agree with him. Something told me that the postmaster playing the Seminole chief would be worth seeing. But I was not prepared for what was coming.

"We may have to lay over longer than that," I laughed, "unless we can manage to slide off this shoal in the morning by lightening the ship. We've tried everything else."

"Well, now," Mr. Brown was all eagerness inside his silver paper breast plate and hip boots. "That's what I came down to see you folks about. I can bring my work boat along and haul you off in no time. You ain't stuck as hard as all that. I can tell from the way you're laying."

I had no doubt of Mr. Brown's ability to do what he said, but I resented the promptness of his offer of salvage, at, as I supposed, a price. He might have waited until we signified our desire to be assisted. There is a certain etiquette in such matters, and I expect my annoyance showed in my face. But I was doing Mr. Brown an injustice.

"Don't think I'm butting in," he assured me. "I know you folks can get off without any help from me, but it's a mean job toting all your stuff ashore in the dinghy and then back again. I'd be glad to pull you off, as a favor you understand, if—if——"

"If what? It's very kind of you to offer to help us, I'm sure—but what's on your mind, Mr. Brown?"

"Well, sir, you see, it's this way," Mr. Brown more or less exploded. "We ain't got no proper boat to do the Spanish guy's landing with—our work boats are all too small, and Sam Skinner he's away up to the inlet fishing with his boat and he won't be back in time—and we was going to cut out all that part about landing supplies and all, although it's a pity not to do it all way those old geezers did it according to the story say it ain't any use having a pageant unless you it, and if you cut out half of it, there ain't no sense it—but there you are, we ain't got the right kind boat up to Crocus for it. And then when my boy told me you was on Gama shoal—yes, sir, it's after him, reckon perhaps he went aground on it I says to myself, I says——"

Mr. Brown, to cut a long speech short, said to him self that the Goldfish would be just the boat for the "Spanish guy," and that if he came and hauled us off perhaps we would let him use our boat in the That was what Mr. Brown had said to himself, was now proceeding to say to us with great There was also something about the postmaster and white horse which I did not quite fathom, but left me with the impression of a certain rivalry ing the situation.

"But surely," I protested, "you can't have Spanish captain arriving in a motor boat, Mr. Brown

Certainly not. Mr. Brown was all prepared for Old Ed, who seemed to be a carpenter, was going rig up some sort of canvas framework at the bow stern to give the Goldfish the appearance of " them Spanish carnivals." "You mean you want to rig up a lot of aboard?" I objected more violently. "Mess the up with a lot of truck and ruin my paint work? I want to disappoint you, Mr. Brown, but I—I don't how I can——"

"O, I think it will be great sport," Mary chose that moment to announce. "I adore Mr. Morton will be delighted."

One of the things that encourages me about the ...

The next morning they were there, bright and early. One of those glorious, sun drenched Florida days that get into your system and make you feel like a baked potato. They hauled us off in no time, as Mr. Brown had predicted, and we anchored in a little cove on the eastern shore, the seaward shore, near a tumble down dock from which a track led off through the palm scrub to the ocean beach on the farther side. I had expected that they would want us to go to Crocus for the fixing up, but it seemed that our participation in the pageant was to be kept a secret as much as possible. Old Ed came down to the cove with his truck and went to work, while we sat around and smoked, and talked, and indulged in the greatest outdoor sport of them all, that of doing nothing in particular on a beautiful day in pleasant surroundings.

At least I started to do that, but it is impossible for anyone to watch an expert fashioning something out of bits of wood, and cloth, and marline, without first hanging around, then handing him the hammer when he looks about for it, and finally rolling up your sleeves and doing two men's work just for the fun of it. And Old Ed was quite a fellow, brown and wrinkled, with twinkling eyes and a slow speech, and a born carpenter ...

"How do you like the boat?" I asked him when he came aboard.

"Say, don't ask me so quick!" he replied with an ... twinkle.

And he did a beautiful job, I must say, with extremely inadequate materials and a poor foundation, for the superstructure and deck of a power boat do not lend themselves readily to such transformations as he was undertaking. But he got away with it.

"What we want is a sort of hump at the bow and stern," he explained. "Make her look like a slice of watermelon that's been bit into amidships. And if we can carry these canvas sides down they'll hide all them fancy brass ports and all in the deckhouse. Anyways, she'll look a sight different when we get done."

She did all of that. In fact, she really looked quite presentable, although I do not believe Oscar thought so. But then one of the things that Oscar is paid for is not to think, at least out loud. I know his general deportment throughout the day combined all of the unattractive features of a bowl of sour milk, but just the same it was Oscar who, of his own volition, put up the fake sail on the signal mast after Mary Roche had finished painting a big red cross on it. We were watching him do that when we were hailed from the decrepit dock.

"Hello aboard! Here's them bales and stuff for the cargo."

It was the junk De Gama was supposed to land in the pageant, the supplies for the settlement. I was having such a good time it did not occur to me to wonder why they had carried the stuff over to the eastern shore instead of bringing it direct to the Goldfish in a work boat. Or perhaps it had been easier to bring the sacks and things over to the cove and there fill them with odds and ends and rubbish to look like real merchandise. Anyhow, there they were, an assortment of clumsy bales and gunnies, and could they bring them aboard now, because Sam Skinner was in a hurry to get back to Crocus.

"Thought you were away fishing up at the inlet?" I asked him. Pleasant looking young giant in rubber boots, with the most captivating smile.

"Yes, sir, I was," he admitted. "But there isn't no fish—no, sir, there ain't no fish right along now—so I—I come home."

They all seemed to think it was a great joke—on me, I suppose, because now that Sam Skinner was home they could have used his boat after all. However, they stowed the stuff aboard while I sat and talked to Mr. Brown, who came put-putting by in the midst of it to see how the Spanish carnival was getting on.

We talked about prohibition, and what a difficult job it was to watch that coast; and I remember that young pirate Skinner laughed a good deal.

"It ain't no cinch for me," Mr. Brown complained. "I'm sheriff of this county and I've sworn to maintain the law, and I do it, yes, sir, and I don't give a durn who's at the other end of my gun if it comes to that—but it ain't so easy for a man in my job when he knows every friend he's got in town, and in the whole county, is a practicing bootlegger."

Practicing bootlegger—I liked the phrase.

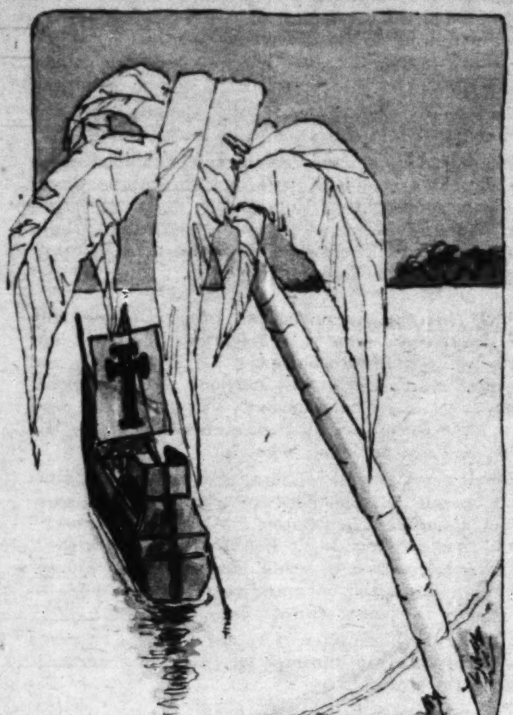
"Perhaps you'll be wanting to examine my icebox!" I laughed.

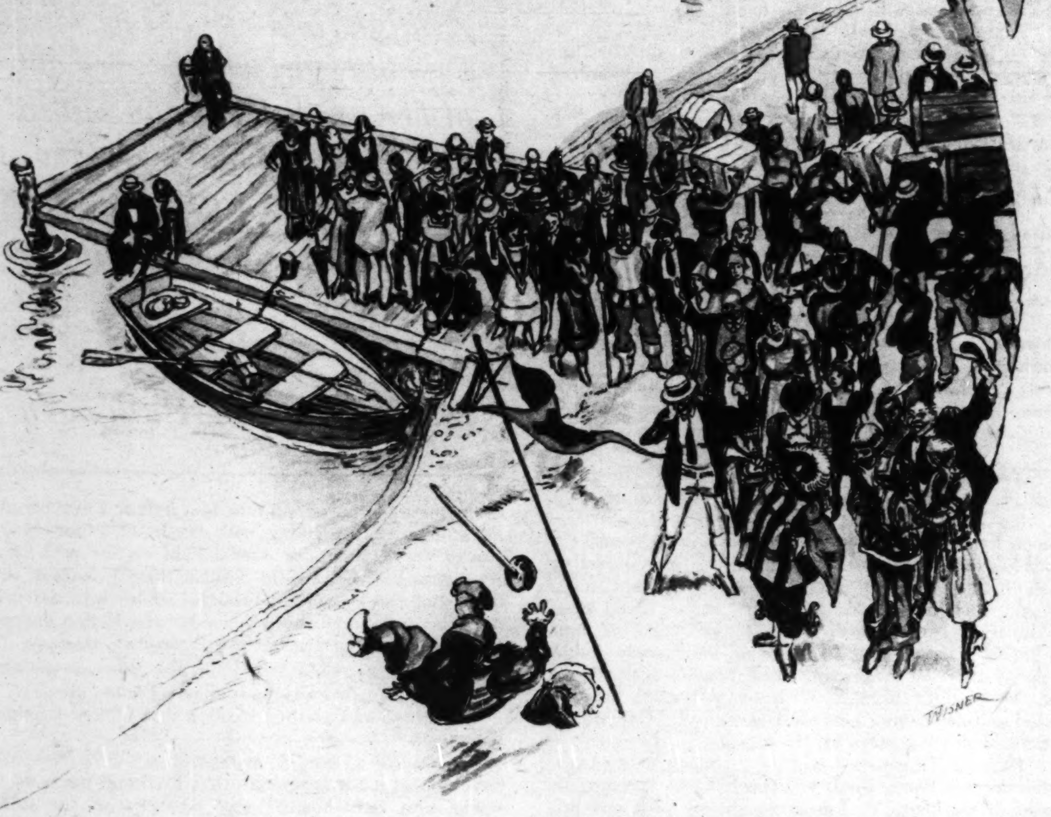
"No, sir," Mr. Brown declared, "I ain't no federal prohibition agent. It's no concern of mine what you've got aboard, but if I catch you landing any of it in Crocus county you and me'll have an argument—yes, sir, it's the rum runners I'm after. Them pirates stick at nothing. Well, reckon perhaps we'd all better clear out of here now, you'll be wanting a quiet spell after the day's doings. We'll be along about eight in the morning to start the show——"

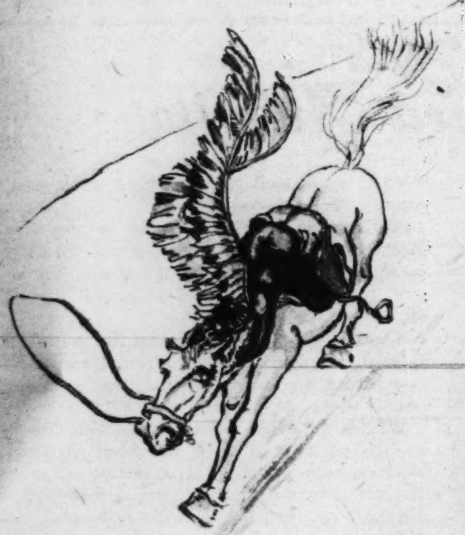
And then Mary Roche, who had managed to keep busy all day with her paint brush and her camera, and consequently out of mischief, had to go and spill the beans.

"O, Mr. Brown," she inquired. "What do you want us to wear? We've got to have some kind of costume if we're to be in the pageant."

"Suffering fish!" Mrs. Roche exclaimed, and went below. Her action seemed to symbolize the fact that of two evils she, for one, had already selected the lesser.







"Wah-hoop-tee-crack!" And Tuscarora's white horse bolted.

But Oscar and I would have to be on deck, and there was no question of Mary Roche's staying below.

"That's right," Mr. Brown agreed before I could formulate any compromise in my mind. "Ain't any use having a pageant if you don't have it. I reckon we can fix you folks up. Which would you rather be, Indian or Spaniard?"

"Indian!" said Mary Roche.

"Spaniard!" said I, in the same breath. Mary Roche could, and undoubtedly would, do as she pleased, but as for me I had no intention of browning myself up and running around in a feathered headdress, not for the whole of Crocus county. I explained all that to Mr. Brown, and I think he understood me.

"Well," he remarked as he went off, "I'll bring something along for you in the morning. So long."

"You unmitigated fish!" I scolded Mary Roche. "What did you want to go and do that for? And who ever heard of a red headed Indian?"

"O, pooh!" she retorted. "You don't ever enter into the spirit of things—and for that matter, you and Oscar will make a fine looking pair of Spaniards, I don't think!"

But that is precisely what we did make, nevertheless—a fine looking pair of Spaniards. When we appeared on deck the next morning, with the help of Mr. Brown's contributions, Mary Roche was an Indian princess, and as pretty as a picture, of course, and Oscar and I were Spaniards. There was a pair of trick boots for me, and a tabard sort of garment, and a wig, a reasonable enough costume for Captain de Gama's pilot. And for Oscar there was a funny hat with a feather, and a striped coat, and baggy knee breeches with ribbons—and a trumpet. Yes, Oscar was to be a trumpeter. Oscar did not want to be a trumpeter, and he looked extremely idiotic in his ill assorted get-up, but the fates had decreed that Oscar must be a trumpeter. I tried to explain all this to him.

"Yoost you wait," he promised darkly. "Yoost you wait."

AT nine o'clock we were all ready. We were, beyond any doubt, a Spanish carnival. There were aboard—besides Mrs. Roche, who was hiding in the now enclosed cockpit—Oscar, the trumpeter, standing in the bow; myself at the wheel, fairly inconspicuous as the pilot; Mary Roche, clinking with innumerable beads, doing a rather Scandinavian looking Seminole queen with her auburn braids; Mr. Brown, as Hernandez de Gama, with his banner and sword, and perspiring freely in his breast plate and helmet; four or five young bucks dressed as Spanish soldiers, all making eyes at Mary Roche as I daresay their originals had done at the local Pocahontas; and a half dozen extremely self-conscious Seminole Indians, among whom I recognized the engaging Mr. Sam Skinner.

"All set?" I asked Mr. Brown.

"I reckon we are," he announced. "Now you boys pay attention—we got to do this right, like it says in the story."

"All right, sheriff—let's go——"

We were off.

With a somewhat crablike motion, however, as on account of Old Ed's "humps" and all, it was rather difficult, I found, to steer the Goldfish—or the Infanta Isabella—properly.

"She don't steer so good, does she?" Captain de Gama complained.

"It's the sail," I explained. "Of course, you realize we're going smack against the wind!"

But we moved along, and presently we went skidding around the bend, and there, a little way up, was Crocus waiting to be discovered and making a tremendous rumpus over it. They even fired a cannon which can hardly have been "like it says in the story."

"That's the American Legion," Captain de Gama frowned. "I told them not to do that."

But then I do not suppose the Infanta's pilot swung his ship in a complete circle amidstream the way I suddenly found myself doing when the wind caught me. We drifted sideways in toward the fort, and threw out our anchor. There should have been trumpetings, but Oscar was too busy making fast.

AND then the pageant began. I can, of course, only describe the more salient features of it as I saw them, while Mary Roche poked me in the back and implored me to look at this and look at that, and become aware of the fat woman in the donkey cart, and the village cutup dancing the hoochee koochee on the dock, and heaven knows what all.

There was a general commotion of Seminole Indians on the beach, a dashing back and forth of giggling spectators, a considerable shouting for "O, Sam Skinner!" —and then a tremendously befeathered and extremely lanky gentleman on a white horse detached himself from the crowd and advanced to the water's edge to greet us.

"That's the postmaster," Captain de Gama informed us. "He ain't any business on that white horse, it ain't in the story."

The postmaster held up his hand.

"You tell 'em, Fred!" the crowd laughed.

"O, pale faced stranger," he began to declaim, "whither—I mean whence do you come to—to—where in Sam Hill did you get that boat, Joe Brown?"

"Never you mind, Fred," Mr. Brown told him. "I am Hernandez de Gama, the Spanish admiral, and who are you?"

"I am Tuscarora, the king of the Seminoles."

"And what place is this, O Tuscarora—you didn't think I'd get a boat, did you, Fred?"

"This is Crocus, Florida—I mean this is—shucks, I've forgot that Indian name—go on to the next, Joe——"

"You ain't much good, Fred; you and your horse—then in the name of the king and queen of Spain, my masters, I claim this place, and I propose to build a fort upon this point and land supplies and men to make a settlement, let us pray—no, that comes later—to make a settlement. I guess we go ashore now, don't we?"

"Yea, sheriff!" the crowd yelled, but the climax of this scene came from the rear rank of spectators.

"To hell with Spain!" cried a voice, and there was much laughter for awhile all up and down Crocus.

While they were still laughing, we got ourselves ashore in the dinghy, Mary Roche, and Captain de Gama, and I—he insisted on my coming—and Sam Skinner and the others brought the cargo off and dumped it to one side in the sand, amid considerable hilarity from all concerned. And then the second part of the pageant began. With his sword in his left hand and the banner held aloft in his right, Captain de Gama took three steps up the beach.

"Here, O Tuscarora," said he, "you ain't any business on that horse, Fred, you ought to be standing in front of me—here, O Tuscarora, are my men and my supplies. And now I plant this banner in the ground" —he did so—"and do proclaim that from henceforth——"

IT was probably a fine speech, but we never heard the rest of it. No, the Crocus pageant unfortunately broke up at that point. It was Oscar's fault. As a matter of fact, from a certain cryptical expression on her face afterward, I think that probably it was really Mrs. Roche's fault, but the immediate responsibility rests on Oscar. For some unknown reason he decided to blow his trumpet. Now Oscar is a good butler, a good valet, a good cook, even in a pinch a good engineer, but he is not a good trumpeter, and nothing will ever make him a good trumpeter. But he decided to blow his trumpet.

"Wah—hoop—tee—crack!" he blared suddenly—and Tuscarora's white horse bolted.

In fact, I personally never saw Tuscarora again. I saw Captain de Gama sitting on his haunches in the sand where the horse had sent him flying; I saw people all around me staggering with laughter; I saw Mary Roche weeping tears of pure delight on the neck of a total stranger; I saw Sam Skinner quietly loading the bales and things we had brought ashore into a truck near the dock to clear the space for the Indian dance; I saw all that, but I never saw Tuscarora again.

"I'm awfully sorry," I managed to say to Mr. Brown. "That fool Swede—you're not hurt, are you?"

Mr. Brown was not hurt, except that he had laughed too much.

"Don't say a word," he begged me. "I wouldn't have missed it for anything—that Fred and his horse—serves him right—hadn't any business on the durn horse——"

We got away, finally, in the early afternoon. T had the Indian dance, and then we all had lunch, then Old Ed ripped up his "humps" and canvas and we got the Goldfish all ship shape and sailed, cheers from the assembled multitudes—in which, ever, I looked in vain for Sam Skinner. Cheers and whole crateful of grapefruit from Mr. Brown.

"So long, folks," he called to us. "Been a great you bet—if you're ever in trouble anywheres in C county, call on Joe Brown."

Well, the Crocus pageant was over, and I never have caught on to the point of the whole performance our share in it—if it had not been for Mr. crate of grapefruit. I suppose Oscar began them in the ice box, anyway we had just gone the bend when he came aft.

"Captain, you come here a minute please," he manded. I gave the wheel to Mary Roche.

"Here, Pocahontas—and try and keep off G Shoal!"

I followed Oscar into the galley.

"Yoost look now once at that!" he exclaimed.

I looked once. I looked twice. On top of the fruit was a letter, and sticking up through a tween them was an object which I had no hesitation identifying as a perfectly good bottle of Scotch. opened the letter.

"Mr. Morton, Sir," Mr. Brown had written, " Sam Skinner he thinks he can fool me but he can't knew durn well where he'd gone when he went up to the inlet. Soon as they heard we was going use your boat for the pageant they thought they fool me by bringing the hootch into Crocus in the cargo—right under my nose, by gum! But I fo them, yes, sir. I was over to the cove before yesterday, and sure enough there was them bales all they'd brought over during the night to have for you, thinking in the hurry nobody'd remember ask how they come to be sitting pretty there on dock—and in every one of them I found three of Scotch.

"Well, sir, it hurt me to do it, but I threw them the river, and packed up the bundles again. Yes, threw them in the river. It's Sam Skinner's fault could have brought the stuff into Crocus just as easy spitting, but him and the boys thought they'd get with me. Made me kind of mad. So I reckon joke's on Sam Skinner. Reckon you didn't see loading that truck there on the beach after the beat it with Fred. I laughed fit to die.

"I saved the last bottle and stuck it in your crate grapefruit. And you needn't worry about Sam Ski thinking it was you pinched his hootch during the because I signed my name on a piece of paper and one in each bundle. Yours truly, Joe Brown."

And there you are, but when I told Mary Roche hardly listened to me.

"O, that—why, I knew that all along," she "That's why I was laughing so on the beach. The were all marked with a this side up mark—you notice anything!"

"But how did you know they were empty?" I ob jected. "Granting that you guessed what was on—which I don't for a moment admit."

"O, is that so! I tried them all with a hatpin, if you want to know!"

There are times when Mary Roche simply furiates me.

A bright and clever tale of a busy little girl who climbed out of her parallelepipedon just in time to precipitate a romance on Christmas eve.

It's a sparkling Blue Ribbon short story

SWORDS EAST by Achmed Abdullah

THE STORY SO FAR:

ELLEN McINTYRE, left an orphan at 21, arrives in Constantinople on the eve of the Young Turks' revolution. Two leaders of the stormy times fall in love with her. Marquis O'Malley Pasha, a young Irish soldier of fortune, is loyal to the Sultan. The other is Prince Tcherkessky, a Circassian whose brother eloped with O'Malley's mother. Two of O'Malley's friends, Watson Pasha and Yar Ali Bey, are murdered the night before they are to second O'Malley in a duel with Tcherkessky. O'Malley appears alone for the duel. The prince and his two seconds try to kill him, but Ellen, in hiding, saves O'Malley's life by shooting the sword from Tcherkessky's hand. O'Malley convinces the Sultan that Tcherkessky and his aids murdered Watson and Yar Ali Bey. The Sultan promises to sign death warrants for the slayers. But a clever plot concocted by BIBI FATHMA, a Hindu favorite of the Sultan, makes it appear that the real murderer is Zado Kaboolian, an Armenian banker who is her ardent admirer. Kaboolian is executed and his execution brings the Young Turks' revolution almost to a head. The Sultan also cashiers O'Malley from his army when Bibi makes him believe that O'Malley sought Tcherkessky's execution merely because of jealousy over Ellen.

IN RETURN for Bibi's aid Tcherkessky promises her he will kidnap Ellen, but make it seem that Ellen fled with him of her own will. Meantime, knowing well that O'Malley loves her, Ellen asks him to marry her. But he cannot lose his old fear of women, caused by his mother's elopement, and he tells Ellen he will be a brother to her. Angered beyond endurance, Ellen seems to agree to marry Tcherkessky when the prince proposes to her once more during a masque ball. From behind a great palm O'Malley hears the proposal and Ellen's acceptance. The elated Tcherkessky insists the marriage take place at once, that very night.

Wheels of Revolution.

O'MALLEY came out from behind the palm. If at that moment you had vivisected his heart with knife and scalpel, you would have found there, not exactly unhappiness, but a void, a vacuum, an absolute nothingness. His body obeyed the suggestion of a chair behind him. So he sat down, slumping limply like a rag doll filled with sawdust.

Tcherkessky and Ellen—Tcherkessky and Ellen—the words repeated themselves in his thoughts. They droned in his brain like a liturgy. Somehow he felt that laughter was demanded. He opened his lips. But the laughter curdled into a cry, a single and rather low cry, but such a cry as one would imagine to follow the death of the last hope, the last faith, the last promise from the face of the earth.

"Hullo, there!" a woman had heard. She stopped, looked. It was the English duchess. She recognized O'Malley, whose mask had slipped awry. "What's the matter, old trout?" she inquired with rough kindliness. "Too much to drink?"

He rose. He stumbled; almost fell. It seemed as if the duchess was right. She took his arm.

"Steady!" she laughed as he brushed against a table, nearly upsetting it. "Come on!" He resisted, tried to pull away, unable to speak, choked with grief. "A bit of fresh air—and you'll be as right as rain."

She piloted him through the crowd and out into the street.

"Want me to stay with you, old dear?" she asked. "No? Very well. Come back when you feel woozy. Toodle—loo!"

She reëntered the hotel, and he was alone, utterly dazed, entirely devoid of emotion. And somehow, consciously, he was grateful for this lack of emo mocking farewell. The carriage drove rapidly away into the purple, fantastic night, toward the prince's palace in the Rue de Pologne, whence faintly, from the distance, came the tramp-tramp-tramp of marching feet and yells of "Long live the revolution!"

The yell was taken up like the response in some satanic litany.

An isolated shot plopped into the night.

Sudden silence.

Then a clatter of hooves; the creaking of saddle leather; a steely shock and crackle—the Hamidyieh, the sultan's loyal Kurd cavalry, galloping to the attack with shouts of:

"Padishah chok yashah—may the sultan live forever!"

O'MALLEY shrugged his shoulders. The sultan, he thought, and Ellen. Just two names that had no meaning in his life.

Then he laughed. He gave that loud, reverberating, bull-like Celtic roar of his; turned; and rushed into the hotel. Just beyond the threshold the French journalist was talking to a pretty, young, red headed girl. She was unmasked, her half naked body, in spice and daring and lack of costume, representing some lewd Paris vaudeville poster.

O'Malley stepped up to the couple. He said never a word. His powerful arms shot out, lifted the girl off her feet, raised her up to his broad shoulders.

"O!" she shrieked.

Then she laughed.

"Monsieur!" protested the outraged Frenchman. "But—monsieur."

For answer O'Malley, holding the girl with his left hand, jerked his right straight to the Frenchman's chin. The man stumbled, moaned, dropped; and again the Irishman gave his reverberating, bull-like Celtic roar. The girl high on his shoulders, he bored into the thick of the dance floor, whirling like a dervish, stamping his feet, his heavy cavalry saber swinging by its silver chain, describing glittering circles, thudding painfully against unwary, protesting legs, while the crowd, first amazed and furious, presently gave way and hooted its drunken approval:

"Bravo!"

"Bravo!"

"Bravissimo!"

The leader of the gypsy orchestra bobbed up and down like one possessed. Bassoon and clarinet peaked to a rollicking fortissimo hardly louder than the mob's shrill laughter as O'Malley stepped his grotesque pas seul, the red haired girl on his back swaying and yelling, and all around the reek of wine, of perfume, of perspiring bodies.

Other men followed O'Malley's example. Up! Slim, silkclad legs curled about shoulders; fat, silkclad legs clinging about necks like monstrous garlands. Dancing all. Turning all. Great wheels of flesh gyrating and twisting in an ecstasy of desire and abandon.

Louder. Even louder.

Then, quite suddenly, overwhelming the noise of the revelers with a tragic, bitter surge, came another noise; from the outside, the street.

Crash! Crash!

A window splintered. A waiter opened his mouth wide. He seemed astonished. Then he fell. A tiny, red spot showed on his white shirt front. Rapidly it grew into a thick, blackish ooze.

Death!

Crash! Phutt! Another shot.

"Dear God!"—a hysterical cry.

And, winging in from the outside, like a horrible incantation of lust and cruelty:

"Long live the revolution!"

"My word!" drawled the English duchess. "How inconsiderate of these blighters? They might have waited till the end of the ball!"

She was one of the few who did not lose her head. Most of the others, men and women, guests and waiters, rushed about, frightened, utterly panic stricken. They ran everywhere, anywhere; up the stairs, down the stairs; toward the elevators, the kitchen, the wine cellar, the lavatories—everywhere, anywhere—with frenzied cries, pressing, cursing, fighting, hurting each other in their mad haste to escape. Paleolithic warrior kicking South sea cannibal queen. Madam Pompadour scratching harlequin. Pierrette tripping Spanish bull fighter. Pierrot sending crashing elbow into Gretchen's tender adipose. Hebraic gentleman in kilts engaging in a fist fight with Teutonic gentleman dressed as Uncle Sam.

A sea of motley costumes, of black masked faces, broken here and there by a woman's white, naked shoulders—reddening as hands clawed and gripped and tore.

Running. Running in a circle. Not knowing where to go nor what to do; while outside, in the ancient turgid streets of Constantinople, the chariot of war and revolution moved its wheels, sharply, pitilessly.

FAINT, then growing in volume and threat, a dramatic roar came from the Top Haneh barracks as the big guns slashed into the game. A splotch of whistling while shells stabbed the opaque purple of the heavens.

"O—misericordia!" shrieked the Italian countess; and she swooned against a priceless Sevres vase and sent it splintering to the floor.

"Bozhe moy!" exclaimed a Russian banker, and sat down in a great silver punch bowl.

There was the thin flash and report of a rifle, hurriedly fired and immediately echoed by other flashes and reports. Came the short, throaty, vicious bark of mortars with a wailing, high pitched sob at the end, and the deep, sonorous, fully rounded notes of howitzers.

From the direction of the Sultana Valideh bridge rose a curled plume of thick, inky smoke with a heart of sulphurous gold. The next second an artillery salvo belched up, stopped abruptly, was followed by an immense burst of sound waves like a giant beating a huge drum.

The western sky swallowed the night in an intolerable peacock green shot with cerise and yellow and vivid purple; then flattened to a sheet of dazzling whiting-blue that jumped up to the zenith and dropped through the hotel windows like an enormous, theatrical spotlight, silhouetting the people there in stark black and white, showing them to each other with all their obscene fear, their obscene futility—bodies rigid, hands clenched and clutching, eyes staring, mouths gaping open with great, red slants.

The hysteria of yells had been followed by a worse hysteria of silence; the hysteria of running about by a hysteria of hopeless standing still, rooted to the spot.

The French journalist, his chin black and blue where O'Malley had struck it, remembered that he had a literary reputation to uphold; remembered, furthermore, that congenitally he believed in liberty.

"Gorgeous things—revolutions!" he said. "They are such passionate facts."

"And also so passionately ironic," rejoined the English duchess, not to be outdone in epigrams. "Tremendously good joke on those white collared clowns who call themselves diplomats! Why—I believe that——"

"Shsh!"—a sibilant, ineffectual whisper as, outside, a temporary lull was succeeded by a rattle at the outer door.

"O,' stammered the German baroness, nee Miss Levy, "d-d-do you suppose they are going to murder us?"

"Dear God!"—as the door opened.

Followed an anti-climax.

For there was no rush of howling, blood stained butchers; but, flanked by two soldiers with rifles at the carry, a very small man stepped in, severely trim in a black, fur braided uniform, a black fur cap on his head. His mustache was turned up martially in the German military style. Otherwise he was of an astounding, almost feminine beauty. He saluted, hand to cap, spurred heels clicking, and, speaking in fluent French, introduced himself as Enver Pasha, the leader of the Young Turks.

In a few well chosen, infinitely courteous words he begged the pardon of those present for "the unseemly noise and shooting and turmoil and all that. But messieurs and mesdames," with a smiling flash of white, even teeth, "you realize, of course, that one cannot create history with—ah—cream puffs and lemonade."

He related in a calm, matter of fact voice that the revolution was an accomplished fact; that Sultan Abdul Hamid had abdicated the throne, and, guarded by a detachment of the First Macedonian division, was already on the train toward Dedeagatch and Saloniki, where the Villa Allatini had been prepared for the exiled monarch.

"There will be no civil war," Enver Pasha added. "The Young Turks are in the saddle. And they believe in peace—peace at home—and peace abroad."

He continued that the people here could go on with the ball if they felt like it. If they did not, he suggested their remaining at the hotel overnight. Doubtless, with a little crowding and doubling up, the management would be able to find accommodation for all of them. In the morning they could return to their homes. The streets would be quiet and safe, and he pledged his word of honor that no harm would come to any foreigner, man or woman or child.

There was a surge of violent relief, reaction, hectic laughter. They thronged about him, thanking him, slapping his back, shaking his hand. The stout matron in the baby-blue Gretchen costume tried to kiss him.

Then a new fear came upon them. No longer fear for their lives, but fear for their comfort.

They turned, rushed up to the hotel manager, deafened him with their clamor, outbid each other:

"Fifty francs for a room with bath!"

"Seventy!"

"One hundred!"

"Messieurs! Mesdames! I beg you! I implore you! Please! Patience! Patience!" pleaded the hotel manager, who, straightway, lost all faith in the classes and turned into an earnest democrat.

ENVER PASHA laughed. It was a thin, rather contemptuous laugh. He turned, about to go, when he saw O'Malley, who was leaning against a column, watching the scene with sardonic amusement.

He walked up to the Irishman.

"O'Malley Pasha, I believe?"

"Yes."

"May I have a word with you?"

"Certainly. Shall we sit down?"

"Too noisy here."

He took O'Malley's arm. They left the lobby and entered one of the small rooms; the same one where, an hour earlier, Prince Tcherkessky and Ellen McIntyre had had supper. The place showed signs of a drunken, riotous party. Napkins, tablecloths, splintered glass, broken porcelain littered the floor. A huge, red spot stained the light carpet. They sat down on a couch, side by side.

"O'Malley," commenced Enver, "you have served the sultan, loyally, faithfully, though he was a despot, an oppressor——"

"He was not!" interrupted the Irishman.

"He was to us. And we are right. Why? Because we have won. It is the only test. O'Malley," he went on, "we have no feelings against you. On the contrary, we respect you. We like you. You are a brave soldier and an honorable gentleman. Will you join us? We offer you command over the three Anatolian cavalry divisions with the rank of mushir, field marshal. You accept?"

"I refuse."

"I had an idea you would." Enver Pasha smiled. He showed not the slightest trace of ill nature. "I am very sorry. But"—he shrugged his shoulders—"a la guerre comme a la guerre—the fortunes of war, eh? And so, since you are a foreigner——"

"Still a foreigner," the other demanded bitterly, "after three generations of the O'Malleys have served Turkey—have fought for Turkey?"

"I regret. I sympathize. But—still a foreigner, effendi! And so—unless you swear fealty to us——"

"I shall not!"

"Of course, not. Therefore——"

"Exile?"

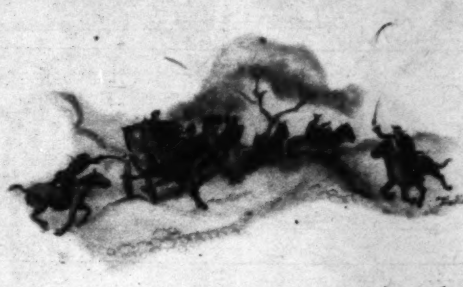
"Yes!" Enver Pasha inclined his head.

"Very well."

O'Malley rose; saluted stiffly; unbuckled his sword and tendered it hilt foremost to Enver Pasha.

"No, no!" exclaimed the latter. "Keep your sword. You will be our guest until you leave Constantinople—by the first steamer—which sails tomorrow. Will you shake hands with me, effendi?"

"Gladly."



An Adventure of the Scarlet Pimpernell

THE BARONESS ORCZY

BLUE RIBBON FICTION

ONCE more, that dashing, hard-riding, lightning swordsman, The Scarlet Pimpernel, fights his way across the pages of fiction!

This time The Tribune has secured first rights to the latest episode in the career of this famous character created by the pen of The Baroness Orczy. An adventure of The Scarlet Pimpernel will run as a Blue Ribbon serial story. Watch for the first chapter in this, the roto magazine section of The Tribune

Next Sunday

A moment later O'Malley was alone. More utterly alone than he had ever been. Alone not only with his body but alone with his soul, with his life.

His life—why—it did not exist. It was nothing.

"Nothing!" he said, out loud.

A life—came his queer, garbled thoughts—in a state of continual pause. Here he was: Jean-Marie Marquis de O'Malley Pasha, the last of his line, going into exile because of a principle, as his ancestor, he of the Wild Geese of Limerick, had left Ireland because of a principle, as his other ancestor, because of a principle, had lost his handsome, well powdered head beneath the thudding steel of the guillotine.

He must go.

Go where?

Go anywhere!

Back to his house first to pack a few things.

He was on the point of leaving when he heard, quite faintly, a sound, a moaning sound, choked, stifled, but with a terrible note of appeal. He looked about him, saw nothing; was again on the point of leaving when the moan was repeated, more loudly this time, presently crystallizing into half coherent words:

"Pasha . . . . Pasha effendi.

Where? Whence?

"Pasha effendi"—there—under his feet—from beneath the couch!

He pushed it away.

His servant Reshid lay there, dying from a dozen knife wounds. He was nearly in a state of coma. O'Malley knelt down and lifted the bleeding head. Rapidly, feverishly, he asked him who had done it—when? why? how? The stiffening lips were trying to speak. A horrible gurgle came from the throat. Finally, words.

Reshid had followed Tcherkessky and Ellen into this room. A dozen men, in masks and fancy dress costumes, had sat at one of the tables. As soon as he entered they had leaped upon him, cutting him down, leaving him for dead, pushing him under the couch, but not before he had seen Ellen in a corner of the room, bound and gagged, struggling fiercely in the arms of Tcherkessky and another man.

Thus Reshid's tale. He was silent. Again he sank into a coma. O'Malley picked up a half filled wine bottle, poured the contents down Reshid's throat. The man revived a little. A faint gleam came into his eyes: intelligence and comprehension and deep devotion.

He lifted his right hand in a supreme spasm of energy.

"I tried to protect her," he said, quite clearly. "I failed. Forgive me, Pasha effendi."

So Reshid died.

O'MALLEY looked at the dead man.

It was perhaps because he was such a believing Christian, such a devout Catholic, that tolerantly he honored and respected another's faith. So he turned towards the east, towards Mecca, and, sinking on both knees, pronounced the Moslem prayer for the departed:

Praise be to God, the Lord of the Worlds!
The Compassionate, the Merciful!
King of the day of judgment!
Thee we worship, and Thee we ask for help.
Guide us in the straight way,
The way of those to whom Thou art gracious;
Not of those upon whom is Thy wrath nor of the erring!
Amen.

He drew the lids over the glassy eyes. Then he rose. He shook himself into thought, action. The dead were the dead. Remained the living: Ellen.

It did not take him long to put two and two together. There must have been another woman, Ellen's exact double in every last particular of Afghan costume, and it was this other woman, a confederate, whom Prince Tcherkessky had taken to consult the fortune teller and with whom he had afterwards driven off, while Ellen, gagged and helpless, had been carried away by the Circassian's retainers and hustled out of the Megatherium Palace hotel through the back way . . . . where? To the prince's palace, doubtless.

Very well. He would go there.

He left the room and crossed the lobby. It was now quite deserted. Here and there a ragged end of lace, a torn velvet face mask, a bit of tinsel or embroidery, a powder puff, a trampled, greasy lip stick, or a splintered champagne bottle spoke eloquently of the night's revelry.

As he stepped across the threshold into the street a man rushed in from the outside and collided with him. At once he recognized the black, tattooed face with the kinky white hair and the vivid, crooked saber scar that blotted out the left eye and twisted to the right corner of the mouth. It was Hassan, his father's former servant, the man who twice had been instrumental in saving his life, who had dropped the revolver on Ellen's desk on the night before the duel, and whom these last few weeks he had tried to find, without succeeding. Momentarily startled by the encounter, he hurried on. Just then he had no time to ask questions.

But the Negro stretched out a detaining hand.

"Effendi——" the man was panting; it was evident that he had run—"thank God I came in time! Please don't go there."

"How do you know where I'm going?"

"To Prince Tcherkessky's palace. Where else? Please——" with a tremendous note of appeal—"don't! Stay here! I shall bring the girl back unharmed; there is no danger."

"Seems you know a whole lot about my affairs. Go away!" as the negro clutched his sleeve. "Leave me alone!"

He pushed the other rudely to one side and turned down the street. But Hassan kept step with him, imploring him not to go to the prince's palace. "You will regret it, effendi. Please, please!"

And then, when O'Malley did not reply, but kept doggedly on his way, Hassan exclaimed:

"I shall go with you—may Allah protect me!"

He stopped, bent, picked up a naked sword dropped in the street fighting.

They loped along side by side. There were no carriages or motor cars. But Pera was crowded with people. Young Turk soldiers were marching two and three abreast, intensely serious and self-conscious, as is the habit with victorious revolutionaries. There were also Armenians and Greeks. For the Christian slums had emptied themselves. The pack was running. It was in full cry. They marched with guns and clubs, singing and roaring, past the forbidden sanctuaries of Pashas and Moslem satraps, shaking threatening fists at windows warily darkened:

"Your turn next!"

And then perhaps a Young Turk soldier's rifle butt crashing into ribs:

"Silence, pig of an unbeliever! There be still we Moslems!"

Already the dogs were beginning to fight over the bones.

A white bearded Moslem priest stood near a mosque. He looked resigned and ironic. An old fallacy decked with new slogans—was his thought as he watched the topsy-turvy world of the Islamic republic—the underfed barbarians at the gates of the granaries!

He spat; entered the mosque.

"Long live the revolution!" shouts rose from greasy back alleys.

Men and women marched aimlessly. They talked, talked, talked. Occasionally the crack of a rifle dropped a fact into the turmoil of phrases.

Another street. Another scene. A die-hard of the old régime in his house. His rifle spitting fire from darkened window. Old Turkey showing its teeth. Old Turkey swinging from a lamp post a minute later. Still other streets.

Pop! . . . . Pop! . . . . a rattle of glass. A blaze of shooting.

Shadows stirring wildly.

Darkness. Bullet spattered silences.

At last the Rue de Pologne; and Prince Tcherkessky's palace jumping into the purple gloom with orange and lemon lights.

"Effendi"—whispered the negro—"please—please don't."

"Be quiet!"

O'Malley took a deep breath like a man about to dive. He lifted the iron door knocker, brought it down sharply—bang! with a dull, portentous thud. A few moments later heavy steps came from the inside, and the door opened to disclose a tall, broad shouldered Circassian in a high waisted Cossack tunic of cherry red silk, a sword in his hand. He surveyed the late visitors with suspicion.

"What do you wish?" he asked.

"A word with Prince Tcherkessky!" O'Malley stepped across the threshold, straight into the yellow rays of a lamp that brought his features into stark, sudden relief.

The other did not know him by sight. But seeing the Irishman's rage-distorted face, the hate-seared eyes and clamped jaws, the thought came to him that this stranger, whoever he was, had not come on an errand of peace, could mean no good to the prince, his master. Loyal he was to the latter; lawless to the rest of the world. So, without a word, without hesitating, he acted. He had already drawn his crooked blade across his shoulder for a back-hand swing when something like a black streak passed in front of O'Malley.

The negro had watched closely; had catapulted himself forward, his sword point straight out.

It found the Circassian's throat. The man crumpled like a dry stalk. He lay there, curled up like a poisoned dog, one arm thrown across his face as if to ward off the sending of fate, his blood trickling slowly, dyeing the cherry red silk of his tunic with splotches of yet richer red.

"Thank you," O'Malley said dryly. "You seem to be in the habit of saving my life."

Followed by Hassan he walked away from the door into the lower hall of the palace, a large, circular, impressive affair with a staircase swinging up in a broad, bold marble curve.

"Effendi," whispered the negro. "Wait here."

"I'm in no mood for waiting." O'Malley put a foot on the steps.

"Please wait! I know—at least I think I know—where the foreign girl is. I shall——"

And then, suddenly, he was silent. He had heard a faint noise behind him. He turned.

THE dying Circassian had drawn himself up against the wall. He was attempting to rise, to give the alarm, to rouse the other servants. Quickly Hassan rushed up to him. But before he could reach him the man had given a shout—just one loud shout:

"Help!"

The next moment Hassan was on top of him, the sword in his right hand finding the man's heart, while his left clutched the throat. But he could not clutch that sound of "Help!" back, out of the air. It echoed and reverberated through the hall, up the stairs; and with a little thrill of fear and, too, of high elation O'Malley realized that the shout had been heard, that the crisis was upon him.

Came confused voices; footsteps, nearer, ever nearer; a crackling of naked steel; the swish of a scabbard scraping across stone flags.

The Irishman laughed. He drew his sword.

"Over here, my Hassan!" he called to the negro, pointing at a large, squat pillar topped by a jardiniere that made a hiding place against a corner of the walls. "Behind here! Wait till they come down."

"But—why?" asked the negro, uncomprehending.

"Strategy! Once they fill the hall with their numbers they will be unable to use their revolvers—for fear of hitting each other. They'll have to use steel, and that—by Saint Patrick's blessed bones!—will sort of even the odds!"

A minute later a rush of armed servants, Circassians and Kurds and Negroes, swept pell-mell down the stairs. They found their dead comrade. They ran about aimlessly, looking for the murderer; ran together again, balling into a knot, excited, gesticulating; again ran about, feverishly, searching everywhere, behind curtains, tables, chairs.

"Now!" cried O'Malley. "At them!"

And sword in hand, Hassan by his side, he jumped out.

A battle, then.

A battle the tale of which is told to this day in Constantinople's coffee houses and mosques, until in the course of time it has assumed the character of something epic, something Homeric, something almost religious; a tale, furthermore, that has caused a good many men to become worse liars than nature intended them to be. For, while about a dozen of Prince Tcherkessky's servants were engaged in the fight, there live today at least fifty men in Stamboul who swear—"Aye! wah hyat ibny!"—(by my son's life!)—that they took part in it.

"Ana ushhud!"—(I do bear witness!)—runs the telling. "The negro? An excellent wielder of steel indeed. He wounded me in the arm—bless him not the Lord God! But the Irish devil? Call me a liar! Call me a Jew! Call me a Christian, a drunkard, a cut-off one, an abuser of the salt! May Allah curse my head and my belly if I do not speak the truth! But his blade—I saw it with these eyes—split into a dozen blades, a dozen sparkling, sharp points. And he wielded them—the whole dozen. How? How, do you ask, O son of Adam? Because this Irish devil had a dozen arms, a dozen hands, two dozen eyes. His magic was extraordinary. An unclean miracle—of Satan's devising—and all the time he roared, roared like a mad bull. How, otherwise, could he have held out as long as he did against us—the twelve best swordsmen in Stamboul, in Islam, in all the world? A dozen arms he had! A dozen blades he flashed! It is the truth, wah hyat Ullah!"—(as the Lord liveth!)

IT was indeed a Homeric battle, even allowing for and discounting Oriental imagination; and its steely echo drifted through the palace until it reached a room on the third floor where Prince Tcherkessky was telling Bibi Fathma that the slate between them was clean, that he had kept his word and kidnaped Ellen.

Clash! clash! clash!—came the ringing song of the swords below, in the hall. The gypsy listened.

"What is the matter?" she asked.

"Nothing to worry about. I suppose some drunken Young Turk soldiers got into the house, and my servants are taking care of them. Wait another year or two—and we'll teach them Russian discipline."

"Where is the foreign girl?" demanded Bibi Fathma. "In the haremlik?"

"No."

"Ah!" A malicious gleam came into the green eyes. "Because of the old woman? Because——"

"Because of reasons which you, my little Fathma, could never understand," the prince interrupted. "But, I repeat, I kept my promise. The girl is being carefully watched. Incidentally," he added, with a smile of sardonic reminiscence, "she's in the little room—the one all in blue and silver—to the left of the conservatory . . . remember?"

"I remember, indeed," the gypsy replied a little bitterly. "I remember, too, that one night, in that same room, you swore to me that you would never love another."

"Did I? O, well—love is like a flower. When it dies it becomes hay—and then the oxen eat it."

"Are you going to marry her, Shamyl, or are you going to make her your mistress? You know—" with perverse, twisted feminine jealousy—"I would rather you make her your mistress!"

"I shall do neither. I do not even want to see her."

"Why not?"

"I am afraid."

"Of what?"

"Of my own passion. And also—" he lowered his voice—"there is still the oath which years ago I gave to her who was more than mother to me."

"Your oath?" sneered the gypsy. "Pah! What does a monkey know of the taste of ginger? What would a pig do with a mirror? Your oath, indeed! You did not keep it when you kidnaped the girl!"

"Be quiet!" he exclaimed furiously. "I did what I promised. It was only because of your threat that I——"

"I love you when you grow angry, my Shamyl." She threw him a kiss. "Really—I don't care what you do with her. If you do not want her, there is always the Bosphorus."

His anger passed.

"You are such an adorable little toy—so safe to have about the house. I am afraid the Bosphorus will have to wait—for your turn."

"Then the Bosphorus will have to wait forever. I am not a fool. When I am an anvil, I am patient; when I am a hammer, I strike."

"Charming, unselfish child! Charming, unselfish philosophy!"

"What are you going to do with her, Shamyl?"

"I shall give her her freedom."

"By Beelzebub!" Bibi Fathma shrieked. "You will not! If you do, I——"

"Wait, wait. I shall not release her just yet. I shall give you all the time you want to try your delightful wiles on O'Malley. Do you still believe he will rush into your arms, on the rebound, now he thinks the foreign girl went with me of her own free will?"

"Doubtless. I know all about men."

"As the village cur knows all about dung heaps, little Fathma."

"I think his kisses will be sweet, very sweet, because—O—reluctant. There are some kisses that are like onions. They are nourishing. They are necessary. But they are not sweet. There are other kisses like great purple orchids. They are too sweet. Cloying. A little——"

"Poisonous! I know."

"You ought to, Shamyl! And then there are kisses—savage and yet a little restrained—free and yet a little ashamed."

"And you think that O'Malley's kisses will come up to those specifications?"

"I shall find out."

"I was told that the Young Turks intend sending him into exile."

"I shall go with him!"

And just then a servant rushed in and, with his first stammered words, blew over the gypsy's house of cards:

"O'Malley Pasha is downstairs—sword in hand—fighting."

"O'Malley?" echoed the prince. He turned to Bibi Fathma: "Here's an end to your dream of his kisses! He must have found out somehow, must have guessed that Ellen——"

Her Home Town Beau

A Story from Real Life

ANITA MAY BLOWER stood on the outskirts of stage beauties feeling much the same as a sparrow among peacocks must feel, only not so confident as the ubiquitous sparrow. A call had been sent out to all the theatrical agencies by the Venus Ventures syndicate to send along every available chorus girl for material for their new show, "The Homing Bird."

The agencies had responded nobly; backstage of the Sumptuous theater was packed with hundreds of would-be aspirants for the honor of appearing in a Venus Ventures show, the most important in town, and the alley leading to the stage door was seething with feminine pulchritude.

Anita May looked around her at the assortment of girls, and felt forlorn. There were tall girls, short girls, fat girls, skinny girls, shapely girls, angular girls—and some that were no longer girls. Show girls lounged and undulated, ponies (front row little ones), pirouetted and high kicked, mediums buck danced and shimmied.

Many of them seemed to be able to do some specialty, and all, except a tiny minority of girls like herself, appeared to be impregnated with that indefinable atmosphere which speaks of the stage; while most of them had that air of assurance which comes from being smartly dressed to show to the greatest advantage their good points.

A few were prepared to advance by having donned rehearsal clothes, i. e., rompers, bathing suits or dancers' practice slips; these were the ones who knew their ability and were willing to prove it by getting down to business at once.

Anita May watched them, round-eyed, as they took powder puffs and lipsticks from their vanity cases and added a fresh layer to the makeup which already obscured nature. She had a little used lipstick in her handbag, but had felt too conscious to use it on the street. However, now she extracted a small mirror from her bag and took out the rouge; then gingerly she applied it to her softly curving lips.

WITH her dusky coronet of hair and shy, brown eyes it made her look exotic, and she hastily replaced the mirror as if too bashful to gaze on her altered reflection.

"Show girls, forward please!" A raucous voice from the darkened auditorium sounded above the noisy gabbling of the assembled throng.

Languid show girls, over 5 feet 6 inches in height, sauntered forward on to the stage. Anita joined them feeling so scared as she stepped into the glare of the footlights that she turned aside as if to escape unnoticed.

"Here, you! the girl in the check suit. You're not a show girl. Step back."

Anita looked up the line, saw she was the only girl in a check suit and retired in hasty confusion. Only ten of the dozens of show girls were picked out, and those, thought Anita, the least attractive ones. What was she to know of stage types?

"All right, ladies. Stand to one side, those who have been picked out, and hand your names to Mr. Posen," directed the voice from beyond the footlights. "Ponies and dancers, please."

Anita added herself to this collection, too, and was humiliated by being ordered out again. Ten ponies were selected, all of whom had to prove their ability by performing various kinds of acrobatic dancing. Anita decided to leave. "What is the use of staying?" she thought. "I would not have a chance."

"What class do I come in?" she timidly asked a sophisticated nymph of about her own height.

"Medium. Same's me," answered the nymph distantly, smoothing her sleek blonde marcel.

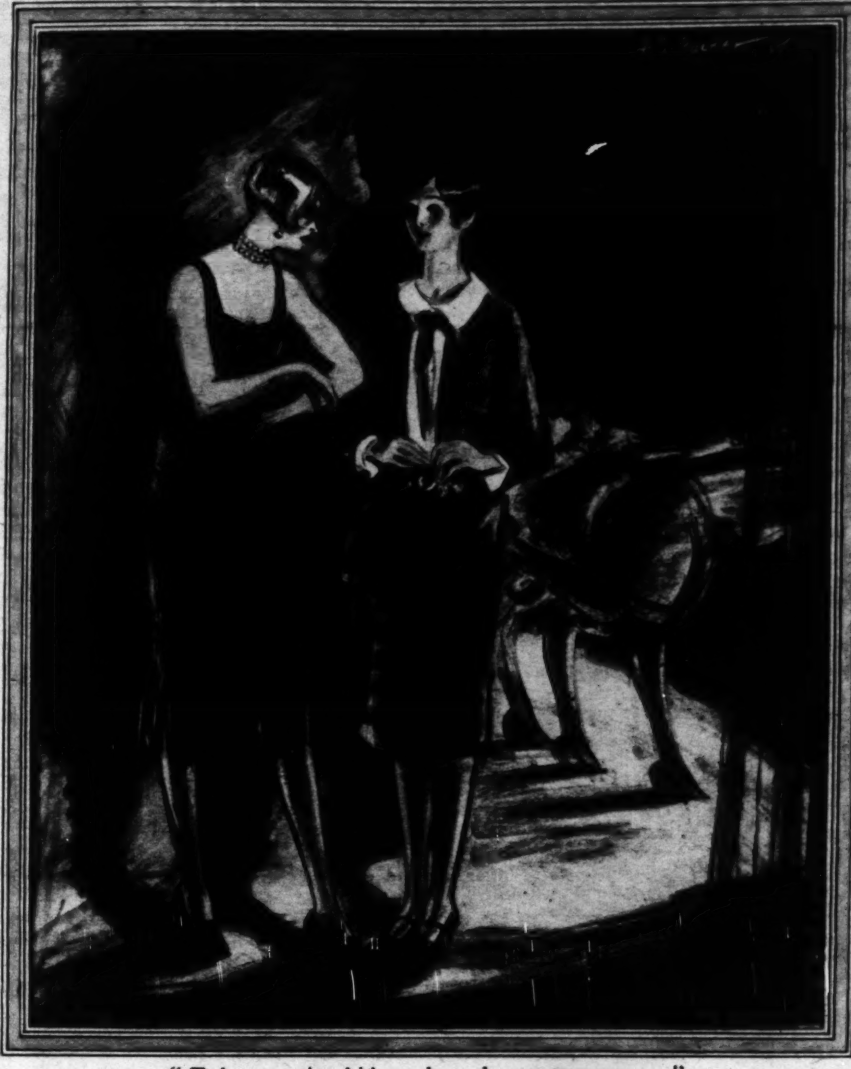
"Do we have to dance like those small girls?" inquired Anita, looking at the ponies who were exhibiting their prowess before the powers that be.

"No, but we have to do all the work. Come in on every number and have dozens of changes," answered her informer. "Amateur, ain't you?" she queried, giving Anita the once over.

"Say, your lips are a mess, dearie. Let me make you up," she added generously, saying, as Anita nodded a grateful assent, "Take my tip, kid, and go home to mammy. The stage is no good unless you are a headliner, and then it's no good."

"I was brought up in the business, and let me tell you, dearie, I have seen too many nice kids go wrong. No, of course, you don't want to give it up; you intend to be another Elsie Ferguson, don't you? Say, lissen, I know. They all do. Well, if you won't take a well wisher's advice, I can tell you the ropes, anyway. Stick to me, kid."

Anita's new friend urged her forward when mediums were called and pulled her into line next to herself.



"Take my tip, kid, and go home to mammy."

As she was a blue-eyed, peroxide blonde, she proved a good foil for Anita's dusky, modest beauty.

"Step down, the girl in the check suit." Good heavens, she was the first chosen! Amid the clingingly garbed, highly colored denizens of Broadway, she was the first to be noticed, in her badly cut form-concealing little costume, schoolgirl shirtwaist and low shoes! How was she to know that the contrast made her noticeable and displayed her undoubted possibilities to sophisticated eyes?

When she went to give her name to the blasé Mr. Posen, that astute gentleman said, "Vy not drop the Blower, dearie? Call yourself Anita May." So Miss Blower sank into oblivion and Anita May blossomed forth.

WHEN "The Homing Bird" opened, Anita May blossomed forth literally. From a mousy brown cocoon of a girl she developed, under skillful hands, into a dusky fragile princess, another of the feted beauties of the Venus Ventures.

An exquisite dewy-eyed young thing who would lighten the cares of the tiredest business man, one of the carefully picked troupe of silken houris displayed for the edification of the millionaires whose tastes the producers sought to gratify.

What difference is there between the Venus Ventures of our modern Babylon and the professional peris of a caliph's palace, which were exhibited before visiting princes for sale to the highest bidder?

Uriah Manderson put on the show. Charles Cheveus designed the costumes, Izzy Baline wrote the music; the result was a feast of riotous color, catchy tunes, and snappy comedy. The company played to packed houses, and Anita May was introduced to an interested public as practically the only newcomer, for the producers were too canny to risk many untried amateurs in a show which had to repay the tremendous cost of production.

ANITA was put ino the hands of their publicity agent, who proceeded in the usual way to tell the world about her. Overtree and Overtree, the famous photographers, made dozens of peppy pictures of her which were duly published in the art sections of the popular magazines and envied by all the small town belles who gazed on Anita's fair visage, not to mention being cut out and hung up in dozens of collegiate rooms.

So that is how just another small town girl gained notoriety via the stage. Anita was well launched.

Anita, being beautiful, was dumb as most of them are, but she gave some serious thought to a letter she received from a small town in Indiana some months later. It ran as follows:

"Dear Nita! We are all proud of your success in Hicksville, especially me, to know my girl has done so well. I often think of the time we was keeping company before you went off to New York and me kissing a certain young lady who has her picture in the magazines now. Don't forget us now you are famous and pay us a visit soon. Your always faithful

Joe."

Anita felt guilty when she reflected how she had left her town and family—not to mention faithful Joe—without a word of farewell. She had not been happy and had been more or less slighted because her family were shiftless, down-at-heel people.

Joe was but little better off than they, but he was her only beau, and now she built a halo around him, remembering his constancy. She felt that she did not belong on Broadway.

SHE was a small town girl at heart and wished for nothing better than a comfortable home and babies. Her flash-in-the-pan success, through strenuous boosting, had antagonized the girls in her company—all but Margie Burns, the peroxide blonde who had befriended her at the first rehearsal.

They roomed together in an unpretentious hotel in the Fifties, and to Margie she confided her doubts and regrets.

"Joe is my beau back home. No stage door john, Margie, but an honest-to-goodness country boy. He's on a farm. I do not fit in with this life," went on Anita plaintively. "I don't like the parties and the late hours. I was raised in the country and I'd like to go back to the chickens and the homely chores now I know what the stage is like."

"Well, I don't know, dearie," drawled Margie, as she pulled on a flesh colored stocking. "I don't know, kid. I was born to the stage, will never get it out of my blood. You have some dandy johns hanging around you. That Tyler Burton, the writer feller, f'rinstance. He's got some class even if he don't mean orange blossoms and a band of platinum. Now I ain't telling you to take your chance and be a lady of the evening. Lissen, what I mean is, if you played your cards right he might ring up the preacher."

Anita shook her head and decided to go home.

"WHAT did I tell you, dearie?" said Margie cheerfully a month later when Anita returned suddenly to Broadway. "Those hicks ain't all they're cracked up to be."

"O, Margie!" wailed Anita. "Isn't it disgusting! The wretch! To think I went back and asked that hayseed to marry me and settle down on the farm! And he—he wanted me to stay on the stage so he could start a bootlegging business in New York and I could get him customers. The cheap skate! The piker!! The poor bub-b-boob!!! Oooooh Margie!!!!"

"There, there, kid. Don't take on so. It'll all come out in the wash. Say, Tyler Burton went crazy when he heard you'd gone."

"Did he really?" exclaimed Anita, brightening up.

Anita is a hick again. She married Tyler Burton, who bought an old farmhouse in Connecticut and has settled down to farming between sessions at his typewriter. Anita has her hands full with three babies, but she finds time to cultivate an old fashioned flower garden.

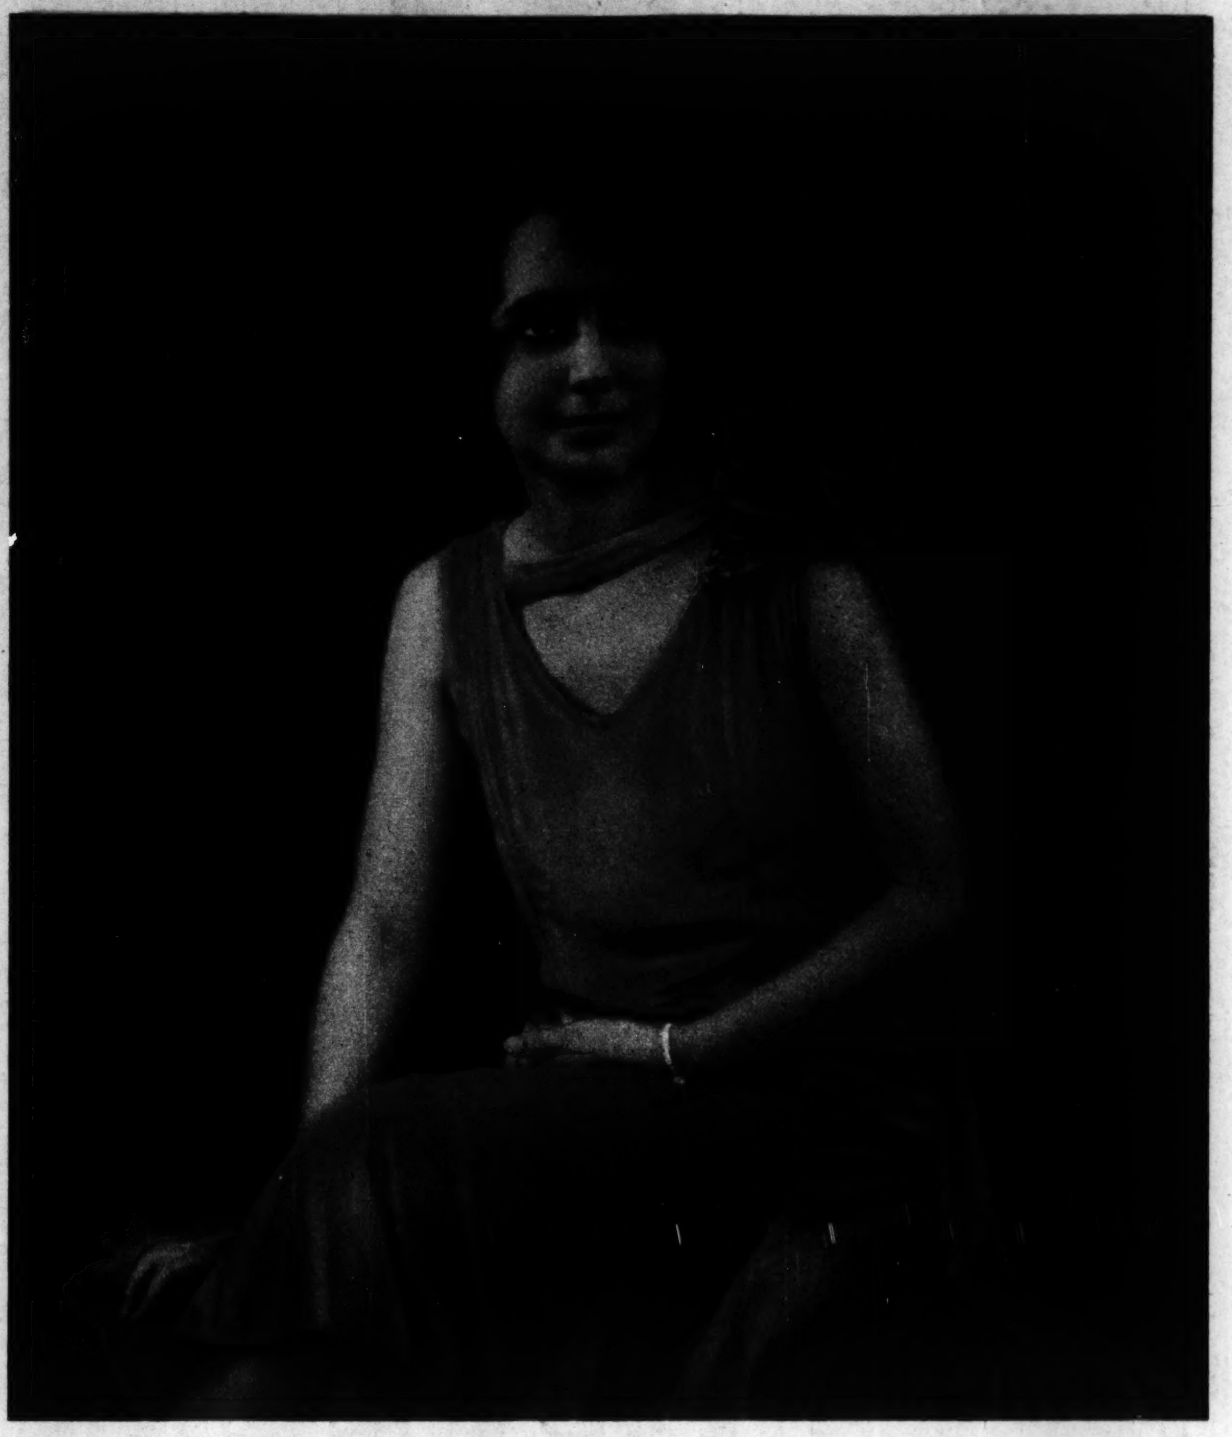
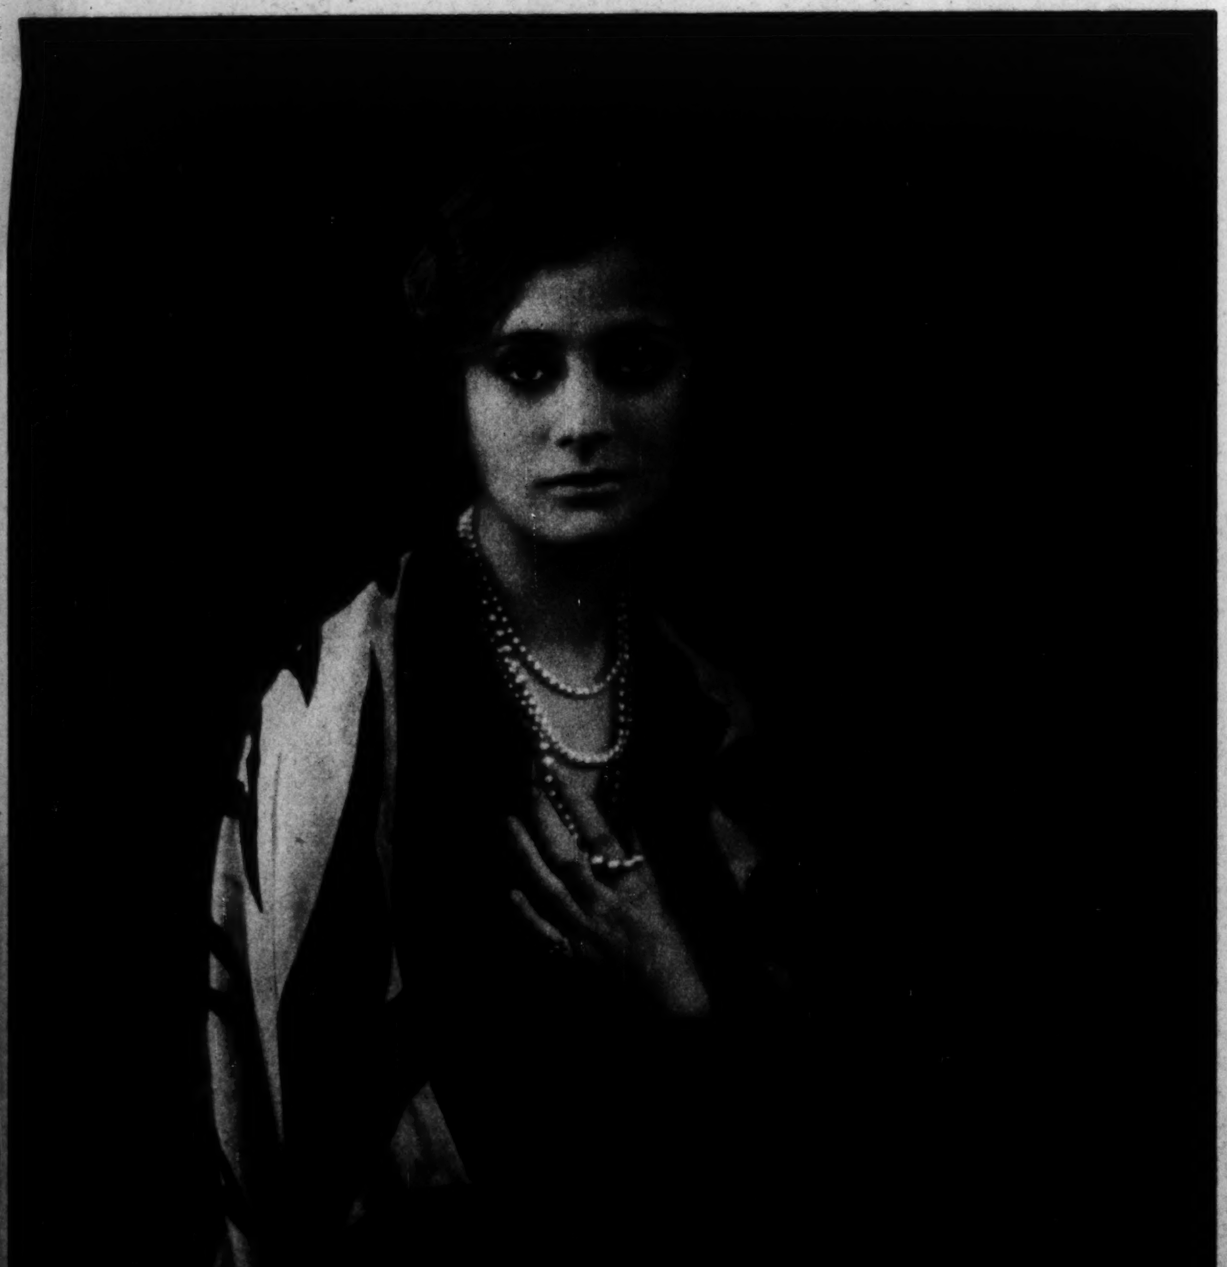
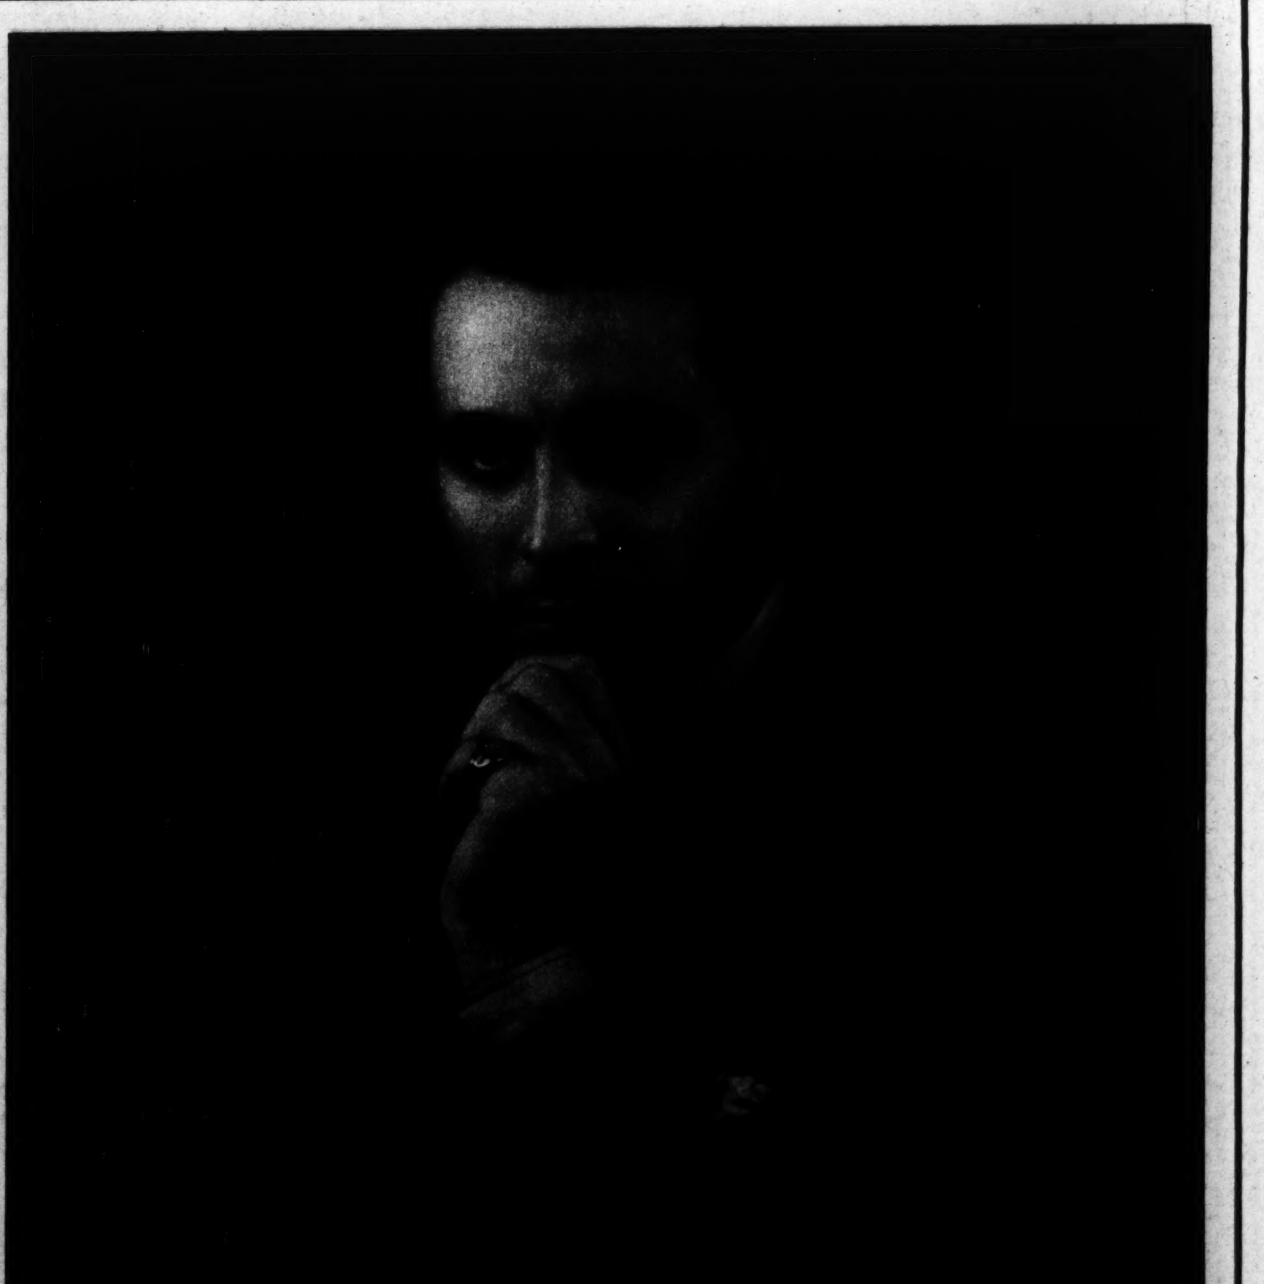
ALICE JOYCE grows lovelier with every passing year. If you don't believe it—ask the directors who scramble madly for her services when they need somebody for the role of a beautiful young mother.



BETTY BRONSON pinned a rose on her shoulder and obligingly posed for Mr. Lundberg. She seems rather more mature here than in most of her photographs. She's still receiving fan mail from folk who loved her "Peter Pan."



DOLORES COSTELLO, daughter of that idol of early movie days, Maurice Costello, is the frail beauty you see before you here. Doesn't she make you think of Elsie Ferguson?



RICARDO CORTEZ, the dark, dreamy-eyed chap who looks and acts so much like Valentino, has a large and enthusiastic following of his own. We like this picture of him a lot and hope you do the same.

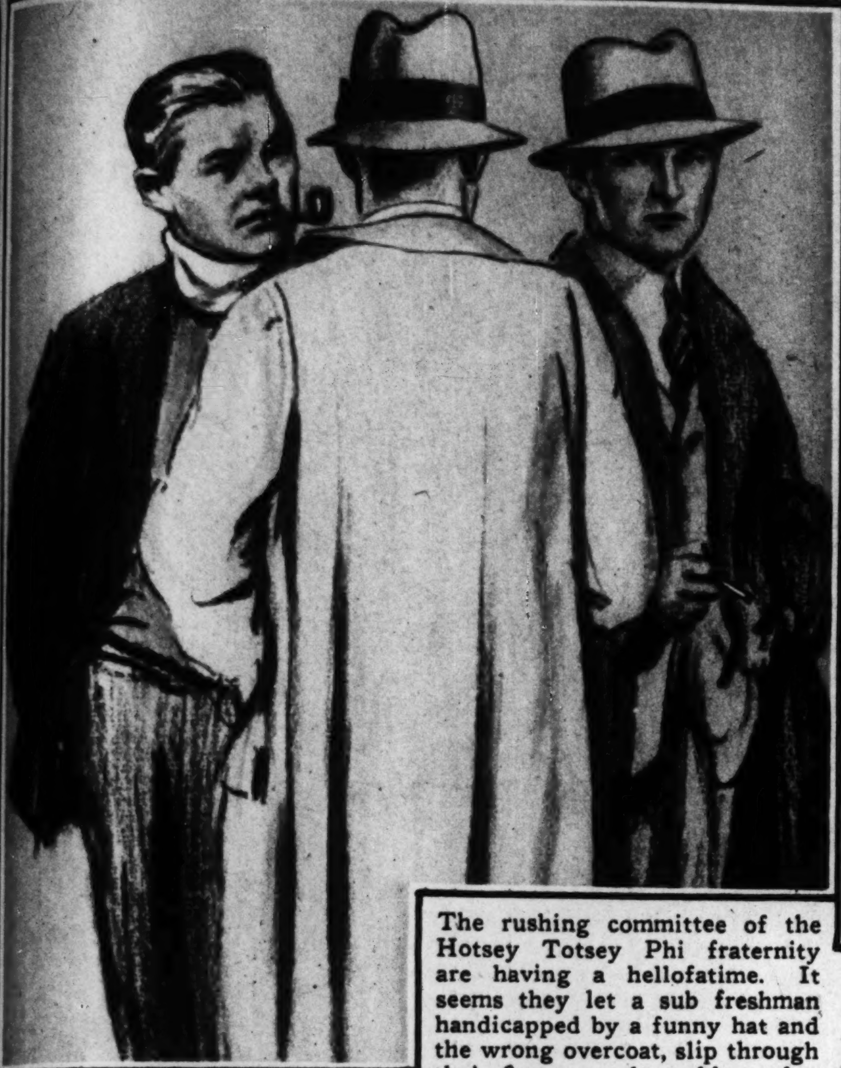
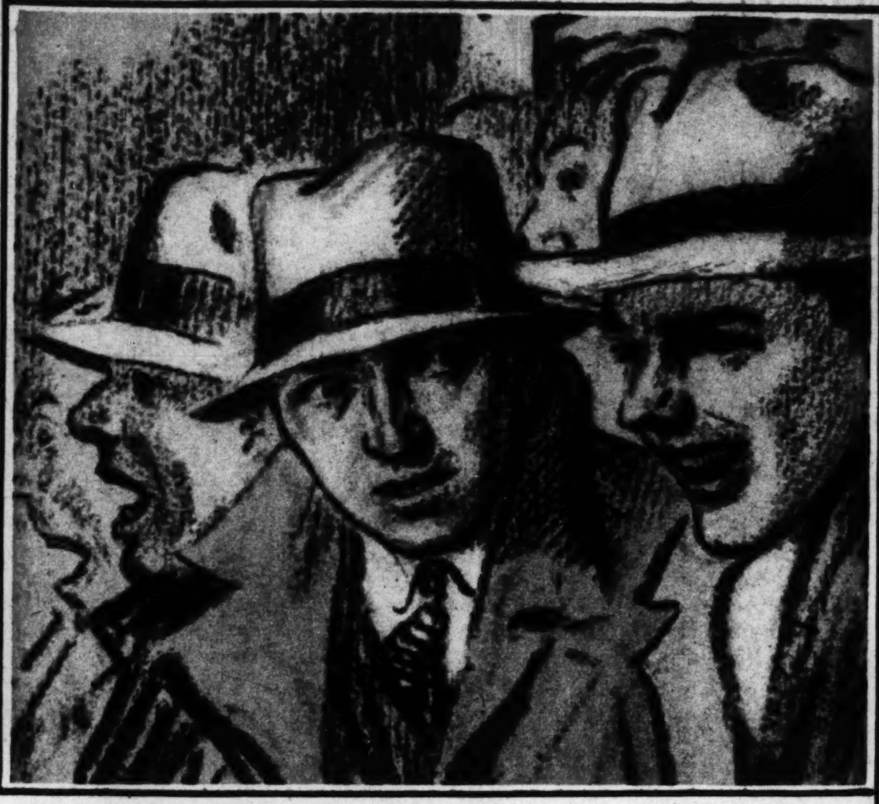
The Student Body

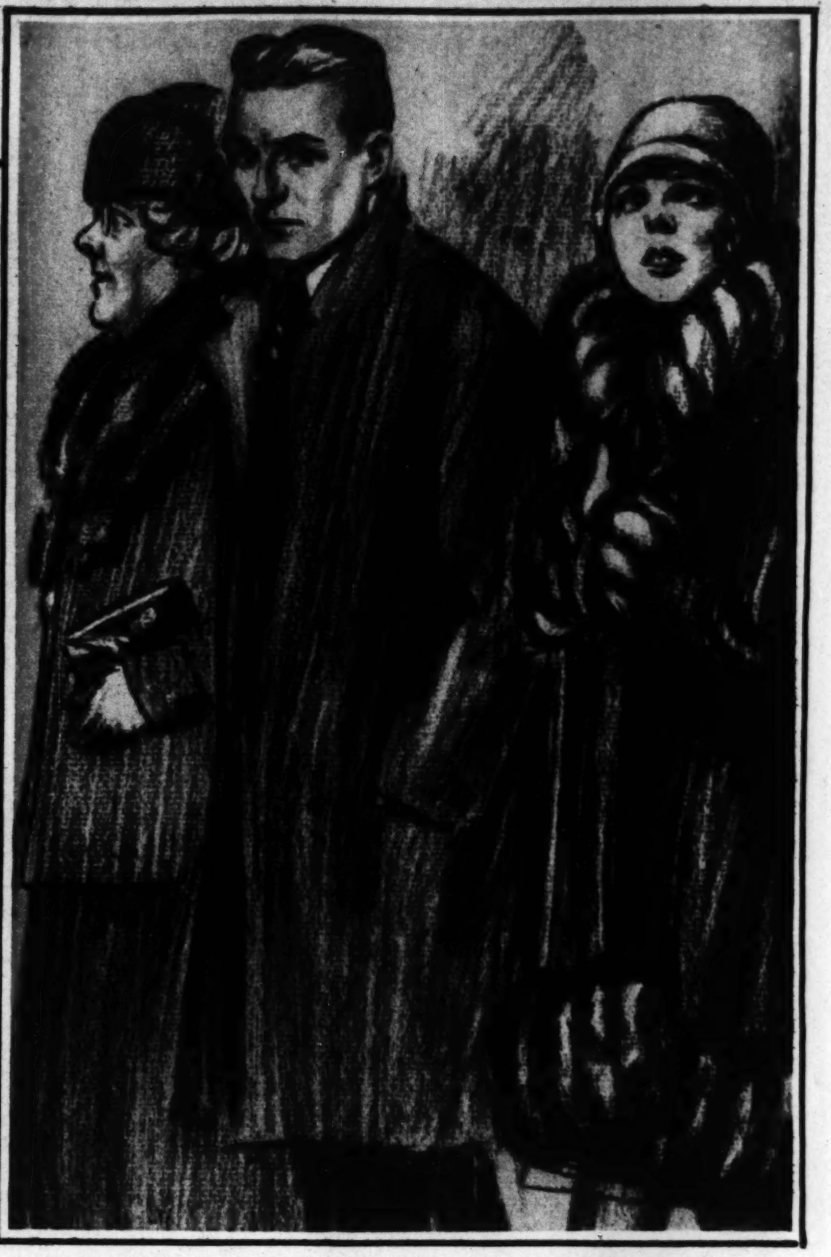
By W. E. HILL



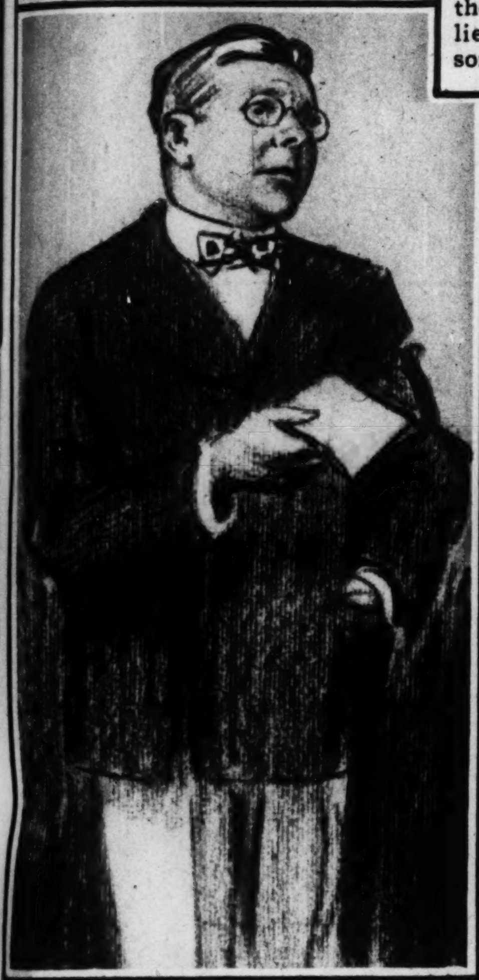
The rushing committee of the Hotsey Totsey Phi fraternity are having a hellofatime. It seems they let a sub freshman handicapped by a funny hat and the wrong overcoat, slip through their fingers, and would you believe it, he turned out to be the son of twenty millions in oil!



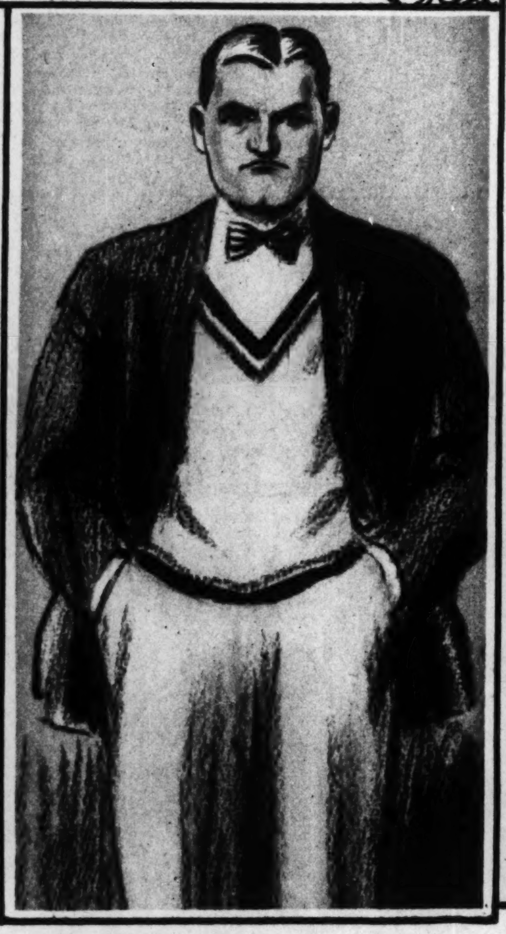
The student who lacks college spirit never remembers the words of "Alma Mater," and gets cold at football games.



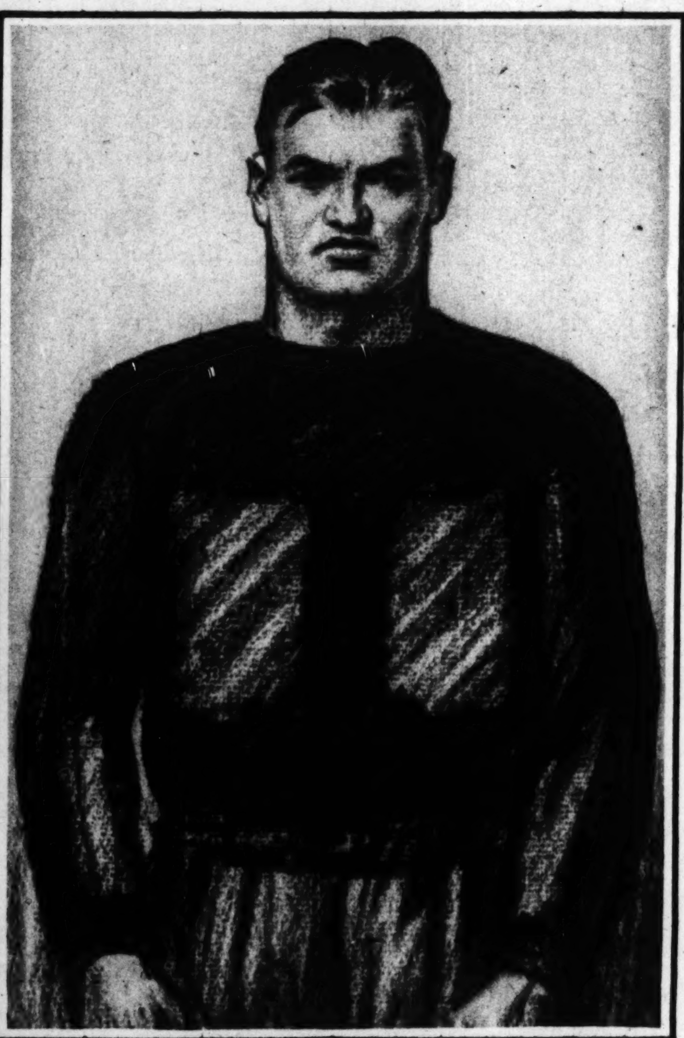
The unwilling roommate who is showered from time to time with mothers and cousins and aunts belonging to his best friend.



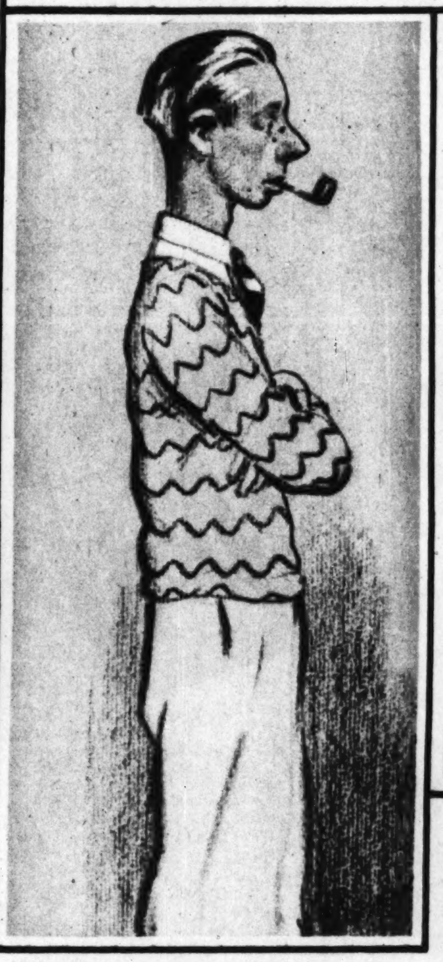
The leading lady of the dramatic society who has been told that he really ought to go on professionally. His best roles are Lady Teazle done with futurist scenery, and Viola, in "Twelfth Night," with not even a velvet drape. The acting was so good no one missed it.



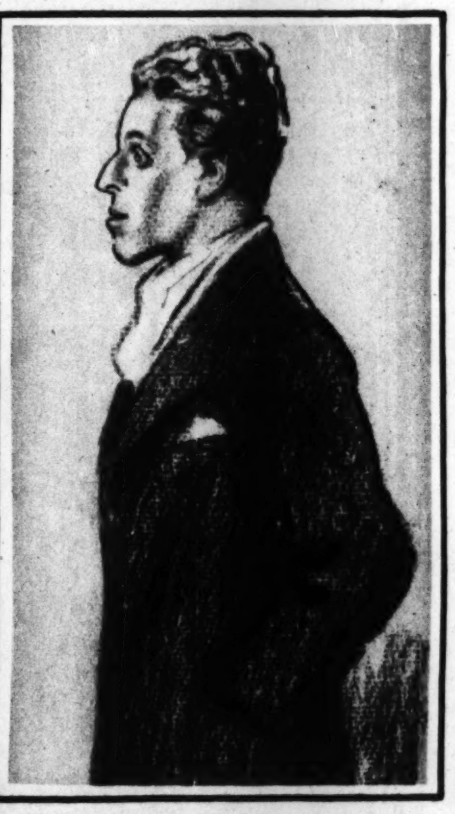
The big, strong, forceful guy who gets up at mass meeting and says: "Now, men, let's all get together tomorrow and show the team they have the college body behind them to a man—" etc., etc. He makes Phi Beta Kappa.



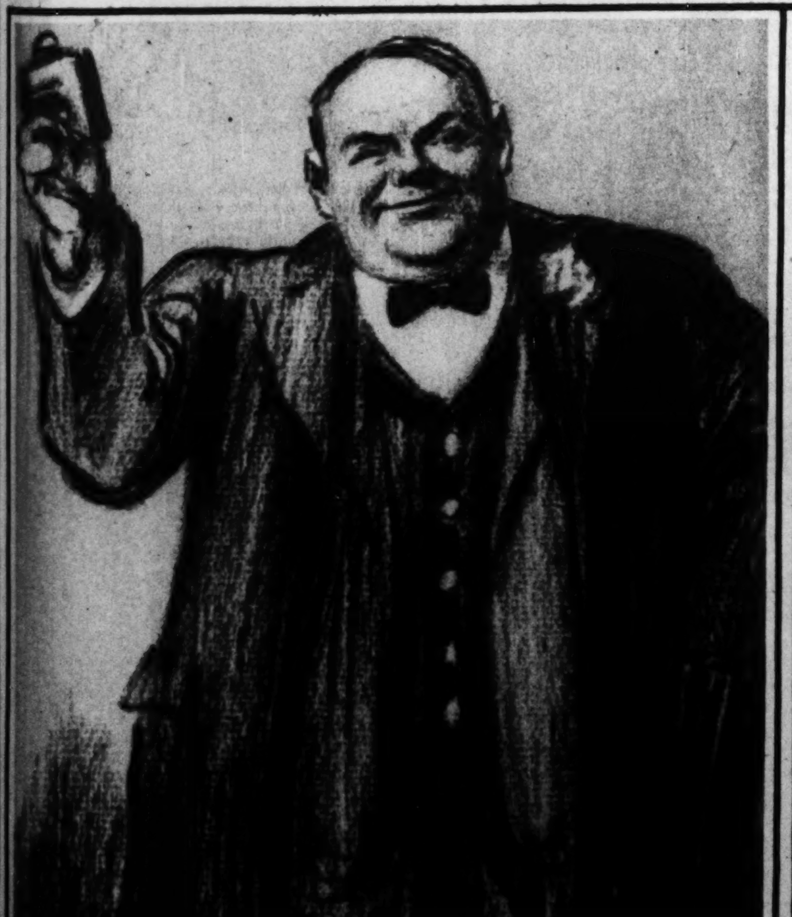
Meet Joe, the football star, before the faculty put him on the side lines. He has six conditions and as many over cuts to his discredit.



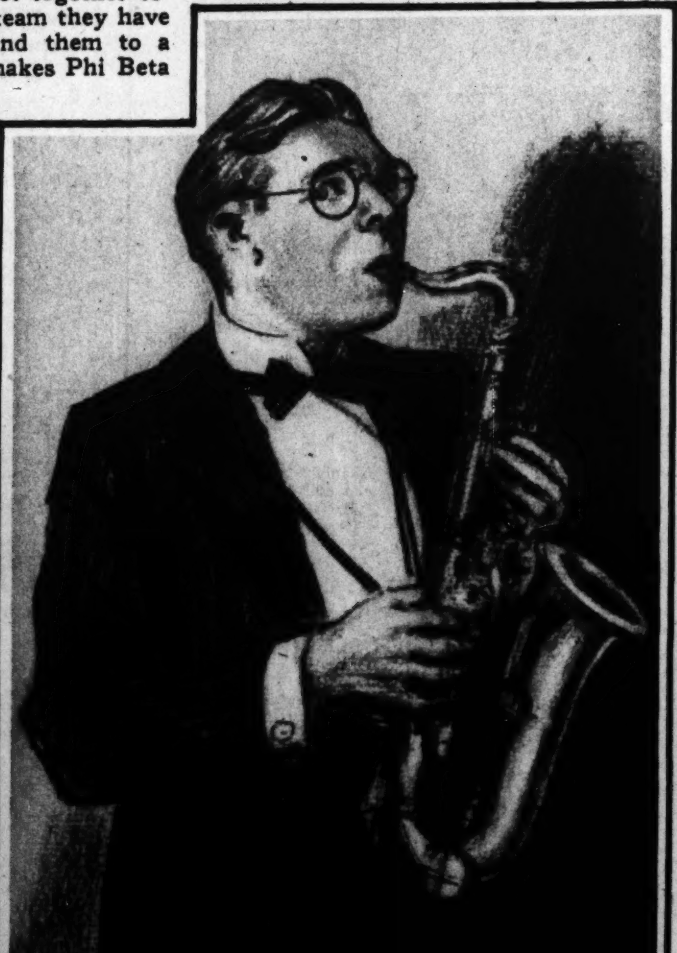
The solid background who longs to shine as a figure in college activities. He compromises on the chess team.



The literary esthete has, to use his own words, simply NO flair for mathematics. Likes T. S. Elliot and James Joyce, and is getting out a book of poems labeled, "Mould and Iron." Loves little theater movements and early American glass. His rooms are fixed up like an early Doge's palace, with Victorian trimmings.



No college body is complete without the ever present alumnus with his flask and stock of "I-remember-whens."



Norbert is working his way through four strenuous years of collegiate life, not as in the old days, by tending furnaces and waiting on table at the Commons, but as the spirit of jazz in a busy jazz orchestra.

Beauty ~ ~ ~ ~ that brings beauty as its Christmas Gift

THE perfect Christmas gift should be beautiful in itself—distinctive—individual. It should carry the feeling that the one for whom it is chosen is worth going far for and spending much to please. It should take her taste for granted—and prove your own.

The creations of Houbigant are ideal gifts. Behind them lie a hundred and fifty years of glittering history. Before them stretch breathless possibilities for the woman who finds them hers on Christmas morning. Their very name is a patent of nobility—a promise to exceed her utmost expectations.

On this page you will see twelve such gifts—each a little masterpiece—or a collection of masterpieces, for the woman who is most fortunate of all. The secret of their fascination is in their perfume. A perfume for every type—for every mood. Perfume in jewel-colored flasks—in gay French boxes—in thistledown powders—in crystals for the bath.

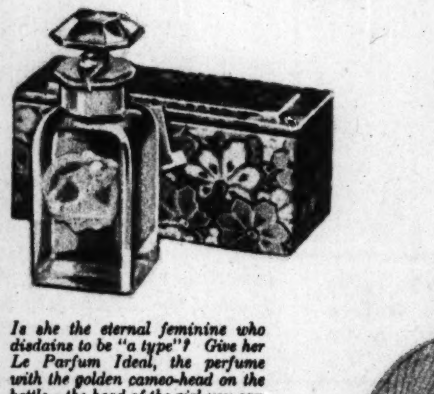
When you give Houbigant perfume, you have given the soul of charm, the very heart of coquetry and loveliness. When you choose one of these perfumed gifts of Houbigant, you plant a little garden for two—where sweet thoughts of you will bloom throughout the year!

Every woman knows that she should never mix her perfumes. But many women think that matching them is a bit of a luxury. Give them matched to the one you want to please on Christmas morning! A crystal flask of her favorite Houbigant odor. That gay flower-basket box of Houbigant face powder in the same perfume. And talcum, too- fine as perfumed snow—to bring the same touch of luxury into the intimacies of her boudoir. In Subtilité or Mon Boudoir odor—$8.25. In Quelques Fleurs—$8. Le Parfum Ideal—$7.50.

Perfume—with magic and dreams in it, for the single touch that she uses so cleverly as accent. Toilet water in the same odor, the soul of the garden, at her fingertips. A little gold powder compact to keep her nose at its serene and piquant best in public. A fat French lipstick that brings Cupid to look over her shoulder when she wields it delicately. In Quelques Fleurs, Mon Boudoir or Le Parfum Ideal—$12.50.

Is she the girl who is always laughing—gay and sweet as a walled French garden? Then she'll adore Quelques Fleurs, light, delicate and teasing, $15, $7.50 and $4.

Has she an innate love of luxury—of rose-colored lights and soft music? Give her Mon Boudoir, languorous and exotic. $8, $4.25 and $2.25.



Is she the eternal feminine who disdains to be "a type"? Give her Le Parfum Ideal, the perfume with the golden cameo-head on the bottle—the head of the girl you can see, serene in the full moon, on a clear night. $12.50, $6.75, $3.50, and $1.75.

After the bath comes the perfumed snow from the golden-flowered fat French box with its big soft white woolly puff; $1.50.

Here is the gift de Luxe, the ideal gift, for it has everything she wants! Perfume—toilet water—face powder—sachet—a gold compact for her purse—a fat gold lipstick to match—the whole box fragrant as a silken garden with crystal flowers! In Mon Boudoir, or Subtilité—$22. In Quelques Fleurs—$21. In Le Parfum Ideal—$20.

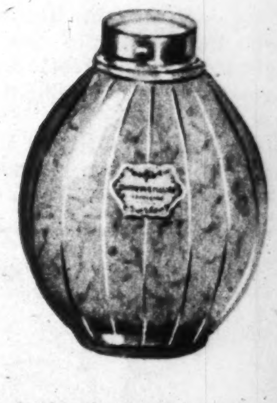
A New Gift—for Men

Give a man something useful, yet with a touch of luxury he's sure to enjoy . . . Usefulness and the luxury of Houbigant quality make the Fougere Royale Shaving Set a gift any man will value far beyond its moderate cost. It is a gift men will take real delight in using. The set contains Shaving Cream, Facial Soap, Talcum and Hair Lotion. Price, $3.50.

Is she the outdoor girl with eyes serene and steadfast? Does she believe in romance—and create belief in others? Give her Le Temps des Lilas! $10, $5 and $2.75.

Is she complex, modern, restless, subtle, hard to read? Then give her Subtilité—heady, but aloof—a perfume that contradicts itself in order to attract! In the black and scarlet Buddha box—$12.50.

When she washes her hands, she touches her fingers delicately with her favorite Houbigant Toilet Water, Quelques Fleurs, Mon Boudoir or Subtilité—$3.50.



And here the perfumed crystals that turn an ordinary bath into a thing of luxury and restfulness and magic recuperation of the senses; $1.50.

FOWNES Gloves

—for the glove-gift distinctive

Why give ordinary gloves when gloves can be so interesting and delightful? There are fine, lovely leathers to make the gift distinctive. And many kinds of gloves—sports gloves, dress gloves, gloves of fashion and gloves of form. A Christmas glove can be a very handsome gift.

For Christmas shoppers, Fownes offers a score of gift suggestions. Smart street and dress gloves in the exquisite Fownes leathers and styles. Gloves for driving, golf, winter or summer sports that make the gift unusual and delightful. And with every Fownes Glove goes the prestige of quality. You cannot choose a finer glove, for Fownes have made gloves for 148 years. They know fine leathers, fine making, fine finish. They know how to shape a glove to flatter the hand. For fit, Fownes have always been famous. In a Christmas box, a Fownes Glove looks its own smart, patrician self.

If you cannot get Fownes Gloves at your favorite store or shop, write direct to us.

ON THE ROOF OF ASIA with the Roosevelt expedition of last spring. Theodore and Kermit Roosevelt, sons of the ex-president, set out for the Kara Koran mountains, which divide northeastern India from Chinese Turkestan, in search of a strange species of mountain sheep peculiar to that region. Their search took them to the top of the Kardong pass at an altitude of 17,600 feet. The climb was too much for their pack of ponies and the expedition had to depend entirely on the hardy mountain yaks pictured here. (Photograph copyright by Pacific and Atlantic.)

Walter Eckersall's All-Western Eleven

WHY THESE MEN ARE THE BEST in the West is told briefly by Mr. Eckersall in his captions with these pictures. Next Sunday Mr. Eckersall will announce his All-American eleven with another page of photographs. Mr. Eckersall's All-American is the standard for the country, the one to which future football generations will refer when discussing the All-American eleven of 1925.

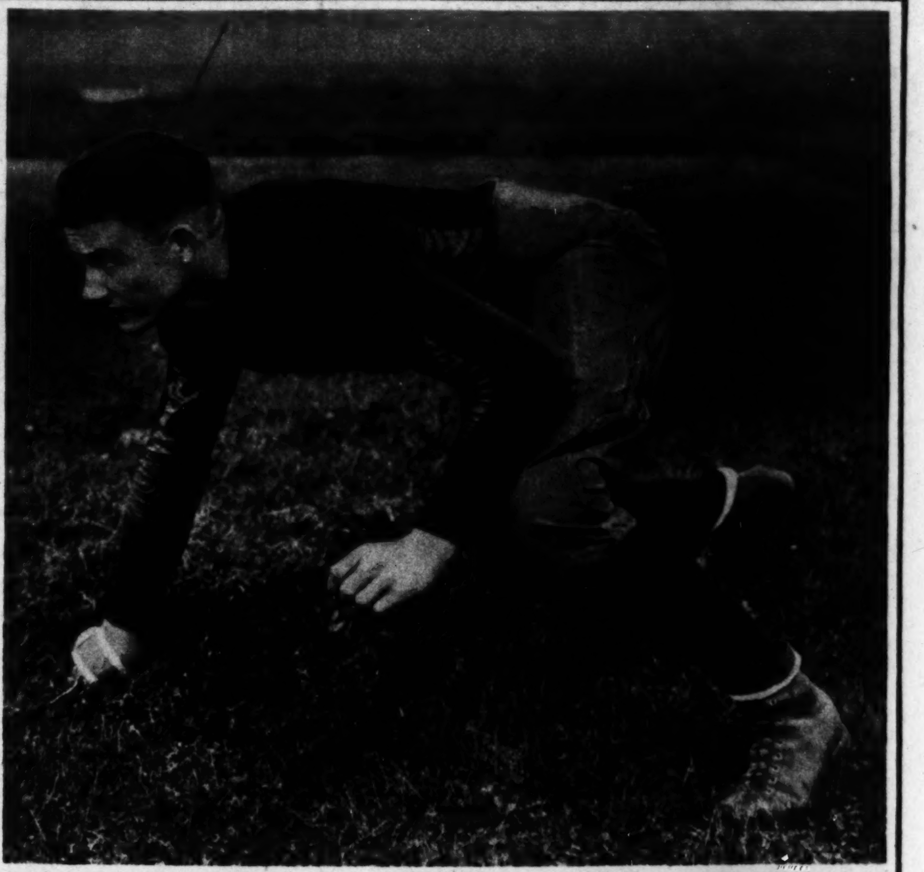
GENERALSHIP and all-around football ability win for Bennie Friedman of Michigan the quarterback berth, a position awarded this sterling player on the honorary Western conference eleven also. Friedman's ability was so respected by his teammates that they elected him captain of the 1926 Wolverine eleven. Bennie was one of the most accurate forward passers in the country, and a good field goal kicker. With proper support he should be an even more valuable and versatile player next fall.

LA VERN DILWEG of Marquette, one of the offensive and defensive powers of the Milwaukee university eleven for the last three years, is placed at right end. Dilweg used his hands and arms to weave through an interference to get the runner. He always turned the play to the inside and on most occasions nailed the runner. He is tall and rangy, scaling over 190 pounds. Because of his height and speed, he makes an ideal running mate for Oosterbaan in any forward pass attack.

DOYLE HARMON, who has been elected captain of the Wisconsin 1926 eleven, is selected for the right halfback. The Badger's all-around ability entitles him to this honor. He should be a valuable man on next year's Cardinal eleven. He is a punter, passer and runner. These qualifications fit him for any of the duties of a backfield player.

RED GRANGE'S CLAIM to the position of left halfback should go unquestioned. The Illinois star was given this position on the mythical Big Ten team, and he will be honored in the same manner on this writer's All-American. Red's ball carrying ability cannot be underestimated, and the fact that he was a respected player in his three years of intercollegiate football is vindication enough of his ability. His name will be famous in football as long as the game is played.

(Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)



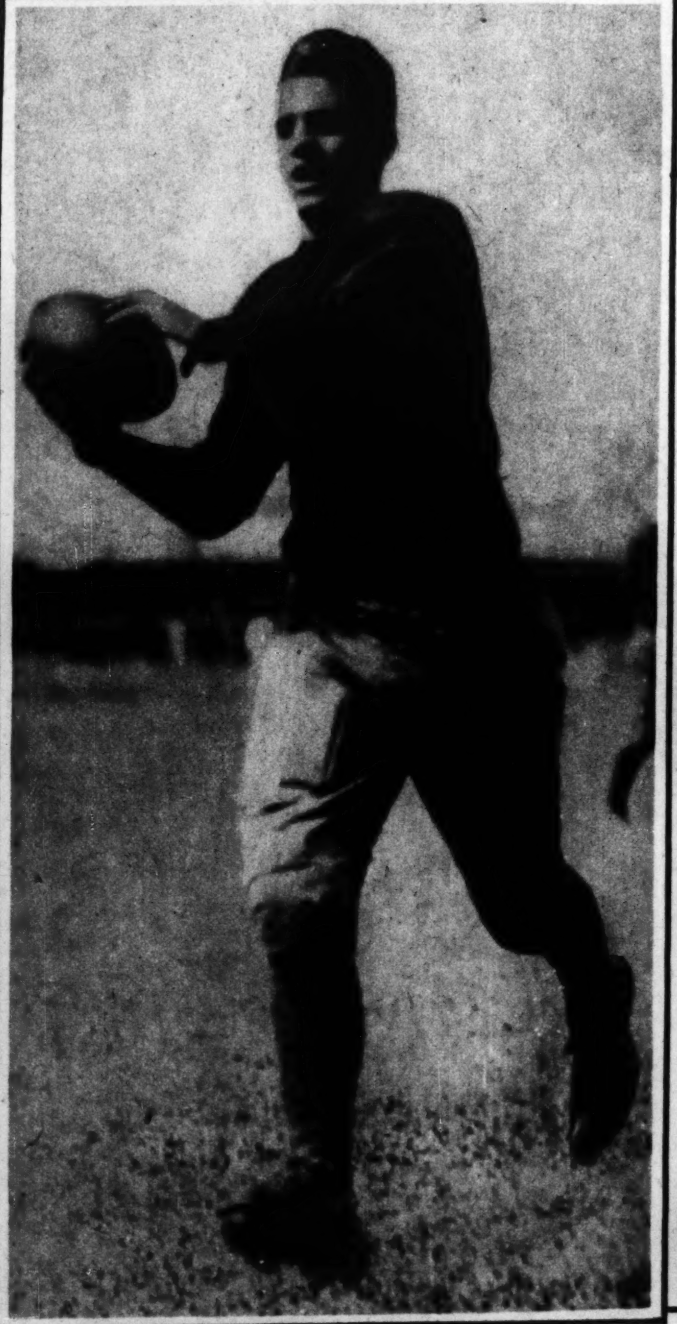
ED WEIR, who captained this year's Nebraska eleven, is selected for left tackle. This is the second year the writer has chosen this sterling player for the position. In addition to being a great defensive player, Weir is a power on the offense. This season he did all the punting and field goal kicking. He was pulled five yards back of the scrimmage line to advance the oval, and at times was used on the old tackle-around play. Weir's speed may be gathered from the fact that he ranks with the best high hurdlers in the middle west.

CENTER position is awarded to Harold Hutchison of Nebraska, who is rated the best pivot player in Cornhusker history. Unlike many football players, particularly linemen, Hutchison was resourceful. While playing a roving position on defense, he anticipated opponents' attacks and moved to the danger points with speed enough to help stop the advances. He frequently tackled opponents on the flanks, while his passing could not have been improved upon. Strong, shifty, and having football intelligence, he is an ideal man for the position.

TOM EDWARDS, one of the best forwards who has worn the Maize and Blue of Michigan in recent years, is placed at right tackle. This player had a vicious charge and was largely responsible for few gains being made off his side of the Michigan line. He always rushed the forward passers and kickers, and was down the field under his own team's kicks. He was used sometimes to carry the ball and did fairly well.

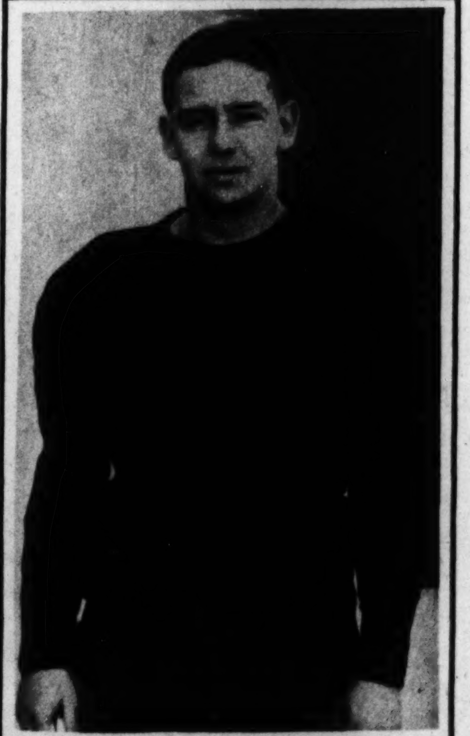
(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

EDWIN HESS, one of the reliables of the Ohio State eleven, is rewarded with his old position at left guard. This player was among the leading linemen in the conference. There was little about his position which he did not know, and he always had a happy faculty of being in the vicinity of the ball. He was among the fastest forwards in the Western conference.



BENNIE OOSTERBAAN of Michigan, generally considered one of the best ends in the country, is placed at left end. Bennie's uncanny ability to get into the open to receive forward passes is the chief reason for his selection. He was on the receiving end of Michigan's forward pass attack and scored several touchdowns. He was also reliable on the defense.

LEONARD WALSH of Minnesota, selected for a guard position on the All-Conference eleven, is awarded the same berth on this honorary team. Coach Spears of Minnesota rates this player one of the best forwards he ever coached. During the season Walsh varied his charges nicely and did all that was expected of him in other departments of play.



REX ENRIGHT of Notre Dame is awarded the fullback position. He is rated one of the hardest line plungers in Gold and Blue history, while his punting and blocking, with his forward passing, made him the most valuable player on Coach Rockne's eleven. Enright was the man depended upon for distance when yards were needed for first downs, and he seldom failed. Although a powerful offensive player, Enright was even better on defense. In fact, a lot of Notre Dame's success on the gridiron this fall must be attributed to this splendid player.

GERMANY BURIES HER RED KNIGHT, the famous Baron Manfred von Richthofen. He was Germany's ace of flying aces in the world war. So gallant a foe was he that when he fell behind the enemy lines in 1918, British and American aviators buried him with full military honors. The body was returned to Berlin recently for the funeral services pictured at the upper left. President von Hindenburg and all official Germany attended the rites, and again British and American aviators appeared to lay wreaths on the casket of an heroic foe. Tragedy attended this second burial, for Baron von Knoblesdorff crashed to his death while flying over the cemetery to drop flowers upon Richthofen's grave. Pictured above are Richthofen's mother and brother at the services; at the right is Baron von Richthofen as he appeared in his flying uniform.

THEY CAN'T COME INTO THE UNITED STATES, says our state department, thereby renewing an old controversy over the Countess Michael Karolyi, wife of Hungary's first president. With the countess in this pretty group are her two charming children. Countess Karolyi was a storm center during a previous visit to America some months ago, when she was charged with spreading bolshevik propaganda. Count Karolyi says his enemies in the present Hungarian government are responsible for this new attack upon his wife.

THE MASTER MIND OF CHESS does some wholesale master-minding at Moscow. Jose Capablanca, the Cuban who is world's champion at the game, is standing in the central foreground, pondering a move. He is engaging thirty opponents simultaneously. He lost only one game, while he won eighteen and tied eleven. This heavy work helped prepare Capablanca for Moscow's international tournament.

When it's happy Christmas Eve —and the glistening tree is ready and trimmed with tomorrow's gifts and toys —when the peace and good cheer of Christmas are almost here

—have a Camel!

Camels represent the utmost in cigarette quality. The choicest of Turkish and domestic tobaccos are blended into Camels by master blenders and the finest of French cigarette paper is made especially for them. Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

WHEN the happy work of Christmas Eve is done. And the clock calls the approach of midnight. When tomorrow's gifts and toys are in their place on the children's tree—have a Camel!

For to those who think of others there is no other gift like Camel. Camel makes every great day greater, increases the gladness in giving, makes life's anticipations brighter. Before Camel, no cigarette ever was so good. Camels are made of such choice tobaccos, are so skilfully blended, that they never tire the taste, or leave a cigaretty after-taste. Into the making of this one cigarette goes all of the skill of the largest tobacco organization in the world.

So on this Christmas Eve, when your work for others is done—when you're too glad for sleep with thoughts of tomorrow's happiness, oh, then—taste the smoke that every day brings contentment to so many millions. Know the mellowest mildness, the most rich and fragrant taste that ever was put into a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

It is well to remember your few closest friends with a supply of Camels for Christmas Day and the days to come. Get your Camel cartons now, and then they will be ready!

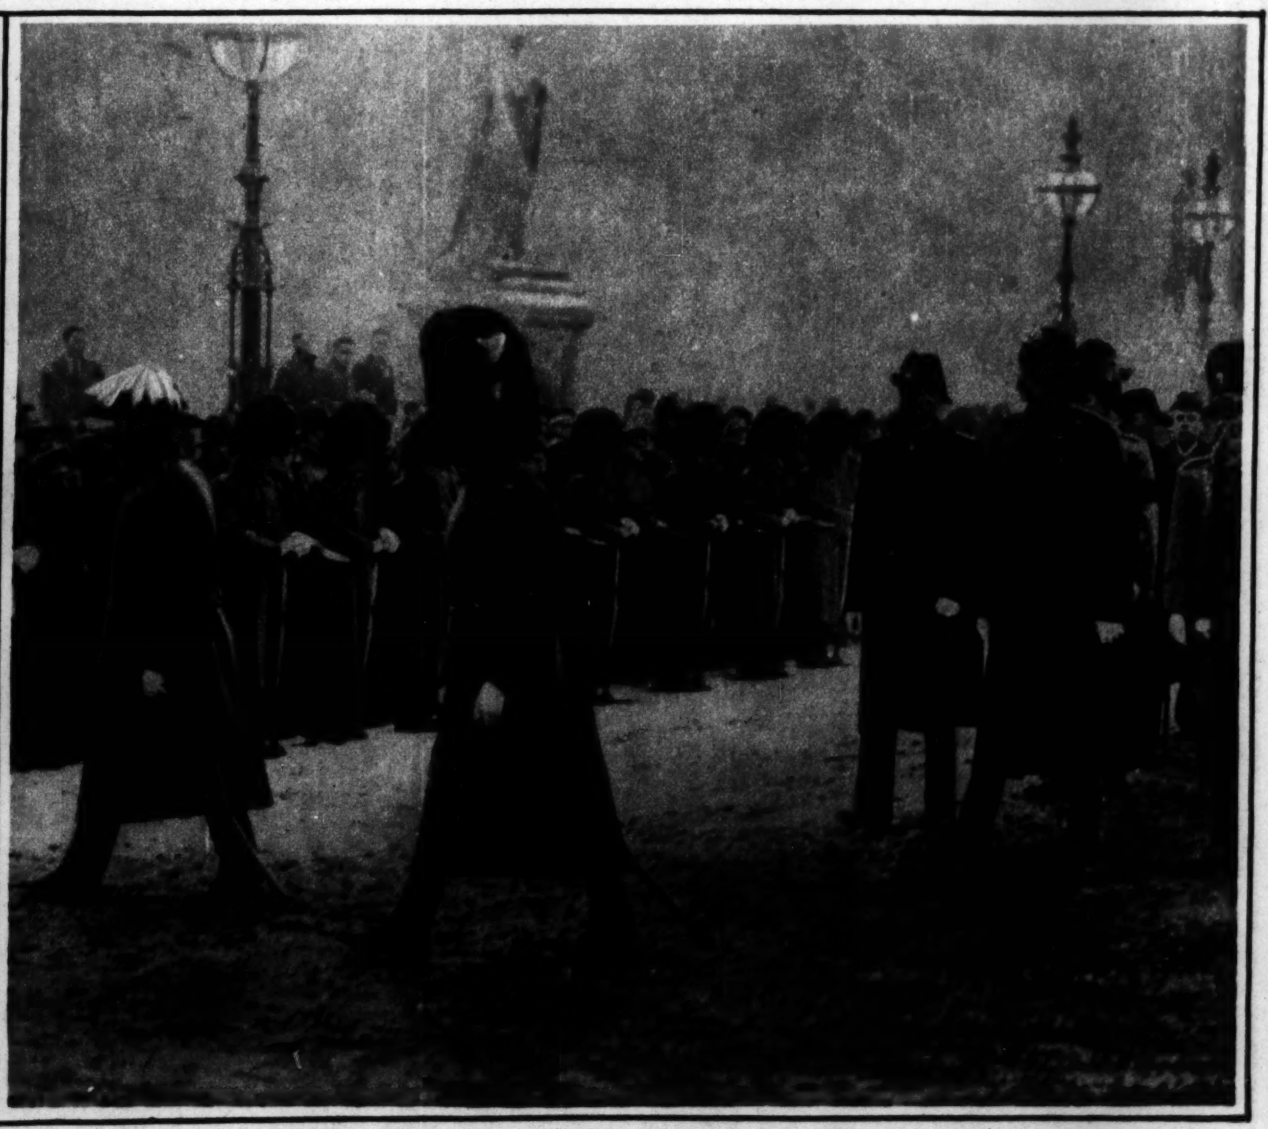
WHEN THE SEA KING'S DAUGHTER WENT TO REST—Tall guardsmen in bearskin hats formed a wall of military magnificence as the body of the British queen mother was borne into Westminster Abbey for the solemn state funeral that called forth the richest pageantry of the empire. Inside Britain's greatest leaders had gathered for the ceremony; and afterward came the tribute of the common people, when 100,000 former subjects filed past the high catafalque where lay the flag-covered body.

(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

WINTER LAID A SNOWY MANTLE upon the caisson that bore the body of Britain's one time queen as it wound its way through the streets of London. It powdered the uniforms of the mounted police who lead their horses here; it sprinkled the shoulders of the air force representatives who follow behind; and it left a sifting of white in the plumes on the head of the king as he marched in the capital he rules.

(Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



FOUR KINGS FOLLOWED THE BODY OF ALEXANDRA in the slow procession from the palace of St. James to the abbey. The British king is visible here at the left; and thence to the right the Prince of Wales and the kings of Norway, Denmark, and Belgium. They came afoot, paying impressive honor to the one time empress, walking for three-quarters of an hour in the creeping column.

WHAT A CRASH THAT MUST HAVE BEEN when Haggerty of Georgetown university landed after this great hurdle! This lucky snapshot caught a great action picture of football. Look at that human thunderbolt smashing against the dangling legs of the flying Haggerty! And note the grim fighting faces of the two Marines at the left, steaming up to hurl themselves against the soaring enemy! Haggerty's spectacular gains helped Georgetown beat the devil-dogs, 16 to 0.

Wherefore Miss Flowers is kept busy "doubling" for stars when close-ups of hands are required and the hands of the said stars are not as graceful as they might be.

Morse's
Milk Chocolate Creams

TO BE sure, she will have gifts that are quite, quite wonderful. Someone is thinking of cool, long-stemmed roses. Another, of a book bound in rare, deep-tooled leather. In this company, you may feel proud that your gift of sweets is Morse's Chocolates.

In Morse's famous "The Red Box" are creams of indescribable smoothness, coated with Morse's secret blend of thick, rich milk chocolate, a confectionery delight that sets every taste-nerve tingling.

Creams with maple, vanilla, cocoanut. Creams with the shaved, fat goodies of almonds, black walnuts, yellow pecans. Mystery nougat with fruits whose names you can't guess . . . and an incomparable butterscotch-caramel and cream combination.

Morse's Milk Chocolate Creams have been the choice of candy-wise folks for thirty years. Finer quality or more alluring flavors have never been combined. You will find them in your favorite drug and confectionery shops, always fresh, in boxes of one, two or more pounds. A. G. Morse Co., Inc., Chicago, makers of delicious candies since 1894.

Morse's Chocolates

If she prefers infinite variety, give Morse's "Not All Chocolates." 22 flavors . . . with bitter-sweet, vanilla or milk chocolate, or without chocolate coat. Nougat, cherry, almond, Brazil nuts. Caramel, vanilla, sour orange, maple. Stuffed dates, croquettes, Moreata caramels; peppermint, nut and honey nougat, rose cream, marshmallow with mint! Each taste surprises. The box fast empties! Packaged in royal gold.

A PAIR OF KINGS from Fistiana's championship pack test each other's speed in the roped arena. The little fellow is Fidel La Barba, champion of the flyweights. His sparring mate is easily recognizable as Jack Dempsey, although the old fighting face of the Neanderthaler seems sadly strange with that classic nose built up of wax or something. Fidel and Jack put on this champion-against-champion act recently at Los Angeles.

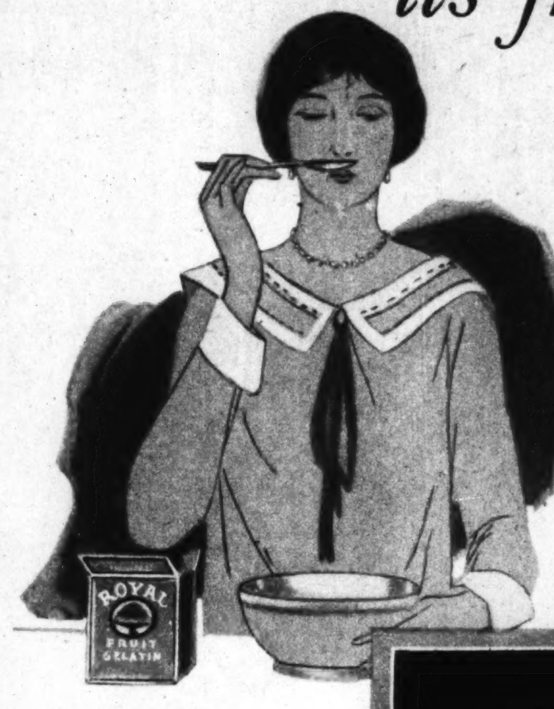
Made from FRESH FRUIT its fragrance tells you



Only fresh fruit juices could exhale this fragrance, this flavor.

IT'S unmistakable, that matchless flavor! The exquisite fresh fruit aroma tells you at the first breaking of the package that it comes only from fresh fruits.

Empty the clustering crystals into your bowl. Pour on the boiling water, and again its fruity richness delights you. Warm, luscious, juicy. Only from fresh fruits are these delectable flavors made.

So pure, so perfect is the delicate gelatin that carries them, that nothing has impaired these fresh fruit flavors. No trace of "gummy" taste or smell. Pure gelatin has neither! No taint of "aromatics" or "synthetics." Just the unspoiled flavor of the fresh fruit juices themselves carried by the finest gelatin crystals.

We offer it with pride to our Royal Baking Powder friends—you who know so well the quality that has always marked this favorite Baking Powder. You will recognize the same superlative quality at once in Royal Fruit Gelatin, the same high standard of perfection.

YOU know how important it is to have the purest gelatin obtainable for your children. Food authorities have placed it among the standard articles of diet—and so appetizing, so delicious, too!

Just the kind of jellies you've always felt nobody could make for you. Here they are!

Ready for instant use, or capable of delicious variations. Check the flavor you want. Send for the free package and test these marvelous Fruit Gelatins for yourself. You will delight in their unique fresh fruit flavor.

An entirely new sort of legging with patented fasteners so they can be put on or taken off in a flash. And the fasteners never rust or stick—they always work with ease and speed.

And they're so trim and tailored-looking! You'll like them as well as made-to-order leggings, yet they cost far less.

THEY are made in sizes 2 to 8 of the famous Waterside Corduroy in Camel's hair, Brown, Navy and Gray; also of Waterside Suede Like.

In sizes 2 to 6, in White, of Waterside Corduroy and Suede Like. Both materials wash perfectly without shrinking or fading.

If your dealer cannot show you Zip-On Leggings send us his name and the sizes and colors you desire and we will see that you are supplied. Sole Agents, Howlett and Hockmeyer Co., Fifth Avenue at 26th Street, New York.

In Sandy Andy" Toys and Games, one can find something suitable for children of every age. The "Sandy Andy" Vacuum Cleaner, for instance, is wonderfully perfect; works by friction and suction, and when pushed across the floor actually picks up dust and papers. The "Sandy Andy" Incline is one of the famous automatic sand and marble toys which have pleased the children for many years; and "OVER and UNDER" is a fast-action mechanical toy that will delight any boy. There are also toy laundry sets, dish sets, mechanical and automatic toys, and games too. The quick, exciting ones that hold the children's interest. "Round the World Flyers" is one of these. It is based on the world-circling aeroplane flight of the U. S. Army Aviators and teaches the map of the world and flags of many nations. Look for these interesting toys and games when you visit the stores; you will know them by "Sandy Andy" name on each box.

THESE PRETTY GIRLS ARE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN STUDENTS, not co-eds, but boys. Masquerading gayly as ladies fair, eight men are included in the chorus of "Tambourine," the musical comedy which the Mimes of Michigan will present in Chicago next Friday, Dec. 18, in the Auditorium theater. The decorative personalities presented here are, left to right, Henry Lathrop of Detroit, Dan Warner of Pontiac, and Benjamin Boyce of Lansing.

The Diana design in the Sea Pearl effect.

Look for the Fiberloid salesgirl. Wherever you see her you will find Fiberloid Toiletware for sale.

Sure of a welcome!

WHEN CHRISTMAS MORNING comes and the gay and joyous task of opening the Christmas gifts begins, chuckles of high delight and happy expressions of pleasure greet the Fiberloid Giftware.

For Fiberloid is sure of appreciation—of a warm welcome. The very boxes, in silver and purple, in which Fiberloid is packaged, are stunningly beautiful; and they are furnished at no extra cost.

And who could fittingly describe the Parisian loveliness of the Fiberloid Toiletware itself? The charming outlines and decorations of contrasting Fiberloid carving or gold incrustations accent the distinctiveness of the delightful material itself. There are the new and shimmering Sea Pearl effects in Azure, Rose, Coraline or Alba tones. Then too, there is Nacara, which comes in stronger shades—Smoke Pearl, Golden or Rose. Or perhaps the set is developed in one of the two-tone effects, Shell on Amber, Ivory on Amber or Pearl on Amber; or in the simple Tortoise, Ivory, Amber.

You can buy Fiberloid Toiletware ready boxed for Christmas giving in sets of three to nine pieces at prices that range from $5.00 to $75.00.

Ask your favorite dealer to show you an assortment, or if he does not carry it, write us, and we will send you the name of the merchant who can serve you. The Fiberloid Corporation, Indian Orchard, Mass. New York City Display Rooms, 402 Fifth Avenue. Toronto Display Rooms, 145 Adelaide St. West.

BABANI PERFUMES
A charming Gift . . . to increase a woman's charm

AS a Christmas gift, Babani Perfumes are the supreme compliment. They pay subtle tribute to a woman's charm. And at the same time they increase her charm. Ambre de Delhi, Ming, Sousouki, Chypre, Ligéia, Afghani—each one of these perfumes is chosen in Paris by Elizabeth Arden, because of its distinction, its atmosphere of chic. The smartest women blend two or more Babani Perfumes to make a personal perfume formula—a fragrance which no one can identify or imitate. Thus a gift of Babani Perfumes may be exceedingly intimate and thoughtful.

ELIZABETH ARDEN'S Venetian Toilet Preparations

These too are a smart and charming gift. Elizabeth Arden's Beauty Boxes, her Poudre d'Illusion, Compacts, Bath Salts and cosmetics, provide a perfect gift for every woman on your Christmas list.

Elizabeth Arden's Venetian Toilet Preparations and Babani Perfumes are on sale at

COTY

PRESENTS HIS SUPREME PERFUMES FOR SUBTLY UNDERSTANDING GIFTS THAT REVEAL IN MYSTIC FRAGRANCE THE MAGNETIC PERSONALITY BESTOWED BY THE MONTH OF BIRTH

JANUARY

Brilliant, original, magnetic—before whom the heart swings as a censer—changeful and changing—gay and sad without reason—ever aspiring—the strange complexities of January's daughters are defined in Parfum Chypre—Styx—Muguet—Iris.

FEBRUARY

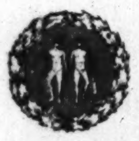
Sensitive and sincere, of limitless possibilities for strength or weakness—with great depths of love unexpressed, warm friends but unforgiving enemies—choosing the exquisite in apparel—builders of homes, and inspirers of happiness—for them there is Parfum Violette Pourpre—Emeraude—Lilas Blanc—L'Origan.

MARCH

Dominant in will, brilliant in mind, that which they desire they will attain—ever independent and resentful of criticism, their charm is a rare individuality—a magnetic power to attract, caught in the perfume of Emeraude—L'Ambre Antique—Styx—L'Or.

APRIL

Daughters of laughter and tears—whimsical, and changeful, yet true, generous and whole-souled with those they love—exquisite in taste and of fascinating wit, thinking their own thoughts and swayed by the senses—the dancing charm of them is translated in Parfum Paris—Lilas Pourpre—L'Effleurt—L'Ambreine.



MAY

Dual in character—ever aspiring, and earthward turned—noble desires and aspirations struggling with life—impatient of dictation, capricious, but of enfolding sympathies—the magnetism is caught in the complexities of Parfum Paris—La Rose Jacqueminot—Heliotrope.

JUNE

Filled with unrest of spirit and body—ever reaching out for unknowable things—surrendering too often to the dangerous sweetness of drifting and dreaming—variable—with swift changes of mood—sensitive to praise and wounded by blame—impulsive, inconstant, brilliant and witty—expressed in the fragrance of Jasmin de Corse—Muguet—La Rose Jacqueminot.

JULY

Ardent and impetuous—gifted with the words that sway men, with the power to inspire, and magnetism. The mystic touch of delicate intuition, loving life and surroundings of luxury and beauty—for them, the true fragrance is Parfum Paris—L'Oeillet France—La Rose Jacqueminot.

AUGUST

The gift of individuality—and the beauty of noble ideals—deeply emotional and flaming to anger—holding the light of inspiration to others, but ever following their own will—intense in love and sweetly generous, but changeable, the perfumes of August are Emeraude—L'Effleurt—Violette Pourpre—Lilas Blanc.

SEPTEMBER

Secretive and mysterious—with an all but imperishable youthfulness—strong to like and equally strong in disliking—dominant in will and with the impenetrable calm of power—fastidious, magnetic—loving the world of nature and finding balm therein—for September there is Parfum L'Origan—Styx—Jasmin de Corse—Chypre.

OCTOBER

Fascinating and reckless, with the divine gift of enthusiasm—joying in casting the die with chance—generous and talented—with hands that let the gold slip through—and hearts gay but inconstant—blossoming to praise—theirs is the fragrance of L'Ambre Antique—L'Origan—L'Oeillet France.

NOVEMBER

Of rare poise and keen will power, wielding an influence on all about them, loving the luxuries of life, exquisite apparel and artistic surroundings—basking in praise, demanding attention, but of great courage and originality for their charms repetition there are Parfum Emeraude—La Jacinthe—L'Or—Paris.

DECEMBER

Swift to think and swift to do—volatile, impulsive, wholly individual, with gifts of music or of art—delicately attuned to words that praise or blame—drawing the love of others—and loving with deep and intense concentration—these qualities of potent charm are echoed in Chypre, L'Ambreine, Styx, L'Origan.

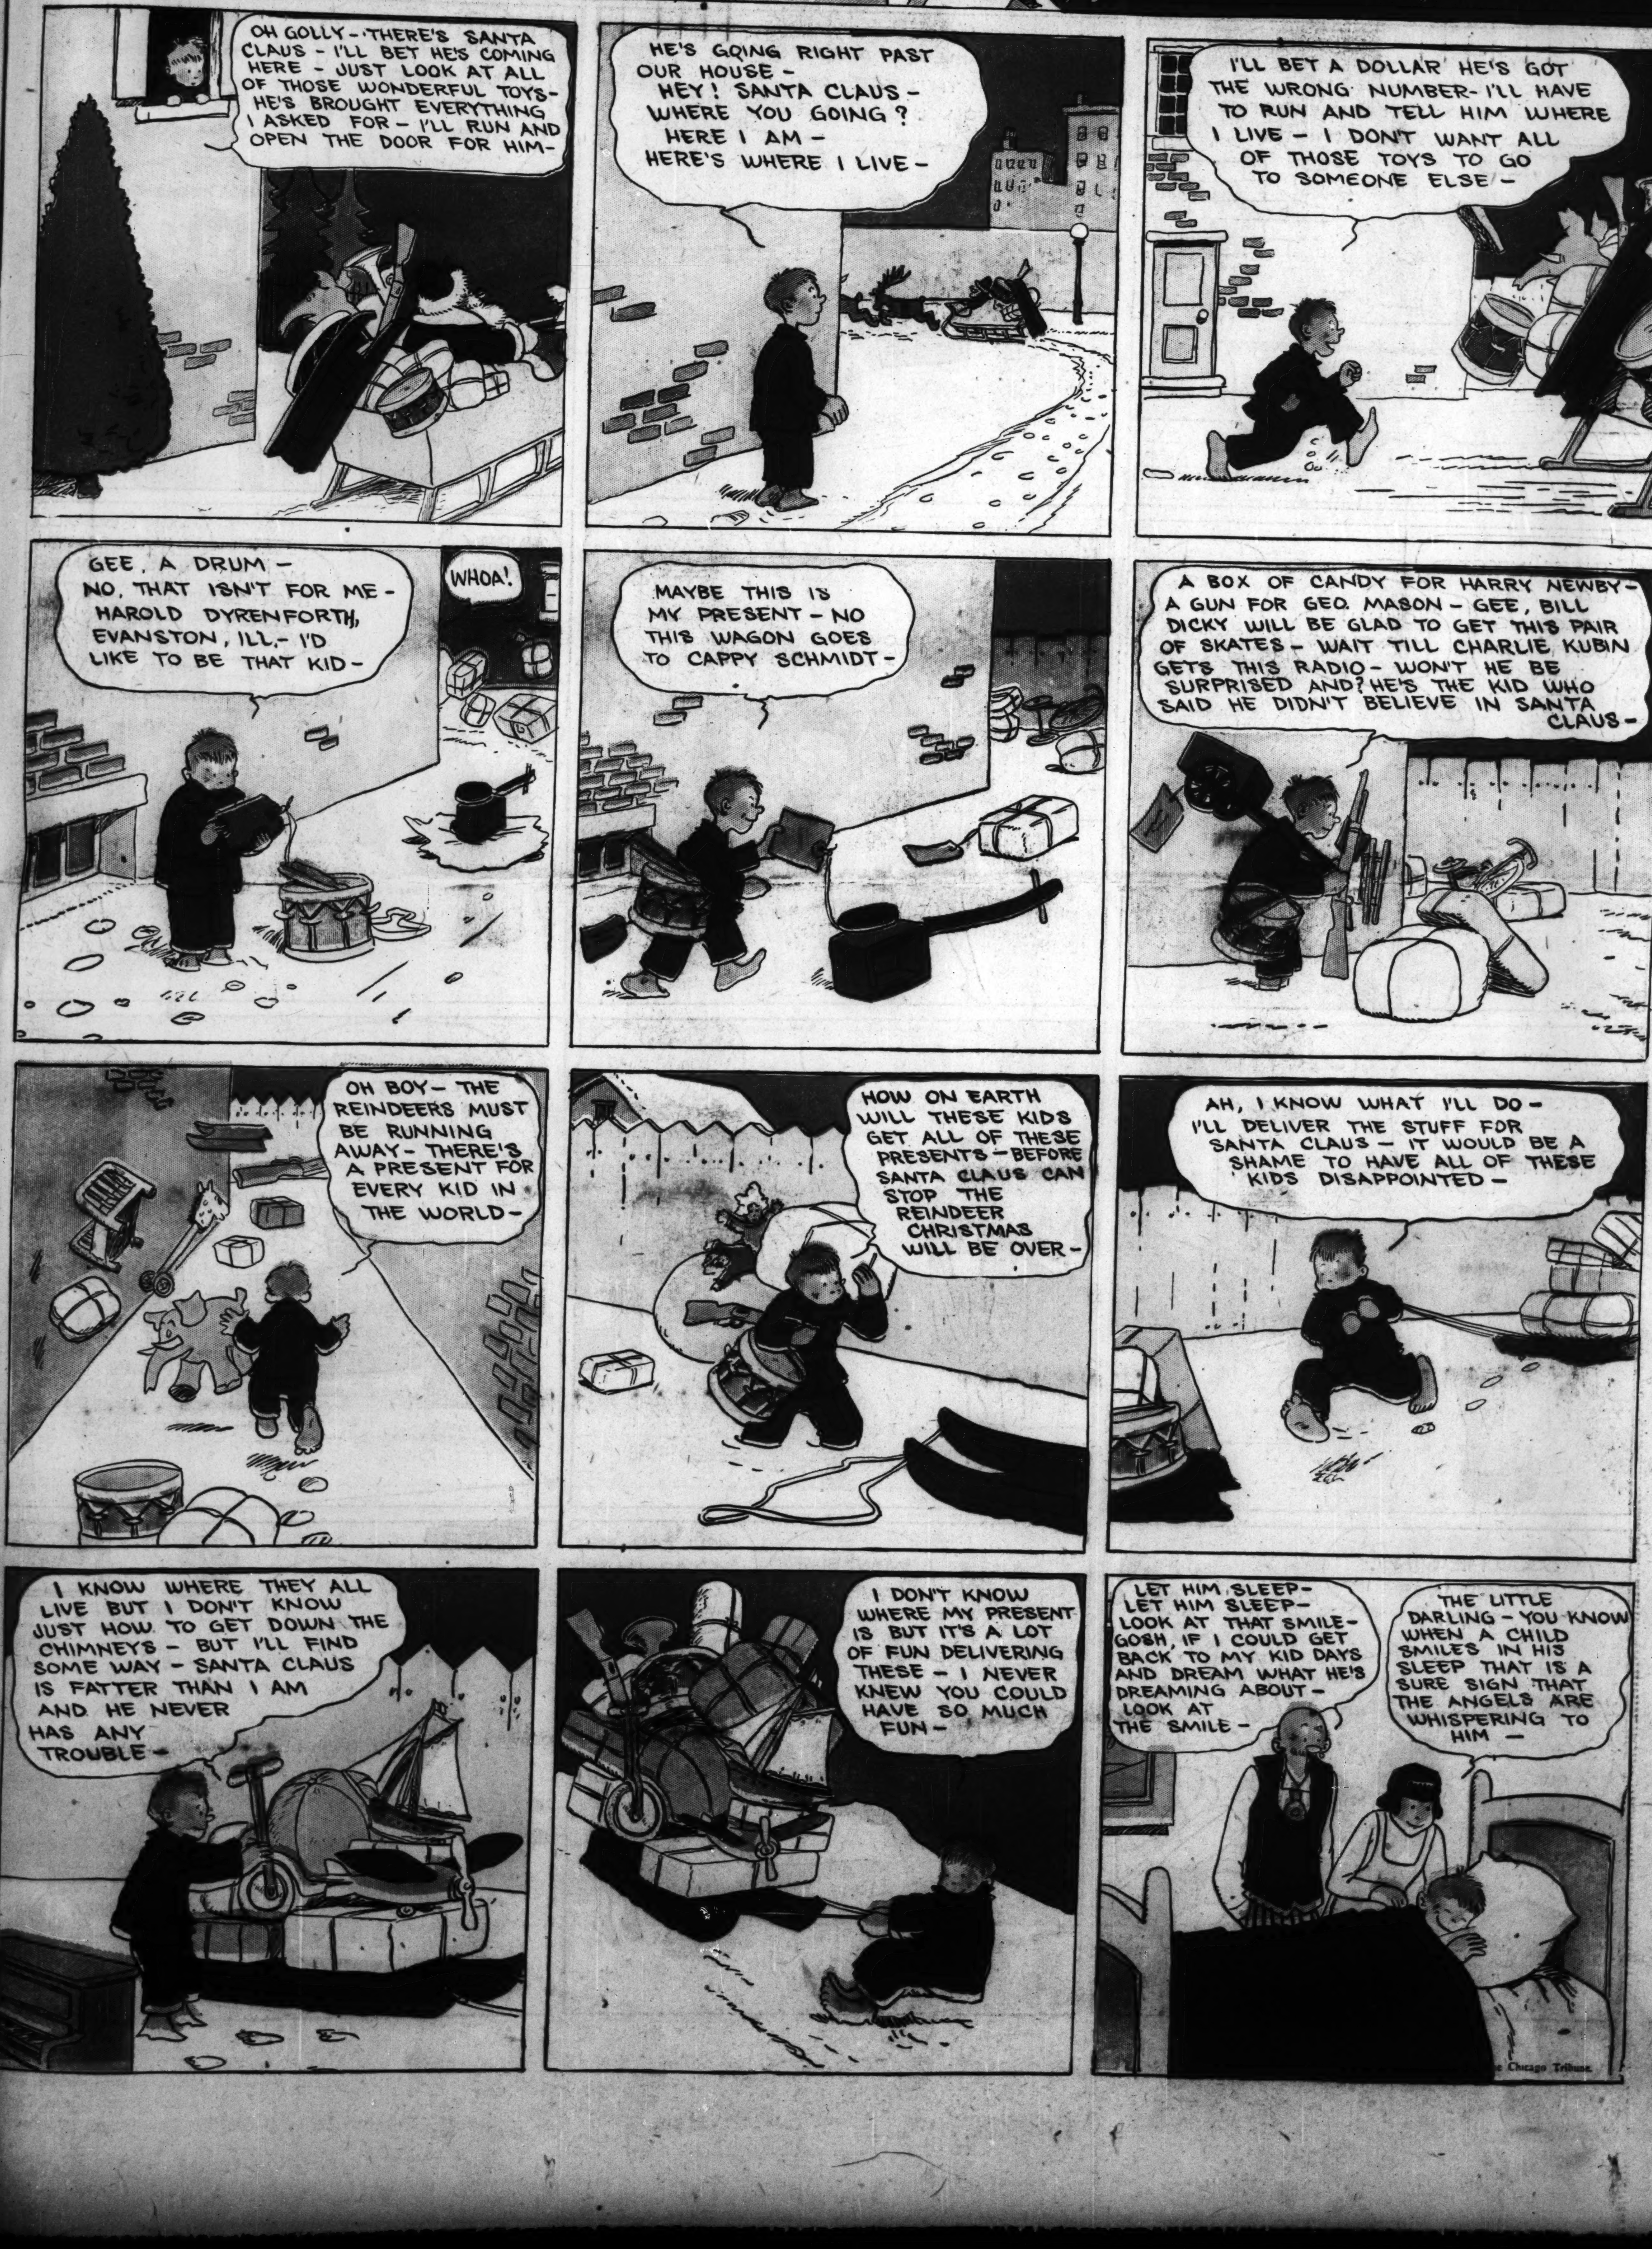
HOW DOES THAT CHIMNEY SOOT YOU ?
SIDNEY SMITH



OH GOLLY - THERE'S SANTA CLAUS - I'LL BET HE'S COMING HERE - JUST LOOK AT ALL OF THOSE WONDERFUL TOYS - HE'S BROUGHT EVERYTHING I ASKED FOR - I'LL RUN AND OPEN THE DOOR FOR HIM -
HE'S GOING RIGHT PAST OUR HOUSE - HEY! SANTA CLAUS - WHERE YOU GOING ? HERE I AM - HERE'S WHERE I LIVE -
I'LL BET A DOLLAR HE'S GOT THE WRONG NUMBER - I'LL HAVE TO RUN AND TELL HIM WHERE I LIVE - I DON'T WANT ALL OF THOSE TOYS TO GO TO SOMEONE ELSE -
GEE, A DRUM - NO, THAT ISN'T FOR ME - HAROLD DYRENFORTH, EVANSTON, ILL. - I'D LIKE TO BE THAT KID - WHOA!
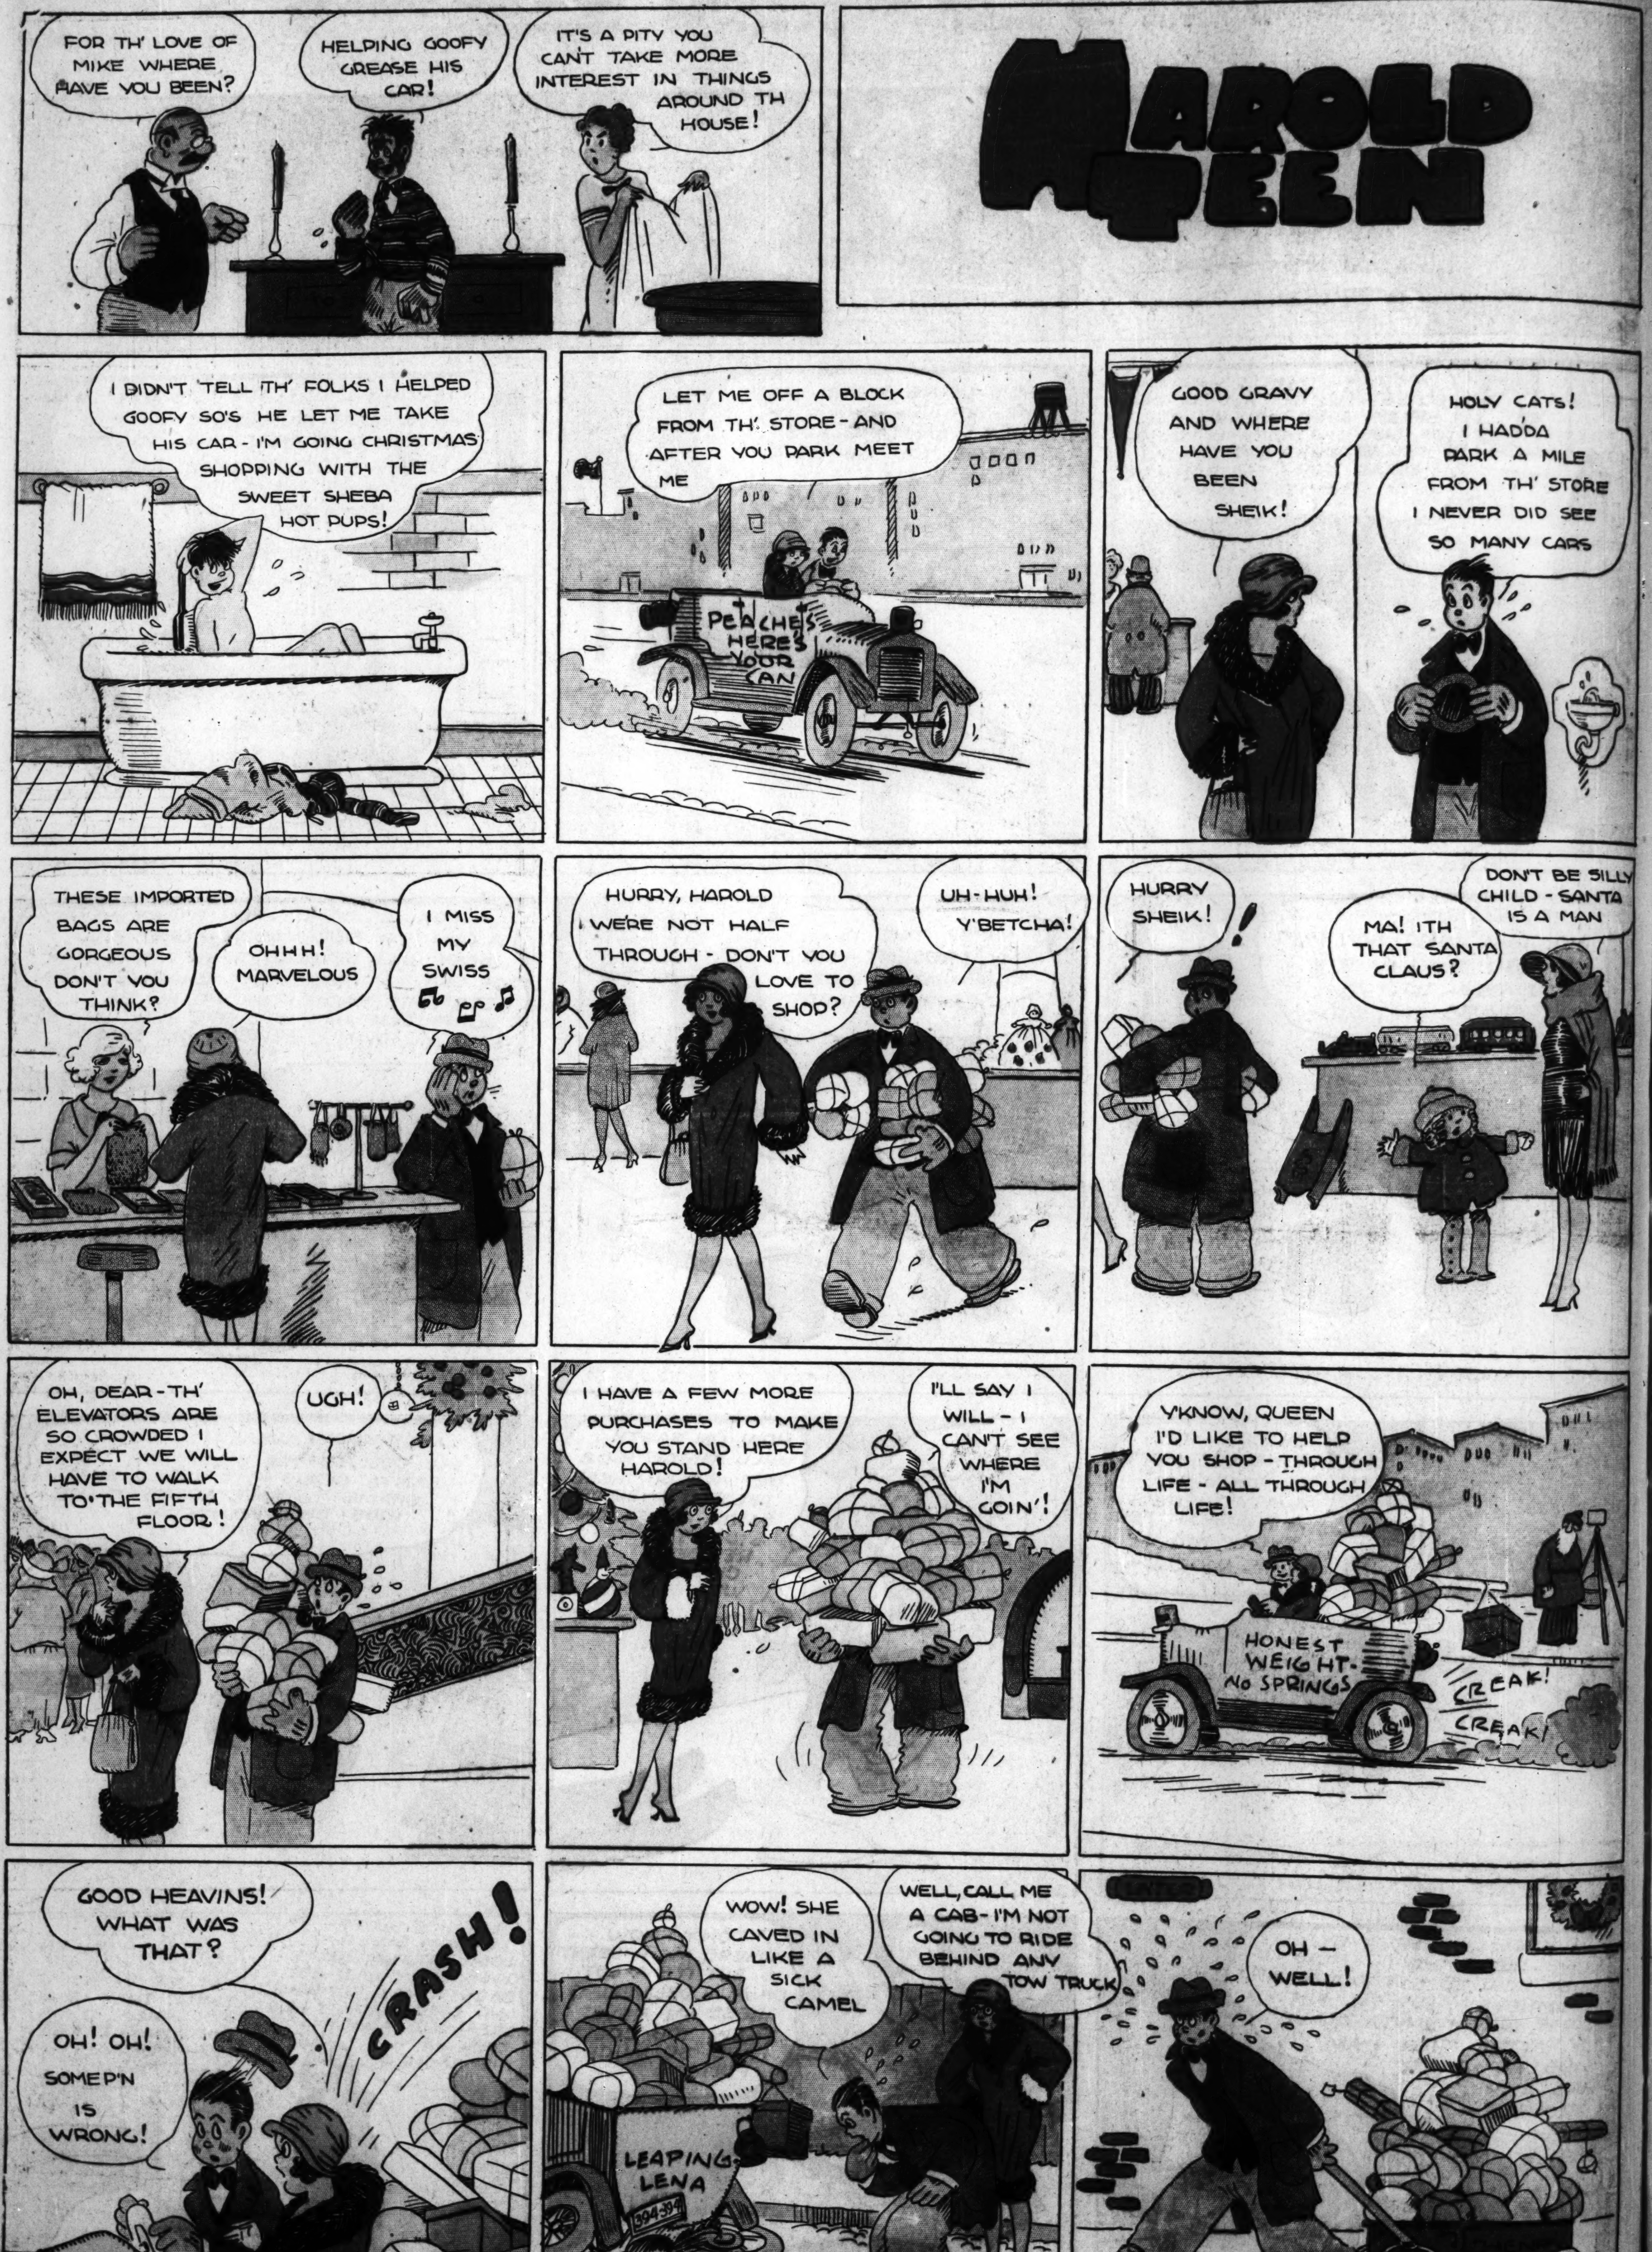
MAYBE THIS IS MY PRESENT - NO THIS WAGON GOES TO CAPPY SCHMIDT -
A BOX OF CANDY FOR HARRY NEWBY - A GUN FOR GEO. MASON - GEE, BILL DICKY WILL BE GLAD TO GET THIS PAIR OF SKATES - WAIT TILL CHARLIE KUBIN GETS THIS RADIO - WON'T HE BE SURPRISED AND? HE'S THE KID WHO SAID HE DIDN'T BELIEVE IN SANTA CLAUS -
OH BOY - THE REINDEERS MUST BE RUNNING AWAY - THERE'S A PRESENT FOR EVERY KID IN THE WORLD -
HOW ON EARTH WILL THESE KIDS GET ALL OF THESE PRESENTS - BEFORE SANTA CLAUS CAN STOP THE REINDEER CHRISTMAS WILL BE OVER -
AH, I KNOW WHAT I'LL DO - I'LL DELIVER THE STUFF FOR SANTA CLAUS - IT WOULD BE A SHAME TO HAVE ALL OF THESE KIDS DISAPPOINTED -
I KNOW WHERE THEY ALL LIVE BUT I DON'T KNOW JUST HOW TO GET DOWN THE CHIMNEYS - BUT I'LL FIND SOME WAY - SANTA CLAUS IS FATTER THAN I AM AND HE NEVER HAS ANY TROUBLE -
I DON'T KNOW WHERE MY PRESENT IS BUT IT'S A LOT OF FUN DELIVERING THESE - I NEVER KNEW YOU COULD HAVE SO MUCH FUN -
LET HIM SLEEP - LET HIM SLEEP - LOOK AT THAT SMILE - GOSH, IF I COULD GET BACK TO MY KID DAYS AND DREAM WHAT HE'S DREAMING ABOUT - LOOK AT THE SMILE -
THE LITTLE DARLING - YOU KNOW WHEN A CHILD SMILES IN HIS SLEEP THAT IS A SURE SIGN THAT THE ANGELS ARE WHISPERING TO HIM -
The Chicago Tribune.



FOR TH' LOVE OF MIKE WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN?
HELPING GOOFY GREASE HIS CAR!
IT'S A PITY YOU CAN'T TAKE MORE INTEREST IN THINGS AROUND TH HOUSE!
HAROLD TEEN

ARE YOU THE HEAD USHER, BUDDIE?
YES- KINDLY STEP THIS WAY, OFFICER.
YAS YOU! C'MON' WITH ME.
BUT, MY GOOD MAN— THIS IS PREPOSTEROUS!
NONE OF YOUR LIP NOW OR I'LL HAFTA FEED YOU TH' STICK.
I ASSURE YOU, OFFICER, THERE IS SOME MISTAKE HERE. I THOUGHT YOU WERE LOOKING FOR A SEAT.
WELL, I THOUGHT YOU WAS LEADIN' ME TO THIS GUY HERE TH' YOUNG FELLER IN TH' CAR OUT THERE SAID YOU WANTED A PEST PUT OUT.
HE DID?
OFFICER— THAT OLD FELLOW IS GOING TO HIT THAT MAN— AREN'T YOU GOING TO DO SOMETHING?
YES MAM— WHEN HE GETS DONE I'M GONNA SOCK HIM MYSELF.
